'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart R. Rosenberg

The bold look, the tall look and the long look are not the peculiar possession of dress, hat or automobile designers.

Psychiatrists tell mothers of infants, to feed their babies "on demand." Nowadays the pendulum has swung back to stricter fixed feeding schedules.

Once, psychologists spoke only of love as the single ingredient required in child-rearing. Now they dare use such words as "discipline," "responsibility," or "respect."

Not long ago educational psychologists were telling us that intelligence was native, hereditary and fixed. People, they suggested, inherit a certain degree of mental ability. And so they set about fashioning tests to measure that so-called inborn intelligence. Once tested you were given your "I.Q." supposedly, your number for life.

But fashions have changed.

Day by day we are discovering that mentality can change and be changed. The "I.Q." we were supposed to have, when we were younger can turn out to be quite higher as we grow older. We have the ability to develop to a higher capacity, in a word from what I just doesn't happen. It must be brought to flower.

"I.Q." tests, we now know, really measure only what has come to the surface. Clearly there are many hidden intellectual abilities and mental capacities which we may possess but which lie deeply within us. They are drawn up to the surface, however, if we are properly guided, directed and motivated. Intelligence, like nature itself, comes to its fullest flowering, only in cultivation.

In the first instance, human intelligence must be very bright, to stop all the social environment is stimulating. Put a bright child in a class of the not-so-bright, and lacking challenge and mental excitement, he will fail to develop to his fullest capacity. His mind can move upward only if he is made to stand on his tip-toe. The strain on his "mental muscles" helps to strengthen them and to develop them.

Similarly, we do little for "he average child if we expose him only to the ordinary - he never gets a chance to experience and delight in the extraordinary. He remains what he is because we've denied him the opportunity to become what he might be. If we protect and shelter him from excellence, he will forever reflect mediocrity.

The reason so many of our children do so poorly in English is probably due, in part, to the fact that most of them know only English - and no other language. If the only language we know is our own, we will not even know that well.

Instead of giving our children less to do, fewer opportunities to be challenged, or refusing to tax their minds and talents, we ought to be seeking ways to excite and to stimulate them.

As long as we keep paying so little attention to the average, our average will remain very low.

Angry Nixon Accuses Press Of Unfairness

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, as angry and distraught as he has ever been in public, met reporters in what he called his final press conference and accused segments of the press of utterly failing to give him a fair shake.

Nixon thought the Republican candidate for governor of California had called the contest Wednesday to concede victory to Democratic Governor Edmund G. Brown, winner in the Nov. 6 election. Nixon did that, but he kept talking.

"As I leave you," Nixon told reporters and friends, "I want you to know just how much you're going to be missing."

"You won't have Nixon to kick around any more because, gentlemen, this is my last press conference."

Nixon was endorsed by some 75 per cent of the California daily newspapers that took sides in the turbulent campaign. But he said many of his statements had been ignored by the press.

NO COMPLAINTS, BUT . . .

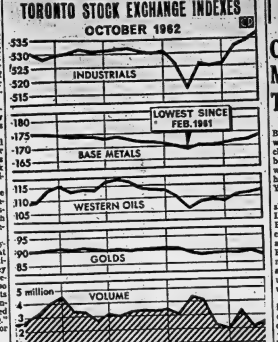
"I have no complaints about the press coverage," Nixon said early in his statement. But it turned out he had plenty.

"I am proud of the fact I defended my opponent's patriotism. You gentlemen didn't report it, but I am proud that I did that. . . . As I leave the press, all I can say is this: for 16 years, ever since the (Alger) Hiss case, you've had a lot of fun, that you've had an opportunity to do that. I think I have given as good as I can take. . . .

"I hope that what I have said today will at least make television, radio and the press first consider the great responsibility they have to report all the news and, second, to recognize that they have a right and a responsibility, if they are against a candidate—give him hell.

"But also recognize, if they give him the shaft — put one lonely reporter on the campaign who will report what the candidate says, does and then. Thank you, gentlemen, and good day."

GOVT FAIR TREATMENT



Gov. Brown said his campaign received "very fair coverage."

"The press has treated me fairly," Brown said. "I'm almost afraid to say that because my opponent might say this is special treatment (special treatment from the press)."

On Nixon's press conference, Brown said: "I think Mr. Nixon took the defeat a little bit hard, in retrospect, he'll feel differently."

At his press conference, Nixon said this of his future:

"Well, my plans are to go home. I've got to get acquainted with my family again. My plans, incidentally, are, from a political standpoint, of course, to take a holiday. It will be a long holiday."

REFLECTS CUBAN CRISIS — The Industrial index on the Toronto Stock Exchange dipped sharply to 518.53-at the close October 23 as the United States blockade of Cuba made its impact on stock markets around the world. The index recovered to 536.13 at the end of the month in fusion seized.

The base metal index on the same day hit 169.05, lowest since February, 1961.

Procedure Is Criticized by Magistrate

Laying of serious charges by private citizens instead of police was roundly criticized today by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

"I, as somewhat shocked," the magistrate said in a reprimand polished on police procedure.

The criticism followed the reading of a charge of intimidation against Ernest James Smith, R.R. 1, Foxboro. The charge was laid by the accused man's wife, Mrs. Ethel Smith.

Mrs. Smith, however, did not show in court and assistant crown attorney Gordon Robertson confessed he had no information on the charge.

"I do not know why it is necessary that police abrogate their function . . . of enforcing the law to private individuals," said the magistrate.

He said the charge arose from a sort of family feud" but it was sufficient to allege a serious offence against the man.

"I cannot understand why the police were not prepared to take their normal responsibility in laying the charge," he said.

"I am somewhat shocked at this kind of procedure, I certainly am."

Magistrate Wills remanded Mr. Smith two weeks on his own recognizance, with the provision he stay away from his wife.

"And," he added to the accused, "you can refuse to see your wife if she pursues you personally."

Picton Carrying Place Man Committed To Stand Trial

PICTON — Charles Harvey Brown, R.R. 1 Carrying Place was committed for trial on a charge of unlawfully causing bodily harm with intent to wound, following a two-hour hearing before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, here, Wednesday.

The charge arose out of the shooting and wounding, on Labor Day of a Toronto man, Benamino Santon, 31, who came from Italy two years ago and is employed as a carpenter. He suffered a wound in the right leg as a result of the shooting and appeared in court using a cane. An interpreter was required for Santon.

According to Santon's story, in court, he was one of a party of nine who came from Toronto to Brown's farm, from which he claimed, they had been given permission to hunt. The party divided into two groups. After lunch, the group wandered near some land belng worked by Mr. Brown. he said. Mr. Brown had warned them not to trespass and he said "Ok." However, the group later crossed on Brown's land in order to avoid a freshly seeded field.

"I heard two shots go whistling by my head and three men coming toward me. I recognized Brown as one of them and he was pointing a gun, carrying a gun pointed in my direction.

He pleaded with him not to shoot and offered to pay if any damage had been done. Brown told me to put down my gun, and then he shot me in the leg," Santon testified.

Santon was carried by his friends to the yard at the Brown farm home and police and an ambulance were called.

O.P.P. Constable Pat Mc-Kenna testified that when he arrived on the scene Brown came out of the house and said "I did it. I'm the one, you have to arrest me." He said Brown gave him the .22 calibre Marlin rifle, allegedly used in the shooting. The officer said Brown told him the hunting party had approached him with guns pointing at him, and what he had done was in self-defence. He had warned hunters and that he would call the police.

Mr. Brown did not give evidence and defence was reserved for the trial.

Magistrate Wills made it clear that the "intent to wound" is the main consideration of the charge.

Hunter Wounded, Another Lost in Bancroft Area

BANCROFT (Special) —Two serious incidents Tuesday added a macabre thrill to the Week-end of the deer-hunting season here.

A Toronto-district man was rushed to hospital yesterday afternoon after he was mistaken for a deer and shot — by a veteran marksman.

Shot in the hip while hunting with a party in Mayo township yesterday was Robert McVey, aged about 40, of Markham township, Ontario Provincial Police say McVey was acting as dogger for his group. Clad in a brown coat, police say he was mistaken for a deer and shot by one of his party. The .30-30 calibre bullet entered his hip and passed through his groin.

His companions improvised a stretcher and carried him back to camp. From there he was taken to the highway on a two-wheel trailer drawn by a tractor.

A waiting ambulance rushed him to Bancroft Hospital where after preliminary treatment he was sent to Peterborough.

ONE COMPANION DOCTOR

One of McVey's companions is a doctor from Toronto, who was unable to do much for the wounded hunter on the spot since he had no medical kit.

"The ironic part about it", said a police officer, "is that he was shot by an experienced hunter who has been hunting for 40 years".

Meantime, provincial police today moved a search party into the bush in the Faraday area, eight miles west of Bancroft, in the search for 91-year-old Douglas Casselman, missing since last night.

The veteran hunter was left in the runway in the bush by other members of his party.

When he failed to show up at camp by nightfall a search was organized — without success.

At 7 a.m. today the search was reformed under provincial police and moved into the bush. Anxiety was felt for Mr. Casselman's safety because of his age.

"Temperatures weren't too low here last night, however", an officer said. "Probably he'll be alright.

A helicopter also was being sought to aid ground parties, with observation from the air.

Truck Driver Kills Deer on Highway 401

Want to get yourself a deer? No need to go plowing through dank northern bush, loaded with high-powered armament. All you need is a little bit of luck and a company truck.

At least that's the experience of Hamilton truck driver William John Bartlett, who made his first kill of the 1962 season on Highway 401 on the outskirts of Belleville today.

Martin was wheeling his road transport just west of the Sidney Street detour when a three-point buck leapt into the truck's line of travel.

The deer was instantly killed. Weighing about 200 lbs., it was taken to nearby district OPP headquarters where it was later turned over to the game warden.

Damage to the truck was $10.

CATCH THIEVES

COPENHAGEN (AP)—Police Wednesday night caught a girl, 19, and a man, 61, they said had used homemade slugs to loot vending machines of $700 worth of cigarettes, food, nylon stockings and other items. The girl told police she had made the slugs using techniques she had making false teeth.

Advice to Church-Goer

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—Re your advice to "Church-Goer."

Catholics do not believe that "one religion is as good as another." If this young man deserts his faith, he will never be happy; moreover, the Catholic Church does not recognize as valid the marriage of a Catholic before a minister or civic official; hence, he is ready for trouble.

In such circumstances, his family certainly will not "later come round." They cannot, as it is a matter of conscience. The man should consult his parish priest.—MISS K. M.

DEAR MISS K. M.—Thank you for your comments.

DEAR DORIS—Please answer in the paper as my mother opens all my letters. My mother won't let me go out with this guy. He is an Indian but very nice. I am sixteen and he is seventeen. Is there anything the matter with Indians and is there anything the matter with going out with them? —SIXTEEN.

DEAR SIXTEEN—Indians are fine. But when people with very different backgrounds fall in love, there can be trouble. Your mother is trying to save you from any chance of heartbreak.

Later, you choose for yourself. That's after you've had other dates and can make some comparisons.

DEAR DORIS—I would like to donate my eyes to someon who is less fortunate than myself. Would you please tell me where I can obtain some information regarding an eye bank? —JEANNIE SUE.

DEAR JEANNIE—You can help the blind by bequeathing your eyes when you die. This is because the healthy cornea of a person with good sight can be used again to replace a cloudy cornea.

The procedure is simple. It requires your own signature and that of your next of kin; your doctor should also know of your intention. To obtain the proper form and additional information, write to The Eye Bank of Canada, Ontario Division, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 1929 Bayview Avenue, Toronto 17, Ontario.

DEAR DORIS—I have been elected president of a badminton club. Please inform me (1) how to open the meetings; (2) what are the duties of the president; (3) who should buy things needed for the club, president or secretary?—SPORT.

DEAR SPORT—(1) Simplest way is best: "Will the meeting please come to order?"

(2) President presides at all meetings and executive meetings. Signs minutes after approved. May countersign cheques, if so arranged by constitution. Has final responsibility for club activities.

(3) More likely the secretary, but this is a matter for individual discussion and agreement.

DEAR DORIS—I am seventeen years old and would like to know if I should give all my money to my parents.

I work as a hairdresser. My father and mother both insist that I should give all my money to my father till I'm twenty-one. They say, "All your other sisters and brothers did it; you can do it too."

I get a small amount back for my clothing and other expenses. Dad grows corn and oats on the farm, goes to the sales to make a little extra money. We just rent a farm. We've just been here in Canada from Holland for seven years.—DOTTIE.

DEAR DOTTIE—Here in Canada we think a girl should learn to handle her own money by handling it. In most homes she pays a set board. Not that you'll have more than way; it may come out at less.

But at least you have the say as to where it shall go. Otherwise when you are later let loose with cash, it may be blown to the four winds before you catch up with what you are doing.

DEAR DORIS—I have been separated from my husband about a year and a half now, and have the three children with me. I also work in a factory to keep things going. My friends and neighbors told me to leave him and force the sale of the house, which I did, and he lost his business as well.

Now I feel I have done the wrong thing, but I am afraid if I meet him and have a talk with him about our future, I may lose my friends. Somehow, I feel I love him and he loves me. I know I would never leave him again no matter what happened, because nobody wants a seperated woman.

What should I do? I sometimes ring him on the phone, but then somehow I lose my nerve and hang up.—HEARTSICK.

DEAR HEARTSICK—Would you rather keep your friends or your husband? Get off the fence and down to action. If you are sorry for what you did, say so. What have you got to lose that you haven't lost already?

Mrs. Roosevelt

bears her name and the year of her birth, 1884.

"Those at the interment service, in addition to family, will include representatives from the U.S. government, the United Nations, and the State of New York, as well as close friends of Mrs. Roosevelt," the announcement said. President Kennedy will attend. So will former president Harry S Truman and his wife.

PLAN SERVICE

A memorial service at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City is being planned for sometime within the next two weeks.

The family gave permission for an autopsy but its purpose was not made clear. Eight years ago, Mrs. Roosevelt willed her eyes to an eye bank.

Mrs. Roosevelt fought her illness with the same vigor with which she had pursued a career which took her to the far corners of the world.

She was often on the go—shuttling around the world on one errand or another, both public and private. She lectured far and wide, and was known in many lands.

Her travels were often the subject of good-natured humor. They also brought barbed criticism from many who disliked her or her husband.

Only after her death did the family disclose that her illness was discovered 2½ years ago. Initially, treatment permitted her to continue writing, speaking and battling for the causes for which she had become famous.

Last July the anemia worsened and she entered the hospital for a series of tests. She left the hospital and went to Hyde Park for a rest, then to Campobello Island in New Brunswick, where she had tirelessly helped her husband to recover from polio 40 years ago and resume his career despite the crippling handicap.

She re-entered the hospital Sept. 26 and was moved to her apartment three weeks later, at her request.

"The contentment which she experienced in being among her own surroundings and with her family was of great importance during the last days of her life," the family said.

Mrs. Roosevelt died exactly 30 years after the first election of her husband to the presidency.

She campaigned with him through four successful bids for the presidency and served as the political eyes and ears for her physically handicapped mate.

She helped organize the United Nations and served President Truman, her husband's successor, as a U.S. representative to the United Nations.

Lester B. Pearson, Canadian Liberal party leader who was then president of the UN General Assembly, said in Ottawa Wednesday night:

"She was one of the great women of our time and her contribution toward progress in her own country was only equalled by her contribution to all good international causes."

Mrs. Roosevelt never learned the results of the elections of Tuesday, one of which her son James returned to Congress as a Democratic representative from California. She had helped to shape the Democratic ticket in New York state and, while in hospital, sent a contribution to the New York Committee for Democratic Voters, a liberal wing she helped found in the city.

For herself, she shunned political office. For a candidate such as Stevenson, however, she worked with seeming lack of fatigue. Stevenson, twice a presidential loser for the Democrats, was her support against Kennedy for the Democratic nomination in 1960.

When Kennedy won the party nod, she turned her energy to hard his election and, the president said Wednesday night, "Since the day I entered this office, she has been both an inspiration and a friend."

Once a fighter pilot, star boxer and business man with international contacts, Stephenson lives with his Tennessee born wife Mary in a balconied penthouse apartment in New York.

He became a millionaire before he was 30 by inventing the first device for transmitting photographs by wireless.

The province of Alberta world championship in the field crop competition went to Myron D. Zacharko of Bruderheim, northeast of Edmonton, in the oats division. The crown, held by Alberta for nine of the 16 years of competition, was awarded to Mr. Zacharko on an entry of the Victory variety.

The remaining two world championships awarded — 7 of the 11 field crops were judged Wednesday—went to Ontario entrants.

The world rye championship remained in Ontario this year for the second time in succession after being held by British entrants during the three years previous. An entry of the Tetra Petkus variety by William Winter of Renfrew was judged to be of the best quality.

Glen Arthur of Baltimore, Ont., is the new world champion in the tobacco field, the third win for this province in the 16-nation competition since it began at the fair in 1960.

Mr. Arthur's entries were judged the best in all three classes—cutter, log and leaf—of a total of 80 entries, including a number from Southern Rhodesia.

Reach Accord In Paper Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators for the strikebound New York Daily News and the New York Newspaper Guild agreed today on terms of a new contract—subject to ratification by the strikers.

Announcement of the agreement, ending a 2½ month-old strike, was made by an aide of Guild Secretary W. Willard Wirtz after a seven-hour negotiating session.

Both sides in the dispute agreed not to make the terms of the agreement public until it is presented to a membership meeting of the Guild unit at the News.

No time for the meeting was set immediately.

About 1,100 members of the Guild, which represents editorial and commercial employees, struck against The News a week ago.

Socred Leader Glad Members Took His Stand

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson expressed gratification Wednesday night that most Social Credit MPs followed his lead in Commons voting Tuesday night when Deputy Leader Real Caouette and five others took a different stand.

The MPs' action plus the fact that "they all saw" the national leader's viewpoint, at caucus Wednesday could have strengthened his leadership, Mr. Thompson said in an interview.

Mr. Caouette was not present at the caucus because of a prior commitment.

Mr. Caouette, who also is Quebec Social Credit leader, rejected any suggestion that what occurred means his leadership was challenged. He and five Quebec MPs cast no vote when Mr. Thompson and 14 others, among them 13 Quebec MPs, voted against a Liberal no-confidence motion which called for an immediate end to "austerity."

The deputy leader said all 28 Quebec MPs believe as he does that austerity must be ended. If he had voted, he would have voted in favor of the Liberal non-confidence motion, he said. Business in his parliamentary office had called him from the Commons and a vote on a Social Credit motion just before the vote was recorded on the Liberal motion.

'UNEXPECTED CRISIS'

Mr. Thompson said there was an "unexpected crisis" between the recording of the two votes. He had told Social Credit members they could pick one of four alternatives — leave the House and not vote, remain in the House and not vote, vote as he did against the Liberal motion or vote in favor of the Liberal motion.

In the minds of some members, a vote against the Liberal motion meant a vote in favor of austerity, which has been criticized by party spokesmen in the House. They didn't want to do that.

He had not known how many would "come with me" in voting against the Liberal motion.

Mr. Caouette, who went to Montreal some time after Wednesday's 2½ - hour caucus at which he was not present, appeared to imply that the voting lineup was related to the possibility of an election resulting had the Liberal motion carried.

He said he will not give up his opposition to austerity whether it means an election or not. All the Quebec MPs in the party believed as he did that austerity must end.

Nehru asked Parliament to approve measures for a long struggle.

He introduced a resolution expressing deep regret that China had betrayed India's friendship, adoption of the resolution was assured following several days of debate.

Some 40 nations have expressed sympathy for India and condemned China, Nehru said.

Modern weapons and equipment are flowing to Indian troops on the frontier from the United States, Britain and Canada.

Nehru said the military help was unconditional, without strings and "does not therefore affect our policy of non-alignment which we value."

He mentioned in passing that the Soviet Union and other countries had been approached for help. He did not say what the Russians had replied but Indian sources say Moscow has slowed down or stopped shipment of previously ordered military equipment.

Was Privilege To Know Her Says Minister

WELCHPOOL, N.B. (CP)—An Anglican minister who had known Roosevelt as a neighbor and friend since 1921 when the Roosevelt family built a summer home on Campobello Island, said Wednesday night it "was a privilege to know her."

Rev. N. F. Fairweather, who has been connected with Campobello Island in the Bay of Fundy for 16 years and now is rector of St. Anne's Church, said news of Mrs. Roosevelt's death in New York "comes as a deep personal sorrow."

"I had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Roosevelt numerous times. She spent one year as a faithful attendant at my services. . . . She was a woman of depth of mind and broad sympathies."

The late Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his wife spent many seasons in their cottage here. A Broadway play which later became a motion picture told the story of their romance and hardships under the title Sunrise at Campobello.

Part of it was filmed on this island, with a population of 1,500, nestled between Smaller Deer Island in Passamaquoddy Bay and the Grand Manan Archipelago at the mouth of the Bay of Fundy on the Atlantic Ocean.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pattison Alexander are pictured signing the register following their marriage at Camp Iawah, Chapel Point, Westport, Ontario. The bride is the former Miss Gay Frances Darling of Kingston, Ontario. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander, of Belleville, Kingston.

ALEXANDER — DARLING

A lovely outdoor wedding was solemnized on Saturday, October 13th, at 2.30 p.m. by the Reverend Harry Robinson of the Church of the Redeemer, Kingston, at Chapel Point, Camp Iowah, Westport, Ontario, amid autumn leaves and golden 'mums. She is the daughter of Sydney Darling, of Kingston, Ontario, daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Darling, became the bride of Robert Pattison Alexander, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander.

The wedding music was provided by Mrs. Ruth Leach, of Kingston, who accompanied the soloist, Miss Marjorie Schindel, of St. Catharines, Ontario, in her rendition of the traditional wedding hymns.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. Wilson Snyder, the bride was adorable in her bridal gown of white lace having long petit-point sleeves and graceful skirt in street length. She wore a cap of ruffled lace, with a shoulder length veil of silk illusion tulle, and carried a bouquet of gold and bronze 'mums centred by a white orchid.

She was attended by Miss Mitchell O'Prey, of Kingston, as maid of honor, and by Miss Jean Alexander, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, and by a sweetly demure little flower girl, Miss Dianne Darling, of Kingston, sister of the bride. She was charming in her pink gold sash and gold bandeau, and carrying a basket of yellow 'mums.

Mr. Albert Tatem, of Bermuda, was groomsman, while Mr. James Morton, of Belleville cousin of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Derbyshire Lodge, Camp Iawah, Westport, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of bronze and white crepe, hat of turquoise petals, and corsage of bronze and white 'mums. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother in blue brocade, with black accessories, and corsage of golden 'mums.

Guests from out of town were from Belleville, Kingston, Toronto, Montreal, Quebec, Toronto and Parry Sound.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander will reside in Kingston, Ontario.

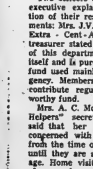
Illustrated Address on Congo Given at Ont. Diocesan W.A.

The Ontario Diocesan Women's Auxiliary met at St. Mary Magdalene Church, Napanee, for its November meeting, the president, Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell, presided and the rector, the Rev. W. L. Simmons, said the opening prayers. Mrs. George Reid, president of the Napanee branch, extended a warm welcome to all present.

Two officers of the Diocesan executive explained the function of their respective departments: Mrs. J.V. Monaghan, Extra - Cent - A - Day secretary-treasurer stated that the name of this department speaks for itself and is purely a self-denial fund used mainly for emergency. Members are asked to contribute regularly to this worthy fund.

Mrs. A. C. McCullum, "Little Helpers" secretary - treasurer said that her department is concerned with little children from the time of their baptism until they are seven years of age. Home visiting by leaders plays an important part as it brings parents and children in closer contact with the Church. Senior members of the W.A. are asked to support leaders, as they have a tremendous amount of time-consuming work to do.

DEACONESS RICH ADDRESS



Dr. J. Evans who graduated in medicine from the University of Toronto in 1958, addressed the meeting. At the moment he is attending Queen's as a student of Theology for one year. Following graduation he will join Medical Missions. Last summer, Dr. Evans spent four months in the Congo, having been sent there by the Congo Protestant Relief Committee. He illustrated his address with slides which proved that the Congo is a rich land with beautiful mountain scenery comparable to the west coast.

On June 30th, 1960 the Congo received its independence amidst strife and bloodshed. Almost except for a few isolated instances order has been restored and the white man is once again accepted. Unfortunately Belgium did not realize the necessity of the people until it was too late. A beautiful university now exists in Leopoldville, but it was only built five years ago, which explains the fact why most of the government leaders and officials are in their early twenties.

GRAVE PROBLEM

Due to the lack of education malnutrition is a grave problem and trained people are required to teach the Congolese methods to make an already good farming land prosper. It is a pity that the white man often resorts to exploitations which take many years to erase.

Mrs. G. Wright, of Belleville, thanked the speaker and Mrs. D. Hannah of Camden East, thanked the members of St. Mary Magdalene's for their warm hospitality.

Salvation Army Home League Holds Fine Tea and Sale

Blue and gold were the key-note colors for the decorative scheme when the Salvation Army Home League held a tea and sale in the lower auditorium of the Citadel, yesterday afternoon. The event was in charge of Mrs. R. Lee assisted by Mrs. Capt. Tuckaberry.

Everywhere the eye turned the traditional blue and gold of the League was evident, with the various sales booths decorated with gold and blue streamers.

The affair was officially opened by the Divisional Home League secretary, Mrs. Brigadier A. Simester, who, along with Mrs. Capt. Tuckaberry warmly welcomed the guests into the friendly atmosphere.

The long tea table was most attractive with its snow-white cloth centred with an artistic arrangement of golden yellow and tinted blue chrysanthemums and flanked by tapering blue and golden candles in crystal candelabra. The quartet guest tables were equally attractive with embroidered luncheon cloths, centred with slender stemmed crystal vases containing golden yellow 'mums.

TEA POURERS

Those who poured tea during the afternoon were: Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Denyes, Mrs. Major B. Acton, Major M. Murkin, Mrs. Maj. Lindsay and Major H. Hart. Those who served the dainty goodies were: Mrs. D. The homebaking, always a popular drawing card, had a generous assortment of home-made goodies including apple, berry, lemon meringue pies; also mince meat and cream and berry pies; fruit buns; Scotch shortbread; cinnamon layer and square cakes; date loaves; butterfly puffs and gingerbread men. This booth was in charge of Mrs. E. Mason and Mrs. R. Lane.

The white elephant table had its usual quota of miscellaneous items, including books, wall plaques, egg cups, dollies, vases and other trinkets and this was covered by Mrs. Fleet.

The fast approaching season was much in evidence when viewing the novelties and knitting booth which had a miniature Christmas tree laden with gaily wrapped parcels located at one end of the display. There was a choice assortment of knitted goods, including baby sets of sweater, bonnet and bootees; small children's pullovers, lace socks and bulky knit slippers, as well as a generous supply of Yule log table centres, and driftwood centre-pieces containing multicolored roses; also frilly plastic table doilies, little dolls with complete knit or crocheted wardrobes and a little doll's bassinette. Nice Knits

By VERA WINSTON

Kitchen range has moved out of the casual class and is going places—the nicest places—for afternoon and evening wear.

Perfect for any daytime occasion is this very feminine woolknit which is done in three tone combinations—white, meadow grey and dark grey and in a pretty beige, a deeper beige and taupe.

The dress is cleverly shaped with seaming to below the tucker so line there it breaks into pleats. A high bateau neck and cap sleeves complete the picture.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

A NEW CROP OF PARLOR PESTS

The Dancer — He came out of the woodwork when the Twist became the latest way of relinquishing the bones in one's body. In the midst of your newest Beethoven recording, he starts picking out dance records. Watch out for this opening gambit because, in the flash of a twinkling toe, he'll grab the nearest dancer and try to teach her steps that haven't been invented yet. He can't understand why people just like to talk when they get together.

Equally as strong as his intense urge to dance at the sound of a musical note is his desire to be noticed by other guests. This takes various forms, like suddenly breaking into a Charleston, catapulting his squealing partner into the air, or stepping on your toes if you don't watch out. Terpsichore is his living god and a blaring record player his shrine. He may have "religion" of a sort, but he never gets the word, no matter how many backs are turned on him.

The Banker: He has a portfolio of ideas on how you should invest your money. He knows Dow Jones averages as if he were a Jones boy, and can spot a trend before the gest started. As a result of his vast knowledge of how stocks go up and down, he'll tell you to hold off buying a few shares until the rainy season ends or the Yankees win the World Series. He sells aviation stocks when a plane crashes and buys into a shoe company a year after reading a news story that says people are walking more than ever. He's convinced you don't know how to use your money because you're the fuddy-duddy type who puts it into a savings account. He has his head into the financial clouds and his feet planted firmly on the ground, but solely to hide the holes in the bottoms of his shoes.

The Most Beautiful Girl in the World — Her greatest friend is the mirror and she says "hello" every time she passes one. She has a face everyone is forced to admire a, and a figure to match. She beams at all comments about her hair, her eyes, her hands and the fact that she can still fit into a size 9 dress. If no one notices, she tells them. She lives with diets and food fads and every morsel that passes her lips has some ingredient that will bring a glow to her cheeks, a sparkle to her teeth or prevent her fingernails from cracking. She is obsessed by her appearance, but, unfortunately, has never tried to cultivate a proper personality to go along with it.

QUESTION. At a buffet party, should guests wait until everyone is served and seated before eating, or is it correct to begin as soon as one has made a selection and taken a place at a table? If guests are seated at a number of small tables, must everyone wait until the table is filled before eating? — M.B., Chicago, Ill.

ANSWER: When dining buffet-style, guests serve themselves then begin eating as soon as they are seated. This applies whether everyone sits at one large table or at a series of small ones.

The bride's attendant was a cousin Miss Sharon Tibbel, of Belleville, who was attired in a waltz-length gown of romance blue nylon organza over taffeta featuring a scalloped neckline and cap sleeves, and accented at the fitted waistline with a cummerband and bow. She carried a nosegay of white 'mums and yellow roses. The flower girl was Miss Debra Brummel, niece of the bride who was sweet in a short frock of orange lace nylon over taffeta. Her headdress was a white velvet bow and she carried a nosegay of white and pink baby 'mums.

Mr. E. Smallwiece of Picton attended the bridegroom.

At the reception held in Tobe's County Gardens, the bridal table was prettily appointed with a three-tier, all-white wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The bridal bouquets lent an additional accent to this attractive setting. St. Margaret's Evening Guild Sponsors Autumn Tea

Brooding skies yesterday afternoon failed to deter the thronging patrons who wended their way to St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill for the annual autumn tea and bazaar sponsored by the Evening Guild, where so many booths of attractive merchandise were on display.

Receiving at the door were Mrs. B. Bolton, president of the Evening Guild, and the vice-president, Mrs. F. E. Sorenson, who was also the over-all convener.

After the gracious welcome, each one went her own way; some to the first booth with its wonderful supply of home baking. Here were lemon cup cakes in full with lemon filling their little cups appeared to be falling off; there were also many pies with flaky crusts, pumpkin, apple, cherry and golden meringued lemon; mouling date squares; a variety of tiny cookies; lemon filled chocolate and white squares; orange and lemon jelly rolls; yeast buns and honey candy canes. Those in charge of this booth were Mrs. Ken Roblin, Mrs. F. Bradley and Mrs. H. Welch.

DELICATESSEN BOOTH

Close by was the delicatessen booth, laden with jars of pickles, jelly, relishes, sausage rolls, individual meat pies, potato salads, cheese and relishes and a basket of freshly-dug carrots a "must" in every well filled dinner. Mrs. D. Lenny was the convener of these.

At the opposite end of the homecraft section was a table of delicious homemade candy; cups of luscious, mouth-watering maple cream, and chocolate fudges; peanut brittle; chocolates, all in boxes and cellophanes. Mrs. G. Mountford and Mrs. J. B. Bennett were the conveners here.

ATTRACTIVE PUBLIC BOOTH

One of the most attractive booths was that given over to the display of dolls; little boy dolls and little girl dolls dressed with matching beanies; girl dolls in hoods and capes; little dresses for every day wear and for parties; warm pink sleepers turned up at the bottom to keep little tots' feet warm; a tiny ballerina doll in red was just ready to toe dance. Other articles were pretty bed-sets in yellow, white and mauve floral design, and rack and sets of doll dresses. Mrs. A. Rump and Mrs. L. A. Taylor had charge of these.

Next was the booth of children's clothing which included quilts and quilts of all sizes, made-from mixed yarns in contrasting shades; fancy socks in orange and green; bathroom slippers in chocolate brown and white; pink hoods; and booties in yellow and pink and blue; baby sacques in pastel blues and pinks; little baby bonnets resembling mice, and many others, all intended for the comfort of the "king of the home". BUNCHES OF BITTERSWEET

The novelties, convened by Mrs. O. Poulton; Mrs. V. Card, and Mrs. M. Cole were placed to advantage in the large alcove, and had for sale large bunches of orange-colored Bittersweet, which brings a cheering note into some dark corner during the long bleak days of winter. There were vases full of hand-rolled metallic cats in colors of green, blues, yellows, scarlets and orange.

Yugoslav Kifle

by Mary Moore

Canadian cooks do not explore the possibility of yeast doughs as European cooks do. I love yeast mixtures for they are so foolproof.

As a result of the Food Editors' Conference in September I have some new favorite recipes of food editors to try. Yesterday I made Yugoslav Kifle which is a yeast-raised cookie — a crescent (shaped like a French breakfast croissant) but filled with a nutty meringue. It caused a sensation in my tasting circle.

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 package granular yeast, 1 tablespoon lukewarm water, ½ cup margarine, 2 egg yolks, ¼ cup dairy sour cream, icing sugar.

Soak granular yeast in lukewarm water. Put sifted flour into a large mixing bowl. Cut in margarine with pastry blender until mixture is size of large peas. Add egg yolks, sour cream and soaked yeast. Divide dough into 3 equal parts. On a board sprinkled liberally with icing sugar, roll each part of the dough into a 10" circle, less than ¼" thick and cut each into 8 pie shaped wedges. Nestly fill wide end of each wedge with 1 tablespoon Walnut Filling (see below). Roll up from wide end to point. Some of the filling is exposed at the ends. Place on greased baking sheets well apart, curving ends to form crescent shape.

Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 minutes, or until golden brown. Dust with icing sugar. Makes 2 dozen cookies.

Walnut Filling: 1 cup finely chopped nuts, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Beat egg whites until stiff then beat in sugar. Fold in nuts and vanilla. Makes enough filling for 2 dozen cookies.

Beauty Clinic Held by St. Julien Chapter

A beauty clinic sponsored by St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E. held at the Kinsmen Centre Monday evening was attended by a large group of charm conscious ladies. Mrs. George Hume, on behalf of the chapter, graciously welcomed the ladies and introduced Miss Chelsea Fellows of the Elizabeth Arden Salon, Toronto.

Miss Fellows, with many years of beauty culture literally at her fingertips created a feeling of intimacy with each one present, and her-informative address on grooming, styling, posture and exercise was most timely.

Cream and lotion skilfully applied, eye shadow and mascara a subtle influence, lip stick, in good taste for the occasion, and the audience was presented with a truly lovely picture in the person of Mrs. McDonald, a member of the chapter.

Prizes for the evening were donated by a local drug store and a flower arrangement by a local florist. The lucky winners were: Mrs. F. Vozoble, Mrs. Jack Arthur Black, Mrs. M. Fair, Miss Evelyn Coulter and Miss Rosa Spry, Stirling.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

By pegg rogers

WE GET LETTERS, WE GET LETTERS . . .

We are delighted by the number of letters received asking all sorts of questions about fashion. To those of you who have written to say you enjoy the column and who ask no specific questions, a most sincere thank you. We are sure that you will understand that only lack of time prevents us from thanking each of your individually. To the information seekers — a little patience please. We will answer each letter fully and as promptly as possible.

Many people ask about agencies for fashion models. The number and quality of such agencies vary from city to city. We definitely do not sponsor any particular area. We grind fine for any of the reliable agencies such as there are in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto and Hamilton. We only state again as in our little series — So You Want To Be a Model? — that the direction of a good agency can assist you in your career. Remember we warned you, it is a long tough fight to gain even a toe hold in this field. We know from experience that a great many attractive Canadian girls long to know all about modelling. After each of our fashion shows, from Moose Jaw to St. John, N.B., we have been besieged with questions about this seemingly glamorous career.

We have had lots of questions about the most becoming colors for certain color combinations of eyes, hair and skin tones. There have been so many questions about this problem of color, that we decided to treat it separately in a later column soon to appear.

Our correspondents range from the youngest at fourteen years old to a grandmother of "over seventy," as she told us. We are pleased to have actual proof that Canadians are fashion conscious and very interested in Canadian fashions.

On our recent flying visit to New York, we were treated to a TV quickie, sandwiched in between two news programs, featuring the department store in a new role. On view in Madison, Wis., at one of the giant retail and catalogue chain stores, was the well displayed art collection of Vincent Price. The collection included Rembrandt etchings and the works of Chagall — the camera lingered long enough to give us a good black and white view. A Rembrandt can be had for $500 cash, or $10 down and $5 a month—you work out for how many years? The price range of the collection runs from $25 to $700. We like the public service idea behind this co-operative showing and would like to see more of this type of service here in Canada, particularly in communities having no art galleries. We mention this little item, only because we know that if you are interested in fashion, you are also interested in art.

If you have a question on fashion, just write to Pegg Rogers care of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Peking Full Of People in Padded Clothes

By ADAM KELLETT-LONG

PEKING (Reuters)—After a bad summer drought and an unreasonably cold fall, Peking is full of people in padded winter clothes.

Autumn in Peking is traditionally the best season of the year. By then, the dusty spring gales have blown themselves out, the torrid summer heat is only a memory and the icy Siberian blasts of winter are still to come.

But the weather this year has been causing people in North China to shake their heads ruefully and say "things aren't what they used to be."

This year's weather was a particular disappointment to members of the diplomatic corps, who look forward to a sunny, windless Indian summer for sightseeing in the ancient parks, temples and palaces and picnicking at the nearby Ming tombs and the Great Wall of China.

WINDS COLD

But this year murky clouds have spoiled the view and the chilly north winds have made it too cold for comfortable picnicking.

Peking women have put away their light, gay summer dresses and the capital again has become a city of blue-clad people relieved now and then by the bright red scarf of a member of the youth labors or an occasional khaki army uniform.

Almost the only exception to the universal blue quilted uniforms are the countless toddlers still playing in the narrow lanes and parks.

Most children up to the age of six run around naked or nearly so during the hot summer months. But as autumn sets in, they put on colored smocks, which become steadily more padded as the weather gets colder.

Ever Hear of a "DIURETIC"?

Maybe not. But you should know what a "diuretic" does. There may be times when you should use one. You likely understand how important the kidneys are in maintaining good health. Also that if the kidneys fail to function properly excess acids and waste material remain in the system. This may result in subsequent urinary irritation and bladder discomfort, often followed by backache, tired feeling and disturbed rest. *Commercial

This is when the diuretic service of Dodd's Kidney Pills may be helpful. Dodd's act as a diuretic stimulant to help restore normal kidney action, and so relieve the symptoms of condition causing backache and tired feeling. When you are bothered by backache and tired feeling due to lazy kidney action you can depend on Dodd's Kidney Pills as many thousands have done during the past 70 years. Look for Dodd's at any drug counter.

Artist Says Ventriloquism Helps Her Combat Shyness

Carolyn and her dummy Sandy are veteran TV performers and have also starred in the Montreal - produced Blue Sky Revue.

"Basically I'm very shy," said Carolyn in an interview. "Until I had Sandy, I couldn't do things like performing on the stage.

"Now everything is easier with Sandy on my knee. Through him I can say and do things I probably wouldn't dare to say or do by myself."

She started her career seven years ago, entertaining a few friends with a hand puppet.

To her surprise she discovered she was a ventriloquist.

"But I still can't explain ventriloquism," the pretty redhead said. "I guess it's something you can or can't do. It's like singing: if you're able to sing, you can improve a bit, but you can never learn how to do it."

Carolyn was introduced to Montreal TV audiences in 1960 when CFMY hired her as a regular performer on Montreal Matinee.

NO SCRIPT

A year later, the same station co-starred her with veteran TV performer Peggy Austin on Cartoon Corner, a Saturday morning children's program.

No script is used. Sandy's spontaneous flow of gags is the product of Carolyn's legendary and imagination.

A second-year high student Carolyn said she is "anxious" to finish high school and, if my career doesn't interfere, go to college too."

Her other talents include folk singing, playing the piano and guitar by ear and dancing. Her brother Billy, 14, is a professional drummer and six-year-old Cathy is also a polished performer, singing and doing the Charleston. Their father, Tom Blythe, is the producer of the Blue Sky Revue.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Frank G. — He has run out of excuses for not accompanying me on my trip.

Frank G.: Clarence and I went to school together for 8 years. I retired two years ago, and now he has followed suit. Were about in the same boat financially and family-wise, with no dependents. I'm a bachelor, and he's a widower with a married son.

I love to travel and for years I've been after Clarence to come along. I succeeded about ten years ago, getting him to Gettysburg and Washington during our Easter vacation. Ever since, his excuse has been his job, his refresher courses or a new grandchild to visit. But now that he's retired there's no good reason for him to remain such a stick-in-the-mud.

I'm planning a freighter trip to South America in February and I'm counting on his company.

Clarence A: What's wrong with staying home? Frank looks at me as if there's something wrong with me for enjoying my own block, my own neighborhood, my own city. I'd like to meander and browse through streets nearby. I've always raced through on errands or en route to somewhere else, and now I can look in shop windows, and watch the repairmen and builders at work.

I find travel exhausting. And the beauty spots of the world look better in the movies than face-to-face. Washington was full of hawkers and salesmen at every turn. I used to enjoy a smooth train ride more than any other form of transportation but the railroads seem more interested in freight than in people. I take a train to visit my son but the long walks at the depot, lugging heavy bags, make my few.

The Council: Better give, up, Frank! The Survey Research Center of the Univ. of Michigan has just released some findings on travel and report that 1 out of every 10 Americans, given a choice, prefers to stay home. Just your luck to have your pal, Clarence, be one of those.

There are many reasons why people who want to travel can't and won't! We'll assume he's do so. The above survey listed them as Expense, Poor Health, Old Age, Job Responsibilities, Children, Non-job Responsibilities. Evidently, none of these are deterring Clarence, even though at some time he has undoubtedly invoked some of them as his excuse for turning Frank down.

Now, then, understand Clarence — a man who can travel and won't! Well assume he's not ducking Frank's company, because they've been close friends for years and are probably together a great deal when Frank's in the home port. Is it laziness, inertia, tightwaddery?

We doubt it. Clarence seems to be the type who sees travel as a form of escape, a symptom of failure to adjust at home. By staying put he's waging a campaign to proclaim that he is content with the street where he lives. Add to that his other interests, plus his distress over the bumps and bruises of travel, plus his smug conclusion that places look better in the movies, and Clarence remains well-nigh unbudgable.

Frank had better dig up another prospect for that South American jaunt. But maybe we can quicken Clarence's interest in another short whirl with his long time side kick by answering his objections in a way to make him question them a bit. Excesive travel may have neurotic overtones, but most trips are taken by people who want to grow, learn and reach out for a variety of experiences. They're not running from, but running to something. And though getting there (by auto, bus, train, ship or plane) may not always be half the fun it's cracked up to be, staying home isn't always the best either.

As to movies being a substitute for the real thing, Clarence did a picture postcard of a giant Sequoia tree ever put a lump in your throat or give you goose pimples? The real thing would!

Sample Checklist of Things Men Glad to Do Without

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Instead of counting sheep the next time you have insomnia, why not instead mentally make a list of things you feel the world would be better off without?

Here's one man's sample checklist of things he'd be glad to do without:

Martinis made with vodka. Salads in which the garlic outweighs the lettuce.

Career women who try to act "just like one of the boys."

People who punch you in the chest or abdomen with their finger to be sure you don't miss the point of what they are telling you.

Husbands who insist on telling you their wife's faults.

Plastic tubes you have to squeeze with both hands to get a dribble of mustard or catsup from.

LOOK A DRIP

Drip-dry suits that don't require ironing or pressing—that is, unless you object to looking as wrinkled as a laundry sack.

Automatic elevators that have so many buttons to push only a man with jet pilot training can get off at the proper floor.

Any man over 40 who is lean, tanned and muscular and who wants to let you in on the secret of how you can be that way too.

Roller derbies, college panty raids, cocktail canapes, dunkable haircuts, and youths who race around small quiet lakes in small noisy motor boats.

All race horses that come in second.

Waiters who seek a bigger tip by rushing up and putting an extra dab of butter on your plate—just as you're finishing your coffee at the end of a meal.

Sopranos with dresses cut too low and voices pitched too high.

Dentists who say, "this may hurt a little"—when they know.

Payroll cheques with deductions that match your take-home pay.

What's your list?

It is going to hurt a lot.

Leaders of Quebec's Two Major Political Parties Will Engage in TV Debate

MONTREAL (CP)—The leaders of Quebec's two major political parties will set a Canadian precedent Sunday when they appear on the same television program to debate main issues ahead of the provincial election three days later.

The 90 - minute debate, in French, will be between Premier Jean Lesage, Liberal, and Daniel Johnson, Union Nationale leader.

It will be carried by the CBC's French-language TV network covering Quebec provinces points east as far as Moncton and west to Sudbury, Ont.

The debate will be translated simultaneously into English for CBC radio stations in Montreal and Ottawa and on two affiliated stations in Sherbrooke and Quebec City. English-speaking people in those areas will be able to use radio for sound and television for picture.

WANTS TRANSLATORS

The translators will watch the debate on a TV screen in a radio studio. The CBC said it is trying to get two translators from the House of Commons but otherwise will ask the International Civil Aviation Organization, with headquarters in Montreal, for help.

This is the first time the leaders of two Canadian political parties have faced each other on TV.

Some say the debate starting at 8:30 p.m. could score the highest rating in the history of Quebec TV. Some other events are being rescheduled so as not to clash with it.

Premier Lesage is a top-notch orator, and Mr. Johnson is noted for his rapid exchanges in free-wheeling debate, but the ground rules appear to rule out any possibility of a verbal free-for-all.

Mr. Lesage will sit at a desk on one side of the studio. Mr. Johnson at another desk across the room. Each will have four seven-minute periods to talk on four different subjects: Exportation of power companies; natural gas and the Trans-Canada Pipeline; party programs and the Lesage administration.

TO LIMIT QUESTIONS

At the end of each period, six reporters will have six minutes for oral questioning. The moderator — Raymond Cheerette, CBC Montreal announcer—will limit each question to about a minute.

Before the debate ends, each leader will have five minutes to sum up.

The parties agreed that six reporters should be on hand but so far have not agreed on who should pick them.

The Liberals offered to let the CBC do the choosing, but Union Nationale refused. Then it was proposed that the six be those who have questioned Mr. Lesage and Mr. Johnson on the French - language CBC Press Conference program in recent weeks. Union Nationale again refused.

The UN then proposed that each party name three newspaper men. The Liberals agreed but the Unionists they asked said they did not wish to participate as guests of a political party.

The Liberals asked L'Union Canadienne des Journalistes de Langue Francaise (Canadian Union of French - Language Journalists) to name three. The union said it would choose the whole team but not half of it. Union Nationale refused. The union agree to the union's suggestion.

CBC BEARS COST

The CBC said it is televising the debate as a public affairs service and will bear the cost of it.

The Nov. 11 date was agreed upon by the two political leaders at a Montreal's fake voting-slips affair, before Chief meeting Friday, Oct. 26, after much controversy.

Mr. Johnson issued a challenge to the Liberal leader in Sues: Conduct of the Lesage administration; the 1957 sale of federal cabinet minister; and the expropriation of electric power.

In accepting, the premier stipulated that the debate could be limited to administration. the issue on which Quebec's snap election was called.

Mr. Johnson objected to the idea of limiting the debate to one subject. "The real subject of the election is the general administration . . . and I challenge the Liberal leader to talk about it," he said. He wired the CBC Oct. 10 saying he was willing to debate with Mr. Lesage on the English-language network also. Private stations offered to televise that debate without charge. Mr. Johnson accepted but Mr. Lesage said no, challenging the private stations covered only a limited area.

The debate may clear one controversy point—Mr. Johnson's position on expropriation. He has proposed a referendum to decide the issue.

Writ Halts Speedy Trial Of Two Men

MONTREAL (CP) — The speedy trial of two men, Archambault and Gaston Archambault, former head of the Quebec Provincial Police homicide squad.

The charges against the two were laid under the Quebec Elections and Franchise Act following the seizure in Windsor station last Friday of 4,000 fake voting slips allegedly addressed to Union Nationiste candidates.

MUST PRODUCE SLIPS

The slips must be produced at the polls by voters on Montreal Island and in Quebec City when they appear to cast ballots in Quebec's Nov. 14 provincial election.

Three others have been arrested in connection with the case.

The writ contends that the judge acted illegally in changing preliminary hearing in the two cases to speedy trials. It claims he had proceeded illegally in changing bail of $5,000 property bond to $1,500 cash.

Following issuance of the writ, Judge Archambault said he disagreed with it but it had been issued by a higher court and he had no alternative but to accept the decision.

At the hearing the defence alluded to what it termed "a $20,000 frame-up" of one of the accused.

WILL ORDER ARREST

Crown prosecutor Guy Desjardins replied:

"If anyone places strong enough proof before me of election wrong-doing, I will ask for warrants for their arrest regardless of their political affiliation."

In seeking speedy trial Monday, Jean-Paul Carutinal, representing Lagarde, sought the speedy trial for his client on the grounds "he was being prejudged by politicians in the present campaign and his reputation could suffer enormously."

Lagarde and Archambault are charged with conspiracy to violate the election act, with aiding and abetting others to commit a crime and with conspiring to utter forged documents.

Omer Fontaine, arrested near a Windsor Station locker where police said the fake voting slips were found, has been held without bail since Friday.

In another ramification of the affair, provincial police suspended a cell guard, Robert Levesque, pending investigation of suspected intimidation of Fontaine.

AND THEN THERE WERE TEN — Mr. and Mrs. Carl Decaire hold new arrivals, Robin, Randy and Ronny in the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston. Born Nov. 5, they are the first sextuplets to survive at the hospital since it was founded in 1845. The Decaires now have 10 children, including two sets of twins, all under the age of 11. Justice Norris Accuses SIU Of Stupidity and Arrogance At Meeting of Commission

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice T. G. Norris has accused the Seafarers' International Union of North America of arrogance and stupidity.

The Vancouver jurist, investigating waterfront labor strife on the Great Lakes, fired his criticism at the SIU for what he called "outrageous propaganda" in a United States publication of the union.

It was his latest volley at propagans surrounding his one-man inquiry touching charges shipping disruptions stemming from a bitter battle between the SIU and the Canadian Labor Congress.

The inter-union battle lines are drawn on the Great Lakes and they exist as well in the Montreal courtroom where the judge is hearing the SIU give its side of the labor strife on the great lakes.

The SIU claiming that its reputation has been damaged by charges made against it before Mr. Justice Norris, is trying to refute the allegations point by point—filing various documents purporting to contradict earlier testimony.

COUNTERS ALLEGATIONS

Leonard McLaughlin, a 27-year-old former seaman who acts now as $12,000-a-year executive vice-president of the SIU of Canada, went on the witness stand Wednesday to counter allegations by former SIU official Michael Sheehan, now president of the rival Canadian Maritime Union.

He accused Mr. Sheehan of lying when he testified earlier that the SIU's general fund dropped sharply in 1960 while SIU President Hal C. Banks, was in Puerto Rico. Mr. McLaughlin said the fund increased "substantially" at the time.

A verbal free-for-all erupted at the end of Wednesday's hearing with charges of lies, insult, dishonesty and distortion, aimed directly at the SIU of North America, parent body of the SIU of Canada.

J. A. Geller, lawyer for Upper Lakes Shipping Limited, an opponent of the SIU, denounced an article in the SIU's U.S. publication, The Great Lakes Seafarer, as "garbage."

The article linked U.S. hockey player Hamilton Tiger Dennis Norris with the Norris interests who are majority shareholders in the Upper Lakes firm. It said he was willing to pay $1,000,000 for a Toronto hockey player while unwilling to pay union wages on Upper Lakes ships.

HAS NO CONNECTION

Mr. Geller declared that Mr. Norris has no connection with the Upper Lakes line. A statement endorsed by Mr. Justice Norris.

Maurice Wright, counsel for the Canadian Labor Congress, attacked another article in the same publication—a report on a resolution passed in Montreal last month by the AFL-CIO Maritime trades department condemning CLC Executive Vice-President William Dodge as a "scab and strikebreaker."

Mr. Justice Norris described the two articles as "thoroughly dishonest and entirely untrue." He castigated the SIU of North America for having the "arrogance and stupidity" to spread "untrue propaganda."

SIU lawyer Joseph Nuss said the attempt to link the U.S. Labor article with the SIU of Canada was insidious.

He charged the other lawyers with indulging in propaganda themselves by raising the matter.

The hearing continues.

Active Role In NDP Urged On Delegates

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Labor were urged Wednesday to play a more active role in advancing the cause of the New Democratic Party.

Reginald Gisborn, NDP member of the Ontario legislature from Hamilton east and former president of Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America, said trade unions have failed to get their members to do a real job politically.

"Some of our people talk about voting for the Liberals in opposition to the Tories who they feel are on the way out." He said this was evidence of a lack of adequate political education.

Eamon Park, assistant to the Canadian director of the Steelworkers union, said existence of legislative barriers in British Columbia and Alberta and union dues for political purposes also placed greater responsibility on Ontario's trade unions.

MAY DELUDE SELVES

John Lee, educational director of Local 1000, National Union of Public Service Employees at the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, said unions may be deluding themselves about the political attitude of their members by placing emphasis on the affiliation of locals with the party.

The convention was told that Ontario children are being driven to school under unsafe conditions.

Albert Cordery, an executive member of the Street Railway Workers' Union, said station wagons designed to carry six passengers are carrying as many as 15 children, sometimes by drivers under age.

The convention adopted a resolution urging school boards to specify a prevailing wage rate for school bus drivers based on union rates for the same work in nearby centres.

In other resolutions, the federation reaffirmed its policy of seeking legislation for a minimum wage of $1.25 an hour for male and female workers in Ontario, and called on the federal government to set "fair, and reasonable maximum prices" for all prescriptions and pharmaceutical products.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker paid tribute Wednesday to the late Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as "one of the great women of her generation and a great humanitarian."

Mrs. Roosevelt died Wednesday in New York.

Mr. Diefenbaker added in a statement:

"She was a wonderful helpmate to her husband and a devoted servant of her country, not only nationally but internationally.

"In the field of human rights she worked for all mankind. She maintained an international outlook that had no peer.

"On behalf of the Canadian people who held her in such high esteem, I extend sympathy to her family."

Sources in All Parties Saw Something Comforting In Votes in House Tuesday

OTTAWA (CP) — It was a grand fight, ma. Everybody won.

That about sums up the viewpoints among all four political parties over the exercise in brinkmanship in the Commons Tuesday night when the minority government squeezed out victories on two non-confidence motions by margins of eight and 13 votes.

Sources in all parties found something comforting — in greater or lesser degree—in the voting lineups. All seemed agreed that the government's tenure of office was more uncertain than earlier in the session although the measure of uncertainty ranged from slight to extreme.

Liberals were confident the voting opened a split in Social Credit ranks which will widen in coming weeks.

Progressive Conservatives considered it only slightly less certain Social Credit votes will continue to give the government a majority. And they weren't too worried, considering that if Social Credit voting support fails, the New Democrats will pull the government out of it tight spot.

TAKE DIFFERENT LINE

Liberals pointed to the fact that Social Credit MPs Gerard Lamy (St. Maurice - Lafleche) and Rene Jutras (Compton-Frontenac) voted a different line from their colleagues as evidence of a serious split.

They also noted that six Quebec Social Credit MPs—Deputy Speaker Raoul Caouette, Charles Eugene Dionne (Kamouraska), Bernard Dumont (Bellechasse), Jean - Paul Cook (Montmagny-L'Islet), Gerard Perron (Beauce) and Lucien Grenier (Shefford)—voted with their colleagues on one vote but abstained from voting on the second.

As Liberals saw it, there were three other strong points:

1. The government's confidence in gaining enough Social Credit votes to survive off a vote of non-confidence was shattered and, when it appeared they might be defeated, cabinet ministers openly sought to swing Social Credit behind the government on the floor of the chamber.

2. The New Democrats were isolated as a prop to the government when Liberals and Social Credit MPs formed a voting combination on a Social Credit non - confidence motion which was defeated by 121 to 113.

FEAR ELECTION

3. Social Credit MPs, having accepted the substance of the Liberal non-confidence motion by incorporating it into their own motion, voted for it the first time but a majority voted against it the second time. This, Liberals said, clearly shows they fear an election more than they believe in what they vote on.

4. A leadership split was exposed in Social Credit ranks when Mr. Thompson voted for his own motion and against the Liberal one while Deputy Leader Caouette voted for the Social Credit motion and left the chamber rather than vote on the Liberal motion that was carried by a majority of Social Credit MPs.

Progressive Conservatives were puzzled that the Liberals, in voting for the Social Credit motion, gave the appearance of subscribing to Social Credit doctrine, although Paul Martin (L —Essex East) in explaining the Liberals' stand said they did not interpret the wording in the doctrinaire manner Social Credit did.

Both Conservative and New Democratic sources said the Liberal action indicates a degree of irresponsibility which will seriously concern businessmen who may regard Social Credit's monetary ideas as dangerously inflationary.

Conservatives also said they saw an advantage in what they called "liberal bed-hopping"—the fact that each Liberal supported a New Democratic non-confidence motion during the throne speech debate and a Social Credit non-confidence motion Tuesday.

STILL LIST AS STOP

OTTAWA (CP)—Fort William will continue to be listed as a station stop by the CNR although the board of transport commissioners has authorized abandonment of the station there and substitution of a passenger shelter, Transport Minister Balcer Wednesday told Hurbert Badanai (L — Fort William). Tickets available for purchase on the trains, would not be sold at the shelter.

National Issues Cause No Clear-Trend in U.S. Voting

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The overriding national issues of the day, integration and the Cuba crisis, produced no clear impact on Tuesday's U.S. congressional and state elections.

President Kennedy's tough action on Cuba, coming two weeks before the elections, may have been a factor in helping the Democrats to gain four Senate seats while holding down losses in the House of Representatives. But there is no clear evidence to prove it.

In Florida, Democratic Senator George Smathers, advocate of a hard stand of Cuba, scored an easy victory. In Indiana Republican Senator Homer Capehart, advocate of a hard stand on Cuba, was beaten by a youthful Democrat.

BLAMED FOR DEFEAT

At least one key Republican loss was blamed on the Cuban crisis. Herbert Kelin, press secretary for former vice-president Richard Nixon, said Nixon would have won the California governorship if the emergency had not pushed the election campaign from the spotlight.

Capehart, perhaps more closely associated with the Cuban issue than any other senator, had been expected to gain by the connection.

In the days before the Cuban arms blockade, President Kennedy had used his sharpest words of the election campaign in classing the Indiana senator with the "self-appointed generals who want to send someone else's sons to war . . ."

After the blockade, Capehart's supporters contended that their candidate had been vindicated. But the voters turned him out after 18 years in office.

The Mississippi integration troubles were considered a factor in Alabama, where Republican James D. Martin came close to ousting Democratic Senator Lister Hill.

Martin's showing i. the solidly Democratic state was attributed in large measure to discontent with the Kennedy administration, particularly its decision to use troops in enforcing the enrolment of a Negro at the University of Mississippi.

The same issue had been expected to draw Negro votes for Democrats in urban areas of the industrial north—and probably did, although the effects were not clearly discernible.

The Republicans spent Democratic Governors in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania and held New York, although by a smaller margin than had been expected.

Balancing these losses, the Democrats won governorships in such strongly republican states as Vermont and New Hampshire.

Most observers agreed that in these cases at least, local issues and personalities had been decisive.

ASKS AID CANADAIR

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Labor Council (CLC) Wednesday night asked Montreal area municipalities to help put pressure on the federal government for aid to Canadair Limited. Louis Laberge, president of the council, said Canadair has laid off 2,400 workers since January and another 1,100 are due to be laid off before the end of the year.

Nothing Better Than Camera To Stir Up Some Excitement

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Jerd Hayward have found there's nothing better than a camera to stir up excitement in Communist East Berlin.

Mr. Hayward said he made up his mind to photograph the Brandenburg Gate "from the wrong side of the wall" separating West Berlin from East Berlin.

Travelling on tourist visas, the Haywards, passed through Checkpoint Charlie into the no-man's land between the East and West border points. Here they were asked to show their passports to East Berlin border guards.

Mr. Hayward said two "tough-looking" policewomen were checking his wife's papers when he decided to photograph them. The only thing forbidden, according to the signs, was smoking, so he snapped his shutter.

One of the policewomen saw him taking the picture and yelled. Immediately he was surrounded by border guards. He was whisked through two black curtains in a small building and then into a tiny room where he was told: "You are a spy."

"No, I'm just a tourist from Canada," he said.

"We don't believe you," they replied. "Your camera is much too good for a tourist. You are a spy."

For 30 minutes he was questioned. Finally they said he could go if he gave them his film. He refused. After more interrogation he was told he could go if he double-exposed some of the film. He agreed.

His wife then talked him into returning directly to the western sector where guards told the couple they were lucky to get back at all.

Want to Buy Six-Room Castle With Oil Heat in Secluded Part of Manitoba?

By FRED CHAFE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Want a six-room stone castle in the seclusion of a rural back road, with interior decoration by an accomplished artist and the comfort of oil heat?

Mrs. William Stark may have what you're looking for. And the price is under $10,000 including 320 acres of land.

She can vouch for the workmanship. Her late husband built it painstakingly, stone by stone. Her artist brother did the interior decoration and dozens of his paintings hang on the walls.

The 1½-storey castle complete with turret is a striking sight to motorists who pass the site in the cattle and grain-growing country east of Lake Manitoba and 120 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Mrs. Stark, a sprightly 71, has lived there alone since her husband's death more than a year ago. She put the house on the market after deciding to move to Ontario and live with a sister.

FINISHED IN 1944

It was a reluctant move. Mrs. Stark, a native of Aberdeen, watched every step of its construction after moving to Ashern, Man., as the bride of a Scottish immigrant homesteader in 1920.

Construction, with native rock from the Starks' land and surrounding countryside, began a few years after that and the final stone was set in place in 1944.

It wasn't an easy job, Mrs. Stark recalls.

"He did it when he could, whenever he could get the time. We had a herd of cattle—he milked some and I milked the rest. Those were the hard days when we got $15 for a cow and $5 for a calf.

"There was a log house originally but my husband dismantled it piece by piece and replaced it with stone. Some people ask me whether he didn't just put the stone over the logs but it isn't so."

PANELLED LIVING ROOM

The artist's touch is every where inside. Window ledges are colored with paint applied with a turkey feather, so skilfully finished they are almost impossible to distinguish from pink marble. The living room is beamed and panelled with hand-painted trim in barocial style.

This is the work of Mrs. Stark's brother, the late Brodie Crawford, an artist who specialized in church decorations. Among his most noted works are a series of hand-painted symbolic shields in St. Paul's Anglican cathedral in London, Ont.

He moved to the Ashern castle after his retirement at 70, applying his brushes to the house and doing some commission work for churches until his death 10 years later. His paintings are being sold separately. "I posed as a nun for one of his paintings," Mrs. Stark recalls.

Now she plans to return to Toronto where she first moved from Aberdeen as a girl of 20 to live with her brother, at about the same time her husband to be was leaving Kirkfield Bank in Lanarkshire to homestead, work as a mason when he could, and carve, his own monument out of the Manitoba bush and grassland.

MODERN CASTLE AVAILABLE — This modern stone castle complete with turret, was built in 1944 near Ashern, Man., 120 miles northwest of Winnipeg. Now it's up for sale—for less than $10,000. — It was built stone by stone by William Stark, who died more than a year ago. His widow, 71, intends to move to Ontario after selling the six-room castle.—(CP Photo.)

A goal and an assist each by Chicago's Ab McDonald and Boston's Cliff Pennington has split the National Hockey League's individual scoring leadership five ways.

McDonald and Pennington netted their two points each in two separate NHL games Wednesday night. They now have 13, and share the league's point-getting honors with Detroit's Parker MacDonald, Montreal's Henri Richard and Detroit's Alex Delvecchio.

However MacDonald, who leads the league in goals with eight, is ranked first. McDonald and Richard have six goals and seven assists each, Pennington is 4-9 and Delvecchio 3-10.

Bill (Red) Hay of Chicago, scoreless Wednesday, still is all alone with 12 points in sixth spot.

Boston's Johnny Bucyk also raked in two points on a goal and an assist to lead a group of five players tied with 11.

The others are Detroit's Gordie Howe, Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, Chicago's Stan Mikita and Boston's Murray Oliver.

The leaders:

MacDonald, Detroit	8	5	13
McDonald, Chicago	6	7	13
Richard, Montreal	6	7	13
Pennington, Boston	4	9	13
Delvecchio, Detroit	3	10	13

Packers' Jim Taylor Is Tough!

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—"When you get him, you gotta sit on him or he'll keep moving."

The speaker was Sam Huff, linebacker for New York Giants, and the "him" Huff was discussing is Green Bay Packer fullback Jim Taylor, who is making a runaway for rushing honors in the National Football League.

Huff also proposed that maybe the roughness rules ought to be changed a little in Taylor's case. He explained:

"You can get an unnecessary roughness penalty easy when you pile on Taylor, but it's not right. You gotta pile on him a little to keep him down."

Bob Harrison, linebacker for San Francisco 'Ders, explained how it feels to tackle Taylor.

"One time Taylor saw me waiting for him and he ran right at me. I planted my feet wide apart to be as solid as possible, but he hit me so hard that he knocked me right into the air.

'NEVER BEFORE'

"I went right off my feet and landed on my back. That never happened to me before in my life. Then he picked me up."

Taylor has a philosophy, and puts it in basic terms: "Football is a contact sport."

"You've got to make them respect you. You've got to punish tacklers. You've got to deal out more misery than the tacklers deal out to you."

Plante May See Action Tonight

MONTREAL (CP)—Jacques Plante likely will be back in Montreal Canadiens' nets tonight when the Montrealers meet Detroit Red Wings in a National Hockey League game, the first meeting on Montreal ice between the clubs this season.

Plante played only in the first game of the season and was coming down with flu and an asthmatic condition at the time. He and his mates were beaten 5-0 by Boston Bruins.

Since then Cesare Maniago has looked after the net-minding.

Following Wednesday's work-out, coach Toe Blake would say only that Plante is a "probable starter," but the goalie is reported in good shape again.

Jean Beliveau, who missed one game because of an eye injury, will play and so will Dickie Moore, still bothered by knee trouble.

By JOHN MOSHER

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Older residents now have a constant reminder of a hometown great they saw win the world's speed-skating championship. A newly unveiled plaque in King Square shows Charles I. Gorman in his famed racing crouch.

He died in 1940 at age 42. A citizens' committee raised funds for the memorial, based on granite, and sculptor Claude Roussel of Fredericton made a clay impression of Gorman for the plaque, bronzed in Winnipeg.

No other skater has excelled Charlie Gorman's time in four events. He set these still unbeaten world indoor marks at Saint John; 36.8 seconds for 440 yards, Feb. 27, 1925, and 23.8 seconds for the one-sixth mile, March 1, 1927.

His world record of 35.4 seconds for the 440 outdoors, made Feb. 14, 1927, at Lake Placid, N.Y., was equalled in 1942 but never bettered. In the 1927 indoor meet at Saint John, he tied the still unsurpassed record of 1 minute for 220 yards, set by Fred Robson at Boston in 1911.

FINNISH RIVAL

Among world record holders listed in 25 mens speedskating classifications, indoor and outdoor, the only other name appearing four times is that of Clas Thunberg. Finlands most famous skater, who in 1926 set outdoor marks for the half-mile, three - quarter mile, one mile and 1½ miles.

Only a fortnight earlier, however, when Gorman won the world championship in an outdoor meet at Lily Lake here, Thunberg was outclassed in North American - style racing. The heats and finals required conservation of stamina, and the rushing skaters had to manoeuvre for position on the turns.

Gorman, best in short and medium distances, was also at his best in the competitive atmosphere of numerous skaters. He entered the five-mile race and lagged in last place but burst into a final-lap lead and dashed to a win unexpected for a sprinter. This, with victories in the 220, 440 and mile, and second place in the three-quarter mile, gave him the world crown.

Born in Saint John July 8, 1897, Charlie enlisted in the First World War when only 17. He suffered a serious leg wound from shrapnel and in 1920 took up speedskating to strengthen the weak leg. Recurrent backaches also failed to discourage him. He died here Feb. 11, 1940, of Hodgkins disease, a type of anemia.

In 1927 the stockily-built Gorman won five out of six meets he entered in the United States and tied for first place in the sixth. His name was accepted for the Canadian Amateur Athletic Hall of Fame early in 1962. The New Brunswick Museum here has medals and trophies he won and two pairs of his skates.

"The Human Dynamo" retired in 1928 after competing in the Olympics at St. Moritz. He was later in the service station business here.

TAKES EASY DECISION

TOKYO (AP)—Carlos Ortiz of New York, world lightweight champion, battered Kazuo Takayama, Japan's featherweight champion, for 10 rounds and an easy decision Wednesday night. The bout was a tune-up for Ortiz' title defense against Teruo Kosaka, former lightweight champion of the Orient, here on Dec. 3.

Sports Snapshots

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP) — In unabashed manner Ron (Bullet) Jones calls himself a sure thing for a gold medal in boxing at the British Empire Games in Perth, Australia.

"I don't see how I can lose," he said with a grin. "Let's face it. No amateur alive can beat me."

Cocky?

"Sure, why not," he said in an interview. "I believe in myself. That's the way a boxer should be. Why underrate myself? But that doesn't mean you can't be polite."

The son of a railway porter, Jones made the games team last September when he won the national 160-pound championship in Toronto. The tag "Bullet" is for his motorcycle driving.

He had no particular interest in the ring until two years ago when he dropped into a small fight club. "I heard the cheering and all that and it seemed O.K., so I figured I'd give it a whirl."

SUCCESSFUL START

Since then Ron has been undefeated in 16 bouts, winning 14 by knockouts. Most impressive among his string was a decision he won over Horace Carroll of Syracuse, N.Y., a protege of Carmen Basilio. That bout was part of an international Diamond Gloves show here.

In the Montreal city finals this season, Ron's opponent for the title-deciding match did not show up.

"You know I really can't blame the guy," said Jones some time later. "I saw him fight afterward. He was awful. I would have killed him."

Physically, Jones is imposing with rippling back and shoulder muscles and a V - shaped torso developed by intensive weightlifting, considered strictly a training taboo by most boxers.

"They say it builds up the wrong muscles," said Jones. "But for me I find it great. Boxers nowadays are too soft. They have weak bodies. But not me."

HAS PRO AMBITIONS

His coach is Jimmy Caruso, the operator of an east-end gym and physical culture studio.

"I'm going to turn pro as soon as Jimmy says I'm ready," said Ron.

Six days a week Jones trains at the gym, two hours weightlifting and two more sparring and punching the bag.

As fight time draws near, he tapers off weightlifting and goes in more for calisthenics.

But Larivee objected to the weightlifting — which Jones started when barely in his teens — and they split.

There are five children in the Jones family and Ron's kid brother, 17, is a Montreal Golden Gloves champ in the 132-pound class.

JOCKEY KILLED

PARIS (AP)—Jockey Neville Sellwood of Australia, was killed Wednesday when his mount fell at the start of a race at the Maisons-Lafitte track. Sellwood, 41, was a native of Brisbane. He rode 1,500 winners in Australia before coming to France. He had also ridden in the United States and Britain.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Wren Blair, the dynamic jumping-jack of hockey, who figures a "little dab'll do-ya" when getting into the hair of officials, is going to protest the $50 fine and year's suspension from the Oshawa Generals bench slapped on him by OHA president Lloyd Pollack the other day.

Blair is said to have "harassed" the referee during a junior "A" tilt in Maple Leaf Gardens; was tossed out of the game and removed from the bench. His Nibs promptly reported the hassle to the OHA president.

Pollack is quoted as saying he would deal with the matter personally and announce his decision. He did —and he didn't pull the punches.

Blair didn't attend the judge-and-jury meeting because of previous commitments but he told a Kingston writer later that had he known Pollack was "thinking of anything like that" he would have been present.

Pollack did not give him any idea of what sort of punitive measures he planned. Blair said, "I told him if he thought it would be handled with any severity I'd get there, but he told me to go on with my work."

Blair, who admits to being thrown out of more games than anybody else—and I'll go along with that—said in his 13 years association with the OHA he has never been fined nor called to a meeting. He would remember, he says, if he had been fined "especially in those days."

The history-making fine and suspension occurred when Blair's junior "A" club was trailing the Toronto Marlboros 6-2 near the end of the second period — and appeared headed for a neat shellacking.

But he states that the score was not the reason he turned the verbal guns on referee Official. "I wasn't objecting to a call," he said, "I was objecting to what the referee was not calling."

"We've got a young team in Oshawa," he is quoted as saying. "They're all 16-year-olds and were taking a physical beating from the Marlboros. One after another was coming to the bench blood streaming from them. I just didn't think the referee was giving the kids the protection they needed to play this game."

Blair's reference to "those days" probably meant the gilded era of the fifties when every meeting of the senior "A" leagues proved a verbal hassle. He was every inch as dynamic then as he is now and I have seen him tossed off the bench on more than one occasion.

Pollack should have been sitting in on some of the Eastern Senior "A" Hockey League gabfests when every man was for himself and his club and t'hell with the hindmost. Blair battled everybody and anybody for the love of his Dominions; he would go all out to give a club assistance if the circumstances warranted.

I don't know what Pollack or anybody else in the seats of the OHA mighty would have done back in "those days" when every appearance of the Whitby club and Wren Blair was hailed with delight by fandom as a whole.

And referees like "Moe" Walsh, Jim Crombie and other compliments of yeomen of the whistle and sweater brigade of those times either had hides the density of that of a hippo or conveniently lent a slightly deaf ear.

And Blair was not alone in the sinning—if this can be called sinning—for I know other coaches and managers, or both, who triggered a fancy tonsilar shotgun—and paid for the barrages with ejections and such.

But never a fine. During this corner's sojourn with senior "A" hockey for longer than many years, it is the first time, to my knowledge, that a coach has been hit in the hip pocket.

Perhaps Pollack had a good reason for the punishment. Perhaps OHA coaches and managers of the OHA are getting a trifle too loud with their criticism of officials and Blair happened along at the right time to make a test case.

I think Mr. Pollack overdid the thing somewhat. In any event the appeal of Blair should make for some mighty interesting listening.

Paid Bribes From $700 To $1,000

NEW YORK (AP)—An admitted briber of college basketball athletes testified Wednesday he and a companion went on a tour of southern colleges in 1953 and hired players to dump games at prices ranging from $700 to $2,000 a game.

Aaron Wagman, testifying at the trial of Jack Molinas, said he and Joseph Green made the trip and stopped at Raleigh, N.C., the site of North Carolina State, the University of Tennessee at Knoxville and Mississippi State at Starkville, Miss.

When Green and he returned from the trip, Wagman said he reported Molinas "we got three teams now."

Goalie Switch Helps Leafs Win 5-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs changed their goalie Wednesday night with happy results. So did Chicago Black Hawks, but the results weren't quite so happy.

The Leafs switched to Don Simmons from Johnny Bower and Simmons helped them to a 5-1 victory over New York Rangers.

In Chicago, goalie Glen Hall played 10 minutes of the first period until the pain from a pinched nerve in his neck forced him out. The game was tied 1-1 at the time, and Hawks coach Rudy Pilous put in rookie Denis DeJordy to replace Hall.

Boston Bruins scored two goals on DeJordy and salvaged a 3-3 tie. By getting in for the first 10 minutes, Hall protected his phenomenal record of never having missed a game since he came into the National Hockey League, which was 552 games ago if you count playoffs or 503 regular season games.

EQUAL CANADIENS

The Toronto victory, only the second for the Leafs in six games, pulled the Stanley Cup champions into a tie for third place with Montreal Canadiens, each team with 11 points. However, the Montrealers have one game in hand.

Simmons was called on to handle only 24 shots. He missed a shutout when Andy Hebenton popped one past him early in the third period.

In Chicago, Johnny Bucyk dramatically ended the game by doing the same thing—scoring with his own team one man short because of a penalty and with no goalie in the Boston net.

Len Lunde had given Chicago a 1-0 lead and Murray Oliver had tied it for the Bruins when Bronx man Hall retired from the goal. Wharram put the Hawks ahead again in the last period. Cliff Pennington scored for the Bruins to tie things up again, and Ab McDonald gave Chicago the second un-beatable lead five minutes before the end.

Rowbotham and Phil Conrad had a goal and assist apiece. "Shaker" Baker added a goal and Pat Maracle drew one helper.

Trudeaus drew eight of the 11 penalties, including a minor, misconduct and a game misconduct to Eddie Marineau early in the second period. Laminade proved he would stand for no nonsense, when the player kept on arguing a bedding penalty after repeated warnings.

It was while Marineau was off that Hughes tied the score 3-3 and Allen's goal at 15.10 put Trudeau ahead for the first time in the game.

Hall Misses First Game In 8 Years

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawk goalkeeper Glenn Hall was forced out of a National Hockey League game for the first time in his eight-year career Wednesday night when he left the ice at 10:21 of the first period.

A pinched nerve in his back, which had threatened to keep Hall from starting and thus ending his consecutive game streak at 551, forced him to leave after a shot by Boston's Murray Oliver slithered under his pads and into the net to tie the score at 1-1.

Hall Misses First Game In 8 Years

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — By Frank Clair's own timetable, Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference will be a strong contender for the Grey Cup by 1964 or 1965.

The Ottawa coach said in an interview Wednesday that 1962 is a rebuilding year for Riders. He said Ottawa now has the nucleus of a club that could win the Dominion championship within the next two or three years.

Riders meet Montreal Alouettes here Saturday in a sudden-death, semifinal game, the winner to play Hamilton for the Eastern championship.

Clair doesn't rule out the possibility of Ottawa going all the way this season.

"We now have as good a chance as Montreal or Hamilton," he told The Canadian Press reporter in his office at Lansdowne Park.

He said one of the biggest problems will be for Ottawa to avoid costly errors on the field.

"As I predicted the first of the year, we've lost some ball games through mistakes caused by our first-year men.

"Their mistakes were caused by inexperience and they are bound to make more of them in the playoffs."

Riders injured nine rookies into their lineup this season "and more changes will be made next year."

In addition to cutting out their own mistakes, Riders must stop the rush of Montreal's George Dixon and Don Clark in Saturday's game.

Riders are holding two-hour workouts daily in preparation for the game and halfback Ronnie Stewart has been commuting from his law studies in Toronto to the practices.

Injuries Plague Redmen

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Bill Bewley of McGill University Redmen fears his defensive line will be hobbled by injuries when the Redmen meet Western Mustangs here Saturday in the last game of the senior Intercollegiate football season.

In McGill's 23-11 win over Queen's last week, linebacker and Al Mackenzie sprained his back, the other defensive end Russ Zade wrenched his knee, linebacker Tony Blair tore ligaments in his knee and centre Dave Morton emerged with pulled leg muscles.

McGill is tied with Queen's for first place in the four - team league and is already assured of a playoff berth.

"But we'll be out to win this one," Bewley said Wednesday night. "It could mean the difference between playing off here or in Kingston."

The Als have another practice scheduled for tonight and a final warmup tentatively set for noon Friday before the team boards an afternoon train for Ottawa.

CAMBRIDGE, England (CP) The touring Canadian rugger team, showing its best form to date, gave the young unbeaten Cambridge University a hard match here Wednesday before being defeated 9-11. The Canadians trailed 3-10 at halftime.

It was the Canadians' eighth defeat in as many games.

City Hockey League

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A new "hockey boy" was born at Memorial Arena last night and showed promising indications of growing into a strong, healthy lad.

The Belleville City Hockey League's initial twin bill provided two evenly-fought contests with Welbanks Motors copping a 7-4 victory over Joyce-Rollins Combines while the Pepsi's and Trudeau Motors fought to a 5-5 deadlock.

A rather disappointing crowd, 219 adults and 23 children, paid their way into the rink, but if the clubs continue to display the same keen competition as last night, the gates should grow weekly.

Opening ceremonies preceded the first tilt last night. Mayor A. McLean Haig handled the opening faceoff after a number of city sports figures and the league executive members were introduced.

WELBANKS 7 JOYCE-ROLLINS 4

Welbanks, led by the sharp-shooting of Stu Muirhead, took a 2-1 lead in the first period of their game and opened up a 4-1 spread after two heats.

Joyce-Rollins came back with a pair of goals early in the third for a 4-3 score and later it was 5-4 before two goals in the dying minutes wrapped up the decision.

Stu Muirhead put on a one-man scoring show by firing five of the seven Welbanks goals. Floyd Crawford and Jerry Moher added a goal each. Gary Reid earned three assists, Bradley Ley two, Ted Hurst, Earl Cousins and Norm Richards one each.

Hylie Bryant, Jackie Elliott and Gordie Green picked up a goal and assist each to top the Combine scorers. Duke Doran also scored with two assists going to Jim Sheridan and one each to Bob Taylor and Ron Hull.

Muirhead got the new loop's first goal on a rebound after only 25 seconds of play. Bryant's close-in shot tied it but Muirhead broke in alone to make it 2-1 at 14.06. Crawford and Muirhead triggered the second-period goals but Doran got one back at 1.33 of the third. Gord Green made it 4-3 with Welbanks a man shy at 6.15. Muirhead and Elliott exchanged goals for the 5-4 count before Moher, on a nice pass play with Cousins, and Muirhead again, closed it at 7-4.

TRUDEAUS 5 — PEPSI'S 5

The nightcap was a sea-saw battle from start to finish with neither club ever ahead by more than one goal. The Pepsi's, shorthanded, led 3-2 at the end of the first while Trudeaus scored the only two goals of the middle heat to take a 4-3 lead.

Pepsi's pressed in the third, tying it 4-4 on Trendell's goal at 5.20. Trudeau playing coach Ed Plata put his club in the lead again at 7.17 but Phil Cornell shoved a loose puck across the line to tie it for the fifth and final time at 11.09.

Don Barclay, who was terrific at times and something less at others, and Claude Carr kept the opposition on the scoresheet over the remainder.

There were no two-goal men in the win. Hugh Petrie topped the Trudeau attack with a goal and two helpers while Bob Hughes and Ray Allen had one of each. Eddie Marineau and Ed Plata also scored with Wayne Fox assisting on two.

Marshall Gets Three For Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veteran centre Willie Marshall, who owns just about all the collecting Detroit Lions scoring records, passed another major milestone Wednesday night—the 800th point.

He did it in spectacular fashion, collecting three goals in leading Hershey Bears to an 8-3 rout of Springfield Indians.

Cleveland Barons beat Pittsburgh Hornets 5-1 and Providence Reds defeated Buffalo Bisons 3-1 in the other games.

Marshall, who will be 31 next month, jammed in two goals in the first period and the third in the final period. It was the 17th three-goal performance of his AHL career, a record, and gave him 10 goals for the season.

Marshall, a slender, 5-foot-10, 155-pounder, has scored at least 20 goals in each of his 10 seasons in the AHL. His high mark came in 1957-58 when he had 40 goals and 64 assists. Three other times he has had more than 90 points in a season.

SNAPS WIN STREAK

The Hershey victory snapped a five-game Springfield winning string. Pete Conacher had two Hershey goals, and Les Duff, Dick Meissner and Cleland Morison one each. Wally Boyer, Bruce Cline and Wayne Larkin scored for the losers.

Al Cullen, a 21-year-old spare from Woodstock Athletics of the Ontario Hockey Association senior loop filling in for the injured Les Binkley, was in net as Cleveland broke an eight-game losing string against Pittsburgh. Claude Laforge got Pittsburgh's only goal midway through the final period. Hank Cleslo, Wayne Fleming, John Ferguson, Bill Needham and Bill Masterton were the Cleveland scorers.

Stan Baluik set up the go-ahead goal and added an insurance marker in Providence's triumph over Buffalo. Baluik set up Pierre Brillant for the marker that broke a 1-1 tie. Zellio Toppazzini scored the other one for the Reds and Cliff Schpaustz tallied for Buffalo.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Board of Broadcast Governors has passed a regulation to force the publicly-owned CBC television network to carry the Grey Cup game to guarantee national coverage of the Dec. 1 football classic in Toronto.

The board stepped in and imposed a solution Wednesday on a continuing dispute between the CBC and the rival privately-owned CTV television network over televising the game.

At a closed meeting here, it decided to enact the essence of a controversial proposed regulation which in effect will require the CBC having to carry the entire CTV telecast of the game—complete with commercials.

"The board's regulation now becomes part of the law governing broadcasting in Canada," the BBG said in a statement. The decision will be published in the official Canada Gazette Nov. 28.

ISSUES WARNING

"Failure to comply with it would represent a deliberate infraction of the law," the board warned. "No matter how strongly any of the parties may feel about the regulation, the board does not expect the law will be held in defiance."

The maximum penalty for an infringement of the regulation under the Criminal Code is $500 and six months imprisonment. The BBG could also suspend the licence of a station or a group of stations.

The BBG noted that "continuous and serious" efforts have been made by CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet and CTV President Spencer Caldwell to find a way out of their impasse but their efforts had been unsuccessful.

"It now becomes necessary to impose a solution. The responsibility to do this rests upon the board of Broadcast Governors under the authority vested in it by the Broadcasting Act."

LEAVES DOOR OPEN

The board left the door open for further negotiations as to the exact terms and conditions under which the networks must comply with the regulation.

It did this by removing from the original proposal, announced last July, a clause which would allow the CBC to impose the financial terms on the sharing of sponsorship revenues if no agreement was reached by the networks.

A CBC spokesman said negotiations would continue, if necessary, right up to the game to find a satisfactory arrangement. However, he declined immediate comment on the regulation itself, which he described as "a very complicated matter."

Dogs Win, Maroons Beaten

Terriers Rap Tigers 5-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It isn't hard to pick the surprise team of the Ontario Hockey Association senior series — all hands automatically point to the spunky Galt Terriers.

Terriers, who represented Canada in the world tournament last season, were ravaged by opposing clubs this season, especially Kitchener-Waterloo Tigers.

But, even though many of their big names are gone, the Terriers rapped the Tigers 5-2 Wednesday night at Kitchener for their fifth straight win in the current campaign.

In other action, Woodstock Athletics downed Chatham Maroons 3-2 at Chatham and Windsor Bulldogs, playing before a sparse home crowd of 786, dumped Sarnia Rams 6-3.

Wednesday night's win must have been sweet for Galt. The Tigers lured some of their top players away this season and as late as three days before the opener, the Terriers didn't have a complete team.

But they showed enough hustle for the talent-laden Tigers Wednesday night.

They outplayed them for the first two periods to build up a 4-2 lead then held on while goaltender Dave Dryden took over in the final period.

Bob McKnight and Larry Pfaff scored two goals apiece for Terriers and Ron Brain got the other. McKnight's goals came 30 seconds apart to give Terriers a lead, they never relinquished.

Defensive moves by Kitchener-Waterloo set up four of the five Galt goals. The Terriers spotted the Tigers the first goal then leaped back to take a 3-1 first-period lead.

DUMPS MAROONS

In a lacklustre game at Chatham, Woodstock dumped the Maroons for the second time in two nights.

Gary Black, Jerry Land and Cec Cowie were the Woodstock marksmen. Bob Pole and George Uhlalo scored for the Maroons.

The Rams had a fighting chance for the first-third of the season going into the third period—but the Bulldogs erupted for four goals to hand Sarnia its fifth consecutive loss.

Tommy Walker paced the Bulldogs with two goals and Jean-Marc Asselin, Irwin Gross, Jacques Begin and Tom Micallef scored one apiece. Willie Menard scored twice for Sarnia and Bruce Jones once.

Frontenacs Clobber Hull 8-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Clubby Bruce Gamble has more to worry about than losing weight.

The former Boston Bruin goaltender was benched by Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional Hockey League last weekend because he is 20 pounds overweight.

Sunday they whipped Syracuse Braves 3-1 with Rutledge in goal. Gamble, who has been given three weeks to lose 20 pounds, could also lose his job if Frontenacs continue to rely in front of Rutledge.

Wednesday night's was the worst beating an EPHL team has taken this season and moved Kingston into a four-point lead over second - place Hull.

Frontenacs exploded for four goals in the second period to take a commanding lead and rapped in three more in the final period.

Don Blackburn, enjoying his finest season in five years of professional hockey, scored his 10th goal of the season, added three assists and moved one point ahead of teammate Bobby Leiter in the scoring race.

Blackburn, who has 10 goals in 10 games, scored only 13 all last season and 14 the year before.

Leiter kept pace by scoring a goal and two assists and centre Jeannot Gilbert, one of the most promising first-year men in the league, scored three goals and assisted on another to stay one point behind Leiter in third place.

Other Kingston marksmen were Billy Knibbs, with two, Red Ouellette and Jim Kozie. Hull's Billy Carter ruined Rutledge's shutout with a goal in the second period.

Minor Hockey

Quinte scored a 7-2 victory over the Bruins in a lone Bantam hockey league game played last night. The Bantams and Peewees swing into a full slate of action Saturday morning.

Quinte goals were shared by seven players last night, one each going to J. Lucas, R. Summers, P. Denyes, P. Fisher, D. Blaind, D. Wolfe and B. Schwindt. Denyes drew two assists with one apiece for Blaind, T. Schwager and Fisher.

Al Wishart and J. Harrison were the Bruin marksmen. Ray Duminie had one assist.

First Commercial Fibreglass Fishing Craft in N.S. Now Being Shown to Fishermen

By ED WALTERS

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — The latest thing in fishing boats has made its appearance in Nova Scotia and will be shown to fishermen around the coast throughout the winter.

It is the first commercial fibreglass fishing craft in the province.

The 38-foot boat was built by Atlantic Bridge Company Limited of Lunenburg as a joint project of the fisheries division of the provincial trade and industry department and the federal fisheries department.

The fisheries department provided the $14,000 the boat cost to build, but its design and future use is supervised by the provincial government.

Molded in one piece without seams, the boat has a Cape Island hull. She is powered by a gasoline conversion engine with a two- to one reduction gear which gives her a top speed of 15 knots.

LESS VIBRATION

On her initial trials around Mahone Bay, the boat—named Fibreglass—showed less vibration than a wooden boat of the same size and power. With a balanced rudder she has a tighter turning circle, allowing easy handling in close quarters.

E. A. Manzo, Nova Scotia's trade and industry minister, said the boat will be used for experimental purposes this winter. While using her to demonstrate her line trawling, lobster fishing and gill-netting, the government hopes to learn how well fibreglass will stand up to the rigors of the north Atlantic.

Andrew Eisenhauer, vice-president and general manager of Atlantic Bridge, said if enough fibreglass boats were produced they would cost only slightly more than wooden boats of a comparable size.

He estimated that a fibreglass boat like the Cape Islander, without engine or other mechanical fittings, could be built for around $7,500, or about $1,000 more than a wooden boat. He said the longer life would more than make up for the extra expenditure.

Mr. Eisenhauer suggested that fishermen could have the hull built for around $3,000, as compared with $1,500 for a wooden craft, and fit the cabin themselves.

Wooden boats can be expected to last for about 12 years. He said nobody yet knows the lifespan of a fibreglass boat but it could be expected to last for many more years than a wooden boat.

He said fibreglass boats never need paint, except for appearance, and they are not subject to rot. If a hole was punched in the hull it could be repaired by a handyman with a few layers of fibreglass. There would be very little lost time in dry-dock during the busy fishing season, he said.

The Cape Islander's designers went all out to make her as unsinkable as possible. All unused spaces are packed with a foam plastic. It is buoyant and makes the boat into a virtual lifejacket.

LESS FIRE HAZARD

According to the designer's theory, if a hole filled with water it would take another four tons to sink her.

Fire is less of a hazard aboard the fibreglass boat than on a conventional Cape Island boat, where gasoline is usually stowed on deck in a 45-gallon drum. The Cape Islander has two 50-gallon fuel tanks molded into the hull. This also gives her more than twice the range of a wooden boat.

Fibreglass has been used in pleasure craft in Canada for a number of years, and in fishing boats in the United States, England and on Canada's Pacific coast.

LOCKED TIGHT IN A COFFIN—Dr. John F. Zubek, head of the University of Manitoba's psychology department, watches reactions of a volunteer locked tight in an open coffin-like apparatus. The volunteer, Gene Telpner, has his arms and legs strapped to his head secured so he can only look at the ceiling. Dr. Zubek says preliminary conclusions indicate a relationship between total immobility and mental degeneration. (CP Photo).

People Placed in Coffin-Like Box for Hours Have Strange Things Happen to Minds

WINNIPEG (CP) — Strange things happen to the minds of men when they are locked in an open-top coffin-like box for hours, says a University of Manitoba scientist.

Dr. John P. Zubek, head of the psychology department, who in 1959 ran a series of tests in an isolation chamber, has launched a new series of experiments.

He has found, however, that whereas the first five men undergoing immobility tests experienced hallucinations, this wasn't the case with the first woman who tried.

In the tests, subjects are immobilized with hands, arms and legs held firm and the head secured in such a way that they can look only toward the ceiling.

Dr. Zubek says that even though only primary tests have been performed, conclusions drawn already indicate there is a relationship between immobility and possible mental degeneration.

AFFECTS THINKING

He suggests that if these conclusions eventually prove well grounded, they could be significant in treatment of ill persons such as those confined to iron lungs, as well as in preparing for future space projects.

Periodic examinations during the immobilization period have shown the subjects lose their ability to think clearly.

"There is a definite impairment of intellectual ability as well as in their ability to observe the world around them" despite the fact they are able to listen to music and the noises of people moving around them and to look at pictures placed where they can see them.

The tests were originally intended to go on for 24 hours but of the first 40 subjects only a small number were able to en-

TV Like Any Other Industry Has Developed Own Jargon

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, like any other industry, has developed its own jargon.

You may not have known it, but you've seen many a teaser and hundreds of crawls, promos, billboards, segues, blichbikes and piggybacks. And hear plenty of lip-synes.

Billboard is the portion of the show, fore and aft, that proclaims its name and, usually, its sponsors.

The crawl, related to the billboard, is a mechanical device that rolls the printed announcements up, down or across the television screen, carrying the names of the cast, producer, writer, director and so on.

Promos — short for promotions — are announcements of forthcoming shows on the same network.

TO MOVE SMOOTHLY

A segue, pronounced seg-way, means moving smoothly from one thing to another—from a musical number to a sketch, for example.

And a lip-sync means that the performer's mouth is matching the words of a number previously recorded.

Hitchhikes and piggybacks refer to commercials. The former refers to a brief commercial on behalf of the familiar "next week's sponsor" of a given show, the latter means a single commercial in which two different products are subjects of sales pitches.

dure more than 12 hours.

Now, he says, breaks are allowed for performances of body functions and to allow subjects to stretch their limbs. They also are released during the night.

Some entire experiment suggests that stimulation of muscles in a human being is very important. Without it there could be intellectual damage.

"We've never thought about the importance of movement before. It is a subject that has never been too thoroughly investigated. A patient could well be deteriorating mentally and we wouldn't know about it. In long cases of immobilization it is possible there would be no recovery."

SEE COLORED SPOTS

Dr. Zubek says that from observations it might be concluded that patients suffering from immobility illusions also should have their bodies and limbs, especially their hands, moved about.

Some of the reactions also suggest that sitting immobile for long periods has caused airplane pilots to see colored spots in the air or believe they have observed flying saucers.

Whereas the five men had various hallucinations, Miss Sanson had none of significance during her 6½-hour stay. This leads to speculation that women might be physically more adaptable capable of manned flights in space than men.

His earlier series of tests were performed in a translucent plastic dome seven feet high and 9½ feet in diameter. Dr. Zubek, who spent 11 and 15 days in isolation, said the main effect seemed to be loss of recent memory-ability to recall things that had happened a few minutes to half an hour before.

"Hurry up and change, boys. The gang's all going skiing!"

Governmental Best Seller Will Be Report of Crime Probe Coming Out Soon

By JOHN LEBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — A mixed waiting list of politicians, public officials, policemen, businessmen, gamblers, bookies, assorted crooks and ordinary citizens will be lining up to make a governmental best seller out of a report that should be coming out a few months from now.

There will be embarrassment for some and vindication for others in Mr. Justice Wilfrid D. Roache one - man royal commission report on Ontario crime. For still others, there could be trouble.

For the general public, the distillation of some 4,000,000 words of evidence and 297 exhibits will provide an eye-opening case history of the operations of big-time crookdom seen in fragmentary and often unconnected flashes during 68 days of public sittings.

MANY PORTENTS

For the Ontario government, it may point the way towards cutting down on the lush pickings of organized gambling and betting and tightening up law enforcement generally.

For politicians, there will be potential TNT in the report. It could detonate in various directions.

The political chips, in fact, are falling already. Veteran Attorney-General Kelso Roberts, the province's chief law enforcement officer for seven years, has run and runs of opposition gunnery over crime, was shifted to the comparatively bombproof portfolio of lands and forests right after the commission ended public hearings Oct. 23.

Any political sparks from the report itself can be expected to fly indiscriminately. For the controversial inquiry, the Progressive Conservative government chose a 71-year-old jurist who is a former Liberal MP for a constituency president and member of the Ontario Court of Appeal for 18 years. Mr. Justice Roach has tramped on all attempts to make political hay before him.

VARIED PARADE

The parade passing under his eye has included present and past political figures, offbeat underworld characters, solid businessmen, fast-money boys of various kinds, girl friends, police, civil servants, lawyers, stooges and the chief justice of Ontario.

Witnesses have been loquacious, taciturn, sullen, bellicose, unremembering, mathematically exact or dreamily vague.

When the evidence of all 128 is sorted out and patched together, it forms a picture of past police and crook connections in connection with gambling and of some government officials having been none too fast in getting off the mark against gamblers and bookmakers using the laws to protect their enterprises.

But the current picture is not clear. Nor has there been much public evidence of any type of crime except gambling, though the commission has had a limited number of private sessions with high police officers for their views on crime in general and means of tackling it more adequately.

INSIDE STUFF

By and large, the real inside stuff presented to the commission covers only up to mid-summer of 1960, when a young constable of the Ontario Provincial Police force, Scott, ended a period of infiltration into the top ranks of organized gambling and came up with a story of systematic bribery of police and gambling raiders for tipoff protection.

As a result of his disclosures, gambling bosses Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley and former OPP Constable Robert J. Wright face 1½ years in prison for conspiracy to obtain police information. Their appeal has gone to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The smooth and soft-talking Feeley and McDermott, on the evidence, shaped up as the kingpins of at least a large segment of Ontario's organized gambling for years, though little light was thrown on their present status.

Though witness after witness pointed at them as having a finger in one operation or another, the pair jointly admitted nothing more illegal than hankrolling crap games (on which the legal books are closed now), while Feeley tossed in a confession that he forged his army discharge papers during the last war, an offence long outlawed by time.

VANISHED LINK

The man supposed to have toted protection money for McDermott and Feeley from one big crap game—bookie Ralph Clarke—disappeared on the eve of his commission appearance.

The crapshooting impresario, Dominic Simone, gave the pair cut themselves in for 40 per cent of his $120,000-a-year profit from the operation for some bankrolling assistance and police "security" but eventually doublecrossed him out of the game and took over his customers in 1953.

Clarke got frozen out, too, according to Simone, and got even by burning down the McDermott - Feeley suburban dice house at Cooksville.

No police protection was alleged for Maxie (The Baker) Bluestein, who was bothered not only by the gaming but by underworld animosities but who told the commission of coming up with a new way of getting $5,000 in the face of vicissitudes such as a savage bludgeoning to leave his wife and children.

'STRONGBOY' ELSEWHERE

One of those convicted of the conspiracy charge (with the enforcer) Papalia, a Hamilton strongboy tangled up vaguely in the Scott evidence, turned out) with various gaming enterprises. The commission wanted to hear him, but when it found Papalia is in the hands of United States police, held $250,000 bail on charges of conspiracy in a huge dope-smuggling case.

Bluestein wouldn't talk about his beating except to say that he felt he was getting off comparably to the extent that he could not remember asking for police protection against the Mafia.

He did remember roughly how much he and a couple of partners turned over in a bookmaking operation behind the facade of a chartered social club up to 1956, and he inflated it was only $13,000,000 a year calculated by the magistrate who jailed him. It was closer, he said, to $4,000,000.

CHARGED LAXITY

Mimeo of these club charters by gamblers and bookies produced many of the political reverberations before the commission. They are issued by the provincial secretary's department, and Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer charged — in a speech in the legislature in 1961, that did directly to the commission's creation — that they were granted and supervised with a laxity that encouraged their use as unofficial mints."

The customary police reports preceding issuance of a charter were on occasion ignored when they were unfavorable. Sometimes they were not called for at all.

One such police report for a Toronto club in 1949 was highly unfavorable, one of the applicants being described as a front man for gamblers. Provincial Secretary Dana Porter, now chief justice, had Deputy Secretary R. J. Cudney look into the application again, and the club got its charter. It was cancelled later after a gaming conviction.

LACK OF SPEED

John Yaremko, present provincial secretary, told of tightening up administration of the club charters, but the commission heard of a few current cases of lack of speed in getting illegally - used establishments closed up. Though charter cancellation proceedings were launched against one Toronto "bridge and social" club in 1959, they had not gone through up until the time the inquiry ended because the club had got tangled up in a couple of lawsuits and the department did not want to gum these up.

In one of these, the club was suing police raiders for trespass.

The spirit of "British fair play" also was a factor in the mind of Attorney - General Roberts, he told the commission, when the police had been ordered in 1957 to ease up on harassment of three big social cum - crapshooting clubs after they turned in their federal charters for provincial ones.

There had been some hope that they might turn over a new leaf. Alternatively, Mr. Roberts theorized, somebody might get himself tough enough to blow the whistle.

WINNER SLAIN

Indeed, he recollected, it was the slaying of a Michigan man en route home from a winning night at Windsor's Rosseland Club (one of those reputedly under the McDermott - Feeley wing) that led to the closing of this luxury joint. That was the only time the commission had heard of this slant on the closing, hitherto attributed to diligent OPP anti-gambling raiders.

The attorney - general drew some head-shaking from the commissioner at the way he handled a complaint from a Toronto magistrate in 1958 that a fellow cabinet minister, the late mines minister James Maloney, had intervened on behalf of the defence in a gambling trial.

Magistrate Fred Thompson had told the commission he felt intimidated by the attorney-general. Mr. Roberts denied intimidation, but said he felt such matters could best be handled by the magistrate himself.

Mr. Justice Roach disagreed. It also surprised him to discover some months after a provincial general election intervened before the attorney-general got around to the matter of the mines minister, who denied it.

DENY ALLEGATIONS

Other witnesses mentioned Mr. Maloney as meddling in a series of law enforcement matters, some involving gamblers. But McDermott and Feeley denied allegations that they had any illicit tie-in with the minister.

Denied also—on their side and the officials' side—was miscellaneous talk relayed to the commission that they did business with such persons as Deputy Attorney-General W. B. Common, Deputy OPP Commissioner James Bartlett and John Cronin, a motel owner who refused as head sergeant of the OPP's anti-gambling squad with $80,000 in buried cash.

A couple of intriguing mysteries swirled around Bartlett. He told of finding $1,000 in a flower pot at his home after a call from McDermott and Feeley, but the commission eventually lost its trail.

Mayor Robert Simpson of Kingston, Ont., said that some years ago Bartlett introduced him to a "Mr. McDermott," who promptly asked him whether his friend Premier Frost could do anything for gamblers.

The deputy commissioner said the mayor, who could not identify McDermott in the courtroom, was "a bit unstable." McDermott said he never saw the mayor before.

CHINATOWN CLUBS

Evidence showed that one former provincial secretary, Maclennon Phillips, short-circuited a government regulation in exempting two Toronto Chinatown clubs from a rule banning gambling equipment, telling his deputy it was on instructions of then Premier Leslie Frost.

The retired premier hustled into town from a duckhunting trip to advise the inquiry that his one-time minister must have been under a monumental misapprehension, as Mr. Frost had personally written the equipment-ban clause and had never heard of the relaxation order.

Lively as any of the big city intrigues were the doings connected with Ontario's Niagara Peninsula abutting upstate New York and its supposed Mafia-connected operations.

Wealthy businessman Albert Iannuzzelli of Niagara Falls, Ont., who went from dishwasher to $200,000 net worth in 11 years, denied police suspicions that he was a partner in the bustling Ramsey gambling club but admitted that a partnership in his finance company was Benny Nicolletti, gambler and reputed Mafia boss of Niagara Falls.

Italian-born Iannuzzelli denied reports that he was a Mafia member and that he was connected with McDermott and Feeley. He did not deny that simultaneous raids on the gambling joint and his motel produced batches of American money bearing closely consecutive serial numbers, but suggested coincidence.

Later, a lawyer testified that Iannuzzelli retained him to make out annual reports to the Ontario government for the club.

ONLY A MEMORY

Another Niagara Falls man, Peter (Scrip) Miller, got into the evidence only as a memory, a minor gambling figure and sometime police informant, he disappeared about two years ago and is believed at the bottom of the Niagara River. His brother Tony denied telling people Papalia had put him away, and then lost his recollection.

From a jockeyless bookie's helper of nearby St. Catharines —Thomas (Mickey) McGroarty —the commission heard that bookie Sammy (The Ball) Balsom of that city paid off police for McDermott and Feeley, but Sammy denied everything but a minor betting operation.

It turned out the OPP had wired co-operative Mickey for sound with a tiny radio transmitter, and the transcripts of a series of broadcasts by Sammy and two commissioners to recommend that the crown look into placing charges against him. None have been laid yet.

Mickey and his wife and two children were whisked off into protective anonymity by the OPP, in the style of Russian spy ring informant Igor Gouzenko, and the public has heard nothing of hi mience.

There was some discussion regarding the liability of the town in the present agreement with the Water Resources Commission for the drilling for water on the island. It was revealed that it may be some time before the drilling is begun and the town is only committed for the drilling. Mention was made of the necessity in the near future for installing sewers throughout the town.

Average Canadian Cannot Afford Home Report Shows

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — A housing report prepared for the Co-Operative Union of Canada says the average Canadian cannot afford the luxury of owning a detached dwelling.

The report, made public here Wednesday by the union, proposes greater emphasis in Canada on co-operative housing and the construction of row-type dwellings to solve Canada's housing problems, especially for lower income groups.

The 50-page Report on Co-Operative Housing was prepared for the union by J. F. Midmore of Regina after a six-month study of Canadian housing. The work was financed by a grant from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the federal government's housing agency.

Mr. Midmore's report, says that co - operative housing in Canada lags far behind this type of housing in several European countries.

It says that co-operative housing has failed to play a significant role in Canada despite the fact that "the average Canadian wage earner has insufficient income to buy a new home."

NEEDS NEW APPROACHES

New approaches are needed for co-operative housing to succeed on a substantial basis in Canada, the report says.

It recommends local, provincial and national organizations for co-operative housing, a special co-operative section in the National Housing Act, legislation in every province for co-operative housing and more study of co-operative housing by municipalities for urban renewal.

Principal problems facing co-operative housing were land, finances, lack of understanding by public bodies and lack of a central organization.

The report says insured loans for as high a proportion of lending value as is available for individual houses—85 per cent—should apply to co-operative borrowings against either single or multiple-occupancy dwellings. It also calls for lower mortgage interest rates to co-operatives whose members belong to low-income groups or who are aged persons or students.

Macmillan's Common Market Policy Endorsed

Liberals Join Tories In British House Vote

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's ruling Conservative party today had solid parliamentary support of the government's European Common Market policy as negotiators in Brussels resumed talks on Britain's bid to enter the trading bloc.

All seven Liberal party members in the House of Commons sided with the government as the House supported the government's handling of the Market negotiations by a vote of 319 to 221.

The government also won support on a similar motion in the House of Lords, where the opposition Labor party motion was defeated. The conditions was defeated by 62 votes to 23.

The key vote came as senior British and European Market officials prepared to hold their last session before ministerial-level negotiations on Britain's membership application resume Nov. 15.

NOT YET REACHED

British sources said the officials had not yet reached agreement on the treatment to be given to Commonwealth products ceased foodstuffs if Britain joins.

The Labor party motion said the terms so far provisionally obtained for British membership in the six-nation trade alliance do not satisfy binding pledges to the British Commonwealth, the seven-member European Free Trade Association and British agriculture.

Commonwealth countries fear their economies may suffer grave damage if Britain joins Europe and the traditional Commonwealth preference system is abandoned.

The Labor party leader, Hugh Gaitskell, warned Wednesday he would mean the "end of the Commonwealth" if Britain joined the "Six" on terms so far negotiated.

Premier Roblin Calls Election For Dec. 14th

The premier said his Conservative government, in power about 4½ years, has done its best to put into effect its program and concluded that the time had come when it should place its record before the public and seek their verdict. The last election was May 14, 1959.

New York News Back in Business

Presses of the largest U.S. newspaper started rolling at 12:30 a.m.—a few hours after the strikers voted to accept a new contract.

The strikers, members of the New York Newspaper Guild, won wage increases averaging $8 a week in two instalments over the term of the two-year contract, plus other benefits.

The first post-strike edition had 40 pages, and this was increased to 56 pages in the final. A normal Friday paper has 88 pages.

The News printed 1,713,000 papers, compared with an average weekday press run of 2,075,000.

Remembrance Services for War Dead Will be Held on Sunday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The men who died for Canada in war will be remembered in services across the country Sunday.

Regular armed forces, militia and Royal Canadian Legion members will march to cenotaphs for the traditional placing of wreaths and dedication services to the memory of Canada's fallen.

A survey by The Canadian Press indicates most service parades will be held Nov. 11, but since Remembrance Day falls on a Sunday this year some British Columbia communities have parades scheduled for Monday.

British Columbia was the only province to declare Monday a legal holiday, giving a day off to civil servants, store employees and school children.

Federal civil servants, with the exception of post office and customs employees, will be on holiday throughout the country Monday.

New Brunswick provincial employees and school children

Today's Chuckle

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The track of the weather systems moving across Canada is well to the north. Consequently far northern Ontario will continue to be the only portion of the province enduring wintry conditions. The rest of the district should continue near normal or slightly above normal with temperatures in the 40s during the day and in the 30s overnight.

also will have Monday off, but banks, stores and offices in most communities will remain open.

Alberta and Saskatchewan civil servants can sleep in Monday, while children in both provinces will be holidaying.

Except for B.C., stores in all provinces will be open Monday, although most provincial governments have declared civic holidays or left it to individual municipalities to decide whether each will close.

Remembrance Day falling on Sunday—as it did also in 1946 and 1951—has caused consternation in at least one city.

In Hamilton the civic remembrance service will be held at 11 a.m., the same time as most church services, and the Hamilton Council of Churches refused to support the civic service.

J. J. Dowd, one of the civic service organizers, said:

"The council feels that the civic service conflicts with church services, and the veterans feel that the service has to be held on the 11th hour of the 11th day in order to mean something."

Member churches of the council plan to hold memorial services at their regular Sunday services. Civic service organizers obtained their ministers by appealing directly to them.

In Ottawa, timing of a parade of about 1,100 servicemen, veterans and cadets was changed from the usual 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., so it would not conflict with Sunday church services.

HOUSE RIGHTS BECOME TOPIC OF HOT DEBATE

Fleming Rejects Motion by Martin

OTTAWA (CP)—The boiling parliamentary cauldron of 1956 pipeline debates was briefly revisited in the Commons Thursday.

A heady brew of charges spilled from the opposition benches as the rights of Parliament became the topic of the private members' hour.

A motion by Paul Martin (L—Essex East) asking for all the documents relating to the legality of the government's emergency import surcharges triggered hot exchanges involving Mr. Martin, Justice Minister Fleming and Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre).

Mr. Fleming, who flatly rejected the motion, became so annoyed with the opposition at one point that he shouted:

"These babbling mouths . . . they are only trying to reduce my time."

'I APPEAL'

Referring to the pipeline debate, Mr. Knowles said:

"I appeal to him, I remind him of the days when we were sitting on the other side of the House and were pleading for consideration of the rights of Parliament."

Mr. Martin said the austerity program "imposing $200,000,000

Leading Conservative Urges Canada Stop Cuban Trade

He said also Canada should place a time limit on the undertaking not to acquire defensive nuclear weapons, and the senior Canadian officer at the North American Air Defence Command should be given the authority to place Canadian air defence forces on the alert when necessary.

The adoption of these four points would indicate Canadian solidarity with the United States in matters of North American security, Mr. Hogan said.

He was addressing a closed meeting of the Rosseau group, a study and research group of Conservative - minded young men, similar to the Bow Group in Britain.

"There is a time to stand up to the Americans and there is a time to stand by them," he said. "And I suggest that when the security of the North American continent is menaced by the threat of nuclear attack, that is a time to stand by the Americans, clearly, swiftly and unequivocally."

However, Mr. Hogan said, if such indications of support are given, Canada would be entitled to be consulted on 'any undertakings involving the defence of North America.

"What is important now is that Canada has clearly proved herself to be an irresponsible

NEW WHEAT FUND IS PROPOSED BY MINISTER

Would Help Guard Against Losses

REGINA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton proposed today that Canadian farmers consider putting part of each year's final wheat payment into a fund to offset possible losses arising out of overseas credit sales of Canadian grain.

He also suggested that the three western wheat pools and the United Grain Growers consider setting up an aggressive grain sales organization "as a royal selling agent of the Canadian wheat board."

Mr. Hamilton threw out the suggestions as he told the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool that "everybody, not only the government, has to put their shoulder to the wheel to help in selling our grain."

MUST COMPETE

Mr. Hamilton predicted that selling conditions will be highly competitive in the months ahead and will require "an extraordinarily intensive sales effort to achieve an export level much in excess of 300,000,000 bushels a year.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics forecast this week that Canada's 1962 wheat crop will be an estimated 357,554,000 bushels.

There was a limit to which the government could go in extending the level of credit sales and in assuming the risks that would be incurred. At present approximately $100,000,000 is owed by Communist countries and $90,000,000 by Czechoslovakia and Poland on purchases of Canadian grain.

Mr. Hamilton called on the wheat pool "to consider and discuss in a fully objective manner the possibility of 'setting aside' a portion of the final wheat payment."

This might go towards building up a fund which would be used in sharing in any loss

Canadian Homes Have More TV Sets Than Bathtubs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians are living more comfortably now than they did 10 years ago, even though there are more homes with TV sets than with bathtubs.

A smaller proportion of the nation's families are living in crowded quarters than a decade ago. A larger proportion have flush toilets. And the number of mortgaged homes is almost double.

These are some of the findings from last year's census, when one home in every five was checked to see how Canadians live, how their homes are equipped, and how much it costs them to live as they do.

A report today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Canada had 4,554,493 occupied dwellings in June last year compared with 3,409,295 a decade earlier. They housed a population of 18,238,247, and the 33.6-per-cent increase in the number of homes outstripped the population growth of 30.2 per cent.

One or more TV sets were reported in 83 per cent of the homes, compared with the 80.3 per cent of dwellings that were equipped with baths or showers.

In 1951, only 60.8 per cent of homes had baths or showers. And the proportion of dwellings with flush toilets increased in the 10 years to 85.2 per cent from 68.3 per cent.

Govt. to Sell Mortgages To Develop Secondary Mart

OTTAWA (CP) — A further step in the government's effort to develop a secondary market in mortgages, and thus attract more private investment money into housing, was announced Thursday.

The government's housing agency will sell $30,000,000 of its huge holdings of National Housing Act mortgages, auctioning them off in 105 blocks valued at between $250,000 and $500,000 each.

It will be the sixth such offering by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation since the government's policy was announced in April, 1961. In the first four sales, a total $56,000,000 CMHA mortgages were sold to investment, mortgage and trust companies.

However in the fifth offering, made last June at the time of the foreign exchange crisis CMHC returned the purchase bids which had been submitted because of unsettled market conditions.

The government's goal of developing a secondary mortgage market was outlined by former works minister David Walker 19 months ago.

The idea was to make available an ample supply of existing NHA mortgages to interested buyers. He said it was expected that in the secondary market, small investors could put their money into specialised

Two Dozen Bombers Still Posing Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Navy ships steamed into position today for a rendezvous with Soviet vessels and on-the-spot proof they are hauling Soviet missiles from Cuba.

Soviet co-operation is taken for granted and the Pentagon indicated Thursday that the U.S. ships would do their checking by drawing alongside the Russian vessels.

However, a spokesman would not rule out the possibility that the Russian ships would be boarded if such action is deemed necessary.

In saying at a Moscow press conference Wednesday that the missiles "probably are on their way" home, Soviet Premier Khrushchev mentioned a figure of 40. This is the minimum amount the navy will be looking for, the Pentagon said.

The navy's mission is to confirm what the defence department says aerial reconnaissance photographs indicate — "that medium - range ballistic missile and intermediate-range ballistic missile equipment is being removed from Cuba."

The Pentagon announcement also said the photographs indicated all known medium and intermediate-range missile bases in Cuba have been dismantled.

THREE SEEN OUTBOUND

Three Russian ships—presumably carrying missiles — were sighted outbound from Cuba Thursday. They probably will be the first to be met.

The Pentagon announcement carefully avoided a flat declaration that all Soviet missiles were on their way out of Cuba.

Assistant State Secretary Edwin Martin acknowledged in a radio interview Thursday night that inspection of ships at sea "would not necessarily tell us what was left behind."

At the United Nations, informed sources reported that Russia has told the United States all Soviet missiles will be out of Cuba by Monday and there will be no need for U.S. naval inspection of outbound Russian ships after that date.

The intimation to Washington was to view this as informative, rather than an attempt to set a deadline for at - sea inspection to cease.

Two major problems remain in the Cuban crisis, sources estimated two dozen Russian jet bombers from Cuba and one site remained to be cleared before Thursday at the UN Soviet mission between U.S. Am-

P. E. Islanders Will Cast Votes On December 10

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Islanders vote Dec. 10 in Canada's third provincial election within a month.

The surprise election, announced by Progressive Conservative Premier Walter R. Shaw Thursday, will follow voting in Quebec Nov. 14 and in Newfoundland Nov. 26.

Premier Shaw, 74 - year - old farmer who became premier in 1959, told reporters of the election and a few hours later went on television to ask islanders to support abolition of premium payments for hospital insurance.

The premiums, $4 a month for families of which $2 is paid by the government, would be replaced by money from general revenue, Mr. Shaw said.

He said he also is asking for support for an expanded resources development program and for abolition of death duties. Other planks in the government platform would be announced shortly.

Only a few weeks ago Mr. Shaw said there would be no election until 1963. The last election was Sept. 1, 1959, when the Progressive Conservatives ousted the Liberal government of Alex W. Matheson.

Mr. Matheson said Thursday:

"The only reason I can see for the election is that they are trying to cover up something which they haven't disclosed to the public." The Liberal leader has been quoted several times as suggesting the provincial debt is bigger than the government says it is.

Standings in the 30-seat House are Conservatives 22, Liberals six and two vacant.

Nominations close Nov. 26.

REMBRANDT IS REAL

STUTTGART (AP)—A Rembrandt self-portrait, bought for $900,000 by Dr. Ernst Gustav Stein of Baden-Wuerttemberg state minister of education, told a press conference today that its authenticity was established in a thorough laboratory examination of the painting by five international experts.

To Perdition With Illegitimates Said Sinclair in Different Words

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto radio news commentator Gordon Sinclair said he objected in the strongest possible terms to being cut off the air about a minute Thursday night for a CBC bulletin about developments in the waning Cuban crisis.

Listeners to Mr. Sinclair's 10-minute program were well aware of the bulletin whether or not, to carry the bulletin although its content was not known in advance. He said the bulletins were CBS exclusive news items.

Mr. Sinclair said he wasn't certain of the precise wording of his attacks on American propaganda and the station's handling of the situation, but "I'll back down from none of it."

Mr. Sinclair admitted he said "to hell with those bastards" and it was unfortunate the microphone had not been cut off, as he had believed.

He said it was one of those things but "I did say it and I may be suspended for it and to hell with that too."

Mr. Sinclair said he apologized on behalf of CFRB for Mr. Sinclair's profanity.

Two Canadians Freed by Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters) — Two Canadian reporters held incommunicado in a Havana hotel since their arrival here last week have been released with Cuban foreign ministry permission to "freely exercise their functions," it was disclosed today.

Robert McNeil, a Canadian working for the U.S. National Broadcasting Company, and Donald North of the CBC were released by immigration authorities Thursday.

East Belleville Ratepayers' Assoc. Talks Fluoridation

The head of a Belleville ratepayers' group claimed last night it would cost each resident paying water rates an annual $1.50 over 15 years to make fluoridation a municipal reality.

Don Bacon quoted the statistical breakdown to East Belleville Ratepayers' Association, based on figures he said had been quoted him by city public utilities manager Ernest Burnham.

City voters next month will decide the fluoridation issue by plebiscite.

"If the city immediately installed fluoridation it would cost $56,000 for an extension to present facilities at the pump house," said Mr. Bacon.

"This would have to be debentured since the PUC have not got that amount in their surplus.

Debentured over 15 years this would cost each ratepayer a total $11, or 75 cents a year. An estimated $6,000 would be spent on fluoride, or about 40 or 72 cents for the debentures duration.

"Thus the whole process would cost only $1.50 to each person paying water bills during this time — and it would be even lower if the population increases."

Last night's meeting was specifically called to discuss fluoridation — an issue which has provoked as much fundamentalism among North Americans as Evolution once did among their great-grandfathers.

East Belleville ratepayers, however, showed only tepid interest in the issue last night. Only a handful of association members turned out to Queen Elizabeth public school to see a film in support of the measure and to query Belleville dental surgeon A. J. F. Leterskv on fluoridation.

PLENTY OF ARGUMENT

Yet, the assembly did not lack argument, with the main opposition to the proposed fluoridation process coming from Arthur Reid, a Northern Electric technician.

Mr. Reid and Dr. Leterskv engaged in a gentleman's dialogue argument over the issue, the arguments based on the toxic threat of fluoride.

Mr. Reid warned while fluoride may protect children from tooth decay the effects in later life of continued ingestion of the chemical could be harmful.

"The supporters of fluoridation don't mention the detriment to adults in fluoridated areas," he said.

"They have done experiments to prove there is no long-term effect either," countered Dr. Leterskv.

"How can you say that when experiments on the lifespan of rats resulted in damage to teeth, gums and kidneys," queried Mr. Reid.

"I am not talking about rats, I am talking about people," retorted the dental surgeon.

He said the danger arose from sodium fluoride — the chemical used in municipal waterworks — not from the natural calcium fluoride.

AREAS MENTIONED

Dr. Leterskv said there was no evidence of the effects if ingested in the proper amounts. He mentioned areas of Texas where there is a natural deposit of fluoride in drinking water, eight times greater than the amount endorsed for Ontario municipalities by the provincial government's own fluoridation investigating committee. The town of Stratford has had natural deposits of the chemical in its water for years.

Mr. Reid maintained that infusion of the chemical could possibly cause baldness.

"Then I am led to believe that this applies to Texas where people have been drinking fluoride all their lifetimes all have still got their bowl cropped" association member Sid Martin.

Dr. Leterskv told the meeting the measure had the full support of local and national medical and dental authorities.

"I am willing to put this into the water supply in Belleville and feel safe in drinking it," he said.

Latter Day Saints Plan Conference

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has announced that a conference is to be held Sunday, November 11, at the Club Canara in Belleville. Members of the Church from the Ontario District, including Peterborough, Trenton, Kingston, Picton, and Belleville, will meet under the direction of Frank Pitcher of Toronto, president of the Canadian Mission of the Church covering Ontario and Western Quebec.

President Pitcher is originally from Calgary, where he held many positions in the church. He was sales manager for a large meat packing firm there before being called to preside over the Canadian mission.

The conference meetings, which will convene at 10.00 a.m. and 2.00 p.m. will be open to all visitors.

So-Ed Reunion Great Success

Wednesday evening the Belleville So-Eds were host to the largest group of So-Zdors, past and present, to recently assemble together.

The evening commenced with a controversial "lighting words" contest, headed by Arthur Read. At this time also, Harry Morrison, well-known dance instructor, showed the group interesting the basic steps of the waltz and rhumba.

Following this hour of verbal and physical exercise, all were pleased to sit back and view the comedy and laugh-provoking slides of past activities, narrated by special guest Don Simpson from Toronto, an outstanding past So-Edder from the Belleville club.

On behalf of the YMCA, general secretary Di Diamantides welcomed everyone to this, the second reunion of Belleville So-Ed. He praised the work that So-Ed has done for the community and young adults and expressed his appreciation for the good deeds done for the YMCA.

Following this, four past presidents, Jim Pearson, Jean Scott, Bea Christie and Dorothy Benedict were presented with a small momento each on behalf of So-Ed for their past service and excellent leadership in So-Ed.

After remarks of appreciation and comments from president Joanne Hall, a buffet lunch was served.

Dancing and social chit-chat and the display of past pictures and stories, ended the evening, arranged by the committee members of the Belleville So-Ed.

Head of Family Should Provide For Survival

- - Col. Duffy

"If you, as the head of a family, have no plan for your family's survival in case of attack, then you are derelict in your duty—and when I say that I'm being polite," Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy told nearly 100 Belleville citizens last night.

Speaking at the second in a series of QEMO-sponsored nuclear survival lectures, Col. Duffy, QEMO co-ordinator, said bluntly, "If Steps to Survival," as reprinted last week in this newspaper, and as available from the QEMO office.

The next lecture in this series is to be held Tuesday, in room 311 of BCIVS, at 8 p.m. The subject covered will be welfare, reception of refugees, and food and water supplies.

Aged Hunter Still Missing In Dense Bush

BANCROFT (Special) — Provincial police hopefully pushed another search party into the bush eight miles west of here today in the search for 91-year-old David Casselman, of Smithfield.

The veteran hunter has now been missing two days, since he disappeared in the same runway in the Paudash area.

Police, still hopeful of finding an aged survivor, temperatures in the area where he is believed lost stayed above freezing. However, no fresh clues to trace had been found of the missing man.

Search parties all day Thursday scoured heavy bushland after hunting reports indicated the general area of the runway the previous night without success.

About 35 volunteers and police tramped through the Paudash bush again Thursday night. This morning provincial police here said they had organized a 50-man search which will continue the search through the day.

The ground parties now are being assisted from the air by a helicopter piloted by Ken Otway.

Mr. Casselman's age and his ability to survive extreme conditions have aided anxiety to police efforts to locate him as soon as possible.

Armand Duffy Bags Two Calf Moose in Day

Some days you can't shoot a bull moose, the day you shoot not only one moose, but two.

At least that's the way Armand Duffy of Belleville deer-hunter Armand Duffy — and his success not only put a minor record for his hunting party.

Starting Tuesday in their camp area north of Kaladar, the eight-man team made their first deer kill before midnight, Wed. it looked as if another nice age had set in and all northern wildlife headed for the south — via Kaladar. By the day's end the party had a grand total of three moose and two deer.

Jubilantly back home yesterday, Duffy reeled off the score sheet with local names attached. It read: Joe Malcolm, a 200-lb. buck; Bob Lavender, 210-lb. buck; Lee Keach, an 180-lb. cow.

And then there were his own two calf moose, which he figured weighs in at 200 lbs.

He was still too astounded by his luck to notice if they were twins.

Drunk Driving Charge Laid Against Actor

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Art Carney was arrested on a charge of drunken driving Thursday night, police said, his sports car and a taxicab collided at Broadway and 70th St. in the heart of Manhattan.

The actor was held for night court where he was released in custody of his lawyer for another appearance today. The arresting policeman told the court the cab driver had asked that the charge be laid against Carney.

The actor's starring role in the Broadway play Take Her, She's Mine, was played Thursday night by understudy Donald Wolfit.

Police said Carney refused to take an intoxication test.

Carney, who gained fame as the bumbling sewer-worker, Ed Norton, on television's Jackie Gleason Show, was alone at the time of the accident.

Neither he nor the cab driver, Edward Cherry of Manhattan, was injured. Damage was minor.

Air Cadets Will Assist In Tagging

A film of last year's parade was shown and many points on how to improve this year's parade were discussed.

The kiddies will be treated this year as several saddle horses have been promised for the parade. Commitments of floats also looks very good so far, although many more are still needed.

The committee was told that the Santa Claus float has been repaired and painted and is ready to roll.

The many herders of Belleville indicated that they would be taking part in both the Belleville and Trenton Santa Claus parades and the Elks Lodge of Belleville will be entering a float.

Mrs. C. Miler, of the tag day committee introduced to those present at the meeting, Squadron Leader Brown, C.O., of the Air Cadets, and they volunteered the meeting that the Air Cadets would gladly volunteer as taggers. His offer was promptly accepted as many taggers are needed to ensure that everybody gets a tag to help their parade.

It was decided by the committee that they would meet every Wednesday night from now until parade day.

Nehru Grateful For Western Aid In China Crisis

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Prime Minister Nehru today expressed gratitude for Western arms aid in the Chinese-Indian border war and said India had asked Britain for aid from the Soviet Union.

Nehru said that regarding previous communications of India as "I believe they will stand by them.". The Soviet Union some months ago agreed to supply India with MIG jet planes but none have been delivered.

Nehru said India must not be taken in by the Chinese "peace offensive," and compared Chinese publicity to Nazi propaganda.

Speaker in the Indian parliament's upper house, Nehru offered to meet Chou En-lai at later date to investigate charges of Indian preparedness in the border war.

An Indian defence ministry spokesman meantime announced "some progress" has been seen near Spanggur lake in the Chusul area of southern Ladakh, near the disputed western border sector.

The spokesman also said Indian troops had shelled some Chinese positions in the Jang area of the northeast frontier.

Chinese attacks were reported today at Walong on the north-eastern frontier near the Burmese border. The Indians claimed they were repulsed. About 300 miles west of Walong, the Chinese still control the monastery town of Towang.

Indian forces are beginning to receive big supplies of U.S. and British infantry weapons to counter heavy Chinese fire power. A U.S. army general is expected to come to New Delhi to discuss additional arms shipments.

British Maj.-Gen. E. S. Lindsay, assistant master general of ordnance, flew here from London to answer Indian questions about additional arms.

The weapons delivered to India so far are rapid - firing rifles, mortars, land mines and communications equipment.

Menon Likely To Continue Nehru's Adviser

NEW DELHI (AP)—Top Indian political and official circles believe that V. K. Krishna Menon will continue to be Prime Minister Nehru's chief adviser on foreign policy despite his fall from the cabinet and the debacle over his defence policy.

And there is no indication, these same sources say, that Menon won't continue to be Nehru's favorite spokesman at the United Nations when the prime minister feels Menon's talents as a debater are needed there.

Nehru's reluctance in dropping Menon from his cabinet was plain. "I have decided with great regret to accept Menon's resignation," he told the leaders of the Congress party, Nehru denied that accepting the resignation because the unending and mounting controversy around Menon's name at home would inevitably impede India's defence effort in the border struggle with Communist China.

LIVES ACROSS STREET

But Menon continues to live across the street from Nehru's official residence, within easy reach of the prime minister whenever Nehru wants to confer. And Nehru says he is paying close heed to his counsel, it is considered highly unlikely that Nehru now is going to ignore it.

One top official commented privately:

"If tomorrow we need a man to talk with Chou En-lai, who else is there except Menon?"

Plaza Expansion Planned If Stores Open Two Nights

Expansion of the east end Belleville Shopping Plaza on an additional eight acres of land immediately to the east of the present site is in the planning stage, according to a news release given out by the Plaza Merchants' Association.

The project would increase the Shopping Plaza by approximately 50 per cent, it is stated.

Whether the project will go ahead, however, is conditional on zoning in the area being changed to commercial and amendment of the present early closing by-law to allow late shopping on two nights out of the week.

The request for the two changes is already before city council.

The Plaza Merchants' Association say the action for the two nights per week shopping was initiated solely at the request of Zellers Ltd., who would be the major tenant in the shopping plaza addition. It is said Zellers would like a department store and a condition of their lease would be they be permitted to remain open for business on at least two late shopping nights in the week.

A special committee of city council has been set up to consider the request from the Plaza merchants.

Opposing the request for one additional night of late shopping, however, are the members of the Downtown Merchants' Association, who are content with late shopping on Friday nights only.

Also under consideration by council is the request of a Sidney township owner for installation of water service on his property immediately to the west of the city. If the water service is granted, plans are for construction of a large department store in the city. The matter has been referred to the city solicitor for legal opinion.

PRODUCE MORE CRUDE

Production of crude petroleum rose 6.2 per cent in August to 20,863,299 barrels from the same month last year, the bureau of statistics said today. This brought production in the January-August period to 161,858,286 barrels, up 13.4 per cent from the same period last year.

MORE LUMBER SAWN

Canadian sawmills — not including those in British Columbia and Saskatchewan — produced a total of 244,073,000 board feet of sawn lumber in September. The figure for the same period in 1961, which includes Saskatchewan, was 233,211,000.

GET MORE HIDES

Canadian tanners received a total of 212,293 cattle hides in September, compared with 196,457 in the same month last year. Calf and kip skins decreased to 94,813 from 67,454, and sheep and lamb skins increased to 8,182 dozen from 6,670.

Monty Cleared Of Insult to Italian Valor

MILAN (AP) — An investigation has been cleared from Marshal Viscount Montgomery of a complaint that he insulted Italy and its army in his Second World War Memoirs.

Luciano Manco, identified in court records only as an Italian citizen, filed the complaint in 1958 against Montgomery, an Italian publishing house and a Milan newspaper.

In the memoirs, Montgomery questioned the fighting will of Italian soldiers and described Italy's break with Nazi Germany in 1943 as one of the great double-crosses of history.

Judge Vittorio Palma Thursday dismissed the suit. He said Montgomery's statements constituted the "reaction by the stinct of a foreign professional soldier faced by too complex a political situation" at the time Italy surrendered.

"Because of its one-sidedness, it did more wrong to the author than to those whom he judged."

Top Official Quits in U.K. Spy Scandal

LONDON (Reuters) — A top British government official has resigned in connection with the stormy Vassall spy case and some Fleet Street papers today wondered "who goes next?"

A junior government minister, Thomas Galbraith, parliamentary undersecretary for Scotland, resigned following official publication of 25 of his letters to William Vassall, a confessed homosexual jailed recently for 18 years for selling British naval secrets to Russia.

Galbraith was civil lord of the admiralty, the civilian second in command of the navy headquarters, when Vassall was a clerk there. A three-man committee of senior civil servants investigating the Vassall case published the letters Wednesday and said they did not appear to contain "any implication of a relationship constituting a security risk."

The Daily Herald, a Labor paper, calls for the resignation of Lord Carrington, first lord of the admiralty and Galbraith's one-time chief.

"No one questions Lord Carrington's integrity," The Herald says. But it adds that the issue was the "colossal failure of security at the admiralty" and Carrington, "as the man in charge, must accept responsibility."

The right-wing Daily Sketch reports the opposition Labor party is "determined to press its demands for the resignation of Lord Carrington." Labor MPs Thursday introduced a House of Commons motion censuring the government for not setting up an independent inquiry into the Vassall case.

Food and Drugs Contaminated By Sex Hormone

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York firm was accused Thursday of distributing food and drug products contaminated by a powerful sex hormone which caused harmful effects in young boys and girls.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said the hormone can cause feminization in young boys and early internal physiological development in young girls.

The justice department action was brought in Brooklyn federal court against Nyaco Laboratories incorporated, manufacturer of pharmaceuticals in Long Island City, Queens. It produces dietary food supplements, prescription drugs, antihistamine tablets and tablets for acid stomach, among other items.

The government said some products were adulterated with the hormone known as diethylstilbestrol through failure properly to clean machinery after producing batches of the hormone.

No figures were given on the number of persons said to have been affected by the company's products. However, U.S. Attorney Joseph P. Hoey said the adulteration had taken place over a two-year period beginning in June, 1960.

The Food and Drug Administration said all suspected products have been withdrawn from the market.

Fisher Calls Caouette An 'Ignoramus'

MONTREAL (CP) — Douglas Fisher, NDP member of Parliament for Port Arthur, said Thursday he considers Real Caouette, Ralliement Creditiste leader of the Social Credit party, as "the most dangerous man ever to come out of Quebec."

Mr. Fisher said Mr. Caouette and Resources Minister Rene Levesque of Quebec are the most powerful politicians since his entry in politics in 1957.

"Both exude personality and are terrific images," he said in a speech to about 75 McGill University students.

"They are the French-Canadians most likely to have impact beyond Quebec since (Sir Wilfrid) Laurier and Louis St. Laurent."

Discussing Mr. Caouette, Mr. Fisher said he is "an ignoramus."

Then he added:

"But he is the first French-Canadian to be able to project his party and his gibberish in all-Canadian terms."

Mr. Fisher said Mr. Caouette had held a group of engineers in Toronto "in rapt attention as he talked lovingly about free enterprise."

"I'm not surprised," he said, "if they don't take him up and give him a money base to be the field of national demagogue we have never had before."

Educational Picture in 1890 Painted for Queen's Grads

TRENTON — The picture of Canada in 1890 . . . with a population of between 3 and 4 millions . . . too many school children at primary and secondary level for the number of schools which can be built between now and then . . . two few teachers . . . and a similar situation existing at the university level . . . was painted for the more than 50 Queen's University grads who gathered at the Queensway Hotel in Trenton Tuesday night for the semi-annual alumni dinner, by Professor Fred Bartlett of Queen's. Professor Bartlett is the director of School of Physical and Health Education at the university.

Professor Bartlett said that there would be an increase of 25,000 per year of elementary and secondary school students in the next 25 years and that the college age population would increase 100 per cent in the same period. Meanwhile, schools are being built and teachers are being trained, but not fast enough to keep up with the pace. "In the next 25 years," he said, "Canada would need 25 more universities the size of Queen's to accommodate college students."

In spite of his concern for the probable lack of educational facilities and trained staff, Professor Bartlett also expressed concern for the number of "drop-outs" from present day high school levels. He said that students who failed to finish their secondary school training did so from the failure to realize the value of his/her education; their parents failure to recognize the value or the financial inability to send their offsprings on to university level. "Drop out also resulted," said Professor Bartlett, "from the inadequacy of school curriculums, which fail to provide alternate courses for the 'standard academic' course."

MUST HAVE KNOWLEDGE

Professor Bartlett said that today's world is changing so fast as such, was gone, and that workers must now have some technical knowledge and that the need for this would increase. The need for unskilled labor is diminishing and even present day workers will have to be retained to meet the needs of industry in the future.

Professor Bartlett said that vocational schools now being built by government subsidy, would answer the nation's future need in part. By 1963, in Ontario alone, there will be 124 such schools or additions to existing high schools, he said.

Professor Bartlett also advocated a return to the apprenticeship program on the part of industry and more concentration on training programs within industry itself.

Professor Bartlett ended his address on an optimistic note. He said that while Canada, in an educational sense, was experiencing "growing pains", Canadians had the resources and the initiative to "do something about it."

Professor Bartlett was introduced by Rev. D. W. Sinclair and thanked by G. A. Frost.

GRADS WELCOMED

The grads were welcomed to the semi-annual dinner by T. W. Spear, president of the Belleville Branch of the Queen's University Alumni Society.

Head table guests included Miss Nellie Merry, society secretary; Frank Folwell, past-president of the society, Lorne McDougall; Mrs. Folwell, Mrs. McDougall, Mrs. Spear, Herb Hamilton, general secretary of Queen's University Alumni Association and Mrs. Helen Saisman.

Mr. Hamilton brought the grads up to date on the building program now being carried out at Queen's. He said that the university would continue to grow . . . by 1970 Queen's should have 5,000 students . . . and that the physical growth of the university would go "up" rather than "sideway," considering that it is located in a downtown area.

In spite of rapid growth, said Mr. Hamilton, Queen's would remain a small school in the scheme of things and the old traditions of the university would be kept up.

Saxon Hall Found Under 10 Downing St.

LONDON (Reuters) — Remains of a 1,000 year old Saxon hall have been discovered beneath 10 Downing street, London residence of British prime ministers, it was learned today.

Government archaeologists have been taking advantage of the current rebuilding of the residence and the adjacent treasury building to make what one observer said as "one of the great digs of the century."

Its wooden floor structure was preserved under scores of domestic objects littered the floor, including pottery, parts of a loom, knives, charms, combs and traces of a wicker basket.

OTTAWA (CP)—A geological team from the university of Ottawa has launched a special study of mysterious microscopic fossils found in limestone rocks on the bank of the Ottawa river behind Parliament Hill and near the prime minister's residence on Sussex Drive.

The fossils — known scientifically as conodonts — are being examined to determine how and when the limestone rocks were formed. Conodonts are the eating parts of some long-extinct organisms about which virtually nothing is known.

The Ottawa area some 450-000,000 years ago was at the bottom of a shallow sea in a region similar in climate to the Bahamas, with a year-round temperature of about 70 degrees.

Limestone rocks in the Ottawa area were formed by the hardening of muds or sediments at the bottom of the sea. Fossils of distant relatives of starfish and shellfish have been found in the rocks.

The research is being headed by Dr. David Dineley, associate professor of geology at the university.

Doorman Wears Jacket of Elite Regiment

LONDON (AP) — "Lovely girls . . . time of your life . . . strippers," called the uniformed doorman in front of the Nude-a-Rama Club.

Three Scots Guardsmen walking past saw nothing—the red jacket the doorman was wearing. It was the full-dress tunic of their elite regiment.

Muttering, the trio of guardsmen walked over to the doorman. At that moment Scotland Yard Inspector David Powis bore into view. Hearing a commotion, he went to investigate.

Describing the incident in court Thursday, he said:

"He (the doorman) was touting for customers, and making suggestive signs with his hands—such as following the outline of an imaginary, well proportioned woman."

DOORMAN ARRESTED

The doorman, Stanley Lowe, 38, was arrested. He was charged with violating the Uniforms Act of 1894 by wearing the Guards tunic without the Queen's permission and in circumstances likely to bring contempt upon the uniform.

Maj. Murray Peter de Klee of the Scots Guards, asked to identify the tunic he assisted by hers husband who acted as master of ceremonies for the show.

The show consisted of three acts representing three eras, 1900 to 1920, 1920 to 1940 and 1940 to 1960, with songs and dances and full costumes for each era.

Featured numbers included tap dances, electric banjo selections, the Pierre Barbershop Quartet, singers, comedy routines, trumpet duets and vocal solos and instrumental duets from the various performers.

The audience participation in singing of popular and spiritual numbers was enjoyed by all.

PRIEST CONVICTED

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters) A 48-year-old Roman Catholic priest was sentenced to three years imprisonment by a Hungarian court today for "currency manipulations and usury." Budapest radio reported. The priest, Elemer Berenady, was tried secretly by a Budapest court of having received nylon stockings, watches and other goods in payment for prayers which he had promised "would come true immediately."

Feeble' Holdup Sends Alcoholic To Reformatory

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur L. Patterson, 30, a cook who could not get anyone to take him seriously when he tried to rob a department store cashier, was sentenced Thursday to two years less a day in reformatory.

Magistrate Hugh Foster described the holdup as "one of the most feeble cases of attempted robbery" he has ever heard.

Patterson, described as an alcoholic, walked into the store and passed a note to the cashier reading: "This is a holdup, I'll kill anyone who moves."

The cashier took the note to a supervisor who asked if Patterson was kidding.

Patterson asked if he planned to resist. The supervisor said that if Patterson was serious, he wouldn't talk of it.

Patterson walked disgustedly out of the store and was arrested a few minutes later.

Longshoremen Maul Reporters At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—A group of reporters attempting to cover a longshoremen's meeting were attacked by curaling stevedores after the meeting ended Thursday night.

The mauling came when the reporters, denied access to the annual meeting of Local 1858, International Longshoremen's Association, were told to interview the departing stevedores.

Ilas Rasmussen of the Hamilton Spectator, one of three newspapermen present, said one of the longshoremen told them to "get out while you still can."

Frank Adams of the Toronto Globe and Mail was punched in the chest when he asked why he should leave. He was manhandled near the entrance to St. Lawrence Roman Catholic Church hall, where the meeting was held.

COAT OVER HEAD

Korstanje also obeyed the instructions to leave but before he could reach the car three men threw a coat over him and grappled him to the ground. He said that despite threats of "you're going to get it," and "this is the end," he managed to get free and ran to a police station about a mile away.

As a police cruiser arrived on the scene the longshoremen broke up and the crowd melted. No charges have been pressed.

The meeting was to have elected a new executive for the local and discussed a work stoppage by some 120 members of the union.

The longshoremen have reported sick to Hamilton harbor commission since last Monday. The action followed an incident at the commission piers in which three stevedores were barred from commission property.

C. W. Morgan, general manager of the Hamilton Harbor Commission said today it was policy that anyone causing a disturbance is barred from the property.

Cherry Valley Church Supper Has Big Crowd

PICTON — In connection with Cherry Valley United Church's centennial program, a mammoth turkey supper was held at the Cherry Valley church Wednesday evening.

Although originally planned to seat approximately 150 to 200 people, ticket sales soared skyward and the ladies of the combined units of the U.C.W. found they had sold over 325 reserved seats.

With the supper commencing at 6.30 and the second sitting at 7.30, everyone fed heartily on roast turkey with all the trimmings and, of course, dessert by the trayful.

After the supper those wishing to stay for the variety show, went next door to the town hall, which at 7.30 was filled to capacity.

Those people at the second sitting never had a chance to see the show.

TWO HOUR SHOW

Program convener Mrs. Vernon Armstrong of the U.C.W. Evening Unit was assisted by hers husband who acted as master of ceremonies for the show.

The show consisted of three acts representing three eras, 1900 to 1920, 1920 to 1940 and 1940 to 1960, with songs and dances and full costumes for each era.

Featured numbers included tap dances, electric banjo selections, the Pierre Barbershop Quartet, singers, comedy routines, trumpet duets and vocal solos and instrumental duets from the various performers.

The audience participation in singing of popular and spiritual numbers was enjoyed by all.

PRIEST CONVICTED

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters) A 48-year-old Roman Catholic priest was sentenced to three years imprisonment by a Hungarian court today for "currency manipulations and usury." Budapest radio reported. The priest, Elemer Berenady, was tried secretly by a Budapest court of having received nylon stockings, watches and other goods in payment for prayers which he had promised "would come true immediately."

New Frontiers in Trade

The Manufacturing Opportunities Show held in Toronto recently to acquaint Ontario manufacturers with various imported products and components which Canadian distributors, assemblers or manufacturers would buy in Canada if made here is reported to have brought a veritable roar of "why we can make that" from many Canadian manufacturers.

We can only wonder as to why these people have not realized the opportunities which existed for them in various fields without having to be spoon fed. Surely Canadian and Ontario manufacturers have at least some semblance of field research to see what else is on the market, the prices of competitors' products and where they might make or create new opportunities for business. It would appear obvious that if such research is carried out it must be of a very haphazard or shallow nature.

There is surely a lesson to be learned from this show and the effects which have been observed. Canadian firms have simply got to get out and do business if they expect to stay in business. In these times it is senseless for any manufacturer to consider anything as impossible, especially the feeling that Canadians cannot produce quality goods and compete in the world markets.

There is a very large work force developing in Canada and there are very few nations which can be considered to hold any great lead over us in technological know-how or production machinery. Any lead over Canadian manufacturers by other countries has been achieved by initiative, salesmanship and the fullest possible use of productive resources.

Whilst Canadians sat at home and looked no further than their Toronto or Montreal customers and relaxed in the enjoyment of either a moderately progressive sales trend or a stable productive picture, the other nations' manufacturers were out beating the bushes for new business.

In so doing other countries' manufacturers found out what people throughout the world, including Canada, wanted and what price they wanted to pay. The demands were then met.

The Manufacturing Opportunities Show must be considered as a progressive move. The provincial government has made an excellent initial step in the right direction. It is now up to the manufacturers to take the next several steps.

It is to be hoped for the sake of upcoming generations and the future prosperity of this province, and all of Canada, that this move has opened the eyes of many to the point where we will hear more about initiative of Canadian producers selling both here and abroad rather than gripes by Canadian producers that foreign competition is driving them from their home markets.

New frontiers have been pointed out at both home and abroad. We hope there are the frontiersmen available to explore and conquer them.

A Near Miss

Power politics is a very interesting, hazardous and sometimes infantile game. Witness the Cuban missile base situation when the American President forced the Soviet Premier to back down and both ignored the Cuban Castro.

It was obvious that in the display of force between the major protagonists little thought was given to the feelings or position of Castro until the jousting was presumably over and the results settled.

Until, of course, Castro announced that he wasn't going to have anything to do with any inspections to guarantee that the arms withdrawal had been carried out and summarily refused to allow the United Nation's to have observers in Cuba.

Then there was some more shuffling about to allow the Cuban leader to save face. It was suggested that the Red Cross would be agreeable to hire an inspection force although this business is somewhat outside of that organization's normal scope of activity.

Such a manoeuvre would have involved ignoring the United Nations' quite valid role in the situation and, if this had been followed, irreparable damage would have been done to the United Nations' prestige and future effectiveness as a force for international order and peace.

Fortunately the Red Cross officials saw the danger of their becoming involved as an independent inspection team and declared they were prepared to act only as the official representatives of the United Nations.

This action turned a direct blow at the effectiveness of the United Nations into a near miss.

Letter to the Editor

Compares Claims About Fluoridation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In my previous letter I asked several questions which I thought the voters should have the answers to before voting on fluoridation. I would like to thank those who sent me a raft of pamphlets and papers and to Dr. Craig who presented the case for the pros, but also left several questions unanswered.

My negative information comes from National Fluoridation News, a non-profit publication published in Detroit with an eminent array of medical, dental and legal advisory boards and corresponding editors.

Dr. Craig bases the pro case entirely upon the report of the Ontario Fluoridation Investigation Committee.

"The following facts concerning the manner in which this investigation was conducted were elicited from individuals close to the scene in Toronto, as well as from personal conversations with professional and lay witnesses who appeared at the hearings.

"Dr. E. G. Hall, the only scientist of the three-member committee is the honorary advisory director of the Health League of Canada, which is Canada's chief promoter of fluoridation. In this capacity he has been receiving the press promotional literature from this organization.

"Western University of which Dr. Hall is president is the recipient of grants from the U. S. Public Health Service, chief sponsor of fluoridation in the U.S.A.

"Dr. Pandit and co-workers presented a map of the Indian village of Nellore with the location and precise fluoride content of each family: 0.6, 1.2, 2.8, 3.0, 5.0, P.P.M. (Proponents claim 1 P.P.M. is safe).

"Pandit and his associates did record the prevalence of the disease among adults: the percentage 30% of Malas, 12% of those in the fluoride area the fluoride concentration of the water was 1.2 P.P.M.

"One of the leading biochemists in Toronto Dr. J. J. Rae professor of Chemistry, University of Toronto refused to testify concerning fluoride effect. The committee ignored his request."

Of the questions I asked, let's see what answers we got.

1. How much will it cost to install?

Dr. Craig says the original equipment would cost about $25c per person, or, $7,500, but he says that the pump house has a new system in it now replacing stage and that this should not be charged to fluoridation. Any storage space or equipment used for fluoridation should be charged to fluoridation. Past experience in Belleville has taught us that estimates can easily be doubled by actual cost.

2. Annual cost.

Estimates ranged from 6c to 40c per person or $1,800 to $3,000.

3. Proof of percentage of children helped?

No answer.

4. Up to what age it will prevent tooth decay.

No answer.

5. Can the waterworks guarantee the same percentage of fluoride added at the pump house will appear at the taps at the same percentage.

Fluoridation News reports showed tests that ranged from no fluoride up to 4.0 P.P.M.

6. Will fluorides pass through our new sewage disposal plant with the detergents and pollute our waters?

No answer.

7. Will fluorides cause corrosion?

Dr. Craig says no.

National Fluoridation News says yes.

8. What effect will fluorides have on water conditioners.

No answer.

9. Another question I would like to ask is why the following cities that have tried fluoridation have discontinued it? Concord, N.H.; St. Petersburg, Fla.; Canton, Ohio; Reading, Mass.; Charlottesville, Va.; San Diego, Calif.; Schenectady, N.Y.

Dr. A. E. Berry of the Ontario Water Resources Commission says that arguments against fluoridation are following the same pattern as those against vaccination, chlorination of water and pasturization of milk.

All three of these prevent disease. Please tell me what disease fluorides prevent.

How does the ordinary voter pick facts out of so many contradictory arguments?

Let's have some real proof before we jump from the frying pan into the fire.

Yours Sincerely,
Wm. G. Rowland.

The official warrant for the formation of the "Quinte" Corps of Sea Cadets was received here yesterday from the Deputy Minister of National Defence, Navy, by Mr. Arthur Wesley, secretary of the A. and J. Mr. Wesley is the temporary instruction officer of the corps which was formed here some months ago and which now has a substantial membership of boys between the ages of 15 and 17.

Major R. H. Wilson, Field Secretary of the Canadian Red Cross Society, addressed a large gathering of Red Cross workers in the Oddfellows' Community Hall in Tweed on Monday night. In a most enlightening address he told of the importance of the Red Cross work in the present struggle and stressed the need for the wholehearted support of all! It is shown by the fact that nearly five and one-half million dollars annually is raised principally by receipts of food to British prisoners of war in German prison camps. The Canadian Red Cross supplies 40,000 eleven-pound food parcels at a cost of two dollars and fifty cents for each box. These are urgently needed because of the poor quality of the food in Germany with which the prisoners are fed.

Fight Without Declaring War

Peterborough Examiner

There has been sporadic fighting in the border of India and China for three years. In the last few weeks, however, it has become a much grimmer struggle with more reports putting the Chinese strength at 50,000 men. India has now declared a state of emergency in the nation and has formed a six-man cabinet to deal with the crisis, which could be called a war cabinet. But, though Indian casualties are now said to be very heavy, and the Chinese have occupied certain Indian communities, war has not been declared.

What is the reason? Is it the belief that while war is unofficial there is much greater likelihood of negotiation and settlement? Or is it feared that an official declaration of war will bring in the United Nations?

Neither the Indians nor the Chinese can escape the fact that, by now, men are being killed by bullets, shrapnel and mortar fire as surely as if war had been declared. Nearer home, of course, the United States has imposed a blockade on Cuba without the formality of declaring war on her first. Here the reason is easier to see. An official war with Cuba might become a war between East and West with the consequent exchange of nuclear weapons.

Has the nuclear device stopped the allegedly-big wars, in the future, to be plagued with frequent armed conflict in which men are bombed, soldiers and civilians killed, while no war is in progress?

Wonder Why Nation Lags

Wall Street Journal

Jurisdictional disputes, in which two labor unions fight over which one is entitled to do a job, certainly aren't new. But they seem to be especially sillier.

For instance, some New York City carpenters and plumbers have just settled a dispute involving who is to install kitchen sinks in a big apartment project. The plumbers said fitting sink tops in place was their job. The carpenters said it was theirs.

It took two weeks to arrive at a compromise. The carpenters will put the sink tops in place with screws, instead of the nails customarily used. When the plumbers hook up the sink to the pipes, they'll loosen the screws, adjust the top as needed and then screw the top tight again.

While this ponderous problem was being resolved almost 200 families will set to move into their apartments, just had to wait.

The sight of a bunch of grown men stalling a work project while they haggle over whose union properly should do what might be funny. If it were not that when the costs of jurisdiction disputes — over missiles, kitchen sinks or whatever — are totalled, it's the public's well-being that goes down the drain.

Hard Way Only Way Man Learns

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When the last dozen inhabitants of the earth crawl out of the rubble and find themselves miraculously still alive, they will face the tremendous and heartbreaking task of rebuilding a civilization — that is, if the world is still inhabitable, which is unlikely.

They will then, and only then, begin to educate themselves and their children — mutations permitting — in the lessons nobody paid attention to before the Big Bang.

They will point out that nationalism is impossible, that the remnant of mankind must forever unite or perish. They will see clearly (and how painfully!) that war against our own kind is the supreme act of treason toward God and man.

They will comprehend the meaning of evil — and will have ignored as Isaiah and Jesus and Buddha — that our species is indissolubly one; that our color, nor national origin, nor religious heritage, nor political position, can divide man from man in any essential way.

These things they will, after the Big Bang, seem as trivial and irrelevant as the differences in height or weight or color of eye or pattern of fingerprint.

And they will teach their children in their schools — still children who are treasured — that it was not the communist who "started" the last war, nor the fascists who "started" the war before that, but Cain, Nimrod, Nebuchadnezzar Napoleon, nor Caesar, nor Hannibal.

It was, rather, the absence of law for all men, the will anarchy of nations, each pursuing its own selfish ends, and not caring the others for greedy motives and evil ways.

There will be no "good guys" and "bad guys" in the history books of the future — if there is a book, if there is a future. For "bad guys" are created by the "good guys" who are too self-concerned with their own prosperity, their own success, their own dominance to recognize that prosperity, like peace is indivisible on this shrunken globe.

The last dozen inhabitants will not preach a new philosophy, but a very old one. And if by will, finally, be forced to practice what they preach — not in the words of Isaiah and Jesus and Buddha will be justified in every demolished city, in every ravaged land, every polluted sea, every cubic inch of poisoned air.

After the Big Bang it will happen, as was promised to us that the meek shall inherit the earth. But what a hell on earth, what a price to pay for learning the first lesson handed down to us!

Swiss Using 5 Languages

Stratford Beacon-Herald

The Swiss, as a nation, make themselves rather a good living in their up-and-down place of geography, without much in the way of natural resources, except their brains.

They have the brains to get along with each other, with four official languages. Most Canadians are still not quite bright enough to manage affairs peacefully in two official language country. Switzerland is a confederation of 22 cantons in which the languages are variously, German, French, Italian and Romansch, and they don't quarrel with each other about it.

When it comes to going after business, they are ready to use the language that suits the customer, which has led this month to the publication in newspapers in Rome, Italy, of advertisements in Swiss.

Latin, the universal language of the learned in days gone by, is in regular daily use by thousands of visitors to Rome, during the great ecumenical council now taking place there. African bishops, German bishops and South American bishops all have Latin as one of their languages.

Not missing a bet, the Swiss national tourist office has been advertising in Rome: "Omnibus vias romanis ducunt. omnium vero pulcherrima - per helvetiam".

High school students, and older readers who think they have not forgotten all the Latin they ever learned, might like to stop reading and wrestle with the translation.

For the rest of us, the message is that all roads lead to Rome, but the most beautiful roads go through Switzerland.

Trench Mouth Germs Can Spread Very Easily

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes "trench mouth"? What is the condition of the mouth and tongue in this disease? — R.G.

Trench mouth, or Vincent's angina, is an infection of the mucous membranes, mainly of the mouth, caused by two varieties of germs; and I won't bore you with the laboratory details. One's a crooked little bug, the other's a fat little one. But you can't see either except with a microscope.

The germs spread very easily. Through kissing, for one thing, or from common drinking cups, etc. (Just to warn off critics, I will say now that I do not object to kissing; all I say is, don't have trench mouth. Does that let me off the hook from critical readers? I remember when I made mention that Listerine a monoculecasis was also known as "kissing disease." I had a small barrage of letters from readers who accused me of being "opposed to romance.")

Anyway, I didn't invent kissing, or Vincent's angina or monoculecasis. All I do is report the facts.

But if you drink out of the wrong cup someday, and pick up the bug, you may get a hard, red, inflamed, sore gums, and quite likely bad breath, a dirty gray spots, and there will or can be peeling of gum and mouth tissues in general. Usually, there will be an offensive smell to the breath. The diseased gums, if not treated, may result in time in loosening and loss of teeth.

In past years some rather strong chemicals were used — iodine perdoate and chromic acid. Today we know that penicillin works excellently.

Dear Dr. Molner: Other than natural causes, what diseases diminish with age. I find mine increasing, especially the pre-menstrual sort. I am 23 and in fine health.

I had no trouble as a girl. There is a simple reason for this point to and say, "This is when it started," but gradually there have come depression, irritability, headache, swelling, insomnia, nausea — you name it. Have you any suggestions? I'm tired of being considered a grouch and feeling like a pest. — V.B.

You have a lot more company than you know, and a lot of them aren't happy silence because they don't realize that a great deal can be done to help them.

Write for a copy of my leaflet, "Pre-Menstrual Blues." (Send 10 cents in coin, to cover mailing costs and a unstamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.) I wouldn't wonder but that I mis-named the leaflet. It cause "blues" rather implies that it's all an emotional problem. It isn't. It's physical — and it is often rather easy to adjust a woman's diet, and put an end to these miseries, or "blues" as I have ineptly called them.

I know of one instance in which a woman had such swelling that she had to keep extra clothes for use a few days before her period. She actually increased several sizes. Finding out that this condition could be corrected, she then went back to just one size of clothes.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does smoking tend to make the hair fall out? What about the non-smoker who breathes in the smoke? — Mrs. S.W.

I'm satisfied that it can be damaging, and is for many people. But even in the traditional "smoke-filled room," the non-smoker gets only a fraction of a per cent of the tars and other byproducts that a smoker does. One authority recently referred to smoke-filled as "artificially-created smog."

Dear Dr. Molner: Will "stretch marks" disappear if one's loss of weight? This question applies to large girls. — A.L.

No. The marks will fade but won't disappear. This applies at any age.

Attention all women! For this pamphlet, "The Pre-Menstrual Blues," write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. enclosing a long, self-addressed unstamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover handling. This pamphlet may help you!

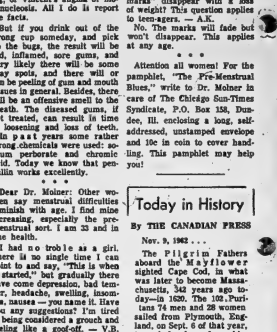
THE PACKSACK

by GREGORY CLARK

In all hunting parties, there is always one fellow who shouldn't have come. This does not refer to the inexperienced who gets shot by mistake, but to an even more unfortunate type who is always trying to keep up at the last minute, and keeps his companions waiting an hour while he dashes home to get a new starting rendezvous. He's the one who, on opening a can of beans for supper the very first night, cuts his finger and can't do the dishes from there on.



Needless to say, during his damage bag, that he has brought the wrong shells for his rifle and has to borrow the spare rifle of one of the more pessimistic members of the gang.

If he is entrusted with running the outboard, he will fail to hit a rock three miles from camp and be unable to find the shear pin, so that a return trip has to go and find him, and incidentally, in the dark, pick up all the other members of the parties scattered along the shore, who he was supposed to have picked up in the first place.

He is a stumblebum, a bungler, a butterfingers, a bankhead, a boober, a blob. But the funny part is, I am always invited again next season.

Bridgemaster, Bill Burkitt, Retires After Long Service

After fifteen years of moving in perfect circles, Bill Burkitt, of R. R. 2 Ameliasburg, has retired as bridgemaster of the Bay Bridge, joining Belleville and Prince Edward County. Mr. Burkitt has been a snowplow operator for the Department of Highways for eight years before taking over the bridge.

During the fifteen years of running the bridge, Mr. Burkitt passed thousands of boats, and hundreds of thousands of cars, without making a mistake. The only mistake he remembers having been made on the bridge, in fact, was by a truck driver, the year before Bill Burkitt took over.

That mistake was serious. The driver, heading for Belleville, was going too fast, he had no brakes on his truck, and the bridge was open. The truck rammed through the wooden gate, and the driver jumped just before it went into the channel.

The wooden gates, lowered across the road before the bridge is opened for ships, are intended only to indicate to drivers where they should stop. Because there are two of them, operated independently, they can provide a problem when drivers are impatient. With traffic coming from both directions, the bridgemaster has to judge the right time to drop the gates, without trapping a car in the centre. The problem has been eased during the past year by a white line painted on the road to indicate to drivers where they should stop.

NO CARS STRANDED

As far as Mr. Burkitt knows, there has never been a car stranded between the gates when the bridge began to open, but there was one time when he himself was stranded on the opened bridge. It was during 1949, when the power shortage inspired the Hydro to cut off power for short periods during the day. One morning about 6.30, Mr. Burkitt had opened the bridge for a coal boat, the Bay of Quinte, now moored in Belleville. As the boat passed through, the power was cut off. Mr. Burkitt was stranded, with the bridge open. Art Cornell of Rossmore was the first person to arrive, about a quarter of an hour later. He phoned for help, but there was little to be done. There were about 25 cars lined up, waiting to go through, when the power came on again, at 7.30.

Later during the same year, when the power cuts were coming at 5 p.m., the bridge would be opened to traffic up until about five minutes to five. A boat can be cleared through the bridge in four minutes normally but there were some lesse mements, and close calls. The possibility of a watch being wrong by one or two minutes complicated matters.

As long as power is available the bridge is open for the navigation twenty-four hours a day, from spring breakup to winter freeze. After the middle of November, only the senior man of the three bridgemasters is on duty. When he is satisfied that navigation on the bay is closed for the year, he closes down the bridge for the winter and calls on the hydro to shut off the power.

SOME LIGHT MOMENTS

When the bridge is opened in the spring, the senior bridgemaster must make certain everything is in safe working condition. Once, while Mr. Burkitt was responsible, a diver was called in to check the underwater structure of the swing portion. At the time, Department of Highways officials had suspected damage below the water line.

Aside from the work, the waiting and the responsibility, Mr. Burkitt remembers some lighter moments operating the bridge. There was the time, a few years ago, when the decking on the bridge was being replaced. The steel decking was put on in sections, during the winter, and riveted together. Because of the cold, the drift pins, used to align the rivet holes, were often dropped, and part of the job was finished, the ice below was littered with them. Mr. Burkitt spent the time line "fishing" for them, with a magnet, and retrieved almost all of them, saving the department a considerable sum of money.

CAUGHT A LIGHTER

Also with the magnet, Mr. Burkitt "fished" for, and caught his lighter, after it had been dropped in the water, and several good fishing reels. One thing he could never recover, though, was his hats. He has lost about two a year, on the average. They blow off while he is climbing the 44-foot ladder from the road level of the bridge to the control house, above the centre of the swinging span, and there is little he can do about it.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were firm on good and choice grades of slaughter cattle and trading was fairly active at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Heavy "runner" and medium light calves were the major portion of veal, calf supplies which sold steady to lower prices.

Hog and lamb prices moved higher.

Cattle receipts were some 1,700 head fewer than last week and about 220 less than the same week in 1961. Receipts from Western Canada were only 277 as compared to the 567 head last week. Western stock calf receipts were 90 head more than last week at 859. Included in the receipts were 31 cattle and 16 calves from Quebec. There were no shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers nor exports off the market to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers 28-30; mixed 31; few fancy loads to 31.40; goods 28-29; medians and commons 16-22; good heifers 24-25; choice 23-24; medians 20 - 22.50; commons 15 - 20; choice fed yearlings 28-30; sales to 31.50; goods 25-27.50; good cows 13-15; sales to 18.50; medians 14.50-15.50; commons 13-14.50; canners and cutters 9-13.50; good heavy bologna bulls 19-19.50; commons and medium light bulls 15-18.50.

Calves: Choice vealers 31-33; odd lots as high as 35; goods 27-30; medians 24-26; commons 21-24; bobers 13-21.

Hogs: Grade A 28.85-32.15; heavy sows 21-21.90; light sows 23.50 down; stags $19.50-20.75 per hundredweight; bucks discounted at $3 per hundredweight; commons and medians 16-18; good light sheep 8-12; yearlings 12-16; common sheep 3-7.

Boat traffic through the bridge has increased, while Mr. Burkitt was running it, from 850 boats during the summer of 1948 to 1929 boats during the summer of 1961. Most of the increase has been in motor cruisers.

Mr. Burkitt would have retired, according to the calendar, on November 18 of this year. He has found, however, since last February, and although he worked through the summer, that he is glad to retire.

In his retirement he is still active, working his farm on the Ameliasburg town line.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Dr. Paul Siple, a geographer and explorer who has been a member of four Antarctic expeditions, lost his way Thursday—in the middle of town.

Dr. Siple turned up 20 minutes late for a speech to the New Jersey Science Teachers Association, after he couldn't find the hotel where the association was meeting.

UN Diplomat Resigns Over Rhodesia Policy

LONDON (AP) — Sir Hugh Foot, former governor of several colonies, has severed his connection with the British foreign service, a government spokesman said today.

Until a month ago, Foot, 53, was Britain's spokesman on colonial affairs at the United Nations in New York—a job that carried the rank of ambassador and a salary of $14,000 a year.

Foot, well known for his liberal views on colonial matters, gave up the post at the UN at a time when Britain was under criticism for its policy in Southern Rhodesia.

Lucille Ball Will Buy Desi's Share of Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Lucille Ball is taking over as president of Desilu Productions and will acquire control of the company from husband Desi Arnaz, it was announced Thursday.

Arnaz, 45, resigned the presidency Thursday and the board of directors immediately named Miss Ball as successor to him.

Miss Ball, 51, said she would purchase 300,350 shares of stock held by Arnaz and increase her holdings to 650,350 shares — 52 per cent of all outstanding shares.

A studio spokesman said Miss Ball will pay Arnaz "a price considerably in excess of the current market price." Desilu stock has gone as high as $12 a share this year.

Arnaz and parents recently that a large electrical firm sought to buy Desilu and the asking price then was estimated at $20,000,000.

Justice Norris Accused Of Reversing Rulings

By ROBERT RICE

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice T. G. Norris has been accused of reversing his own rulings to prevent the Seafarers' International Union of Canada from presenting its full story on labor strife on the Great Lakes.

SIU lawyer Joseph Nuss made the charge Thursday in a plea for an opportunity to present the Seafarers' Union case in his own way. The Montreal lawyer said he was expected to reply later today.

Mr. Nuss contended that Mr. Justice Norris has changed the system of receiving evidence since the SIU launched its testimony before the federal inquiry into waterfront labor violence and shipping disruptions on the lakes.

"There has been no change in the system and you know it," said Mr. Justice Norris.

REVERSED RULINGS'

Mr. Nuss said the judge twice reversed his own rulings this week on admissibility of certain documents and objections by Maurice Wright, lawyer for the Canadian Labor Congress.

The SIU counsel also accused rival lawyers of headline-hunting when they presented dramatic cases against the SIU at earlier sessions of the public inquiry.

"They saw fit to make their case in that way, to draw it out, to sprinkle a little bit of violence or a little bit of intimidation in each day—always, of course, without proof as to who did it, but drawing the inference."

The Canadian Labor Congress and Upper Lakes Shipping Limited presented witnesses who testified about violence in the labor field on the Lakes and who alleged the SIU was a corrupt union.

PUBLICITY WIDE

Mr. Nuss said the cases against the SIU received wide newspaper publicity in stories "of a sensational nature."

He claimed the right to present his case in reply as he saw fit—with an eye on its publicity value.

"I will not clothe myself in a shower curtain of hypocrisy," said Mr. Nuss. "I will not say that I will adduce my evidence in such a way as to give the least publicity to it."

Raging Rivers Causing Floods In North Italy

TURIN (AP) Raging rivers and streams fed by five days of rain flooded large areas of northern Italy today, including heavily - populated suburbs of this industrial city. The death toll mounted to four.

Flood waters disrupted road and rail traffic in several areas and washed out bridges near Turin.

In the foothills of the Alps heavy snow blocked traffic and disrupted telephone communications.

The Po, Italy's biggest river, was swollen 15 feet above its normal level and poured over its banks into rich farmlands in Genoa, 40 ships were waiting for the bad weather to abate before loading and unloading. Sea water washed across famed St. Mark's Square in Venice.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Twisting winds and torrential rain hit this region today. House trailers were upset and trees and signs flattened.

One woman, trapped in an overturned trailer, was taken to hospital with a back injury.

The Miami weather bureau said "it could've been a tornado" that twisted steel poles supporting signs and lights at a service station.

Successful Living

Walks Out on Abusive Husband

DEAR DORIS—My husband and I have been separated for three weeks, after three years married. I had not really been happy all this time. He drank a lot and mistreated me. I gave him chance after chance and warned him, but he never quit any attempt to drink.

A neighbor was very nice to me. He gave me courage and made me realize I didn't have to take this treatment. My husband now says he'll change, but he has promised things before and never kept them.

DORIS CLARE

Now I don't know whether to forget about my husband and go in for an airline stewardess and start a new life or take another chance. I know you usually stick up for the men and expect you will here too, but give me your opinion anyway. I don't want to go back and end up with a family and be in a worse mess. After the way he has treated me, it's pretty hard to trust again. When the neighbors start complaining, well, it's pretty badly. BADLY TREATED.

DEAR BADLY—Bravo! At the right moment, someone gave you the courage to leave. Perhaps this will shock him into realizing how revolting his actions have become.

Probably needs more than three weeks. If you do go back, be just as firm about leaving again.

I stick up for the men? According to me, I stick up for marriage—if there's any chance of it holding together.

DEAR DORIS—You have always given kind and sympathetic advice to those in need. I never thought I'd be one of these people who needed advice but I am.

Bob is ten years older than me, has a good job and we've liked each other from the start. Now I don't know whether I'm coming or going. We've reached the point where we either must marry or break up.

I love Bob, but he is frightened. As he said last week, "If only I could be sure . . ." He hates to see me with anyone else, but he won't commit himself. I've always never been intimate in all this time, but lately I can see the inevitable happening, and I don't want him this way. Bob realizes this and has always respected me for it. I don't want to hurt me for anything, if he could help it, but it is becoming terribly difficult.

I hope that your trained mind can make some sense out of this letter. How can we be sure it will last? How can Bob discover if he really loves me?—AIN'T MISBEHAVIN'.

DEAR AIN'T—Don't let the "inevitable" happen. Assemble all your resolve; call off all dates and tell him you want Bob back where he belongs.

Then if he misses you and discovers that he needs you—for keeps—take him back. If it's the Real Thing, it just gets better all the time. Yours is a familiar problem.

DEAR DORIS—I am a fourteen-year-old girl and I'd like to know how to get a certain boy interested in me. This boy (I'll call him Blue Eyes) if different from the other boys I've dated. Not that the other boys were wolves, but he's just different and I think he is shy around me.

Should I act flirting but in this case should it? Please help me!—REMONA-LEE.

DEAR REMONA-LEE—If you're shy and he's shy, something has to give or you'll get nowhere. A friendly smile, some interest in what he says and does—what could beat it? Call it flirting who dares!

TO MRS. C.—There is no set limit of bridesmaids, although six or eight seems to be familiar maximum. If you have several close friends or relatives to choose for bridesmaids, there's no reason to leave out one who might be hurt this way, if adding another to the number would settle it.

DEAR DORIS:—

1.—Is it proper for people to sign a guest book Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith?

2.—Would it be all right for a bride to provide corsages for an old family friend and an aunt, who have done a lot for her, at her wedding?

3.—Is it necessary to send out wedding invitations to the servitors and the wedding party?—MRS. D.

DEAR MRS. D.—

1.—There is no set rule to go by. Chiefly it depends on the formality of the occasion. If two people are visiting a funeral home, as a courtesy, they might will sign the guest book in the same way as they might register at a hotel; that is, Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith. If it is a wedding party, they might sign Alfred and Mary Smith, or each one sign their own name separately, as this is friendly and formal.

2.—Custom has it that the only people to be provided with flowers at a wedding are the wedding party.

3.—Yes, anyone who is to be a guest at the wedding gets an invitation.

DEAR DORIS—My boy friend would like my mother, brother and me to come to his home (400 miles away) for Christmas. We plan to be engaged at Christmas. He would like to introduce his family to me and also have them meet my family.

What is bothering mother is that she is wondering if this would be proper (us going to his place). My boy friend's mother has written us both and has invited us to come.—UNCERTAIN.

DEAR UNCERTAIN — Accept with pleasure. The invitation came from his mother, and she's the hostess, chaperon, boss, all rolled into one. Merry Christmas!

DEAR DORIS—Please tell me the names of any airlines which will consider hiring girls who wear contact lenses as stewardesses.—WOULD LIKE TO KNOW.

DEAR WOULD—Most up-to-date information is that TCA will apply using contact lenses if they have at least 20-30 vision. They cannot, however, consider applicants who must habitually wear glasses.

TO B. D.—Telephone to the police department in your city for information about requirements for joining the force.

Public Health Nurse And School Children

By MATTHEW B. DYMOND M.D., Health Minister, Ontario

Children play a very important part in the role of the public health nurse. When a new baby comes into the home she will call on the new mother if the doctor wishes, to offer assistance and show her how best to care for the infant. She will recommend the necessary immunization programs to safeguard against communicable diseases. She will urge that the family physician examine the child before he starts school, so that an assessment of his general health can be made.

Once a child starts school, he again comes under the supervision of the public health nurse when there is a formally organized school-health program. She visits elementary and secondary schools on a regular basis, in order to promote and safeguard high standards of health among the children. She works along with the teacher in the education of good health habits.

The mental and emotional health of the child is also important. Where help is needed, the public health nurse can recognize the danger signals and can suggest to the parents where special assessment and treatment can be acquired.

It is the aim of the public health nurse and your Ontario Department of Health that each child may experience health and happiness at school, through the establishment of healthful habits, so that he may develop into a vigorous, alert, wholesome and useful citizen.

Any child with special health problems is helped by the public health nurse and she shares her findings with teachers and parents. Efforts are made to help the handicapped child and to assure that no child grows up with physical defects that could and should be corrected early in life. Vision and hearing tests are made periodically on the children.

Sunday School Lesson

What Sets Man Apart?

By ROY L. SMITH

The author of the majestic eighth psalm had never had the benefit of a course in psychology under the guidance of a great scientist, nor had he ever been granted the privilege of looking through any microscope, however small. Neither had he ever used a spectroscope, a laboratory, or a test of any kind.

But in composing his song he hit upon one of the most exalted truths to be found in all the Bible — the idea of man as having been born on a level only a little lower than that of God Himself.

As he looked out upon the world about him he could see that man was the only creature to have been given the ability, or capacity of exercising authority over the other creatures.

Viewing the whole field he exclaimed, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" Then, just a sentence or two later, he sang, "Thou hast given him dominion."

That's it. That's, the thing that sets man apart from every other creature on this dominion."

In this scientific day of ours that mater of dominion is awesome indeed. To man has been given the power to make new elements, isotopes of elements, and harness the power of atomic nucleii.

Indeed, we are about to launch the dangerous game of "playing God." We are planning on visits to the moon, to Mars and to empty space. We are brainwashing whole populations and changing the basic nature of man himself. We are playing with the energy of which the universe is made, and we are experimenting with strange forces which no man yet understands.

IT IS MAN'S MIND

It is his unimaginable mind that sets man apart from all the rest of creation. Biologists have called our attention to the fact that the hand of the ape and the hand of a man bear certain resemblances, but when one considers the differences in the work the two creatures do, there is no comparison. There is a certain bony resemblance between the foot of a man, a gorilla and the foot of the man, but the ability of the two to even walk represents a difference equal to the difference between the poles.

Man is the only creature that has developed a language, the only "animal" that has perfected an alaphet or a multiplication table. He is the only individual of all creation that is able to do abstract thinking, to see the difference between the good and the perfect, to correct his mistakes and plan for larger achievement, to imagine the thing that has never existed and work out the plans for producing it.

Other animals display remarkable intelligence, on occasions, and we say they are "almost human." But that "almost" is one of the largest words in the language.

Man has even developed an art, a literature, a philosophy ,or a science. Ants and bees have developed a amazing co-operative society, but they remain ants and bees. And they never achieve dominion.

The Uniform' Sunday School lesson for November 11: "MAN," Genesis 1:26-31; Psalms 8; Matthew 6:24-34; Hebrews 2:6-18.

IT'S A MAN'S CONSCIENCE

Other creatures have learned the differences between the advantageous and the disadvantageous, but only man has learned some of the difference between the right and the wrong.

The horse and the dog may cringe in fear of punishment, but man is overcome with remorse, and made despondent by his own moral failures.

To man, and man alone, has been given the priceless gift of conscience. It is man's conscience that has made possible moral advance, social justice and human rights.

Within the area of conscience rests the world's hope of an eventual permanency from the horrors of war. Within a man's conscience rests the hope of racial and industrial peace, spiritual co-operation and the triumph of ideals.

It is conscience that gives meaning to duty, responsibility, and honor. Conscience makes religion effective, diplomacy decent, progress possible and industry creative.

RAWDON — On Sunday, November 4th the 91st anniversary of Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church was observed. The edifice was a bower of beauty with large bouquets of golden 'mums predominating and roses on the pulpit. Evergreens, bittter sweet and other decorations were also used for decoration.

In the morning the church was filled to capacity with dozens of chairs placed to accomodate the large number of worshippers and a few extra in the Sunday School room below. Many former residents came home on this occasion and over 100 guests were present in the sanctuary from Oshawa, Collins Bay, Tweed, Campbellford, River Valley, Hoards, Burnbrae, English Line, Springbrook, Ivanhoe, Carmel, West Huntington Eggleton, Stirling, Frankford, Consecon, Foxboro, Wellmans, Bethel, Kemptville, Marsh Hill, Ottawa and Bethel, Zion.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver presided at the console of the organ and provided special music for the occasion as a prelude — Handy's "Something of Peace" and the offertory, Scott' "Floating on the Air" and postlude — Gounod's "The Lord is Omnipotent" The full choir under the direction of Mrs. Carleton Potts rendered an anthem "Here am I, Send Me" with special solo portions. Miss Mary Ellen David sang as a solo, "There Were Ninety and Nine".

The service opened with "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah" Offering was gathered by Messrs. Bert Sharp, Lindsay McKeown, David Potts and Tony Jonkman.

The Rev. Robert O. Reid, B.A., B.D., of Foxboro, was the anniversary speaker and gave a special message on the theme "Second Hand Church." He chose his text from 1st Kings 14, and stressed that the wider work of the church was most important. "God must come first in our lives," He said, "too many people put cars, shows, cigarettes, liquor, amusement each first and then if they have a little left they give God a second-hand gift. The speaker urged his congregation to follow in the path of the pioneers who laid the foundation of the church, based God first and self last.

The service closed with "The Son of God Goes Forth to War" and a prayer.

At the evening service the pastor, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher, B.A., assisted.—Mrs. Weaver and choir was a prelude to "In Thine Own Way Lord," by Lorenz; for offertory, "A Mighty Fortress" and for postlude, "Honor and Glory." The opening congregational hymn was "Guide Me O Thou Great Jehovah" and the choir rendered an anthem, "Lead Me Lord." Miss Judy Cooney contributed a vocal solo, "Great Is His Love."

Mr. Reid of Foxboro based his message on the 93rd Psalm "The Lord Reigneth." He stressed that God is always present with loving guidance, however each individual has a free choice in choosing how he will serve his God and Master. Church members should give an extra thought at anniversary time to this phase of life and thus re-assess their ways of worship. The offertory was rendered by Messrs. Bert Sharp, Paul Jeffs, Raeburn Scott and Tony Jonkman.

and probably unbalanced adventures who is quite prepared to sell out the security not only of his own country, but of the whole Western Hemisphere to Soviet Imperialism," Mr. Hogan said.

"The fact that Castro's intentions were thwarted in no way alters the fact that those intentions represent a direct and immediate threat to our security and freedom. To continue to maintain diplomatic relations with such a government is a classic example of trying to be committed and neutral at the same time."

CITES CHINA POLICY

If it made sense to refuse recognition to China out of consideration for the United States, he said, what sort of sense did it make to maintain relations with Cuba, "a country whose actions have vitally menaced not only American interests but our own, and a country about which Americans obviously have stronger feelings than they ever did about China."

By breaking off relations with Cuba, Mr. Hogan continued, Canada has nothing to lose except an attitude of neutrality which no longer was relevant. What Canada has to gain was the restored confidence of her closest allies, "and perhaps our own self-respect."

TRADE SMALL

As far as suspension of trade was concerned, the volume had fallen to such minor proportions that its total suspension would have a noticeable effect on Canada's economic interests, Mr. Hogan argued.

"Similarly, the loss of these imports is not likely to cause Cuba's economy any more wobbly than it already is, or her commitment to communism any more than it already is," Mr. Hogan said.

"In the first place, most Americans have the impression that our trade with Cuba is far greater than it actually is. Many Americans are firmly convinced that while their country has sacrificed enormous economic interests in the Cuba controversy, Canadians are shamelessly exploiting the situation for their own profit," he said.

"The safest and fastest way to demonstrate the untruth of this is to stop the trade altogether."

Another 904,378 homes—about one in every five—lacked hot and cold running water.

The census also counted "crowded" dwellings — defined as those with more people than rooms. Although the number of such homes increased to 750,942 from 641,820 a decade earlier, their proportion to the national total dropped to 16.5 per cent from 18.8.

SAME RATIO

Two-thirds of the homes were owner-occupied and one-third were rented. There was the same 2-to-1 ratio between single detached houses and apartments or flats.

An average price tag of $11,021 was put on single, owner-occupied homes, ranging from $4,311 in Newfoundland to $12,952 in Ontario.

Average cash rent across Canada was $65 a month, ranging from $48 in Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick to $76 in Ontario.

There were one or more automobiles in 68 per cent of homes, compared with 42 per cent 10 years earlier, while the proportion equipped with mechanical refrigerators nearly doubled to 91 per cent from 46.8.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

In Birdland, just as in our own society, there are both good and bad parents. Of course many of the fathers deliberately pay little or no attention to their children for their safety. The male redstart, for example, keeps well away from home because his flame colored patches would surely guide predators to his gestlings if he were around. But, someho, we expect all mothers to give their entire time to their own infants. The extreme case of neglect is found in cowbirds.

Mother cowbird has no mother instinct whatsoever. She lays her egg in the nest of another bird, carefully choosing a moment when the owners are absent and pays absolutely no more attention to it or to the baby when it emerges later on. Most foster parents can for a just as though it were their own, though robins and catbirds find the immense cowbird yellow warblers frequently build another storey to their nest to cover up the unwanted egg. Others, as yellow warblers are probably the most common foster parents, can claim victory in achieving their objective may account for the seemingly limited survival rate of these little warblers. Whereas twenty years ago they were plentiful in our Canadian cities and other suburbs, now they are seldom seen.

BIGGEST IN NEST

Usually Mrs. cowbird picks on birds smaller than herself so as to take certain that her egg is the biggest in the nest. Also she lays it early in the nest that is open and not too high. Consequently some species are virtually driven out of many kinds of warblers, vireos, flycatchers and sparrows. Each year these birds are fined territory where the female lays her eggs, which number three to four, and she distributes them around.

As juncos conceal their homes under overturned roots, overhanging banks and fallen trees they should not come into the group of those proposed upon. Nevertheless one recent summer a pair brought their cowbird foster children to our feeding tray from the day they could fly there until long after they should have been looking after themselves. Finally, the twins joined a flock of their own kind and left the poor little foster parents in peace.

This last summer chipping sparrows, white-throats and three kinds of warblers (chestnut-sided, magnolia and redstart) all brought up a cowbird within a few yards of the feeding tray.

Unfortunately every young cowbird means the destruction of several other birds, because the incubation period of a cowbird egg is very short. If that egg hatches first there is no room for the smaller eggs, which fall out or are kicked out by the imposter.

He doubted that the government had received any legal opinion at all.

Mr. Knowles called the matter one of the most important to come before the House this session. It involved the question "as to whether there has been taxation without due process of law."

"The answer given to us is the answer we used to get from another source: 'Who can stop us?'"

RETURNS TO COMMITTEE

In the evening sitting, the House turned its attention to formation of a 26-member seasional committee on railways, airlines and shipping.

It turned to be what Commons Speaker Marcel Lambert called "a scattergun discussion on transportation policy."

Before the end the committee was passed, but not until MPs had voiced a chorus of complaints.

Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier) said implementation of the Bonavista royal commission report on transportation would cost Canadian taxpayers about $1,000,000 a year, and that commission had failed to carry out its specified duties.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) described CNR President Donald Gordon as "an Achilles without a heel" who made MPs look like heels when he last appeared before their railway committee.

Real Caouette, deputy leader of the Social Credit party, protested against the free enterprise taxes from trucking being used by the government to pay subsidies and deficits for government-owned railways.

Atheists May Ask Separate Schools Warns U.C. Minister

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto United Church minister has warned representatives of 12 denominations that atheists, secularists and Jews would demand government financing for schools if Roman Catholics win their "separate school" battle for public funds.

Rev. E. M. Howse of Bloor Street United Church was replying Thursday to the religious education report presented to the biennial conference of the Canadian Council of Churches.

The report, Ontario's Roman Catholic bishops asked in a brief for provincial aid to finance high school, teachers' colleges and vocational schools. Roman Catholic separate school boards now many collect taxes and receive grants for elementary schools up to Grade 10.

"If this trend (toward separate schools) goes it could mean destruction of public schools in the end," the minister said.

Mr. Howse said also that religious education in public schools is "the most important struggle in Canada, and possibly Canada, today."

PRESENTS REPORT

The religious education committee report was presented by Rev. Kenneth Wills, secretary of the Christian education department.

Mr. Wills criticized denominational field research for being "simply not interested" in religious education in schools.

"They see no need to give any of their time to the study of Christian unity," he said. "Each is trying to do the same work."

"Meanwhile," Mr. Wills said, "active opposition to any recognition of religion in our various public school systems is rampant. There is organized and vigorous cultivation of public opinion against us."

More than 100 delegates from the 12 denominations—including the United, Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian and Greek Orthodox Churches and the Salvation Army—attended the four - day conference which concluded Thursday.

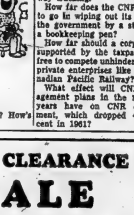
Canada sent three observers to the council sessions.



The council elected Commissioner Wycliffe Booth of the Salvation Army as its president.

Fisher Starts Gordon Duel With Posies

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The audience turned up in the Commons Thursday night expecting a thundering Wagnerian opera, but Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) provided something closer to a dainty Chopin prelude.

Reporters had readied their stock phrases of "big, burly" and "rough, tough" to describe Mr. Fisher in the preliminary round of the annual duel between he and CNR President Donald Gordon.

Instead, Mr. Fisher compli mented his committee opponent of bygone years to such an extent that one back-bench MP remarked: "This is getting sickening."

The Commons committee examining the CNR and Trans Canada Air Lines annual reports met for two meetings each week. Mr. Fisher, whose big Northern Ontario constituency takes in three CNR divisional points, has in past sessions been the chief critic of the CNR presidency.

Last year, Mr. Gordon charged that a set of figures Mr. Fisher used on CNR trucking operations was "a stolen document, purloined from CNR files." Mr. Fisher indignantly denied it.

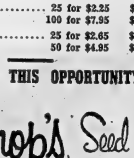
HE ADMIRES HIM

Thursday night Douglas Fisher said Mr. Donald Gordon was a man he admired, "an Achilles without a heel, a thinking man and a business man, and a man of great ability."

But he warned that he had some forthright questions to put to the CNR and TCA management when they will be called as witnesses on their annual report.

Among them:

How far does the nationally-owned railway intend to go into the competing business of highway trucking.



How far does the CNR intend to go in wiping out its debt to the government by a stroke of bookkeeping?

How far should a corporation supported by the taxpayers be free to compete unhindered with private enterprises like the Canadian Pacific Railway?

What effect will CNR management plans in the next 15 years have on CNR employment, which dropped 4.1 per cent in 1961?

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the fascinating topics of parliamentary speculation this year is whether Real Caouette deliberately smarked upon a course which could considerably have defeated the government in the Commons and brought on an election.

This talk is based on statements by Mr. Caouette, Quebec Social Credit leader and deputy national leader, and by National Leader Robert Thompson before and after Tuesday night's vote on the Liberal nonconfidence motion.

The minority Conservative government survived when the motion, demanding an end to "austerity," was defeated by a scant 12 votes. The winning margin was supplied by Social Credit—Mr. Thompson, British Columbia member A. B. Patterson and 13 of the party's Quebec MPs.

13 ALL PREVIOUS VOTES

In all previous votes on nonconfidence motions presented by the other opposition parties, Social Credit voted en bloc to force the government in the "House of Commons" where they have 30 members, the Conservatives 116, Liberals 99 and the New Democrats 19.

TWO MEMBERS REBEL

But Tuesday night Social Credit was divided for the first time—two Quebec MPs voted for the Liberal motion while Mr. Caouette and five more of his Quebec colleagues abstained.

It is against this background —and Mr. Caouette's pre-Parliament warnings that he would take drastic steps if the government did not end its austerity measures—that four statements of the party's leaders before and after the vote caused a stir of speculation.

The first was Mr. Thompson's statement to reporters that he thought Mr. Caouette had told him there was no need for a pre-vote caucus of Social Credit MPs to discuss the issue.

The second was Mr. Thompson's statement Wednesday that when the vote was called he did not know how many Social Credit MPs would vote with him against the motion.

Third was the statement by Mr. Caouette, almost an hour before the vote, that a caucus of the Quebec Social Credit MPs would meet and it was "possible" they would vote for the Liberal motion.

The fourth was Mr. Caouette's statement Wednesday that his Quebec organization is much more ready for an election than the party organization elsewhere in Canada.

Mr. who went into the lobbies to find out what was afoot say it was Dr. Guy Marcoux, party whip and Mr. Thompson's right hand man, who convinced 12 of his Quebec colleagues to follow Mr. Thompson's lead and provide the government with a majority. Mr. Thompson, whose French is improving but still not up to the rapid-fire speed of the Quebec caucus, stood by.

At one point, Mr. Thompson left his colleagues and crossed the Commons floor to confer with Douglas Fisher, New Democratic caucus chairman. He is said to have suggested that the New Democrats swing their votes behind the government.

Mr. Thompson has steadfastly maintained that an election now would be wrong. But the government should be given a chance to present its legislative program and a budget before final judgment is passed.

Did Mr. Caouette stall off a caucus in hopes that, under pressure of deciding on the spot how to vote, most of the Quebec Social Credit MPs would follow their Quebec leader?

U.C.W. Hear Topic Based on Public Health

Tabernacle United Church Women held their November meeting recently in the church, school auditorium with all units well represented.

Mrs. H. C. Barlow called the meeting to order with a brief piano prelude and Mrs. Lewis Andrews, President opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. H. C. Barlow acted in the absence of Mrs. Ted Fennell as recording secretary and Mrs. Frank Davidson's report of the treasury was read by Miss Ethel Horton.

Mrs. A. E. Cornish, convener of the Christian education committee reported that two church school teachers had attended the Five Oaks Conference the previous weekend. The report of the supply and social service department with Mrs. Roy Brickman, convener, was most gratifying. The supply allocation had been taken care of and there are articles on hand waiting disposition.

Mrs. John Babiak conducted a most impressive worship service, reading from both the King James version and J. B. Phillips' translation of part of the book of Ephesians. She meditated on "An Eastern Proverb", when things in life go wrong and we are displeased "It is always better to light a candle than grope complainingly in the darkness". Prayer and courage are two candles that can give the brightest light and will glow forever.

Mrs. Douglas Simpson introduced the guest speaker, Miss Kathleen Laney from the Department of Health, who said "Peoples' health is the concern of everyone. We take for granted that certain standards are essential for good health and health is one of the greatest blessings of mankind". Miss Laney gave examples of good health and amenities of healthy living from the Mosaic era through the dark ages, the medieval period, and the 19th century. It was in 1848 the first Public Health Act was passed in England. Sanitation and good health principles are practised in the present age all over the world. The Chinese have great regard for high standards of health.

The speaker took her audience on a verbal tour of a Public Health Nurse's rounds from day to day where she has become the friend and confidant of many.

Much progress has been made over the last few years in teaching hygiene prevention of disease and the preservation of health, all of which is the ultimate responsibility of the Public Health Nurse.

Ladies' Day Out Hears Talk On 'Budgeting'

The Ladies' Day Out program at the YMCA this past Tuesday featured a talk by the Bank of Montreal's Jack Murphy, on budgeting in the home.

Mr. and Mrs. Garth Trevor Joice are shown following their recent marriage in Angelican Church, Frankford. The bride is the former Dorothy Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Brown, R.R. 2, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Joice of Port Hope, Ontario. (Photo by LaRocque of Trenton.)

JOICE — BROWN

FRANKFORD — A lovely autumn wedding was solemnized recently in Trinity Anglican Church, Frankford, when the Rev. F. V. Downing, rector of the church, assisted by the Rev. J. C. MacFarlane of Port Hope, united in marriage Dorothy Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Brown, R.R. 2, Belleville, and Garry Trevor Norton Joice, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Joice of Port Hope.

The double-ring ceremony was performed before a setting of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums at the altar, and baskets of gladioli in shades of white and orange adorning the chancel. The guest pews were designated by nosegays of pink poms and white satin streamers.

The guest organist, Miss Helen Morrow of Stirling, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Lance Hall of Port Hope in his rendition of "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" and "I'll Walk with God" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length bridal gown of satin-faced peau de soie, featuring a fitted bodice having a scoop-ed neckline dipping to a "V" in the back, trimmed with appliques of Alencon lace and studded with seed pearls. The elbow length sleeves were trimmed with self bows. The bouffant skirt featured a flat front with detailed cascade and finished with self bows. A single fabric rose with petals falling over the forehead held her shoulder length, four-tier, hand-veiled bridal veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of Talisman roses interspersed with fern and croton leaves.

The maid of honor was Miss Sandra Pearl Joice, R.R. 2, Belleville and the senior bridesmaids, Mrs. Ray Cornish, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Jacqueline Demill, both of Port Hope, Ontario. All were gowned identically in antique gold satin faced peau de soie with scooped neklines, fitted bodices and elbow length sleeves trimmed with bows. The street-length skirts featured cross-over flat fronts and pleated cascade backs. Their headpieces were peau de soie and velvet bows in two-toned gold, accented with veils. Each carried a cascade bouquet of white shasta daisies and bronze chrysanthemums with fern and white streamers.

Little Miss Linda Cornish, niece of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaid, was dressed in white nylon over taffeta, set off by an antique gold cummerbund and matching headpiece of bows accented with a tiny veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white shasta daisies and bronze chrysanthemums with white streamers.

The bridegroom was attended by Dennis Torrell of Toronto, and the ushers were Ray Cornish of Port Hope, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Francis Frost of R.R. 2, Belleville, and Ronald Joice of Port Hope, brother of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony the reception was held in the church parish hall where the bride's table was appointed with traditional white linen, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped with two white doves holding wedding rings and misted about the base with white tulle and lily-of-the-valley. Tapering white candles and the bridal bouquets added to the setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a delph blue silk brocade dress with matching hat and black accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was gowned in a raspberry red silk brocade dress with white and black accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations.

For the wedding trip to the southern States and Washington, D.C., the bride chose a two-piece beige double-knit suit with matching hat and chocolate brown accessories and a corsage of orange Delight roses.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at several showers; one at the home of Mrs. Shirley Cornish, Port Hope; at the home of Mrs. Jack Demill of Port Hope with Miss Jackie Demill as co-hostess; at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Carson, Frankford; at the home of Mrs. Sharon Thompson, Belleville, with Miss Sandra Purvis as co-hostess; also at a presentation of an electric auburust clock by the office staff of the Stewart Warner Corp., of which the bride is an employee.

A rehearsal party was held by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Joice of Port Hope at the Pines Motel when the bride presented the senior bridesmaids with single strands of pearls and matching earrings and the junior bridesmaid with a gold bracelet. The bridegroom's gifts to his attendants were tie bar and cuff link sets.

Local Girl Guides and Rangers were among the volunteer groups helping pack TB Christmas Seals for the Hastings County Tuberculosis Society this year. Close to 20,000 packets are being sent out, each containing a letter, a supply of seals, a return envelope and countercheck. The association began preparing the envelopes about October 30, and the job is now completed. The seals will be going out through the Post Office on Saturday morning. In the photograph, Dorothy Jacob, of the First Point Anne Guides and Sharon and Sandy Holmes, both of First Belleville Land Ranger group, are packing the last lot of envelopes.

MILLER — HARVEY

White baskets of white gladioli, white poms, and large tinted chrysanthemums adorned the chancel in Albert College Chapel, Belleville, for a lovely fall afternoon wedding when Eunice Betty Lou Harvey, of Belleville, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis V. Harvey, became the bride of Ronald Alexander Miller, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Reid Miller. The Reverend David Sinclair, of Belleville, officiated.

The wedding music was rendered by the guest organist, Mr. John C. Wilhers, of Christ Church, Belleville, who accompanied a choir of six boys in the processional, "Christ is Made the Sure Foundation," and "Brother James Air," during the signing of the register. For the recessional Mr. Wilhers gave "The Trumpet Tune and Air," by Purcell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her traditional bridal gown of embossed taffazine in candle-white in original design on sculpture lines with long sheath-like sleeves and bias flange cascading from the waistline to the tip of the circular train. She wore a matching crown of stephanotis headdress with chapel-length veil of silk tulle illusion, and carried a cascade of white stephanotis with trailing ivy centred by a large white orchid with yellow centre.

She was attended by Miss Margaret Jane, of Belleville, as maid of honor, wearing a gown identical to the bride in short-length peau de faille, made similarly to that of the bride, with matching headdress, and carrying a sheaf of three large white-tinted mums tied with white satin ribbon.

The groomsman was Mr. Myrdlin Jones, of Hamilton, Ontario, and the ushers were Messrs. William Mason of Oakville, cousin of the bride, and Gary Sills of Belleville.

The reception was held at the Hotel Quinte in the Tropicana Room, where the bride's table was appointed with white damask linen, and centred by a three-tier all-white wedding cake topped by a cluster of white stephanotis and ivy leaves, and clouded about the base with white tulle, and scattered rosebuds. Tall white candles in silver holders, and the bridal bouquets completed the setting.

The guests were received by the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother, the former in Forstman wool ensemble in Espresso tan shade accented with matching tones of satin. She wore champagne accessories, and a corsage of bronze Cymbidium orchids.

The latter was attired in blue lace over peau de soie with portrait collar, matching feather hat, navy accessories, and corsage of ivy-toned Cymbidium orchids.

For the wedding trip to the Laurentian Mountains, Quebec, the bride chose a red and black brocade with Russian braided jacket, black accessories and white orchid corsage.

Nurses Hear Talk on 'Nursing Care of Orthopedic Surgery'

The second in a series of lectures was well attended at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital, on Monday evening when Dr. Harold Williamson spoke on "Nursing Care of Orthopedic Surgery." Dr. Williamson was introduced by Mrs. Catharine Nobes.

The doctor stressed that the basic principles of general nursing also apply in orthopedic nursing. Due to new devices, which promote comfort of the patient and facilitate nursing care, changes are occuring in orthopedic nursing.

Rehabilitation plays an important part in any illness but especially in orthopedics as these are usually long-termed cases; the aim being to restore patient to relative normalcy or at least to an independent state of existence at the earliest possible date.

HEALTHY ATTITUDE

The nurse's role is to help the patient maintain a healthy attitude towards rehabilitation which includes early ambulation. She offers an explanation why certain treatments are necessary, gives reassurance and assistance when needed. Early ambulation is of utmost importance to aid in the prevention of complications.

Dr. Williamson stated that where facilities were available, it would be ideal to have patients grouped according to their nursing needs. Intensive nursing care would be given to patients requiring a high concentration of nursing care. Intermediate care would be given those requiring somewhat less nursing care.

AMBULATORY GROUP

The ambulatory group would include those patients who were able to be up but still requiring a certain amount of care and supervision. The convalescing group would include patients who were not ambulatory but still needing nursing care.

The surgeon went on to say that many fractures, especially in the aged, actually happen because a fall occurs due to contraction of involuntary muscles. All muscles have tone—that is the ability to maintain varying degrees of contracture. Use of muscles helps maintain good co-ordination, relaxation and tone. Muscular and circulatory tone is lost from inactivity. Muscle has two states—either that of relaxation, or contraction.

He stated that one seldom realizes how complex movements are, and that a small part of the brain controls these fine, instrumental as is these fine movements that distinguish man from lower animals. He says that the experienced is due to spasm of the muscles. Functioning Joints in the body depend on good tone of surrounding muscles. In cases where prosthetic replacements are deemed necessary, it is important to have this surgical procedure performed while the muscles surrounding the particular joint are still able to support it.

Mrs. Pearl Herrington thanked Dr. Williamson for his informative and interesting lecture.

Next week the speaker will be Dr. Birchard on "Recent Advances in Gynecological Nursing." Any nurse interested is urged to attend.

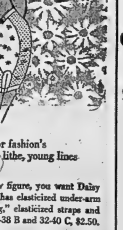
WEST HUNTINGDON — Last Saturday evening a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Fargey to honor Mr. and Mrs. Keith Wood (nee Carol Fargey) who were married recently.



A NURSERY SCHOOL or kindergarten teacher often needs a dozen hands to get her "helper" out of or into their coats and jackets. Your child's ability to take care of herself in this department may help her to acquire the independence so important to good adjustment in a new environment. Think of this when you buy her clothes, and outfit her with things she can manage alone.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

QUESTION: A married couple who are friends of the family are driving to Florida next month and have agreed to give me a lift to Miami to visit my older sister. I will need one p ir from a summer job to pay my own expenses, but I wonder how I should go about doing this tactfully. It will be easy to take care of my own hotel and motel bills, since I'll be billed separately. But what about restaurant checks? I'll be taki ng all my meals with them. Should I ask each time for a separat e check, or hand the corr e ct amount to the man, so he can pay? I also want to chip in for gasoline. Could you suggest a way the finance situation could be handled with good grace in such a trip? — M.O., Hackensack, N.J.

ANSWER: When sharing expenses on a trip it's usually a good idea to dispose of money matters before taking off. Figure out what your share of the gasoline will be and approximately how much each meal will cost en route, then give a covering sum to the man — or the wife, if you prefer — in advance of the trip. This saves a lot of tiresome checking and figuring le and keeping tabs on who paid for the last batch of gasoline the motel bill. Such a prearrangement of money matters always makes a shared trip run more smoothly and satisfactorily.

QUESTION: I've read innumerable times that it's very bad manners to put on make-up in public. Is it ou t side or in the table in a restaurant, yet I see women doing this every day, just as I have perfectly natural and correct. Is adjusting one's make-up at a table still considered bad or is it all right now taken as a matter of course since women, generally, have made it common practice? M.A.A., Philadelphia, Pa.

ANSWER: Manipulating one's lipstick after a meal, or putting a dab of powder on the nose in public is not frowned upon, as long as such primping takes a second or two, and is not done very obviously. Major adjustments, like redoing the mouth completely with lipstick a n i brush, or combing one's hair, are still taboo in public and should be made only in the privacy of the powder room whether in a restaurant or in a private home.

Mrs.G.F. — It's for the best. Now you can each graduate first and then marry.

John F.: I'm 20 years old and was graduated from college last June. You were engaged to Violet for two years. She's 20, too, and a senior at the same college attended.

T was lucky enough to win a scholarship which will cover all my expenses towards a Master's Degree. So I registered at a to Western university which offers outstanding instruction in my field. And Violet sent along a transcript of her record, hoping she'd be able to transfer to the university for her last year. We planned to marry in September and leave for the West together.

Well, Violet was turned down. So I left also and we decided to postpone our marriage for a year. But the separation is torture and we're setting our wedding date for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. G.F.: It was Providence that kept Violet East and my son, West. And now John is ready to upset the best break he could get. If Violet really loves him, she'll see things our way and agree to stick to the original plan — namely a June graduation for both, from their different colleges. A June wedding can follow, and that's not to o long to wait when the reward is valuable college degrees for both.

With all his big talk, Jo h n must still realize that he's extremely young. In our state he c:ven needs his parents along to get a marriage license because he's under 21. And I'm inclined to withhold consent for his own good. He should apply himself to his studies. So should Violet. Instead she plans to get a job in the local 5-and-10-centstore to help with expenses, and take a few courses at night.

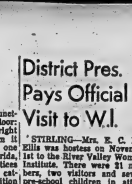
The Council: Love laughs at locksmiths, we know, and the 20-year-old variety laughs at obstacles like t i m e, space, money. Mrs. F. might as well save her breath, put on her hat for the trip to the license bureau, and prepare to become a mother-in-law in November instead of June.

Not that we recommend this sort of haste. Time after time, we see the aftermath of "campus romances." Ten or more years later it dawns on the young man that he never had a real chance to try his wings before he set out to be "free." He was tethered and domesticated too fast. And the ex-wife co-ed wonders what might have happened if she'd played a wider field than the she'd be able to transfer to the university for her last year. We planned to marry in September

Scintillating Irish Humor Delights Women's C. Club

Last evening Miss Angela Ar-to, written without any punctuation, over a local hotel dur-the annual dinner meeting of the Women's Canadian Club held her audience of 100 entranced with her inimitable Irish humor as she spoke, informally, on the topic, "Cabbages and Kings."

Miss Armitt, a past president of the London Council for adult education, and lecturer from Western Ontario University in honor English and History, and for some has been on the staff of the Summer School and Extension Department of the university, and is, at the present time, a department associate. She has served as instructor in many recreation courses, offered by the Department of Education. In spare time she teaches folk and square dancing, as well as being a square dance caller, and has judged many competitions in Western Ontario.



The first of Miss Armitt's talk might be likened to that of a verbal 'fuge' in which the theme or subject is announced and discussed by a number of voices or instruments, the latter, separately or simultaneously bearing on the theme. Miss Armitt's theme, however, "Count Your Blessings," ran, through the thread, briefly, appearing and disappearing, and then appearing at the finish, in a triumphant crescendo of the whole.

"Which will you choose," asked the speaker, "death or long life to be living and not dying."

Recalling a story from "Alice in Wonderland," the time has come to talk on 'Cabbages and Kings,' and Miss Armitt successful, you are a 'king;' but, if you go around unsmiling and dour, you're 'cabbage.' Sometimes people say, 'you are lucky'; but what is being lucky? In demonstration Miss Armitt told the story of two little boys, one of whom had been spanked by his mother at home for dinner, before which the father gave an extraordinarily long prayer of grace meal, the guest asked his chum, 'does your father always give such long prayers?' to which the other replied, 'doesn't yours?' The first answered, 'No, my mother is a good cook!'

Among the other delightful stories was that of a flower lover wanting 50 panes of glass for a miniature hot house, and the glazier's bill paper of that place, gave his request. When the 'it' appeared it read: "Wanted 50 windows and a hot bed".

"It all depends on oneself if you see anything funny. Irish people are usually happy, because they've got the aptitude to see the humor in things. One time the speaker saw this mot-

'Fluoridation' Discussed at H-S Meeting

On Tuesday evening in Queen Victoria School an interesting meeting was held when that controversial subject, "What is Fluoridation?" was discussed.

Mr. Welch introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Bell, technical supervisor at Corby's Distilleries, who is a Bachelor of Science degree in chemistry, mathematics and geology. He presented a film on "The Effects of Fluoridation."

Following the film, a question and answer period was held and many interesting points discussed.

To the question, "Is it dangerous to health?" It was pointed out that over seven million citizens of the USA and one and one-half million citizens of Canada have consumed water containing fluorides over their lifetime with no indication of any physical or mental differences from people in fluoride-free areas other than a reduced caries index and the associated benefits.

Also the short - term ingestion of fluoride at approximately one part per million parts wide range of water intake is not harmful to bodily health and that no fluorosis of the teeth significant to be specifically associated with it.

It was also pointed out that the cost of fluoridation of drinking water would amount to approximately ten cents per person per year.

Mr. Peter thanked Mr. Bellstedt for presenting the question so clearly and leaving all with thought-provoking material.

The winner of the senior plaque this month was Mrs. Sarah's room and for the juniors, Mrs. Lyons.

The president thanked the mothers of Mr. Roblin's and Miss Townson's rooms for providing the cookies and invited everyone to enjoy a social hour.

SAUSAGE PATTIES YORKSHIRE (serves 4):

1 lb. sausage meat, 3 eggs, 1 cup milk, 1 cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt.

Shape sausage meat into patties and place in 9 x 5 x 3" pan. Heat at 475 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. Meanwhile make batter by beating together the eggs, until thick. Add remaining ingredients and beat 2 minutes. Pour all but ¼" fat from pan in which sausage patties are baking. Pour batter over evenly and immediately return to oven. Bake 10 minutes at 475 deg. Fahr. then reduce heat to 350 deg. for 20 minutes longer or until golden.

I have mailed to you my recipe for Yourtown (pork pies — January 10th, 1961) in which you may substitute sausage meat for the raw minced pork and omit the spices. Also see Baked Squash, Tuesday, November 6th.

SAUSAGE PATTIES WITH NOODLES (serves 4):

1 lb. pork sausage meat, 8 oz. noodles, cooked in salted water and drained, ¼ cup melted butter or margarine, 1 cup grated old cheese, dash of garlic salt.

Shape pork sausage meat into 12 flat cakes in cold frying pan and fry slowly for about 15 minutes, turning occasionally. Drain off most of fat as it accumulates. Gently toss hot cooked noodles together with butter, cheese and garlic salt. Heat through and turn out on hot platter. Arrange sausage patties over noodles and garnish with parsley.

PORKY SUPPER-IN-A-DISH:

1 lb. pork sausage meat, ¼ cup chopped onion, 1 cup chopped celery, ¼ cup chopped pimiento, 1 cup cooked rice, cream of mushroom soup (undiluted), ½ cup water, ¼ cup chopped salted peanuts (optional).

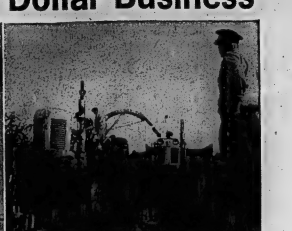
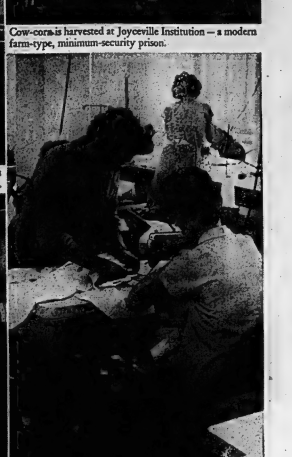
Canada's Penitentiaries Help Pay Their Way

Industry In Prison – Two Million Dollar Business

A smooth-running truck for a survey engineer on the rough roads of Yukon Territory, prize-winning dairy cattle at a country fair, a professionally-printed newspaper for an army camp — these are some of the products of inmates in Canada's federal prisons. The clean breeze of technical, academic and vocational training programs recently introduced to fit inmates for a better chance in later life has its foundations in another, older, aspect of prison activity. This is actual production work which keeps inmates busy, lets them earn 25 to 55 cents a day, teaches them a useful occupation and, in addition, cuts $2,000,000 from the annual prison bill. Dairy and farm produce, clothing and shoes, utensils, automotive repairs, carpentry, printing, furniture making — all these and more are going concerns in prison industry. Federal institutions, government departments, outside interests, all benefit from skilled labour behind the loosening locks of Canada's prison doors.



Loungers are few and far between in today's penitentiaries. Inmates are kept busy tending cattle, industrial machinery, crops, and using new-found skills.



In this automotive repair shop at Collin's Bay Penitentiary scores of government vehicles get their annual overhaul.

Couple Don't Want to Retire To Shuffleboard in Florida

By ALAN HARVEY

ROME (CP) — A Canadian husband - and - wife team with long experience in helping underdeveloped countries are looking for a way of carrying on their work after retirement.

They are Dr. James Harrington, professor at the University of Saskatchewan for 30 years, and Dr. Margaret Hockin, native of Avondale, N.S., and well-known home economist.

They have just retired from the Food and Agricultural Organization, regarded by some who know it as one of the few international bodies that "really works."

"But we don't want to retire to Florida and play shuffleboard," Dr. Harrington said in an interview. "Our work and travels have shown us how great is the need for technical help and advice in many countries. We'd like to help in any way we can."

An expert on Prairie wheat crops in Canada, Dr. Harrington for the last 6½ years has headed FAO's program for improving wheat and barley strains in the Middle East. He is preparing a publication on the subject.

PRODUCTION INCREASE

"I estimate that the production of wheat and barley per unit areas could be increased by 40 to 80 per cent within the next 10 to 15 years," said Dr. Harrington. "This would release large acreages for vegetables and forage, resulting in improved nutrition."

"Spending $500,000 a year on this for the next 10 years would be a small matter compared with the potential gain of $500,000,000 in productive capacity."

In the Middle East, Dr. Harrington applied dry farming techniques he learned as a farmer in Saskatchewan.

"You might say that I know the Middle East almost as intimately as the Prairies of Western Canada. Since 1955, I have made about 50 flights a year in the Middle East."

At the University of Saskatchewan, Dr. Harrington did research on cereal crops and the development of new varieties of wheat, oats barley, flax and rye.

WIDE SUPERVISION

He has worked in Egypt and India. Countries under his supervision have included Cyprus, Iran, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria, Turkey, Afghanistan and Libya.

His wife, whom he married in 1957, is a graduate in home economics from Mount Allison University in New Brunswick. She also holds a diploma in dietetics from Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, and degrees from Cornell University.

Dr. Hockin, who lived in Truro, N.S., in her youth, joined FAO in 1949 and has worked with Bedouin Arab families in Iraq, as well as travelling extensively in the Caribbean, the Far East, the Middle East, Latin America and Africa, specializing in surveys of home economics.

Before entering the international field she was professor of family relationships at the New York State College for Teachers in Buffalo. During the Second World War she recruited staff and supervised farm service camps set up by the Ontario and British Columbia governments to assist farmers.

No Peaceful Settlement Of Palestine Question in Sight Says Gen. Burns

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Looking back over six years of frustration, suspicion and bitterness, what does the chief threat to her neighbors, to bring of the world's first international about the return of these Arab police force think of the possibilities of lasting peace in the Middle East?

Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns is sparing in his opinion on men and events in his first full-scale public survey of the situation but he does conclude:

"No means of peaceful settlement of the Palestine question is in sight and there is always the possibility that the smouldering conflict will again burst into the open flame of war."

The Canadian officer makes this statement in his book Between Arab and Israeli" (Clark Irwin) and he supports the dismal forecast with 300 pages of reporting on the events that led to and followed the Suez crisis of 1956.

After an impressive Second World War record that included command of the 1st Canadian Corps in Italy, Gen. Burns became deputy chief of staff of the uns' affairs and took an active interest in the peace possibilities of the United Nations.

These were his qualifications for one of the toughest jobs ever given a Canadian—UN chief in the Middle East, first as head of the truce organization and later as commander of the UN Emergency Force. He now is one of Canada's disarmament experts.

UNEF SUCCESSFUL

He says the UNEF has worked surprisingly well, but with limitations. After all, the forces was set up in such haste that early definition of its role was missing or unclear.

Haste was needed in the race against the threat that "volunteer" contingents might be sent from the Communist bloc to help Egypt expel the Anglo - French - Israeli invaders, although in retrospect Gen. Burns is inclined to doubt the "volunteers" would actually have been sent.

He discloses for the first time that in his efforts to overcome Egyptian objections to Canadian participation in the UNEF he threatened to resign.

He also recalls, with a touch of humor, that throughout all the negotiations, President Nasser had argued that in spite of Canada's apparent independence, Canadian soldiers were still "soldiers of the Queen."

Later the general was startled to find out that the unit selected to represent Canada had been the Queen's Own Rifles.

"There is no regiment in the Canadian forces that I respect more, but it did seem an unlucky chance, in view of the Egyptian argument, that out of Canada's six regular infantry regiments this one had been selected."

SUPPORT TROOPS

As it turned out, Egypt accepted 1,000 Canadian support troops, air units and permitted the aircraft carrier Magnificent to handle the desperately needed men and material. And as the general says, "I feel that Nasser's refusal to accept the Queen's Own was a blessing in disguise, for the support troops were absolutely essential and UNEF could not have operated without them."

Of the situation today, Gen. Burns says he believes Israel's ultimate objective is to consolidate the Zionist state, to have it accepted by the Arabs in its present form with no substantial repatriation of the thousands of displaced Arab refugees now living on the fringes of Israel in shack compounds. He adds there are many Israelis who dream of expansion far beyond present limits.

The Israelis also want a share of Jordan waters for irrigation, the use of the Suez Canal and freedom of the Gulf of Aqaba for transiation.

Meanwhile, for nationalist propaganda reasons, he says, the Arabs have not withdrawn a state of war declaration. But their main object seemed to be to hold Israel to a status in which she could present no about the return of these Arab refugees who want repatriation, and to restrict Israel's boundaries to the 1947 partition plan.

BOTH SIDES RUM

To the extent that there have been no serious hostilities since 1956 and consequently no inflammation of passion, there has been an opportunity for a calm approach to a negotiated settlement. But there has been no modification of the position of the Arabs or Israelis which would promise progress toward a negotiated peace."

Meanwhile, he adds, the power of Western nations alone to maintain the peace has declined.

What of the immediate future? It depended on Israel's superior military strength which made it too risky for the Arab countries to resort to arms; and to the restraint on Israel exercised by the West and the Sinai Armistice.

Gen. Burns says the political climate in Israel is at the moment under the influence of the so-called "activists" led by Premier Ben-Gurion as opposed to the Moshe Sharett moderates. He feels the temptations for Israel are great to find some excuse to call off the truce and break out of the blockade and eventually to force a peace on Israeli terms.

The general calls the 1956 Israeli attack on Anglo-French "blunder" and says the Communist cause also got a boost by the weak-kneed reaction policy of the United States trying to hunt with the Arab hounds while smelling a hare when it comes to the Israeli hare.

There was danger that Israel's feeling of being hemmed in by an implacably hostile ring of Arab states might temporarily push her into the Soviet Union might build up to a state of mind which would induce her to seize any chance of breaking the encirclement. But before military action was opened there would have to be a recurrence of the pre-Sinai conditions when Israel could count on the non-interference, if not the assistance, of the Western powers.

Meanwhile, Gen. Burns reports that the Arabs feel time is on their side and that the question will be settled in their favor without resort to arms—or at any rate without all-out war. He says the Arabs put it this way: Their population is overwhelmingly superior; they will catch up militarily and scientifically and their resources are greater.

Already, he says, the Egyptians are training with the most advanced types of weapons from behind the Iron Curtain—weapons they got before Suez but not in time to be effective.

Does Raising of Lending Rate Affect Spending and Saving Is Question Asked

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Suddenly the Bank of Canada raises its lending rate. The action is taken as a signal of tightening credit conditions.

The banks and their big borrowers feel the pinch right away. But what difference does it make—if any—to the man in the street? Does it affect his decisions on spending and saving?

These are among the questions the royal commission on banking and finance hopes to answer in one of the most exhaustive surveys of its kind ever made anywhere.

Working with the bureau of statistics, the commission will fire about 77 pages of questions to breadwinners in 1,200 households in cities across Canada. The sample is considered large enough to get a picture of consumers generally.

Not only does it want to know the ordinary individual is affected by monetary conditions, the commission seeks to find out a man's views about all what people do with their money, and why.

How much do you save? Do you do it systematically? Where do you keep your savings? Why do you keep them in that way? Are interest rates a factor? And, just as important, why do you save at all?

Do you own stocks and bonds? Which ones? Why those rather than others? Did you buy them with cash or on credit? Have you got money tied up in real estate? If so, how do you regard that as an investment?

Did mortgage interest rates matter to you when you bought your house? If you financed the purchase of a car, did you shop around for the best credit terms? How did you purchase your refrigerator, stove, furniture? What about a summer cottage?

The answers to these questions and many others will be put together and analyzed by the commission's research staff in Toronto, headed by Prof. William C. Hood of the University of Toronto.

No decision has yet been made on whether the survey results will be published along with the commission's main report, due to be by the government's hands next September—in time for Parliament's 1963 decennial revision of the banking laws.

Meanwhile, about 25 commission researchers are working on an equal number of reports dealing with various phases of financial activity in Canada and the institutions that take part in it. For example, special reports are being written on co-operatives, trust companies, insurance companies and banks.

The seven commissioners under Chief Justice Dana Porter of Ontario will review these studies at a closed meeting in Toronto in December, before tackling the final round of public hearings in January. Some of the reports may be published later.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Porter of Toronto, are spending sometime at the Porter Home, at the present time.

Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Carney, of Ottawa, were overnight guests at the above home on Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Ed Thompson is visiting with Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Charles of Harlowe, at the present time.

Hallowe'en passed off quietly with the usual parade of freaks, ghosts, witches, space men and many other characters visiting the various houses and stores.

Several of the menfolk left on Sunday for the annual deer hunting.

An oil furnace is being installed in Thomasburg United Church at the present time. Mr. Bert Sadore, of Tweed, is in charge of operations with members of the congregation assisting.

Mr. A. W. Brough, who was a patient in Belleville hospital for a week or so, following a fall at his home, has returned home but will be forced to wear a cast for sometime.

Cross-Canada Survey

United Appeal Only Given Average Canadian Support, Many Campaigns Extended

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians gave the United Appeal fall campaigns about average support this year.

A representative selection of 30 of the 108 community charity drives launched this fall reached slightly more than 87 per cent of their combined objective.

A Cross-Canada Survey by the Canadian Press showed the 30 cities — representing $35,745,237 of the estimated national target of $35,125,000—had registered contributions of $24,440,343.

Many of the campaigns, in centres from Halifax to Victoria, were extended past scheduled deadlines as canvassers put on a fresh burst of effort to collect from reluctant or tardy donors.

Some cities, such as Windsor, Ont., had not yet totalled up large corporation donations, and some had not yet added in weekly pledges to be deducted from employe pay cheques.

The 115 community - at - large campaigns (seven of which are held in winter or spring) this year are shooting for about 107 per cent of the $32,000,000 actually raised last year.

COVERS 1,818 AGENCIES

Funds from the once-a-year collection are channelled to 1,918 welfare institutions across Canada in a system that United Appeal advocates say does away with some of the labor-and-miss budgeting of many small agencies and spares the charity donor a continuous round of canvassers.

The number of community appeals continues to increase. From 1950 to 1954 they grew in number by 50 per cent and their contributions by two-thirds. In the next five years, the growth rate was about the same while gathering increased by almost 15 per cent.

Only Newfoundland now has no community fund drives, Prince Edward Island this year having launched a province-wide appeal for the first time with a $277,486 objective. A late harvest slowed the canvass, and only 57 per cent had been collected by Nov. 5, but officials were optimistic the goal would be reached.

Moncton, N.B., for the fourth consecutive year, was the first Canadian centre to go over the top, chalking up a target of $149,580 by Oct. 16, after a 10-day campaign.

A few days later, Fredericton reached its $106,971 goal and put in its claim to be the second over-the-top drive in the country.

DISPUTE WAGE FREEZE

Only Ottawa, among the seven cities with million-dollar plus targets, reached its goal within the scheduled campaign period. Despite poor weather and a civil service wage freeze, canvassers turned in $740 more than the $1,110,000 objective, raised 8.6 per cent over last year's target.

Montreal fell 6.1 per cent short of a hoped-for $2,305,000 after raising its sight by about seven per cent from the 1961 objective. Last year, Montreal was the only one of the million-dollar-plus cities to reach its goal.

By its scheduled deadline, the metropolitan Toronto appeal had brought in 99.5 per cent of the $9,717,000 target, dropped by 0.5 per cent after the 1961 appeal closed short.

Winnipeg increased its objective by five per cent this year and by Nov. 5 — two-thirds of the way through its six - week drive — had collected $913,903 of the projected $1,307,000 total. Contributions were about 90 per cent higher this year—at $1,083,000 — and had realized $1,000,000 by the end of the scheduled month - long campaign. The deadline was extended to Nov. 30 after the city's goal was declared reached in mid-December.

EXTENDING CAMPAIGNS

Vancouver also extended its campaign, to Nov. 14, and had collected more than 90 per cent of the objective, after five days of overtime.

Hamilton realized $996,327 of its $1,310,000 target by the end of the scheduled period or about 76 per cent, but campaign officials said there was still about $200,000 in donations outstanding.

Some smaller centres polled repeated extensions of the campaign deadline to allow "mop up" operations aimed at rounding out totals nearer their projected goals.

The extra efforts by canvassers, together with the final tie-ing up of corporation and employee payroll deduction pledges, pushed the total to $149,580 by Oct. 16, after a 10-day campaign.

Doctors Claim Major Advance Against Cancer

LONDON, (Reuters) — A team of doctors and research workers at a London hospital claimed a major advance in the battle against cancer today.

They said they have developed a prototype of a machine that will deliver an intense beam of radiation both to a cancer and to the paths along which it is spreading through the body.

At a press conference in London Thursday night a group of doctors, scientists and specialists at London's Royal Northern Hospital launched an appeal for £50,000 to develop the system.

One surgeon claimed that the new method could be effective in treating all forms of cancer. It would be more effective in some types, particularly cancer of the cervix, than in others, he said.

He added that where it did not replace surgery it could supplement it by continuing the work where a surgeon could not go.

The basis of the new method was said to lie in the tracing of the path through which the cancer was spreading along the lymphatic system; this could be done by ordinary x-rays.

The immense radiation beam is then moved along the line of cancer growth.

The doctors said a prototype of the new apparatus used in the hospital had been employed in five cases. They said three of these had been cured and the other two, considered incurable, had been improved.

No More Voting Splits In House Says Coucette

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec Social Credit MPs met in caucus Thursday and Deputy National Leader Real Caouette said they decided there will be no more voting splits in the Commons.

Mr. Caouette will propose that the 30-member group is going to follow "Thompson and Caouette as a team."

It was true there was a split in strategy, he said, emphasizing the word strategy. He referred to the fact that Mr. Thompson and 16 Social Credit members voted against a Liberal non - confidence motion Tuesday night while two Quebec Social Credit members voted in favor of it and Mr. Caouette and four others cast no votes.

Did he agree with Mr. Thompson's stand that the government shouldn't be defeated and an election held now?

He replied that because Social Credit held "the balance of power" in a House where no party has a majority, the party was "more important than the Liberals and we want to use that power to influence the government's legislation."

IS CONFIDENT

He was confident that "sooner than you think" the government would come out with something along the lines advocated by the Social Credit members.

Did he accept the idea there would be no election before spring.

If the government "carries on properly there shouldn't be one maybe until the spring or next fall. But if it doesn't do anything then . . . they're in trouble," Mr. Caouette replied.

However, he wanted to make it clear that the party is ready for an election anytime — "I don't mind going into an election on snowshoes."

What kind of measures did he insist on from the government to refrain from contributing to a government defeat?

"We want them to produce progressive legislation—an increase in social security and in social freedom, the creation of new industry and to cut down on taxes."

If the Conservatives didn't produce this?

"Then they'll be defeated."

Canadian-U. S. Relations Are Under Study

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A battery of economists, historians and business and labor leaders gathered at Assumption University Thursday to take a close look at Canadian-American relations.

Two history professors opened the three-day seminar. Dr. Gaddis Smith of Yale credited the late Franklin Roosevelt with fostering good relations with the countries. Dr. Sidney Wise of Queen's University agreed that anti-Americanism in Canada was on the wane but said a sort of "virtual anti-Americanism" still existed.

The chairman of the national productivity council, H. George De Young, of Welland, said lack of co-operation between management, labor and government was the greatest hinderance to the achievement of Canadian production goals.

Assumption's main auditorium was packed at noon when National Liberal Leader Lester Pearson made an appeal for closer ties between the two countries. Mr. Pearson advocated an economic partnership and political interdependence, saying isolation by either country was impossible.

ATTACKS TARIFFS

Dr. M. K. Inman, head of the economics department at the University of Western Ontario, followed Mr. Pearson with an attack on tariff protection systems. He said they should be dismantled by Canada and the U.S. because they aided particular interests at the expense of the consumer.

Canada's nuclear weapons policy was criticized by Dr. Arthur Lower, retired professor of history at Queen's. He said Canada seemed to believe that by refusing to have nuclear weapons on her soil, she was "in some peculiar way preserving purity."

A nuclear war, said Dr. Lower, would not develop as long as the balance of power between East and West was not badly tilted.

Two economic experts talked on the causes and cures of Canada's chronic balance of payment problems.

SEES AS THREAT

Mitchell Sharp, former associate deputy minister of trade and commerce, said he looked upon proposals for a free trade area or institutions such as the United States as "a threat to Canada's separate identity."

Dr. Harry Johnson of the University of Chicago urged Canada to quit trying to be like the United States. He disagreed that tariff protection removal would destroy Canadian secondary industry. Although it could never be a United States, she could develop into an efficient and prosperous trader like Sweden, he said.

The seminar continues Friday.

$15 Million Charitable Trust Fund for Mass Education Announced by Publisher

LONDON (CP)—A $15,000,000 charitable trust to encourage the use of mass media for education in underdeveloped countries "because traditional methods of education are too slow" was announced by Canadian publisher Roy Thomson Thursday night.

"I know you came here tonight expecting a very large takeover," Thomson told a press conference, "and it's just the opposite. I'm going to part with something."

The Thomson Foundation will train journalists and television technicians from underdeveloped countries at institutions being established in the United Kingdom; will sponsor education television programs in those countries; and will distribute text books and offer scholarships at universities in Britain and the Commonwealth for promising students from underdeveloped countries who plan to return home for careers in the mass media.

The capital is an outright gift from Thomson.

"It's coming personally from me," he said, "rather than from any of my interests. "Basically it's my foundation."

MENTIONS REPORT

A reporter mentioned that the recent Pilkington report on broadcasting in Britain called television stations being controlled by newspaper proprietors, a step in the direction Thomson's stress on television and the Foundation meant he is intended to continue his TV interests.

"You bet we're staying in television," Thomson said.

"These young, developing countries must have help and quickly. They are handicapped by illiteracy. Television and newspapers are needed."

A permanent director for the foundation will be appointed. There are five trustees including Field Marshal Earl Alexander of Tunis, former Canadian Governor-General, and the Earl of Kilmuir who resigned as lord chancellor earlier this year.

The foundation's first task will be to organize a school near Glasgow for training television technicians. This is expected to open early next year. A centre in London fortraining journalists will be added.

NO STRINGS ATTACHED

Thomson said there will be "no strings attached" to the offer to train men.

"There will be no politics. We don't want any control over these countries. We just want honest journalism.

"It's simply a case of our having what they lack—knowhow. We must impart it to them to achieve a viable press. Politics are none of our business."

But he said he felt the truth "is very powerful and will prevail." He gave a hypothetical case where a journalist-trainee from a "near-Communist country" could be trained in an unbiased fashion in the mechanical methods of a newspaper, but suggested that he would well be "converted."

Thomson said he hoped television in underdeveloped countries "will educate all the people." This would be a new kind of television, with little entertainment for its own sake, he said.

TO HELP OTHERS

Asked why he set up the foundation, Thomson said the idea had been in his mind "very kind" to him and that he felt it was up to him to use "some of the fruits" to help others.

He expected no problems obtaining staff for training journalists and technicians.

"It's just a matter of paying them," he said.

Other trustees are K. R. Thomson, son of the founder and head of Thomson's 28 newspapers in Canada; Lord Williamson, prominent trade unionist and a director of the pro-Labor Daily Herald; and James Gilbart, managing director of Thomson's British interests.

Rotation of Canadian Troops Seen as Cold War Weathervane

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Is the rotation of Canadian troops between Canada and Europe an accurate weathervane of how the East-West cold war winds are blowing?

A lot of people in Ottawa think so. Whether or not they are right, this is what has happened.

In November 1961, during the Berlin crisis, the scheduled six-month rotation of the Canadian Air defence command—is still in effect.

Peace has popped up in one place but it hasn't broken out all over.

Experts Say West Has Big Lead in Long-Range Missiles

LONDON (Reuters) — The West holds a big lead over Russia in long-range missiles but is trailing in the medium-range category, the Institute of Strategic Studies reported Thursday.

The institute, an international unofficial organization with politicians and experts on military and world affairs among its members, gave the missile assessment as part of a tally of East-West military strength.

The institute said statistics showed the West has between 400 and 500 intercontinental ballistic Missiles with a range of between 6,000 and 8,000 miles while the Russians have only about 75.

However, the Russians have about 700 medium-range missiles with a range of 600 to 2,000 miles while the West has only about 200.

The institute said the total regular armed forces of the United States treaty powers was slightly more than 8,000,000 compared with a Communist bloc strength of about 7,700,000.

The Communist figure included the Cuban Army which the institute said must be regarded for the time being as part of the Communist forces.

The institute said the Cuban Army has expanded from 30,000 to 80,000 men equipped with new Soviet weapons and a militia of about 200,000 men and women.

Russia's shortage of long-range intercontinental Ballistic Missiles was due to the big expenditure on the Soviet space program coupled with miscalculations over strategy, the institute said.

But the institute said the Soviet ICBM can carry a larger warhead than its American equivalent, such as the Titan.

The report also disclosed that the Russians were developing a new and powerful intermediate ICBM which could expect to be deployed during 1963.

The institute estimated the strength of the Russian Air Force at about 15,000 planes. The Soviet Navy was said to have 10 nuclear-powered submarines with the possibility of about five in 1962 to be more by the end of next year.

Traders Finance Offers to Buy Out Company

TORONTO (CP) — Traders Finance Corp. Ltd., Toronto, one of the largest finance companies in Canada, announced Thursday it will offer at least $25,000 for all the outstanding shares of Inter-Provincial Building Credits Ltd.

W. W. Evans, executive vice-president of Traders, said the offer, on the basis of $9.75 per IBC share, will be made not later than Nov. 15 and will remain open until March 21. Traders holds 400 IBC shares and its offer will be conditioned on receipt of at least 53 per cent of the outstanding shares.

Mr. Evans said Traders is making the offer as a means of increasing its activity in the home-improvement area.

J. F. Descent, secretary-treasurer of IBC, said directors will accept the offer in their own right and a letter will recommend that shareholders accept.

IBC shares rose Thursday $1.25 to $9.50, the high for the year, and Traders A shares gained 12½ cents to close at $13.

Veterans Don't Want Caouette In Elliot Lake

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (P)— The Elliot Lake branch of the Royal Canadian Legion has sent a letter to Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson objecting to the visit this weekend of Deputy Party Leader Real Caouette.

Mr. Caouette will hold a public meeting here tonight and speak to the Chamber of Commerce Saturday night.

Charlie Forman, Legion branch president, said members were under the impression Mr. Caouette would be in Elliot Lake Sunday — Remembrance Day—and objected to the deputy Socred leader's admiration of the pre-war economic policies of Hitler and Mussolini.

"It's a free country," he said when he heard Mr. Caouette will not be here Sunday. "Caouette can come and go as he pleases but we don't want him here making speeches on Remembrance Day."

The legion branch at Sudbury, about 90 miles east of here, has also objected to a visit by the Social Credit deputy leader, although he will only be passing through the city and will not make any official appearances.

Mr. Caouette is scheduled to speak on Remembrance Day at Sturgeon Falls, about 55 miles east of Sudbury.

POLITICAL MEANING

But to the Canadian government it has important political ramifications. It could not afford, in the eyes of NATO allies of Canadian generally, to have the brigade caught, with its guard down during any crisis over Berlin.

At the time of the postponement of the 1961 rotation, Defence Minister Harkness explained that it would be military folly to unsettle the brigade by rotation at a critical time.

If that were true then, presumably it would be equally true now. Consequently, the government must feel there is no new crisis on the near horizon.

However, it must be remembered that postponement of the rotation was only one of the "precautionary measures" taken by the government in the Cuban crisis. The main one—an increased state of readiness for the Air defence command—

CUBA CRISIS

On Oct. 24, 1962, the scheduled rotation of some 8,200 troops and their dependents was put off because the Cuba crisis, one day before it was to begin.

On Nov. 7, exactly two weeks later, army headquarters said the rotation would commence in mid-November and the dependents would be permitted to accompany the soldiers.

There are two interpretations which can be and are taken from this: (A) The Cuban situation is no longer critical, and (B) The government doesn't expect the Berlin situation to come to a boil again at least in the immediate future.

As a military factor in the cold war, the rotation of Canadian troops is infinitesimal.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

They're away and running—and off to a pretty fair start.

The newly-born City Hockey League made its debut here Wednesday night and the consensus of a number of fans I talked with was they liked what they saw.

There were a few—not many—disgruntled ones who probably thought the advertising was wrong and came expecting to see a National Hockey League club play an extra-squad game.

Taking into consideration the fact the four teams have not been blessed with too much practice and some of the topflight players were missing for various reasons, the new loop left a good impression on the fans as a whole.

One must remember Rome wasn't built in a day, in fact it took the toga'd boys quite a few years before they got the mixed swimming antics under some sort of organization. Then it got so hot that the league president, a chappie named Nero, decided to burn the village down. He even supplied his own violin music.

The scores were fairly indicative of the play. The first clash between Welbanks Motors and the Joyce-Rollins Combines noted an edge in the calibre of play and the 7-4 score was representative of the difference in strength. Joyce-Rollins proved a bit weak in the defence department, but I am told the executive may move to give the Combines some strength in this department.

The Trudeau-Fepsi's fray was a wide open affair and the five-all tie was a fair indication of the night's play.

Both clubs, I understand, did not dress some of the better players.

League president Cliff Reich and secretary Bert Faulkner, together with sponsors, were well pleased with the play of the inaugural. As was columned here before the hockey is not National League but a lot of fans and players are going to derive a lot of fun and entertainment before the season curtains come down.

When the boys get their full stride and the club and player rivalry becomes keener, the crowds will become larger and possibly the "feuds" get hotter. Thanks to the co-operation of the arena commission and others associated with the league, I understand the league treasury finished a little bit on the right side of the ledger on the league's opening night.

And despite the objections of a very minor number of the usual "rinkside referees," the officiating of Lanmuy Lamirande and Bill Hurst was very fair. Oh, there were one or two borderline calls but on the whole I, at least, thought the boys did a good job.

They clamped down hard and often on offenders with "Lanmuy" making no bones of his decision to toss one erring player out of the game. I do not know what the "sinner" said to Jean Paul after he was banished for two minutes but you can bet your store molars that it wasn't an invitation to the nearest soda dispensary after the game.

Not that the league will be reduced to panty-waist hockey. Far from it. There'll be the odd hassle and some punches thrown before season-end—but that's hockey. But from the officiating Wednesday night it looks as though the whistle-blowers do not intend to let games get out of control.

Plante Brilliant In Wings Defeat ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Masked Man Stages Starry Hold-Up

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There are three big questions in National Hockey League circles today. They are:

Has coach Sid Abel got a patch that will seal Detroit Red Wings' bubble, which was punctured Thursday night in Montreal when the Canadiens, backed by Jacques Plante's brilliant goaltending, defeated them 4-1?

Was Plante's return to action only a one-night appearance?

And, how will Chicago Black Hawks fare without Mr. Goalie, Glenn Hall?

The answers shouldn't be too long forthcoming.

CAN BEAT WINGS

Canadiens have finally proven Detroit isn't invincible. Going into Thursday night's game—the only one scheduled in the NHL—Wings had jumped off to the best start in their history, winning eight and tying the other two of their first 10 starts.

Montreal, however, came up with the right shot after Detroit's power in the person of Plante. It was the original masked marvel's game since Montreal dropped a 5-0 decision to Boston in the opener of the NHL season.

Since then Plante had been sidelined with respiratory ailments and during this spell figured he was in condition to return to duty.

His return, somewhat on the fantastic side, was tempered after the game when he told reporters he has a groin muscle in practice Wednesday and aggravated it during Thursday night's game.

HURT DOING SPLITS

Plante said he stretched the muscle in the third period doing the splits on a blistering slapshot by Gordie Howe.

"I felt it hurt badly on that one," he said. "Bill Head (the team physical therapist) is going to look at it Saturday. But the way it feels now I'm definitely going to miss Sunday's game here and we'll see about the game Saturday night."

In what seemed to be a challenge to Detroit goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk, Plante threw himself in front of his goal area times and time again as the Detroit sharpshooters peppered him with 43 shots.

The only one that got past him was fired by rookie Floyd Smith, who gave the Wings a temporary 1-1 tie in the last minute of the first period.

From then on, Plante was unbeatable while Sawchuk, who gathered a mark this season and has been credited as the man behind Wings' great start, was being beaten more times than in any previous game this term.

GO AHEAD

The victory boosted Montreal into sole possession of third place in the standings with 13 points, one fewer than second-place Chicago and two more than the fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

While Plante's absence from the Montreal nets Saturday is still in the doubtful category, there's no doubt about Hall.

The veteran goaltender will miss his first NHL game in eight seasons when Hawks visit Montreal Saturday.

The 31-year-old native of Humboldt, Sask., who has completed one of the most amazing streaks in NHL history, has been sidelined by a strained back ligament.

His place will be taken by 23-year-old Denis DeJordy who took over from Hall during Wednesday's game at Chicago which ended in a 3-3 tie with Boston.

Will Miss First Full Game

CHICAGO (CP) — Goalie Glenn Hall of Chicago Black Hawks, sidelined by a back injury, will miss his first National Hockey League game in eight years Saturday night when the Hawks play the Canadiens in Montreal.

Hall, 31, started his 552nd successive NHL game, including playoffs, Wednesday night against Boston Bruins here, but had to leave midway in the first period because of his ailing back.

He was replaced by Denis Dejordy, 23, called up from Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. The game ended in a 3-3 tie.

Hawk General Manager Tommy Ivan said Hall's injury has been diagnosed as a strained back ligament. Hall will not accompany the team to Montreal and also may miss Sunday night's game here at Toronto Maple Leafs.

Wednesday night was the first time in his NHL career that Hall had to be relieved. He left the game at 10:21 of the first period with the score tied at 1-1.

The NHL's iron man record is held by the retired forward Johnny Wilson, who played in 580 consecutive season games. Hall has played in 503 straight games in the regular campaign.

Western Hockey

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Francisco Seals discovered there's no place like home Thursday night by snapping a five-game losing streak with a 6-1 Western Hockey League victory over Edmonton Flyers.

Len Haley scored three goals for San Francisco. Singles came from Duke Edmundson, Ed Panagabko and Orland Kurtenbach. Sid Finney saved the visitors from being shut out.

Injuries May Tell Story

Stampeders Choice Over Saskys

CALGARY (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders were due to hit town today to prepare for Saturday's opening game of the Western Football Conference semi-final series against Calgary Stampeders.

Steve Owen, who coached the Riders to a third-place finish in the regular campaign, brings his squad into territory where the sick bays are full of Stampeder stars.

The two-game, total-point series will be decided Monday night in Regina, where the second game will be played. The winner meets Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a best-of-three playoff for the western championship and the right to represent the West in the Grey Cup at Toronto Saturday, Dec. 1.

Both teams have their share of injuries, but the Stampeders appear to have suffered the greatest setback with the loss of three key players, including all-star guard Tony Pajackowski.

The Stamps are seven-point favorites to win the first game and 11-point favorites to take the series.

Saskatchewan defeated Calgary twice, 17-6 and 23-15, in the three league games the clubs played this year. The other battle was tied 7-7.

The weatherman calls for cloudy weather for Saturday's battle, to start at 2:30 p.m. MST (4:30 p.m. EST).

Juniors Make Debut Tonight!

Belleville's Junior "B" hockey club will get its first test under fire at Memorial Arena tonight when they entertain Brockville Braves of the City Hockey League in a nine o'clock exhibition game.

This will be the Juniors' initial game and should give some indication just how the locals will stack up in the OHA Eastern Junior loop.

The Junior league opens Monday night, with Peterborough at Trenton, and the first league game for the locals will be here one week from tonight against the Kingston Frontenacs.

Tonight's contest could be a tough one for Don "Turk" Barclay's "Turk" is coach of the junior squad but is the regular goalie for Trudeaus. He has not announced where his loyalty will be tonight.

Included in the Junior line-up will be Stu Muirhead, Gary Duvall, Paul Zakos, Ted Rowland and Gary Reid while the Trudeau lineup has such stars as Eddie Marfleau, Barclay "Pug" Kellar, Vern Goyer, Ed Plata and others.

Clair Drops Dual System

Jackson Riders' Quarter

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Coach Frank Clair made it official Thursday — Ottawa Rough Riders have abandoned their dual quarterback system.

The Ottawa coach named Canadian Russ Jackson as his starting quarterback against Montreal Alouettes in Saturday's Eastern Football Conference sudden-death semi-final here and said Jackson will play the full game "unless he's having a real bad day."

For the last few seasons Riders alternated their starting quarterback and a mem- be tween Jackson and import Ron Lancaster.

But Lancaster fell into disfavor this year when he threw four interceptions in the first half of an interlocking game against Edmonton Eskimos. Jackson came on in the second half and Ottawa won the game. Since then Lancaster has seen only limited action.

Clair said the 27-year-old Jackson has improved tremendously "and he's our first choice."

While the announcement on Jackson came as no great surprise, the Ottawa camp was rocked by a newspaper report that club general manager George Terlep was to be let go at the end of the year and replaced by John (Red) O'Quinn, a former Montreal end.

RIDERS DENY RIFT

Conflict between Clair and Terlep was given as the reason for the change but club president J. Barry O'Brien quickly denied the report.

"We've talked to O'Quinn off and on in an effort to have him join our organization—perhaps in promotion—but he has not been offered the job as permanent general manager," said O'Brien.

O'Quinn, an outstanding re-

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—Gay Brewer Jr., equalled the course record with a 64 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the $17,500 Cajun Classic Invitational Golf tournament.

Brewer's 32-30 over the 6,700 yard, par 36-36—72 Oakbourne Country Club course matched the 64 set by Billy Casper in last year's tournament.

John Barpdm and Don Fairfield were two strokes behind at 66, four below par. Bunched at 69 were Jerry Pittman, Bob Goetz, Dave Hill, Gene Coffield, Billy Capps and Bobby Brue.

Lionel and Jay Hebert were tied with seven others at 70. The brothers, natives of Lafayette, were considered the favorites since they know the course better.

Also at 70 were Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont. and Al Balding of Toronto.

Pros Need 12 Months Links Play

TORONTO (CP)—Chick Harbert, veteran professional golfer in the United States, told 140 Ontario pros Thursday night Canadians have to play 12 months of the year before they can expect to become threats in tough tournament action.

Murray Tucker of Toronto, retiring president of the PGA, said the association is sending four new pros to the senior circuit this season. They are Bobby Ross, Wally Byers and Doug Peacock, all of Toronto, and Harry McIlre of Hamilton.

Receiver for Alouettes for eight years and now a Montreal resident, said he has been offered a job with Riders "but we haven't yet reached the stage where we are talking contract or what specific title I might be given in the organization."

If Terlep and Clair are feuding, it wasn't apparent in their reactions to a Montreal report that Ottawa hopes to get a pipeline into Alouettes' secret plays from Roger Kramer, the big tackle Riders picked, up this week from Ale.

Kramer hasn't reported yet and will be suspended if he doesn't show up today, the Ottawa club said. Montreal said Riders are anxious to have him in camp because they want information on Alouettes.

Terlep said Montreal was being "ridiculous" and Clair commented that Riders "know all Montreal plays anyhow."

BCI Juniors Meet Oshawa For Title

Belleville Collegiate Institute's junior gridders will tangle with their counterparts from Oshawa Central High School for the Central Ontario championship tomorrow afternoon at Moira field. Game time is 2.00 p.m.

Coach Jack McBride captured the COSSA honors two years ago by trouncing a Peterborough team and will be out to return the silverware to the Bay of Quinte.

His team climaxed a rough uphill schedule last Monday by edging Trenton 1-0 in a tight, sudden-death battle for the Bay of Quinte COSSA honors.

The juniors have a strong passer in Bill Hallam and capable receivers in Ron Walsh and Allan Mott. Kirk Lightfoot and Don McCormack bear the brunt of the ground attack. They have a strong line and a spirited defence.

Oshawa is noted for mothering big and hard-hitting football teams, so this clash should be a thriller.

Several busloads of Oshawa fans are expected along with a good-sized contingent from BCI. Should be an entertaining afternoon all the way 'round.

Alouettes Not Worried

Bookies Favor Riders Over Larks

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP) — Bookmakers here have made the Rough Riders 3½-point favorites over Montreal Alouettes in Ottawa Saturday and it obviously sits well with the men in the Montreal front office.

They seemed elated about that old football bugaboo, over-confidence.

The Alouette front office fears many of the players are still flush with the success of last Saturday's key win over Toronto Argonauts.

It was evidently felt that taking them down a peg or two without disturbing the outlook too much—might be advantageous.

Perry Moss, the club's head coach and general manager, offered an imposing list of virtues when asked where he thought the Rough Riders could beat the Als.

"They've got physical toughness," he said. "They also have that big desire to win, plus over-all experience. And they have the psychological advantage of having beaten us twice in the three games we played against them this year."

WATCH FILMS

They spent 20 minutes sharpening up their offence and 40 working on defence once afield.

Assistant coach Leo Cahill handled the offensive unit and later in walking to the dressing room he said:

"That snap is missing. There's something lacking. For some reason I'm not certain what it is. Maybe it's just that they've got things down pat now and don't want to press."

At one point he snapped off a pass and Marv Luster took it in 35 yards downfield without breaking stride.

Jack Jacobs, Moss' other assistant, had the defensive unit primed during practice to cope with the reverses and cross-bucks that Ottawa uses in its attack with Ernie White and Ronnie Stewart carrying.

CHAPMAN TO KICK

Moss said he plans to use Chapman Saturday as his kicker—in place of Dave Green who is nursing an ankle ailmensive end.

"His catches them pretty good," said Perry.

The Als will probably also dress guard Lee Lee to fill in for Don Paquette, who retained his knee and is through for the year. He, too, will work is that more than likely surgery will be required.

Moss said the club will have "nothing radically new" to spring against the Riders.

Grey Cup Coverage

CBC Questions Ruling

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC said it questions the validity of the Board of Broadcast Governors' controversial Grey Cup television regulation and an MP suggested that the autonomy and independence of the publicly-owned corporation may be undermined by it.

These developments occurred Thursday in the wake of the BBG's enactment of a law which compels the CBC television network to carry the privately-owned CTV network's telecast of the Dec. 1 football championship game in Toronto —complete with commercials.

Following a meeting of the executive committee of the CBC board of directors, the CBC issued a statement which listed this main complaint:

"This regulation places commercial messages in the same category of national importance and interest as the program itself."

It was the BBG's expressed wish for the widest coverage of the game in the public interest which prompted it to pass the regulation. CTV owns the TV rights but to ensure national coverage the game must also be carried by the larger CBC system.

QUESTIONS LEGALITY

At an Aug. 18 public hearing here the CBC said the federal justice department had advised it that a regulation compelling it to carry CTV commercials "would be beyond the board's authority. The BBG and CTV say they have received legal advice to the contrary.

"An assessment by the corporation with respect to matters of principle and the public interest will be made," the CBC commented Thursday.

The 11-member CBC board of directors will meet here next Thursday for that purpose.

Meanwhile, in the House of Commons a young New Democratic Party MP asked the government to report the BBG's reasons for its decision.

The MP for Cape Breton South then rose on a point of privilege.

"I submit that the CBC is a national institution, financed by the people of Canada and operated on their behalf," he said. "And there are many people across Canada who are concerned that perhaps the autonomy and independence of the CBC . . . is being undermined."

Mr. Halpenny said previously that the government will not intervene in the Grey Cup TV dispute.

Denies Retirement Rumor

Fullmer Will Fight

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Former middleweight champion Gene Fullmer squelched rumors Thursday that he might retire and said he plans to fight Dick Tiger again, possibly in Las Vegas in February.

It was Tiger, the tough Nigerian, who won the World Boxing Association title from Fullmer last month in San Francisco's Candlestick Park.

"I felt I had a bad night in the fight with Tiger," Fullmer said at a press conference, "I'd like to prove to myself that I really did have a bad night. I honestly think I can beat Tiger."

Fullmer said he definitely will retire if he loses a rematch with Tiger, but isn't certain what he'll do if he should regain the WBA title.

Tiger gave the rugged Fullmer a physical beating last month. Gene's father - in - law stricken at ringside while watching the fight, later died in a hospital.

Bruised and heart sick, Gene returned home and hinted he might quit. His camp at Bird Jordan, Utah, called the press conference for noon Thursday and there were rumors he would take the occasion to announce his retirement.

RUSSIANS WIN GAME

NEW YORK (AP)—The Russian women's national basketball team edged Nashville Business College, the U.S. Women's AAU champions, 59-57 in double overtime Thursday night in the first game of an international tour between the two countries. The United States men's all-stars beat the Russian national men's squad 70-65 in the second game of a double-header at Madison Square Garden.

Four Squads Tied

College Teams Ready

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The armchair quarterbacks can say the college kids make more mistakes than the pros and haven't as much experience —but they can't knock them for not providing an exciting finish.

The Intercollegiate Senior Football League, featuring its closest finish in years, winds up Saturday at Montreal and Kingston.

And, all four teams are still in the running.

McGill Redmen and Queen's Golden Gaels are tied for the lead with three wins and two losses apiece. Only two points behind them, University of Toronto Blues and University of Western Ontario Mustangs are tied with records of two wins and two losses.

Mustangs are at McGill Saturday and Blues travel to Queen's Richardson Stadium at Kingston. . . .

STRONG FAVORITES

Because Redmen and the defending champion Gaels were strong favorites before the season opened, and both are at home, the odds are in their favor.

But the Blues and Mustangs have been pulling upsets all season.

The college league rules say that a sudden-death playoff will decide the title in the event of a two-way tie for first place. Also, if the second-place team has defeated the leaders at least once during the schedule, it can challenge the leaders to a playoff on the leaders' home field.

After Saturday's games, one of three things could happen. McGill could win the title, there could be a playoff, or there could be a four-way tie.

Should there be a four-way tie, two semi-final games will be played next Saturday and a final game will be played Saturday, Nov. 25.

The four teams have already made provisions for a four-way finish but will not release the results of a draw for opponents and sites until the season has been completed.

Here are the other possibilities:

If both McGill and Queen's win or tie—a playoff between the two teams will be held at McGill next Saturday.

Queen's tie and McGill wins—McGill wins the title without a challenger.

400-Pound Deer Shot In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Tom James of Montreal has killed a deer that probably weighed more than 400 pounds when alive, it was learned Thursday. It is believed this could be a record for white-tail deer in North America.

The buck, with an antler spread of 21 inches, was killed with one shot in the neck Oct. 30 near L'Annonciation, Que., about 100 miles north of Montreal.

It weighed 298½ pounds after being dressed and hung for a week. Experts estimate that shrinkage and removal of the organs took off a little more than 100 pounds of weight.

Aces Up Lead to 5 Points

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quebec's record of never having lost an American Hockey League home game this season remained intact today.

But it was a narrow squeak. The AHL Eastern Division leaders, who had won all five previous games on home ice, trailed Rochester Americans 3-1 going into the final period Thursday night but came through with two third period goals to gain a 3-3 tie. Neither team could score in the overtime period.

The Aces thus picked up a point, their 10th, increasing their lead to five points over the second-place Providence Reds. All other teams were idle.

Terry Gray got the first Quebec goal midway in the second period. The Aces scored twice in the third period on goals by Guy Rousseau and Michel Harvey.

Former Pres. Jockey Club Dies in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Col. Kenric Rudolphus Marshall, 81, industrialist and sportsman, died in hospital Thursday night.

He was a former chairman and president of Canada Steamship Lines Limited and was president of the Ontario Jockey Club for 15 years before his election as chairman of the board in 1956.

Col. Marshall won his first Queen's Plate in 1901 after 60 years of racing. He owned his first racehorse as a schoolboy in 1885.

He served overseas during the First World War as a lieutenant in the 48th Highlanders 15th Battalion.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Russian medical quackery, eyelash replacements, and the ruling out of the "scarlet belt syndrome."

RUSSIAN QUACKS

Medical charlatans, or quacks, are a problem in Russia and legitimate Soviet physicians scornfully term them "killer doctors."

That's the situation found recently by Dr. Sol R. Baker of Los Angeles during a visit to Russia, says a report in Medical Tribune.

Baker, declaring such quackery goes on in big cities such as Moscow and Leningrad as well as in rural areas, says he observed or learned of such practices as:

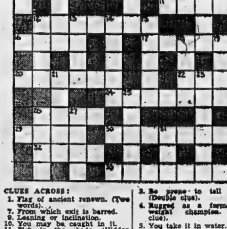
Treating cancer with alternate hot and cold water douches. . . . Pasting slips of paper, containing arabic incantations scrawled on them, over a diseased area of the body. . . . Prescribing the carrying of small potatoes in one's pocket as a treatment for arthritis.

NEW EYELASHES

Japanese surgeons have developed a technique for replacing eyelashes when the eyelid has been scarred by a burn, or the lashes themselves have been burned white by an eye lotion that came into use in Japan after the Second World War. The technique is also described as being a good bet for providing chorus girls and actresses with long lashes, if they lack them.

The method involves taking a graft, of hair and skin from the scalp to replace an upper eyelash — and a graft from the eyebrow for the lower eyelash.

SEAT BELTS



Have no fears that the wearing of seat belts, while protecting you from other injuries in a car crash, might at the same time enhance your chances of getting an abdominal injury.

That's the word from a team of Cornell University researchers who conducted a special study.

They examined records from 2,778 automobile accidents in which out of 3,673 occupants of the cars, 3,325 were seat belts and 944 of them were injured. But the doctors found that the frequency of lower torso injuries among the injured seat belt users was much the same as it was among occupants who did not wear belts.

Recreation Highlights

R. JARVAH
Assistant Director

Five conveners, 30 teams, 50 coaches and over 1,200 boys are involved in the 1962-63 Minor Hockey Season in Belleville. Last Tuesday evening saw the Squirt and Midget Divisions play their first games. The Squirt games began at 6.00 p.m. and continued until 8.00 p.m., when the Midget series began, which continued until 11.00 p.m. Mr. Ed Adamson, the convener for the Squirt Division, advised me on Tuesday that he has 12 coaches and nine assistant coaches to look after the 375 boys in his division.

The Pee Wee Division, according to convener Bill Finley, has 10 coaches and approximately 230 boys on the ten teams in this division. With the numbers decreasing somewhat, we find that the Bantam Division, under convener Ross Lusk, has approximately 125 boys with five teams and similarly five coaches. This season, Gordon Bland is the convener for the Juvenile Division, and according to Gord, he has three teams with three coaches and two assistant coaches in his division. The total number of participants in this division, however, is only about 30. With references to Gord, anyone who is wishing to play in the Juvenile League are asked to contact the Recreation Office at 270 Pinnacle Street and obtain the necessary forms as soon as possible.

This season will also see the offering of an insurance policy, covering all the players and coaches in the Belleville Minor Hockey League. The fee for coaches and players in Squirt, Pee Wee, Bantam and Midget Division is only $1 but those in the Juvenile Division must pay a fee of $2 if they wish this insurance coverage. Those wishing this insurance may obtain it at the Recreation Centre and also the insurance registration desk which will be held at the arena, Tuesday, November 13, 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, November 17, 10 to 12 noon.

Along with our summer playground program, the Minor Hockey Program ranks highest in amount of volunteer leadership and in total participation. This was mentioned in the opening paragraph, there are over 1,200 boys participating in this season's hockey program, and when you consider that these 1,200 boys must be placed on teams, outfitted and coached you can readily see the job that is being done by the Belleville Minor Hockey Association and the many volunteer coaches, conveners, etc.

This Saturday and Sunday will see more games in the Pee Wee, Bantam and Juvenile Divisions.

For further information on scheduled games, look at the Sports Calendar on the Sports Page in another section of this paper.

Crisps Scores Five Goals

Flyers Nip Red Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a forward's delight and a goaltenders' nightmare when Niagara Falls Flyers and Hamilton Red Wings met Thursday night in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series game at Hamilton.

By the time the battle ended the score was 9-8 for the Flyers.

Hero of the night for the winners was centre Terry Crisp, who scored five goals as the Flyers strengthened their hold on second place and advanced to within two points of the league-leading Montreal Junior Canadiens. The Hamilton loss, combined with a 5-4 win by Peterborough Petes Thursday night over St. Catharines Black Hawks, left the Wings tied for fourth place in the six-team league.

The first period of the game at Hamilton gave little indication of what was to come, with the score only 2-0 at the end of the period on Niagara Falls goals by Crisp and Fern Belanger.

Then in the second period a goal by Wayne Masner of the Flyers was followed in quick succession by two Hamilton goals, by Bryan Campbell and Pit Martin. Goals by Crisp and Paul Henderson of the Red Wings ran the count to 4-3.

SCORES THIRD

The third period was only 14 seconds old when Crisp scored his third goal of the night, and the 10-goal outburst ended with only 28 seconds left when the Flyers' Ted Snell scored his second.

In the other game, played at Peterborough, the teams were tied 3-3 at the end of a free-wheeling first period. The rest of the scoring was in the second.

Bob Jamieson scored twice for Peterborough, with singles going to Dan O'Shea, Tom Carty and Don Herriman. Fred Shanfield got two goals and Ken Hodge and Jim O'Brien one apiece for the losers.

In OHA Metro League action Thursday night Toronto Marlboros edged Brampton 6-5 in Brampton.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Apprentice jockey Ron Turcotte scored four victories at Old Woodbine Thursday, his 28th after 14 days of the current 30-day meeting.

It represented his third triple, or better, of this week and gave him a season's total of 158.

Thus, he became Canada's leading rider, passing the 155 total compiled this summer by Sandy Shields on Prairie tracks, a mark that won't improve because Shields has concluded his riding exercise for the year.

Turcotte won the feature Thursday, guiding the three-year-old colt, Arthur H in the Briar Hill Purse at seven furlongs.

Crown Asks Guilty Verdict In Baby's Death

LIEGE, Belgium (AP) — The prosecution demanded a verdict of guilty Thursday — but suggested leniency — in the trial of a mother, three relatives and the family doctor allegedly involved in the poisoning of a thalidomide baby eight days after she was born without arms.

Prosecutor Leon Cappuns told a 13-man jury the family and the doctor never gave the baby, Caroline Vandeput, a chance at life.

"Except for her very grave malformations, that baby was fit to live," he said.

"Thousands of thalidomide mothers have their eyes riveted on your verdict.

"You must bring in a verdict of guilty because you must affirm that the principle of respect for life is sacred. The accused did not commit euthanasia (mercy killing). They never seriously examined the chances of the child in this world which struggles to alleviate suffering. You cannot acquit them."

BORN MAY 22

The baby was born May 22. Her mother, Mrs. Suzanne Vandeput, 24, is charged with homicide. Her husband, Jean, 33; her sister, Mrs. Monique de la Marche, 26; her mother, Mrs. Fernande Colpot, 50, and Dr. Jacques Casters, 52, are charged with complicity in the case.

In a two-hour and 10-minute summation, Cappuns said the grandmother and sister remarked shortly after the baby was born that her life should be taken.

Dr. Casters, the prosecutor said, gave barbiturates to the grandmother at the latter's request.

"He did not consult with other doctors," Cappuns said. "He should not consult the child's mother."

Mrs. Vandeput is focused of putting the drugs into the baby's formula.

Danny Kaye Sings Praises Of Comedienne Lucille Ball

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AT THE PARK — Jeffrey Hunter and Joan O'Brien in "El Dorado", now playing at the Park Theatre, based on the thrilling adventures of U.S. spyman George R. Tweed who successfully led from the Japanese invaders for 34 months also broadcasting information to the American fleet regarding the Japanese troop movements.

NEW YORK (AP)—A great big comedians' love - affair is blooming on television: Danny Kaye adores Lucille Ball and wants everybody to know it.

Kaye flew into town this week for some business conferences and was more interested in talking about Miss Ball's talents than about his own forthcoming venture into weekly television.

"She is," he declared with gestures, "the most gifted, the most inventive, the most professional in the business."

They worked together for the first time recently, making a special which will be seen on NBC Sunday night.

IN OPPOSITE WAYS

"The strange thing is," confided Kaye, "that we work in opposite ways, but we both arrive at the same destination by different routes.

"Lucy wants to know in detail exactly what she is expected to do, how she is expected to do it and what she is to say. And then, once that is all established, she cuts loose and it's wild. We got along swell!"

Kaye says that his approach —when he's playing to an audience—is more often a spontaneous one. Recently he did 40 minutes before a British audience with the aid of a hunter's horn he grabbed, on the spur of the minute, from a musician in the pit.

POSTCARD ART — British cartoonist Donald McGill, who died in October at 87, became famous for his humorous postcards which he termed good, for this one reads: "Well, if you must lend me a penny."

An Englishman will sense the humor of the situation at once, but Canadians may have to be reminded of the pay toilets commonly in use in Britain.—(CP Photo).

Sales in Hundreds of Millions Yet He Never Made Fortune

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—Donald McGill's latest piece of what he once called "good, honest vulgarity" remained unfinished on his drawing board. Britain's king of the comic postcards was dead.

McGill's garish studies of red-nosed "drunks, enormously fat old maids with medically impossible posteriors, obscenely naive honeymooners and seemingly out-of-place cute children and their dogs are at least part of British seaside holiday life as they are known.

He is said to have designed more than 12,000 cards in the last 50 years. Sales were in the hundreds of millions. But he never made a fortune—"just a good living" said his partner Ernest Maidment when McGill died at 87 in October.

After he put aside his dream of becoming an architect, McGill's first few years of cartooning were lean, in the shadow of the Victorian era with its cavalcade of prudishness.

But in 1914 he designed one of his best-loved and most representative cards. A hotel chambermaid peering through a bathroom keyhole announces to a waiting guest: "He won't be long now, sir, he's drying himself."

FUNNY TO BRITONS

Although one person was fined £20 for selling a copy of that card, Britons accepted the next style of "art" and decided it was essentially harmless.

Dennis Potter's Daily Herald obituary of McGill places his cards "firmly in the tradition of the pub joke."

"Some of his postcards were undoubtedly crude, but reflected a hearty, laughing, unashamedly vulgar world that was as ready as a pint of fresh drawn beer."

McGill's cards rarely draw puffaway outside Britain. George Orwell wrote an essay on him and he said Britons laugh at situations involving marriage, religion and fat old maids because among the British middle classes pregnancy and fatness are still sacred. He felt other nations, viewing those subjects as more profane, would not find McGill's cards funny. They might even be offended.

Meanwhile in Britain, competitors found a ready market for cards a mutiir than McGill would draw. The rising obscenity of the postcard industry bothered him in his final years.

SKIRT OBSCENITY

"Some publishers sent out nothing but dirt," Maidment said. "I used to show them to him and he would get quite angry.

Publishers manage to skirt obscenity laws. "Tastes vary, and if there is no complaint, there is no prosecution," said Henry Price, Conservative MP and leader of the Pollcard Association set up to combat steadily lowering standards in comic cards. "What is judged obscene at one resort is passed at another."

Maidment said McGill had designed the 1963 cards, and that 200 unfinished sketches will appear over the next eight or nine years.

So although the "Picasso of the Pier" is gone, his work remains, and Britons shivering in the rain at south England summer resorts can still send home happy cards to prove they're having a jolly time.

Part of 17 Described as 'Killer Strip'

TORONTO (CP) — Deputy Highways Minister A. T. Cameron McBain said Thursday no Ontario road can be termed a suicide highway.

But, the road with the highest fatality rate is a 30-mile stretch of Highway 17 from Wendover to Ottawa, not Highway 401.

An Ottawa magistrate described the four-lane Highway 401 as a suicidal path this week.

The five-year-old stretch of Highway 17 at Ottawa is known as the "killer strip" locally and the accident rate became so alarming the department of highways sent an investigator, Thomas E. Mahoney of Toronto to check it.

Mr. Mahoney advised the department in September that some improvements in safety had been achieved with extra police patrols and pavement strip markings.

Mr. McNab said there are only 2.6 fatalities for every 1,000,000 miles of vehicular traffic travelled on Highway 401 compared to 6.2 traffic deaths on the same mileage basis on any other highway, road or street in the province.

'Mutiny' Finished at Last But Was It Worth It?

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Mutiny on the Bounty at long last has ended its second film voyage. Was it worth it?

In view of the new economics of the movie business, the answer will probably be yes. In the old days, investment of $18,500,000 in one film would be enough to set a studio under the waves. But today's market allows a company to recoup such an investment over the long haul—if the movie has merit.

Mutiny on the Bounty does. Even if all its millions don't show on the screen, enough do to make it one of the great screen spectacles. Some of the Tahiti scenes — native boats swarming around the newly-arrived Bounty, an immense human chain herding fish into lagoon—are magnificent.

What about the film as drama?

It is no easy job for a remake to capture the magic of the original, especially a well remembered one like the Clark Gable, Charles Laughton 1935 version. The 1962 film tries a few new tacks, which are welcome and often successful. But the magic facts of the drama remain unchangeable and the previous element of surprise is lacking.

The portrayal by Marlon Brando of Fletcher Christian is destined to be controversial. He appeared to have sought the farthest reach from the Gable portrayal and presents Christian as an upper-class fop.

It is a bit unnerving to see the familiar Brando smirk and then hear him speak in mid-Ronald Colman accents. You are not quite sure at first whether he is pulling the audience's leg. But Brando is still the most fascinating actor around and it becomes apparent that he knows what he is doing. He shades from fop to reformer to mutineer, and his reaction to

Trafalgar Square Artists Make 30 Shillings a Day Drawing Sketches on Walks

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP) — Old men crouching on sidewalks outside Britain's National Gallery produce their own kind of art treasures with chalk.

Bright red buses grind by. People cluster around. Some snicker at the artists' hair melting down over dusty collars. Most watch with interest. The chalkers ignore it all as they blend brilliant colors into clean country scenes and happy puss-cats.

Busy Londoners and tourists from nearby Trafalgar Square throw coins into the ancient hats which are standard equipment. If the man is good; if there are lots of wealthy and generous Americans; if it doesn't rain—he might make 30 shillings a day. A man can live on that.

Alfred Horton, one of the best, has been a street chalk artist for 17 years, summers and winters.

The crowd swelled as he drew bold blue and white lines on the grey concrete, then rubbed the whole lightly together with his gaudy fingers, shading and softening the stark hues. His little white beard and black tam nearly scraped the paving stone.

HELPS OTHERS

Gradually a picture of rushing falls and snow-capped cliffs appeared. Then he drew a white border, blew off the excess dust and stood up. The crowd murmured approval and coins began clanging into his two hats.

"People with miserable faces plod through the dirt of London, and then they see a drawing of trees, or rivers, or green fields, and maybe a funny caption, and they stop," he said. "I see them thinking they'd like to be away, and they-look kind of sentimental and dreamy, and then when they walk on they're a bit happier."

Horton thinks he's about 60. His past is unc nnily similar to that of the half dozen other contributors to a brighter Trafalgar Square area. He ran away from DRAWS FOR COINS—Using colored chalk, artist Alfred Horton draws a scene for onlookers on sidewalk outside British National Gallery in London. home when he was too young to realise his age, joined the navy, then the army, and drew all the time. After the Second World War he couldn't get a job, so set up shop in the street.

Now he eats most days regularly on a meagre pension and contributions from lovers of pavement art. Some of the artists speak of Horton's generosity and constant cheerfulness. If a hungry friend comes along Horton will take a stroll for a couple of hours, leaving the friend in charge of the chalks of the colored country scenes.

CAN'T SELL OILS

Some of the artists try to earn a living sketching pedestrians at about 10 shillings a time. But it's hard persuading people to pause and be the centre of attention for the 15 minutes or so that a good sketch requires.

Charles Pierci, who also thought he was about 60 but wasn't sure, is a sketcher and tries to sell oil paintings rebelliously. All My Own Work. He hadn't sold one for six months, but coins tossed on his sidewalk efforts help him to stay alive.

In easy-going London, nobody minds men making bright splashes on the sidewalk. If a large crowd gathers and police start worrying about "an obstruction," the artist stops work for a while and waits for a few people to drift off. It's the actual work in progress that attracts onlookers.

Up Charing Cross Road northeast of the gallery, a couple of young artists contrasted with the regulars.

"They're not bad," Horton said cheerfully, "but they don't have the real spirit of it. It's the sort of work. They're just lazy."

Teen-Age Canada

Pays to Play Field Advice to Teen-Agers

By JACK HUTTON

"Teen-agers who go steady with the same person all through high school never really grow up. They don't give themselves the chance."

That statement came this week from a psychologist friend, Dr. E. Jackson Francis, after I asked him what he thought of "going steady" during the teen years.

He was commenting on a survey just completed by our correspondents which showed that more teen-agers seem to be going steady this fall than ever before in Canada.

"A frightening trend," said Dr. Francis, who for several years has been telling Canadians what's wrong with them. "It shakes my faith in the younger generation."

What's wrong with it, I asked. According to our survey, the average Canadian teen-ager tries going steady for anywhere from three months to a year and then plays the field again.

"That isn't bad," said Dr. Francis. "But I don't like to think of the minority who never feel secure unless they have a steady date to call."

"If they only realized it," he continued, "they're just as bad as the teen-ager who is tied to his mother's apron strings. They refuse to get out in the world and compete on their own two legs."

KNOW OTHERS

"One of the purposes of high school is to get to know a great many other people and learn to get along with them. And that applies to members of the other sex. But what happens when they go out with only one person?

"I'll tell you what happens. They look and sound more like old married couples than a lot of old married couples I know. They like the same interests, so they don't try anything new. They like the same people, so they never join new groups."

I hastened to interrupt. "Are you completely against going steady?" I asked. "You're making the whole thing sound pretty dreary. Surely it isn't all that bad."

"Like everything else, there are good and bad things about going steady," Dr. Francis answered. "A couple going steady learn things about each other which they wouldn't on a more temporary relationship. For instance, it's probably nice to worry about someone else's birthday."

"I would suggest," he added, "that teen-age couples who have been going together a long time watch out for danger signs. Are they going together simply because it's too much effort to adjust to someone else?

"How long has it been since they thought of a new hobby? Or maybe they decided the other person wouldn't like it and dismissed the idea. What a silly thing to do."

TRAGIC RESULT

"The greatest tragedy that can happen to people like this," Dr. Francis concluded, "is that they go steady all through high school, going out with no one else, and then get married right after school."

"Too often," he said, "I've seen couples like that years later. One of them, or sometimes both, feels eventually that he missed a lot. But it's too late to do anything about it then."

There is the opinion of one adult. How do you feel about going steady? I'd be interested in hearing your opinions and promise to publish as many as we can.

TEEN READERS

Our correspondents report that more Canadian teenagers are now reading their newspapers more closely as a result of international crisis.

As one of our tipsters remarked: "A lot of adults figure we spend our time reading the comics. But teenagers are a great deal more clued up about international affairs than they realize."

We'd like to see a survey sometime of just how many teenagers read a newspaper and which sections they read. Maybe we'll try it sometime.

ART CONTEST

For those of you interested in art, there are only a few weeks left in which to enter this year's Shankar International Children's Competition in India.

Young artists under 18 are eligible, providing their work is original, finished during the past year and is not smaller than eight inches by ten inches. Paintings and drawings in color will be accepted, unless pencil is used.

The competition is also for budding authors. Literary entries on any subject must be in the competitor's hand-writing on one side of the paper only. Two copies are needed, certified by a teacher or parent to be an original, unaided work.

Your entries — in either art or composition — must bear your full name, nationality, postal address, date of year and birth. Address them to Shankar's International Children's Competition, Odeon Building, P.O. Box 218, New Delhi, India. No entries accepted after Nov. 30.

TV STAR

Eighteen-year-old Rena Berzin, a Montreal Grade 11 student, decided two months ago that she'd like to see a play she'd written produced on CBC-TV. So she went to see a producer.

The result: Her play was turned down. But Rena was chosen to star in the longest running show on Canadian TV, "Speaking French" which is produced in Montreal.

Rena, who plays the part of a pupil listening to Prof. Jean-Paul Vinay, her teacher, showed up for her audition dressed in black sheath and pearls. The producer, however, recognized her as a wholesome type beneath the pseudo-sophistication.

"In the end, it turned out that the very element I was trying to conceal got me the part", said Rena. "I guess my face gave me away."

THE WEEK'S TOP 20

OVER HALF MISSILES HAVE LEFT CUBA

Indian Troops Repulse New Chinese Attacks

Both Armies Poise Tanks N. W. Front

NEW DELHI (AP)—Communist Chinese troops launched new attacks along India's north east Himalayan border but were repulsed, the defence ministry announced today.

Indian and Chinese tanks were reported poised in Ladakh on the northwestern front.

The attacks in the northeast came over the past two days near Walong, 15 miles west of the Burma border, and at Jang, about 300 miles to the west near the Bhutan border, a ministry spokesman said.

He said the Chinese push near Walong was under cover of artillery fire. In Jang, he reported, the Indian forces shelled advancing Chinese.

Informed sources said Indian commanders in the northeast expressed confidence they can hold their present lines where the Chinese threaten mountain passes leading down into the plains of India's Assam state.

MISS PLANE

In the Ladakh area, informed sources reported, the Chinese shot at but missed an Indian transport plane carrying military supplies to Chushul airfield, situated on a 14,200-foot plateau.

India flew light tanks into the area to counter a Communist tank buildup near the airfield and across the disputed border at Rudok in Tibet.

Communist tanks were seen only a few miles from the airstrip, an Indian defence ministry spokesman said.

The airfield is the only one the Indians have in the area and is vital to their supply line.

Only sporadic shelling and rifle fire was reported Friday in the northeastern sector of the frontier battles where the Chinese have paused after early advances that threatened the thinly populated Assam Plain.

Both sides have reinforced their positions in Ladakh in the last 11 days.

TANKS OVERRAN

Indian outposts in the area were overrun by communist tanks in the initial Chinese offensive Oct. 20 and the Chinese are reported to have captured Rudok is fairly flat and barren, making tank warfare possible.

In Washington, the defence department said the U.S. airlift of military arms that began last Saturday should be Wintermeyer Sees Economic Union With U. S.

WATERLOO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said Friday good will produced in Ontario will be the kind most affected by federal external trade agreements.

He said Canada and Ontario should be prepared for a future economic union with the United States.

"Let's not kid ourselves," Mr. Wintermeyer told a meeting of the University of Waterloo Liberal club. "Ontario is producing a secondary producer of manufactured goods, the kind of goods that will be most affected with trade agreements outside the country."

Of economic union, he said it "doesn't mean a political union, as this would never come about."

"However, we must face the possibility of a strong economic union and be prepared for it."

Canadian Newsman Hears Theory Cuban 'Missiles' Colossal Hoax

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sun columnist Jack Scott says the Cuban crisis may have been a colossal hoax cooked up by Russia and Cuba.

Scott, who spent last week in Jamaica trying to gain admission to Cuba, says he found "many points that lend credence to this bizarre theory" in interviews with Cubans in Jamaica.

"Of all the bewildering variety of theories and explanations of the nuclear chess game that we'll remember as the Cuban crisis, the one that intrigued me most . . . was the possibility that it was the most gigantic hoax ever pulled off in international power politics," he says in his column Friday.

"There are in Jamaica today Cubans, both friendly and hostile to Fidel Castro's regime, who seriously question whether Cuba had, in fact, the sort of Soviet intermediate range missiles that caused President Kennedy to impose the American blockade.

"They believe, and demonstrate by considerable circumstantial evidence, that the United States' reconnaissance planes photographed were, in fact, missile 'bases' of plywood mockups and dummies of "offensive" launching paraphernalia calculated to provoke the United States into precisely the kind of unilateral aggressive action that transpired.

"They believe that Castro and Khrushchev, teaming up in their own perilous game of brinkmanship, conned the United States into a tactical position that will directly benefit Cuba and the Soviet Union in the weeks to come."

PARLIAMENT NOW APPROVING APRIL MOVES

Budget Tax Changes Come Before House

OTTAWA (CP) — It may be chilly outside, but inside the Commons it's April in November.

Exactly seven months ago today, then - finance minister Fleming introduced tax changes in his farewell budget speech.

Actually, all the tax changes went into effect last April 10. But Parliament still must approve them. Approval still has to be given to changes in the excise tax and tariffs, then bills will be introduced to amend formally the Income Tax Act, Estate Tax Act, Excise Tax Act and customs tariff. The matter will occupy the Commons again Monday.

Foreign corporations operating in Canada came in for a going-over Friday when the government resolution seeking a new tax concession for Canada's oil and gas industry was strongly criticized.

THINKS SHOULD ACT

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said that if the federal treasury, through tax exemptions, is going to help pay for oil and gas exploration, the government itself should do the exploration.

"If the public treasury is going to pay the shot, it ought to get the benefit," he said.

Mr. Douglas and Gilles Gregoire (SC—Lapointe) also objected to a resolution exempting iron ore mining companies from the special 1960 tax of 15 per cent on the profits of foreign-owned branch plants.

Mr. Nowlan said iron ore developments are "terrifically expensive."

Mr. Douglas said it was a ludicrous argument that iron ore mines are more expensive to develop than production than copper, zinc or potash properties.

DRIES UP CAPITAL?

E. J. Benson (L—Kingston) said the government had resulted in a drying up of capital inflow by last June and the government had had to go hat in hand to foreign banks.

Mr. Nowlan said the 1960 tax didn't discourage foreign investment. It had been justified at that time. But the iron ore representations should be freed of it now.

The Commons finally adopted a series of tax changes which would allow individuals to deduct oil and gas exploration and development costs from taxable income from production; extend the same privilege to companies for all mineral exploration and development costs; and includes the cost of obtaining rights or licences for drilling or production of oil and gas as deductible expenses for income tax purposes.

Three Guilty On Charges Of Assault

KINGSTON (CP) — Three men were convicted Friday on charges of assault occasioning actual bodily harm in the stabbing death of Kingston park superintendent during a fracas, July 19.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills, who called the defence of Winston Wesley Townes, 23, John Frederick Wilskin, 20, and Alfred John Peppiatt, 20, all of Kingston, "utterly fantastic," remanded the trio in custody until Nov. 16 for sentencing.

Police Kick in Every Door In Raid on Detroit Hotel

DETROIT (AP) — A raiding force of 112 city, state and federal officers chopped their way through the Gotham Hotel Friday night in a crackdown on numbers gambling.

The raiders carried crowbars, hatchets, fire axes and sledgehammers. They kicked in every door and left hallways littered with splintered doors hanging from hinges. Forty-persons were arrested.

Lieut. John O'Neill of the Detroit Vice Bureau said search warrants for all the 174 rooms in the hotel were obtained earlier.

O'Neill said the hotel long has been known as a centre for numbers and other gambling operations but police were unable to raid it successfully before because they could get a warrant for only one or two rooms at a time.

The hotel is scheduled to be torn down as part of an urban renewal project.

Inspector Arthur Sage said the raid dealt a crippling blow to the numbers racket in Detroit.

Nine of the 41 arrested faced arraignment in federal court today on charges of failing to have a gambling stamp and for evasion of excise taxes.

The other 32 were held by Detroit police for investigation of violation of state gambling laws. Police said they were caught in the penthouse of the hotel playing dice on a pool table on which there was $5,000.

Police said they found scores of adding machines, hundreds of boxes and filing cases full of bet slips, adding machine tapes, coin-counting machines, pistols, ammunition and at least $30 safes.

Anti-Bomb Group Given Encouragement, No Pledges

OTTAWA (CP) — A nuclear disarmament group said Friday night it received encouragement from the government—but no all-embracing promise to reject nuclear weapons for Canada.

Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, president of the Exchequer Court of Canada, led the delegation as honorary chairman of the Canadian Committee for Nuclear Disarmament.

The delegation, preparing for a mass demonstration on Parliament Hill today, interviewed party leaders and 90 individual MPs in a mass lobby Friday.

Mr. Justice Thorson said Prime Minister Diefenbaker reiterated that government policy is to reject nuclear weapons for Canada as long as there was any reasonable chance of achieving general agreement on disarmament.

But he quoted the prime minister as saying that the government had to reserve the possibility that in an emergency Canada would have to acquire the weapons as part of North

Ecumenical Council's Task Barely Begun After Month

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic ecumenical council completed its first month today barely into its task of bringing the church up to date in the modern world.

Since then the council fathers have met in 12 working sessions of three hours each without completing discussion on the first topic before them. They go into recess Dec. 8.

Informed estimates are that they will barely have finished discussion of the first topic—liturgy, or public worship—by then. Their next topic is on divine revelation and its sources.

Pope John set next month's recess date. But he did not announce when the council would reassemble to go on with some 70 "schemata" (topics) that include church-state relations, religious liberty, the power of the

SAYS FEDERAL GOVT. WILL AID MUNICIPALITIES

President of Mayors Says Help Coming

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may move in a few weeks to implement some recommendations of Canadian municipal leaders seeking more federal help for local improvements.

This was stated Friday by Mayor J. A. Mongrain of Trois-Rivieres, Que., president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, after that organization presented its annual brief to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and the cabinet.

Mayor Mongrain would not say, however, what recommendations seemed to meet with ready approval. Other proposals would need more study by the cabinet.

The principal recommendation of the federation was for establishment of a municipal loan fund to enable municipal governments to borrow money as easily and cheaply as the senior levels of government. All of the recommendations hinged on the need of the towns and cities for more capital.

The brief, read in summary to a committee of cabinet behind closed doors, said the main municipal problem stems from rapid and frequently unplanned growth of the suburbs, and growing obsolescence in the downtown areas.

NEED URBAN RENEWAL

Many cities were approaching a surplus of medium and high-cost single houses and luxury apartments. The need for low-rental housing and urban renewal was not being met. With the spread of the suburbs and the need for redeveloping downtown areas, new traffic and rapid transit problems were emerging.

Mr. Diefenbaker said after the one hour and 40-minute meeting that the brief had been discussed broadly with several ministers speaking in reply. He promised careful consideration of the proposals, but did not elaborate on government intentions.

The municipal leaders praised government loans for sewage systems, with writeoffs for work done speedily, and said the principle should be carried to other projects, particularly in urban transport.

U.S. Blockade May Continue; Castro Adamant

Mikoyan Fails to Get Inspection Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half the 44-odd Soviet missiles secretly installed in Cuba are reported on their way back to Russia. The rest are due to be headed home by Monday night.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev is also understood to be pulling out several thousand military technicians assigned to the Cuban rocket bases.

But there were indications the U.S. blockade may not soon be ended.

U.S. officials now believe Mikoyan has failed in any effort he may have made to convince Cuban Premier Castro to accept international inspection to verify removal of the missiles and dismantling of the bases.

In Havana, Mikoyan was reported to have conferred again Friday with Castro. Washington officials believe Mikoyan may leave this week-end.

WON'T LIVE UP TO IT

So far as President Kennedy is concerned, these officials said, this assumed failure of Mikoyan means Khrushchev will not live up to that part of his Cuban crisis agreement which called for international verification.

Kennedy, informants added, plans to maintain a prolonged naval blockade and aerial surveillance of the island to safeguard against any new delivery of offensive weapons.

The missiles were loaded as deck cargo and photographs made public showed eight on one ship and six on each of two other vessels.

Reporters aboard a navy patrol plane Friday night spied a U.S. destroyer sweep in beside the Russian freighter Anosov, call it in the name of a powerful searchlight and by signals arrange to inspect it after daylight today.

"We have arranged an inspection without boarding," the destroyer by signal passed by radio.

This will include a "closeup view by daylight and photographs, the inspection patterns expected to have been followed Friday.

The Anosov appeared to be heavily laden with military equipment, including what looked like eight missiles.

Other ships have been loaded with missiles were also understood to have sailed from Cuban ports and further inspections were due to be announced.

The Soviet government had agreed to let the ships be inspected by the U.S. Navy.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Cuban defiance, Soviet stalling and a resulting welter of confusion are plaguing United Nations efforts to resolve the three week old Caribbean crisis.

Negotiations, which started after U.S. President Kennedy announced the Soviet Union had placed missiles in Cuba, have turned into an endless round of East - West haggling that apparently produced little in the past week.

The Soviet Union has balked over two U.S. demands—to pull its jet bombers out of Cuba and allow on-site inspection of its missile bases.

Cuban Premier Castro has virtually doomed hopes of moving the rocket bombers by insisting that they were given to his government by Moscow and that he intends to keep them.

Castro has refused from the beginning to permit any on-site inspection by the Red Cross, the United Nations or any other agency.

Many delegates here believe the United States will quietly drop the demand for first-hand verification once it is convinced the missiles have been pulled out. But the U.S. insists long-range jets capable of carrying nuclear bombs are offensive weapons, and the Russians have sidestepped saying anything about moving out the bombers.

PROPOSE A DEAL

In an attempt to solve the protracted inspection problem, three Latin American countries have proposed that the western hemisphere sign up to an agreement to keep the continent free of nuclear weapons or rockets capable of delivering them.

The resolution, put in by Brazil, Chile and Bolivia, would provide for verification arrangements to make sure the agreement is observed.

The sponsors feel that since the proposals call on Latin America to permit such inspection and does not pinpoint Cuba it should give Castro a face-saving means of complying.

Meanwhile it was announced Friday night that warships from Argentina and the Dominican Republic have become part of an "inter - American quarantine force" under U.S. direction to help police the flow of shipping to Cuba. This force is operating separately from the U.S. main blockading fleet.

Pebbles Pelt Homes, Police Are Unable to Find Source

BIG CLEAR LAKE, Calif. (CP) — Pebbles from the sky or some place—have pelted a housing project apparent explanation for four months.

Why? Nobody knows, the sheriff's office says.

Police speak for the W. M. Lowe family. They don't believe in goblins, but on Hallowe'en they gave up and moved out.

"The rocks were falling from all directions," they reported.

Ever since the Lowes moved into the one-storey house in this southern California mountain resort last June 18:

About four times a week—at all hours of day and night — rocks up to four inches long have rained on the house and an area of about two city blocks around. So say sheriff's deputies and Lowe, 44, a former Fullerton, Calif., real estate man.

Sheriff's investigators theorized that somebody had it in for the Lowes, who endured the mysterious barrages for a month before they sought help.

But, say officials, they've found no pebble tossers even though they've been Johnny-on-the-spot when:

A rock dented the hood of a patrol car parked near the house;

A rock whistled past Deputy Jack H. Crow's ear on Hallowe'en night and hit the house.

After the Lowes moved out, the rocks moved with them.

The rocks continue to fall.

100,000 Canadians Sleep In Graves Tenderly Kept

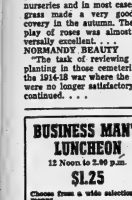
OTTAWA (CP)—How sleep the brave!

Sunday is Remembrance Day, the pause to remember the 100,000 Canadians who died in war since 1914, and it is perhaps fitting to quote a few excerpts from the latest report of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission:

"Constant day to day care of the graves and cemeteries has always been the principle guiding the commission's horticultural work.

"A considerable measure, of success has already been achieved in finding and testing suitable machines, 18 small mechanical edge trimmers having cut between them in a season 3,500 miles of lawn edges. . . .

"In northern Europe the gardeners experienced a very trying year. Five of this cemeteries have water supplies laid on and the sustained drought, allied to the exceptional heat, caused much damage and loss on the heaviest as well as the lightest soils. On the former very bad cracking occurred.



"Losses were most severe on the sandy soils of Holland and east Belgium where large numbers of ornamental heathers succumbed and the turf deteriorated badly.

"Fortunately most of the losses could be replaced from stock held in the commission's nurseries and in most cases the grass made a very good recovery in the autumn. The display of roses was almost universally excellent.

NORMANDY BEAUTY

"The task of transferring trees planting in those cemeteries of the 1914-18 war where the trees were no longer satisfactory was continued. . . .

Group Discount Fares Offered By Railways

MONTREAL — Group discount fares again are being offered by Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways and these reduced fares are also available to consider the all-inclusive travel plan.

Group discount fares apply when ten or more persons travel together and offer a reduction of 40 per cent from regular tariff for round trips ranging $7.50 or more for the round trip.

As an example, if the round trip fare is $100 for one person, each additional passenger in the group pays only $60. On the going trip, passengers must travel together, but may return separately.

The all-inclusive travel plan includes passage fare, sleeping accommodation, meals and all tips for first class, tourist or coach only classes of travel on the main transcontinental lines of both railways from Montreal to Vancouver. It also offers savings of 40 per cent for two or more travelling together. For example, the round trip coach only class fare between Montreal and Vancouver is $160. Each additional passenger in the group, however would pay only $96.

Local Quartet Places Fourth In Area Contest

The Quinte Cavaliers, Belleville's barbershop chorus quartet, placed fourth in the Ontario District competitions held last night.

The quartet, consisting of Ray Williams, tenor; Don Sexsmith, lead; Al Burns, baritone, and Ron Woods, bass, qualified for the finals when they sang second in the district preliminary contest. The competitions were held in the Royal York Hotel.

Attending the convention to cheer along the local quartet's efforts were Chalmers, Garth Haggerty, Albert Baldwin, Alf Evans, Chris James, Brad Bradford and Bob Park.

Mr. Bradford and Mr. Park also had the pleasure of playing host in a hospitality room, inviting the many convention visitors who dropped in to see them to come to Belleville for the next convention to be held here in April. The room was decked with many pictures of the Belleville area, and a special invitation for them must go to Bill Riley, local photographer.

On reporting back to the Chamber at Wednesday's meeting, Messrs. Bradford and Park said: "We sent the message to come to Belleville from London to Ottawa and from North Bay to Toronto. We feel sure our convention will be well attended."

Coal Barge Off-Shore A Mystery

What's happened to the Bay Anna? The coal barge sailing out of Sodus Point, near Rochester, and owned by Bayshore Shipping of Belleville, pulled into Trenton yesterday and discharged a load of coal at the B. W. Gerry coal dock.

The barge left last night, leaving one of the crewmembers who had stayed too long in town. But the barge didn't go anywhere. The crew returned aboard from shore, still within Trenton harbour, she rested for the night, and was still there at last report.

Officials of the B. W. Powers Company are under no definite explanation, and have not been able to establish contact with the barge. It is suggest that the barge may have had engine trouble, or it may have missed the channel in the dark, and gone aground.

Hold Man On Charge Of Assault

A Kingston man is being held on an assault charge by Belleville city police after a complaint lodged by a local woman.

Police say they are still investigating circumstances of the alleged incident.

Roberts will appear in magistrate's court Tuesday.

Parkdale Ratepayers Hear Report of Sewer Project

John S. Newman, F.E., president of Beaver Construction Company, was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Parkdale Ratepayers' Association held last Wednesday evening. The Beaver Co. president was accompanied by Alderman Jack Ellis, and A. W. Savery, the Beaver superintendent for the Parkdale sanitary sewer project.

Mr. Newman illustrated his address on the sewer construction project with a four-page bulletin covering the stages of construction up to be completed. This included a schedule of street blockages, giving the approximate time each of the various streets will be blocked to through traffic.

"There can be many people in Parkdale unhappy with Beaver," began Mr. Newman with a smile, as he noted the attendances of less than sixty residents. He went on to explain the full scope of the work yet to be done, and said that the company hopes to have all work completed and move out by Dec. 15th.

At the conclusion of his address, the Beaver president expressed his appreciation for the help given by the assistant city engineer Dick Kraft, in preparing and duplicating the information bulletin.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Alderman Ellis then held a question and answer period, which lasted for almost an hour. Many questions were asked by the ratepayers, but the majority of the questions dealt with the streets blockages. He explained that the streets would be completely blocked, and cited, to bring them as nearly as possible back to their original condition. However he could be expected this winter.

Alderman Les Digby, accompanied by C. A. Mills, city planning engineer, who attended the meeting as representatives of the Parkdale and Suburban Planning Board, gave a brief explanation of the city's proposed Official Land Use Plan. Using an artist's sketch of the area showing the various zoning districts, Ald. Digby fully explained the implications of the proposed city planning.

He then offered to answer any questions in reply to a query concerning the industrial zoning along No. 401 highway. He stated that this was reserved for prestige industry, and that no smoke or odour-causing facilities could be built northwest of Park York Drive.

GREEN BELT PROBLEM

A question was asked about the difficulties concerning reservation of "Green Belt" land for eventual park development which it was felt the Parkdale area should have. The alderman answered that the Planning Board was attempting to reform the populace of this necessity, but also that they could not immediately buy all such land.

A suggestion was made that the city might allow owners of such tracts to have tax-free status on all their city properties until the accumulated tax values reach the value of their green belt properties. Noting the suggestion, Alderman Digby advised that the Planning Board is giving continuous attention to this problem in an effort to provide an equitable solution.

A motion by Ratepayers' vice-president V. Allen, thanking Mr. Newman for his business, especially in attending an evening meeting, was approved by the members of the Association with sincere applause.

During an active business meeting, Association President Mrs. Morrison reported having soliating of the Community Hall in behalf completed. He expressed appreciation for the work of L. Weagant, G. Burnette, W. Peters, W. Corbitt, T. Creelman, H. Bankey, and H. Reynolds.

The Parkdale Area Civic Liberty Centre Board said that City Council had provided $100 toward the cost of the insulating material which, with the $175 voted by the Ratepayers' Association, would cover all expenses. Title to the Community Centre is held by the City of Belleville.

With the president presiding as chairman, various other matters were conveyed. Operating funds were voted to the Scouting and Cub Committee of the 18th Belleville Scout Group, and the cost of tuning the piano was approved.

The chairman advised that a constitution and rules of order committee composed of the president, vice-president, Mr. Peters and Mrs. H. Byall, had a draft completed. This will be presented at the general meeting on Dec. 5th for ratification.

It was also noted that a new community centre dance, a re-placement for the present wrecked one, is being ordered by Mr. W. Neave. The chairman stated that Mr. S. Kvarda, president of Aluminum Star Products Ltd., had generously provided a professional finish on the new metal sign, in the company paint shop.

Discussion arose concerning the proposed city by-law expending the two years the term of office of the Mayor. A motion that the meeting go on record in favor of the present one-year term, was totally unopposed.

TO HEAR CANDIDATES

Consideration was next given to the approaching municipal election, and on the advice of Mr. R. Cottle, it was decided that the executive committee should endeavour to arrange a meeting at which all candidates for office to a special meeting at the Community Hall. The meeting date would have a stated period in which to address the residents, with a question period.

A question on the plebiscite for water fluoridation was raised by the president and stated that, because of the nature of this matter, debate would not be in order. He stated that the executive committee would endeavor to obtain experts for, and members on hand at the meeting the proposed special meeting, if such was the pleasure of the members. On motion by Mr. Ed Lewis, this suggestion was approved.

The chairman then stated that a bulletin would be circulated as soon as possible, to advise members of the results of the executive committee investigations. He added that a copy of the bulletin would contain a slate of six names for consideration and nominations from the floor were called. The members elected were V. Allen, L. Creelman, A. Gainham, and Charles Keeble as another form.

A motion by Mr. Keeble thanking retiring board members, Mrs. Weagant and E. McGuigan, received a standing ovation.

Vendors Few On Market As Weather Bad

Only a handful of vendors were present on the local farmers' market this morning, as heavy rains fell over the city, and the number of customers was considerably smaller than last week.

Prices were almost unchanged from previous weeks, although the supply of local produce offered for sale is getting low.

Apples were plentiful on the market today, selling for 6Sc a six quart basket. Potatoes remained steady at $2 a 75 pound bag or 50c a six quart basket.

Carrots sold for 65c a basket and good sized heads of cabbage were selling from 15 to 25c a head. Radishes were offered at 10c a bunch.

There was also a good assortment of homemade pastry available.

IN MEMORIAM

FINCH — In fond and loving memory of our father, Charles Finch who passed away November 11, 1956.
We often sit and think of bygone days,
When we were all together.
The family chair is broken now,
But memories live forever.
To us he has left many things
Now memories we hold dear,
But most of all God's eternal home,
And that gift is very dear.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his loving wife and daughter-in-law Lennox.

FINCH — In loving memory of a dear husband, Howard Finch who passed away November 11, 1950.
Memories are sacred, I'll not say more.

But that I think of you.
Those last words are very good,
But none replaces you.
Many a silent tear is shed,
When I am all alone,
The one I called my own.
—Sadly missed and remembered by his wife, Gladys.

ROYLE — In loving remembrance of a wonderful mother, Mrs. John Royle (Jessie Pratt) who left us November 11, 1950.
We do not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives God forbid.
Our lips may not speak it, when our hearts nearly always do,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is heard.
—Always remembered with loving thoughts by daughter Irene and Art and grandchildren Gail and Billy.

ROYLE — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Jessie Royle who passed away November 11th, 1952.
No one knows how much we miss you.

No one knows the bitter pain,
We have suffered since you left us,
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly, under fond and true,
For the call we cannot answer,
That we do not think of you.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife, Margaret and grandson Tommy.

WOODWARD — In loving memory of a dear husband, Gerald Woodward who passed away one year ago today, November 11, 1961.
Little knew when I woke that
The sor.ow the day would bring,
The call we would answer,
Death's voice we could not shun.
To part with one I loved so dear
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife, Margaret.

WOODWARD — In loving memory of our dear son, Gerald Allan Melanie Woodward who passed away Nov. 10, 1961.
Though his smile has gone forever,
And we cannot hear his voice,
Still we have so many memories
Of the one we loved so much.
His memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part.
God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
—Sadly missed by Mom and Dad.

Car Rolls Over In Collision On Pinnacle St.

A Belleville youth was taken to hospital for a checkover after his automobile rolled over in a two-car crash at Pinnacle and East Bridge streets this morning.

Dunning's car was struck broadside at the busy downtown intersection shortly after 8 a.m. by a station wagon driven by Elmer George Cruikshanks, R.R. 2, Consecon.

The small European car owned by Dunning was upended by the impact. Police officers aided by passersby, lifted it back on its wheels.

Man Who Said Police Shot Him Fined by Court

KINGSTON (CP) — Arthur Jackson, 21, who in August claimed he had been shot in the back by a Kingston police constable, was fined $25 plus costs Friday for having liquor in a place other than his residence on August 25.

Const. Roy Bullock, 30, was suspended for unjustified use of a firearm after a provincial police investigation into Jackson's claims that he had been shot in the back, beaten up and an attempt made to run him down with a police cruiser on the night of Aug. 25.

Bullock was later reinstated and demoted to second class constable.

Rain Raises Fears for Missing Man

BANCROFT (Special) — Teeming rain roused fears for the survival chances of 91-year-old David Casselman, Smithfield, now missing in dense bushland west of here since Wednesday.

Provincial Police continued to press the search this morning, in a widening circle around Paudash Lake where the veteran hunter went missing from his deer runway.

A massive search by police and volunteers, assisted by-helicopter, so far has turned up no clue to the man's whereabouts.

Overnight temperatures have been fairly mild in the area since Wednesday night. However, the district was blanketed by the rain centre which moved over much of Southern Ontario late Friday night.

There were doubts that the helicopter would be used as the search continued for Mr. Casselman today. It was still raining in the Bancroft area and visibility was poor.

Talk-Out Bill To Lower Age For Voting

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons marked Youth Appreciation Week Friday by talking out a bill sponsored by 53-year-old David Lewis (NDP-York South) which seeks to lower the voting age to 18 from 21.

In the hour devoted to public bills the Social Credit Party supported Mr. Lewis but the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals were generally opposed.

Mr. Lewis said youths would vote with at least as much intelligence as adults. Persons under 21 were in the labor force—some were teachers and even some were members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery—and Canada had never hesitated to call 18-year-olds to fight for their country.

Oulas J. Godin (L-Nickel Belt) suggested that the government establish a committee to study how the voting age might be lowered.

Wallace Nesbitt, parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Hees, said there has never been a strong demand by young people for a lowering of the voting age.

Radio Four Will Recall Days of Famous Quartet

The Radio Four, a local male quartet formed in Belleville and something of a national hit in the 1920's, will once again lift its collective voice.

The event marking the one-day re-appearance is the annual Laymen's Service at Tabernacle United Church.

While the name is the same, the years have brought changes to the quartet's membership. The only original male soloist in tomorrow's recital is Harry Moorman.

Mr. Moorman's bass tones for years underscored the baritone and tenor lines of T. Arnold Thomson, Al Stillman and Dr. A. B. Haffner.

That group, whose foundation grew out of the old Rotary Minstrel Shows in the 1920's, went on to score some firsts in Canadian musical history.

Under the direction of the late Leo B. Riggs, it became the first Canadian male quartet to broadcast, making its debut over an Ottawa radio station. It was also the first such group to record in Canada.

Death took its toll of the membership and the original Radio Four disbanded after about a decade of entertaining.

Mr. Moorman recalls.

However, the musicianship to be heard in tomorrow's service will still have a full local flavor.

Joining Mr. Moorman for tomorrow's Radio Four reappearance will be Harold Howard, now resident in Toronto, Alf Evans and Jack Deacon.

Child Struck, Man Faces Three Counts

BANCROFT (Special) — A Bancroft man has been charged on three counts after a two-year-old child was struck by an automobile and hospitalized here last night.

William Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ray Holland, Bancroft, was released from hospital here this morning after being treated for concussion and scalp cuts.

Provincial police meantime say they have charged Ernest Scott with drunk driving, careless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

The Holland child was being pushed in a stroller by his mother when the car struck him.

Sewers Plugged, Water Covers City Hall Floor

Today's rainstorm, one of the worst of the season, has backed up sewers in several parts of the city, keeping the Department of Public Works' crew on the move since early this morning. An accurate count of all the sewers and drains plugged in the city today is impossible, but some of the inconveniences are known. Dufferin St., between Bridge and Dundas has puddles large enough to drown car motors. Perhaps the classic example of flooded basements was in the city hall itself. Water level is about six inches in the public basement washrooms, and nearly as high in the boiler rooms. At last report the city hall furnace had about two inches of water to go before it would have to be shut down.

Stink Bomb Greets Caouette At Elliot Lake

Despite the stink bomb and catcalls, Mr. Caouette spoke to an audience of about 300 for an hour, outlining his party's theories in both French and English. About a dozen persons left when the bomb was set off.

He remarked he had received a lot of free publicity from the local branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, which had protested his visit on Remembrance Day weekend.

The deputy leader denied he has ever described his oath of office as the most shameful he had ever taken.

"I never said such a thing anywhere in Canada — or in Quebec," he said.

Legion branches both here and in Sturgeon Falls have protested the visits. The branch at Sudbury, about 90 miles east of here, has supported the protests.

Mr. Caouette is to speak at a Chamber of Commerce dinner here today and on Sunday will address a public meeting in Sturgeon Falls town hall, at the same time as a Remembrance Day ceremony is scheduled only blocks away.

SPRAINS LEG

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Milton Berle is nursing a sprained leg, hurt while filming a television program. Studio aides said the script called for Berle, 54, to make his entrance by means of a chute. He hit the stage too hard. Dr. Jan Levinthal said Berle's left foot, ankle and leg were sprained. But he completed the show's taping Friday night after his left leg was bandaged from toes to knee.

Report Gallery Official Lost Faith in Chief

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP)—Richard B. Sinnima, director of exhibition extension services for the National Gallery of Canada, resigned last month because he had "lost all faith" in the professional integrity of the gallery's director and assistant director.

This became known Friday when a copy of his letter of resignation was tabled for members of the House of Commons.

"As I have lost all faith in the professional integrity of the director, Dr. Charles F. Comfort, and in the assistant director, Dr. William S. A. Dale, I cannot, in all conscience, continue to work for this institution," wrote Mr. Simmins.

Thus a new ingredient was added to the public controversy swirling around the art exhibition, The Controversial Century owned by Walter P. Chrysler of the automobile family which closed at the National Gallery last Sunday.

ALLEGE ARE FRAUDS

While the 187 paintings of the exhibition were on display at the gallery, allegations were made by art experts in New York and Paris that many of them were frauds.

Dr. Comfort publicly rejected these allegations. He charged Oct. 17 that the Art Dealers Association of America, which investigated the Chrysler exhibition, was "out to hang Mr. Chrysler if they can."

Veterans Hear Address by Lt. Col. Duffy

TRENTON — Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy, the former commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and the now Quinte area co-ordinator of the Emergency Measures Organization, appealed to the 100 plus veterans who had died for their country and he said that he had every hope that they would continue to serve to uphold the freedom and ideals their comrades had died for.

Speaking of the possibility of a nuclear attack on Canada, Col. Duffy said that while everyone hoped it would never happen, it was quite necessary to be prepared. He said that should an attack come, this area, as in other parts of Canada, would be "replanished."

"You'd be told what to do, and you'd do it," he said.

Col. Duffy outlined the setup within the organization for the veterans and stressed the role of the Legion in any future national emergency.

Trenton Legion president Harry Craddock welcomed the veterans and guests to the banquet and his welcome was echoed by Major James MacDonald, himself a branch member, on behalf of town council. The president laid a wreath to the memory of two branch members who have died recently, Senator William A. Fraser and John Silver.

In response to Eli Donaldson's toast "To the Armed Forces" Capt. (Padre) R. Thompson, Commanding Officer of the Repair Depot, told the veterans that it was time for more positive thinking and that "defeatism, fear and enthusiasm" should be substituted for "listlessness, lassitude and boredom," in today's thinking. In this way, he said, we could do honor to the fallen and strive towards the ideals they had died to preserve.

Hunters Safe From Township Prosecution

Hope township, a neighboring municipality of Port Hope, recently acted to nullify a three-day deer-hunting season November 5-7.

The township, fearing for the safety of its residents, imposed a ban on the discharge of firearms—and formed a three-day special police squad to enforce its by-law.

At the same time the Ontario Veterinary College asked for blood and kidney samples from deer shot in Southern Ontario.

Five samples handed in at the regional veterinary laboratory in this village were marked "shot in Hope Township."

The bitter bit for Hope township is that the hunters were not required to identify themselves.

Damage $1,400 In Two Mishaps

TRENTON — Two traffic accidents here Friday night caused a total of $1,400 to five vehicles involved. Police said charges were pending in both incidents.

Most serious mishap was a three-car smash on the town bridge. Police say an automobile driven by Grace Thomas Gunter, 44, of 90 Flim Street, collided with a car operated by William Duncan Burnett, RCAF Station Trenton, and June Frances Simpson, 30, of Glen Miller.

The impact pushed the Simpson auto into a bridge guard rail.

The accident caused a traffic tie-up for over 30 minutes on the only traffic artery linking the east and west ends of town.

Gunter received a cut on the chin.

Remembrance Day

FORTY-FOUR YEARS ago tomorrow, the "Cease Fire" command ended World War I. On that day we honored those who died to give us peace. Added to that honor roll are those who gave their lives in the second great world conflict. It is not enough this Armistice Day to honor the brave dead of two wars by bowing our heads in prayer.

TODAY THROUGHOUT our world many voices are thundering without reason — and threats, like lightning, break and crash over the people's heads . . . clouds scud along the horizon, sometimes building up to frightening thunder-heads . . . yet the eternal stars are there — stars of Hope, of Faith and of Love, now dimmed or hidden by the clouds—now breaking through with a clarity, brilliance and strength that will not be denied.

MAY THESE stars be seen and followed by the wise men of all nations, and may they light the path to peace, with goodwill in the hearts of all men—a warm welcome for their neighbor — and a deep desire for friendship among nations — and a determination to achieve lasting peace.

May This Be The Prayer Today Of The People

A Three-Fold Aristocrat

Eleanor Roosevelt was an aristocrat—of blood, and heart and mind.

This made her one of the century's most outstanding democrats. To say that she was a great woman is to do her only half justice—she was a great human being.

She was an aristocrat by birth and marriage and this brought her an early respect and an audience for her pleas. But it was her aristocracy of heart and mind which earned for her not merely respect but love and admiration.

She married a great man and gave him unfailing support in the heavy tasks which fell to his lot, leading a great nation through the morasses of depression and war. Yet, without in any sense betraying him, she was able to early establish for herself a reputation for independence of thought and will. She did this not so much by differing from her famous husband in his basic beliefs as by clearly and definitely indicating individual convictions as to the relative importance of some of the causes he espoused.

From the earliest days of her emergence as a power-setter of public opinion in her own right, she was ever eager to champion the cause of the under-dog. If she made mistakes, they were more likely to be of the heart than of the mind. Some of the measures she advocated were faulty, but that was because she let her compassion over-rule her reason.

Yet, while ever ready to fight for a principle, she could be coldly practical, too.

It is surprising that a woman of this type should have continued to wield immense influence after the death of her husband and her removal from the White House. Though she won many friends, it was inevitable that she would also make many enemies and one would have supposed that, once deprived of the original source of her influence as the wife of the President of the United States, they would have managed to trim her powers and curtail the sphere of her activities. In the event, precisely the opposite occurred. The years after her husband's death saw her activities widened and her personal influence enhanced. The public, not merely of the United States but of the world, was quick to grasp the fact that here was a woman whose primary desire was to make the utmost possible contribution to the betterment of the world.

It was typical of Mrs. Roosevelt that in recent years her ideal politician should have been Adlai Stevenson and from Stevenson, in the hour of her death, came exactly the right words in which to describe her life in a single sentence: "She would rather light candles than curse the darkness and her glow has warmed the world."

Sensible Talk

The bear that walks like a man is beginning to talk like a man, too. This is an encouraging sign.

First Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin, speaking at a meeting in the Kremlin held to mark the eve of the anniversary of the "great days of the revolution, said "both sides gave way" in the Cuban crisis. They displayed, he said, their "sense of responsibility and reason."

Some persons, he said, asked whether it was right for the Soviet Union to give ground—their doubts about such action presumably arising from the conviction that the U.S.S.R was in the right in the controversy, just as Americans believe that they were in the right.

And that, it seems to us, is an answer also applicable to criticisms of President of the U.S. for giving ground to Russia.

Nuclear weapons are terrifying, but if their awesome power frightens everybody into a willingness to accept reasonable compromises, they may yet prove to be a blessing in a fearful disguise.

An Indian chief hired by the Dominion Government to survey the opinions of his people is said to be a progressive Conservative Party organizer. From Hollywood we had the idea that all Indians were red.—Peterborough Examiner.

Now that New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas has been finally elected to the House of Commons he may feel that the unemployment situation isn't as bad as it was a few weeks ago. —Hamilton Spectator.

It's a big man who can admit a mistake. For example, the Hollywoodite who, after starring in five movies, has sold up and moved to Manhattan to learn acting. — Brantford Expositor.

Lowly M.Ps Embarrass With Free Speech Licence

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Say what you like about this House of Commons, but never say it does not speak its mind.

Time was when any self-respecting MP on the Government side of the Commons, like a small boy at the dinner table, was to be seen but not heard.

He was expected to vote in support of the Government when required, but otherwise to mind his own business.

Never, never was he to raise his voice to challenge the wisdom of the supposedly all-knowing Cabinet.

And this was the way it was through most of 22 years with former Prime Ministers Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent.

As political captains, they ran extremely tight ships. Each backbench MP knew his place and carefully kept to it.

To question, much less quarrel with the Administration's policy line was to invite the certain wrath of the prime minister and of the party executive in the form of a kind of political exile.

TRAINED SEALS

The offending MP who had been so bold as to speak up in discord with the Cabinet harmony of party togetherness suddenly found himself in what amounted to a vacuum.

He wanted something for his constituency, like a Federal Building perhaps. A contract for a defence firm that would mean a lot of jobs? An appointment for an important supporter, maybe?

Fat chance he would have of getting anything.

He was cut off. Favors were out.

He had broken political step and got out of line, so he had to be disciplined. Next time, when he wanted to speak his mind on an issue in the commons, he might behave better.

Party discipline became so rigid that Liberal backbench MPs became known in the Commons, and across the country, too, as "trained seals."

It was one of several things, perhaps, that contributed to the sudden roof-lifting end of 22 years of Liberal rule and the beginning of the new five-year-old Conservative regime.

Under the wry outset, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in one of his earliest declarations of Parliamentary faith, said that the backbench Conservatives would be free to think for themselves, and what is more, be encouraged to speak their minds.

THEY'RE AWAY

They had been elected and sent to Ottawa to represent their constituencies, and that is what the Prime Minister expected them to do.

They would even, like the lead, and possible the life and drive, the spark and fire in the various committees of the Commons.

The Prime Minister, then, would invite other backbenchers to make much the Conservative backbenchers were going to take him at his word.

But take him they did, and Parliament has been a livelier, and, on balance, a better place for it.

They popped with all kinds of good ideas which the Government accepted and put into workable legislation, among them the National Sports Council, changes in capital punishment, broadening of farm aid, industrial incentives, new developments for business and a dozen other things. They had a hand in the shape of what the government has done.

But this freedom to sound off has had its price.

Like the embarrassment to the Government, in mid Cuba crisis, of backbench Conservative MP, Terry Nugent of Edmonton Strathcona, charge President Kennedy with a violation of international law.

Like having three Conservative MPs, E. M. Woollams of Bow River, William Skoreyko of Edmonton East and High Horner of Jasper Edson demand (and very likely get) the scalp of the Director of National Parks for his refusal to abandon Banff and Jasper to the tender mercies of what he protested were the commercial carpetbaggers.

NO BACKTRACK

Too, like Jack McIntosh, Conservative MP for Swift Current-Maple Creek, coming up with a bill to jail Ottawa's bureaucratic "dictators," as he called them, for 14 years, and fine them $5,000.

Also, like Woollams, A. Jack McPhillips, Conservative MP for Victoria and a few other fellow backbenchers conducting a running one-way feud with the politically powerful Federal Civil Service whose votes control six constituencies around the Capital and swing a lot of electoral weight in perhaps a dozen more across the country.

There have been dozens of times when the Conservative backbench MPs, in the wisdom of the supposedly all-knowing Cabinet.

But whatever second thoughts the Prime Minister may have had, there has been no retreat, not even a waivering from the position he took five years ago that the MPs had been put there to speak as spokesmen for the folks back home and not trained seals for the Cabinet.

Could be that the yeast of ideas the backbenchers were up is worth risk of having an independent-minded maverick shoot holes in Cabinet and take out after JFK at the worst possible moment.

Must make life for the PM almost as interesting as it does make Parliament.

Letter to The Editor

Opposes Efficiency Probe of Police

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

The following extract is from the Globe and Mail, Monday, November 5:

"Five teen-age girls were molested on the main street. A passerby who attempted to help was so intimidated he later refused to lay charges against the youths involved. A 15-year-old girl was also reported to have been dragged screaming into a car and when a citizen attempted to interfere he was threatened with a knife. No charges have been laid."

The scene: Preston, Ontario — population 31,790 — a town about the same size as Trenton, probably with similar latent problems, but what size and quality does a police force need to be to prevent repeated public violence such as has plagued Preston and other Ontario towns?

To have the police investigated by business consultants would provide the answer. The accounting or engineering training of the consultants does not qualify them to judge the efficiency of a police force. Such efficiency must be judged by the law-breaking that does not occur. A decision as to what strength is necessary to control crime can be made only by experienced experts. When these matters are decided by laymen, the results are chaos and enforcement is likely to decline.

Trenton's Board of Police commissioners, Judge Anderson and Magistrate Wills, have immense experience in combating lawlessness and are well equipped to decide what strength our police force needs. Probably our commissioners and police force ought to be officially commended for what seems to be enforcement rather than continually criticized because of what is not done. Our citizens should realize, after the unhappy events in other towns in recent weeks, that vicious lawlessness is possible, and indeed likely in small urban centres with inadequate police strength.

Seeks Help With Sidewalk Petition

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I greatly desire a cement sidewalk up Asmonia Street and I have consulted with almost everyone at City Hall for information regarding same.

The approximate cost to the individual taxpayer would be in the neighborhood of 50 cents per foot or $25 yearly over a period of ten years, according to a rough estimate obtained from the assistant city engineer, Mr. Crafo.

Now the way to get a sidewalk is by obtaining a form from the city clerk and petitioning the street so desiring a sidewalk. It has to be signed by the home owners, both husband and wife, and returned to the city office.

I have two forms but can only use one for Lemoine Street as I do not own any property on College Street. Is there someone there who can help me this?

Then if all of the other street residents so desire to have this —it would be much easier and probably cheaper as it would be a greater contract.

I, for one, am sick of these skid-row streets and sidewalks

No child out here can run a bicycle on a sidewalk nor can anyone run a baby carriage further than the back of one's home. No one could walk the roads until last week either.

The people of Parkdale have lovely homes. Let us get together on this project since it is a most reasonable estimate and something that every mother should be proud to have helped take part in obtaining. Such a convenience it would truly be a blessing from God.

— Mrs. Thelma I. Guay.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 10th, 1942

The poppies still blow in Flanders, o'er the fields that once echoed to the gay young laughter of the cream of Canadian manhood. Today they are trampled beneath the foot of the same foe that these young Canadians hurled back in the final flush of victory. But the description of this sacred soil by the tyrannic Nazis shall not change the truth that is forever part of Canada.

Despotic Nazism with its brutality, cruelty and oppression, can never eradicate the memory of those gallant lads who loved their country or in their lips, young eyes gleaming and died "with their faces to the west", that we might live and enjoy the ideals for which they fought.

Today stalwart sons of heroic sires are carrying the torch flung to them by those men of a quarter-century ago. And they are fighting with all the glorious courage, endurance and valor that has been part of their British traditions. Of recent days they are proving to a world who had grown fearful of British prowess, that British valor doggedness and determination, is no story-book tradition.

On Sunday, Canada, remembering, will honor their deeds and sacrifices. Then, in every town, village and hamlet, will go the prayers of millions of Canadians. The memory of the grand men of the First Great War, and that of their gallant sons who have given their all in the present holocaust, will be revered. The memory of their deeds shall blaze in a pillar of fire that time eternal can never dim. "We shall remember them".

This Policy Good Idea

Toronto Star

North York Councillor James Service, speaking for residents of the township, has set a fine example to other municipalities in the coming municipal elections in Metro.

Mr. Service has placed a ceiling on his election expenses and has invited voters who can't afford to help. The ceiling total is $7,500. This contrasts with estimated totals of up to $30,000 by the candidates for previous have spent in the past. He will also refuse donations of more than $75, thus discouraging any firm or developer from seeking favors through large campaign contributions to his campaign. Substantial donations inevitably bear with them the suspicion that special privileges may be sought in return, since the candidate is in office.

In addition to the elections, Mr. Service has promised he will publicity list each individual election according to locality as well as amount.

Mr. Service is, of course, right in his conscientious determination to control campaign expenses and his decision to refuse donations, or even the appearance of obligation, to any big contributors. But such a course should not be voluntary. It is the responsibility of candidate.

Election laws, covering federal, provincial and municipal campaigns, should be reformed so as to impose limits on any candidate's campaign expenses and to require full disclosure of sources and amounts. That is the way to ensure that no candidate is under obligation to private interests.

Trench Mouth Germs Can Spread Very Easily

By JOSEPH G MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some children and I recently discussed the danger of handling wild animals after they are dead. I explained that many times these animals have diseases.

Then one child asked about picking up game that a hunter kills. How does he know if it is diseased?

I have heard that wild rabbits should be handled with gloves so as not to pick up tularemia. — Mrs. L. D.

Rabbit fever — or tularemia — is caused by a germ which infects rabbits and a variety of rodents. It can cause illness and fever in human beings if they acquire the germ. (It is transmitted from one animal to another by insect which bite.)

Rabbit steak is safe to eat, or other forms of cooked rabbit, because heat destroys the germ — just as the mild heating of milk in pasteurization destroys dangerous germs if they happen to be present.

The danger from tularemia is in handling rabbits before they have been cooked.

There is no way of telling whether a rabbit has this germ in its blood.

The safe rule is to make sure that the germ cannot enter your bloodstream. Therefore the use of gloves when handling a rabbit is a required precaution. Notice that I said the germ is transmitted by insects that bite. It doesn't take a large amount of the germ to start trouble. Gloves protect the hands from picking up the germ — if it is present — through some insignificant cut or scratch which may be no more noticeable than an insect's bite.

There is also the risk of some trivial wound by your knife, or puncturing or scratching the skin by a bone.

I certainly don't want to make children (or anyone else) unduly afraid of animals. I don't want to give the impression that man "often" have diseases that are sometimes dangerous to people, but sometimes they do. So know the risks and be careful.

In the wildlife range, I think it's wise to teach children never pick up dead birds. Scoop'em up on a shovel and bury them. They often carry lice or other insects. And after all, the kind of dead bird that is in the backyard has been a sick bird.

Bears and some other animals that live at least in part on meat (or meat scraps, or garbage) can carry trichinella, the disease that can come from pigs if the pork is not thoroughly cooked. Bear doesn't have to be rare — cows don't eat meat, and the meat carries the infection.)

Many wild animals, as well as domestic dogs, can carry rabies. Maybe not often, but a lifetime of being careful is better than being exposed just once to that disease. (Bats, too, can carry rabies.)

So let's not be overly scared — just smart enough to be careful.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain the difference between a cyst and a tumor. — Mrs. R.H.

A cyst is a sac which fills with fluid or semi-fluid material, such as a small gland which becomes plugged and cannot discharge the substances it secretes. A tumor, on the other hand, is a growth. The simplest I can think of is a wart. A common cyst is of the sebaceous, or oily skin glands. A common tumor, in women, is the fibroid tumor of the uterus. There are also ovarian cysts.

Dear Dr. Molner: On the record of my operation it says "symptoms of the gallbladder with obstruction and cholecystectomy." Would you break it down in simple words? — Mrs. R.H.

The obstruction is clear enough — the outlet was plugged, doubtless by a stone or stones. "Empyema" means pus accumulation, which is not unlikely in such cases, of course, and "cholecystectomy" means removal of the gallbladder.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

With all those launching pads in Florida quite apparently prime targets for enemy rockets, I am wondering if quite a number of the people who used to formerly spent their time in those benign latitudes won't be coming back to Ontario to, say, the wide empty spaces of New Mexico, Texas or Arizona. In which case, I suppose, the travel agencies, where do we send the people who want to escape winter and risk, both?

Winter isn't so bad, if you clasp it to your bosom. It is only in cities and towns that winter develops those characteristics of slush, filth, the sluggard, traffic and generally cringing misery of the pedestrian that dispirits the elderly who are also well-off. But winter whole, winter in its beauty, severity, sublime stillness, high skies and rich enfolding blizzards, is not dispiriting but inspiring. The most memorable winter holiday I ever had was at Moose Factory, on James Bay. Every time I go south now, I remember it kindly. It was a wise choice of my life and miles to my horizon.

Young People Seeking More Education Than Few Years Ago Says Sister

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — "Young people aren't the same as they were a few years ago—and I want to keep in touch with them," said the youthful, blue-eyed nun.

Rev. Sister Marie-Laurent de Rome, who now divides her time between being a professor of religious philosophy at Montreal's Basile - Moreau College and acting as one of eight members serving on the Quebec royal commission on education, speaks about education and young people with authority.

She has been teaching Montreal students, from grade school to university, for the last 13 years, and with the royal commission has seen and studied school systems from California to the most remote districts of Quebec.

"Students today are anxious about the future and want to be prepared for a changing world. They read more and have a broader experience than those of a generation ago. And they don't come to school simply to receive — now they want to challenge things. But this is a good thing."

PROBLEM ACUTE

For the last year the royal commission, on which she is one of the women members, has been assessing the "acute" education situation in this province.

It had always been the policy in Quebec, she explained, to have diversified systems of education so that others were not obliged to learn French. Had it not been for the network of classical colleges, people in rural areas at one time would have had no opportunity to receive an education.

She added that at one time women in rural Quebec were better educated than their husbands because they usually had no time or need for an education. The last five years had seen an "incredible increase of 400 per cent" in the number of women attending Quebec colleges.

But the different systems posed a number of problems today. Some students were entering universities from grade 12, and others from grade 13 in classical colleges.

MUST POOL RESOURCES

One of the main recommendations of the commission would be aimed at co-ordinating and unifying the systems. "Because of the demographic boom we simply must pool all our resources."

Sister Marie's magnetic charm and dedication to her work shines through her conversation.

"We French are a Latin people," she laughed, "and we get very passionate about such things.

"We need new universities, better high schools and more free education. And Quebecers are showing a desire for quality.

"But, the question is, are people ready to make the effort to change? We must be ready to talk to one another and people, and I wonder if we are really conscious enough of the need."

"Investment in education is a strange one. People are paying for something they have already had and from which they won't directly benefit. Yet they are always ready to build roads and expand industry — things they benefit from now and in the future."

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

With so many Winter weddings being planned, we've been deluged with questions about expenses customarily absorbed by bride and groom. These are typical:

1. Who pays for the wedding invitations and announcements?

2. Do the bride and her parents absorb the entire cost of the reception, including flowers and champagne?

3. If the ceremony is a double-ring ceremony, does the bride pay for the groom's ring?

4. Who pays the fees for the minister, the organist and for the choir or soloist who participate in the ceremony?

5. Who pays for the bride's bouquet?

6. Does the bride customarily pay for her attendants' flowers?

7. Who provides and pays for transportation for the wedding party to the church and reception?

8. Does the bride purchase the corsages for both mothers and supply boutonnieres for the groom, best man and ushers?

9. Who pays for hosting out-of-town attendants of both bride and groom?

10. Which family pays for the wedding trip?

1. The bride.

2. Yes, the bride's family absorbs the entire cost.

3. Yes, she does.

4. The groom pays the minister's fee, but the bride pays the sexton, the organists and any soloist or choral group hired for the occasion.

5. The groom. He also provides her going-away corsage.

6. Yes, but often the groom takes care of this expense. It depends on the custom in the locality where the wedding takes place.

7. The bride, but the groom takes care of any expense involved in transporting himself and his best man to the ceremony.

8. No, this is part of the groom's budget.

9. The bride pays for her attendants and any special guests while the groom takes care of housing fees for out-of-town ushers, best man or specially invited guests of his parents.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Harriet V.: My headaches are due to his constant criticism of me:

Marvin V.: She brings on her headaches herself by her big undertakings.

Harriet V.: I suffer from tension headaches and migraine. I've run the course of doctors and clinics and they've thrown the problem back at me to solve. They tell me to try to change my philosophy of life, not to take things so seriously.

I try to relax. But my husband won't help me. He still raises a fuss if the meat isn't just right, if I forget to call for his shoes, if I leave lights on. I get headaches just dreading what he'll say. The doctors have helped me see that few things are worth getting tensed up about. Now I wish Marvin could see it too, and realize the connection between his picking on me, and our doctor bills.

Marvin V.: If Harriet didn't have me to blame for her headaches, she might admit the truth, which is that she brings them on herself. She bites off more than she can chew for the Ladies Auxiliary, the Eastern Star and the Book Club she belongs to.

Naturally she has no strength left for the home and for me. And if I indicate that I merely expect the minimum attention a wife should give to her husband's comfort, she says I give her a new attack of headaches. It's funny that nothing happens to her head when she runs all over town collecting old clothing for a rummage sale, but let me tell her the potatoes are still raw and she runs for the ice bag. If she rested more and took care of her home right, she'd feel okay.

The Council: When it comes to headaches it has been observed that there are just two types of people — those who get'em and those who give'em. But the observation is wrong, because almost everybody gets them at some time, and the doctors claim that many people give them to themselves through excessive emotional tension.

Let's stop blaming, Harriet, and start tanning those hard-boiled hides. What do we find here? A wife who is driving herself beyond the limits of her mental energy. A husband who hasn't agreed to take second place after her other concerns, but insists on his due, never mind the rummage sale. If he speaks up, aha! there's where the headache comes from, she says; But if he didn't speak up, she'd still get the headache, because it's Nature's way of making her slow down while the energy battery gets recharged. And she'd still find a way to link it to Marvin. His silence would oppress her. She'd get guilt feelings, too, for the short end of the stick she hands him.

Improvement rests with Harriet. Marvin must offer a fair amount of understanding. He has a sensitive, high-strung wife who must budget her energy allowance better Harriet needs his direction to be sure first things come first. But, if she slips up, Marvin must not "dread" his fate. She must feel brave enough and relaxed enough to face her and explain, secure in his sympathy.

What the doctors want Harriet to do is to turn her headaches into lessons for more sensible living. Each throb is a warning to go back to the doctor at the Cornell Univ. Medical College come these pointers on curing the ache:

1. Prevent them by changing your habits of living and thinking.

2. Be less fussy about minor details.

3. On tired, full days, don't force yourself to meet your own strict quota.

4. Avoid wasted, useless, dead-end worry.

5. Lower your sights. Get joy out of what you can do.

Physically, a headache comes from dilated blood vessels or from muscle tension. But Harriet must ask — and answer — "What causes that?" Then her cure will begin.

THE LIFE OF THE PARTY

That Jimmy Bates certainly thought he was a riot last night!

Why, what did he do?

He acted like the life of the party—singing, dancing, clowning around. Kid stuff!

Usually you're complaining because he's too quiet.

He is quiet. But the kids all like him. He always seemed such a good head. But last night . . .

What happened?

Well, for one thing, he'd had quite a bit to drink. You'd never believe the change in him.

Alcohol does that to some people, especially a shy person like Jim. It sort of loosens them up.

It certainly does. Why Jim even tried to start a fight with John Archer because John didn't want Jim to drive.

Jim could easily get into real trouble from drinking too much. It worries you, doesn't it?

Yes—I just hope he shows a little more sense next time.

DO YOU KNOW:

—that alcohol-is an anaesthetic that numbs behaviour controls and judgment in everyone?

—that most alcoholics say they began as "social drinkers"—and that in Canada, about 8% of social drinkers become alcoholics?

—that many alcoholics say they began drinking heavily while in their teens?

—that anyone can get scientifically dependable information about alcohol and its effects by writing to:—

THE BIG SKY COUNTRY: MONTANA

(Conclusion)

"The links are chance, the chain is fate."—Michael Hamburger.

"Ever read adventure stories, when you were a youngster, say about Custer?"

"No, never," I answered my husband, "just read books such as Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, The Little Colonel. Books like that."

Indiana, who resented the invasion of gold seekers, and by 1868, Custer again led a force (troops of the 7th Calvary) into Montana territory where the Indians were giving trouble in the southeast part. He took the same route as before, passing through the same places. They camped on the mouth of Powder, Tongue and Big Horn rivers which all empty into the Yellowstone River, drawing their source from the southern part of the state. Terry who was in command of the entire expedition sent Custer with Major Reno and Captain Benteen in the valley between the Rosebud and Little Big Horn(branch of the Big Horn) rivers where Indians were said to be camped.

"Then, perhaps, since this is Custer country, we should visit his battlefield. Give you some idea what you've missed."

A glance at the roadmap disclosed it wasn't too far, being in the southeastern part of the state, and as we bid Glendive good-bye and pulled onto the fine new highway which crosses the Yellowstone river at Fallon, was given this brief on the general:

"Custer, a Westpoint man and young veteran of the civil war was given various military duties in connection with opening of the west. In the summer of 1873 he first entered Montana Indian Territory when sent on the Yellowstone expedition with his men of the 7th Calvary to guard Northern Pacific railroad surveyors.

Custer left Bismark (N.D.) the site of Fort Abraham Lincoln and with his men reached the Yellowstone near the mouth of Glendive creek where the steamboat "Far West" from up the Missouri River awaited them with supplies. Custer and his men along with the surveyors followed the Yellowstone river bed as the railroad's line was plotted, encamped on the mouth of the Tongue river, fought Indians on the mouth of the Rosebud Creek and in due time completed the mission, and returned to Fort Abraham Lincoln, where Custer's wife Libby welcomed them. They were a devoted couple.

"The next year, 1874, Custer was ordered to explore the Black Hills of South Dakota, which he did for 19 days. He reported the beauty of the country, its suitability for settlement and discovery of gold.

"In the course of their strategy, the three men separated, and Custer and his men (221) were surrounded and entirely wiped out by a band of 4,000 Cheyenne and Sioux. To this day, since there are no survivors, it still is a mystery. Only one animal survived—Commanche, a horse of one of the officers.

Even as we passed Kerry (named after the commander) with its big elevator, and through Miles City with its Custer County court house, on the mouth of the Tongue River, and then into open beautiful flat country hemmed in by hills, now passing through Rosebud and finally to Forsyth, where we stayed the night, hunt and find lovely gains, dine at the Howdy Hotel cafe, and sleep in a motel close to the Northern Pacific, its freight cars stamped with "Main Street of the Northwest" in large white letters. Still—Custer and his adventures here just didn't belong to register. They don't seem real.

In the morning we turned south on No. 315 that led us through the valleys of the Rivers Rosebud and Little Big Horn onto the Cheyenne reservation Lame Deer, a small town complete with a coin laundry and police car driven by a Cheyenne. Here we breakfasted, and then on and on through beautiful land with its grey sage and yellow grass coloring against distant blue mountains—In suddenly come upon a rise of land covered with tiny white crosses.

And by magic. Custer and his struggle with the Indians was so real, it choked you. In the visitor centre, filled with maps, photographs and dioramas, we listened to Miss Margot Liberty, a young girl with an M.A. degree from Montana university on Indian history give a most vivid account of the battle. She made one see it and live through it, as she pointed out various points of interest from the circular glassed in lecture room.

Later we spoke with Mrs. Liberty about her work. She hopes to continue with her work on Indians on a fresh for her doctorate, and when we mentioned being in Lame Deer she smiled and said: "I taught school two years at Lame Deer. It was a wonderful experience. The feeling has died down now against the white man. Yet every now and then an old Cheyenne would come in his head with a gleam in his eye and say: "We did it once and we can do it again!"

Vienna's New Wine Inspires Everyone to Be Innkeeper

By SHIRLEY & BOB SLOANE

VIENNA — In the suburban villages of Nussdorf and Grinzing and surrounding areas, there are some 1,900 vineyards, some no bigger than your vegetable plot. No matter, every farmer here fancies himself a vintner and inkeeper to boot.

For more than half a century it has been the custom for these growers, whenever they had a batch of new wine on hand, to clear out the front rooms of their homes, install homemade tables and chairs, hang some heirloom decorations, hire a few of the local boys who could play the squeeze-box and violin and perhaps stammer out a few lyrics, and go into the pub business.

Cheek-on-the-Danube ensued. with everybody and his brother selling wine whenever he felt like it. A few obtained permanent licenses. For the rest the government legalized the informal practice — known as Heurigen — by permitting each entrepreneur to operate for three weeks at a time once or twice a year.

Except for a few places that have grown into night clubs with swingin' downtown type bands in the back room and prices to match, Heurigen remain unabashedly dedicated to the "Biedermeier Zeit" which gave it birth. This was the Golden Age, the Happy Time, the Good Old Days of the Empire, the 40 years from 1876 to 1916 when, old-timers recall, you could walk the streets of Vienna and tip your hat to Johann Strauss.

ALL ALIKE,
ALL DIFFERENT

The dozens of taverns in old stone buildings are all alike, and all different. Many, like Karl Trumler's, are set in gardens. Here there is a wine press in the back room and strolling musicians pour forth melodies like "Fascination" and "The Anniversary Waltz," old gypsy melodies which no one has ever told them are popular songs in America.

At Poldi Kurtz the carved fronts of the barrels are wall plaques. Antique bronze and pewter mugs line the stone walls, and the chandeliers look lik grape bowers.

Best of all, there is a three piece ensemble of accordion, piano and violin that drips a brand of Vienna schmaltz rarely heard elsewhere. The plump-lith leader in a double-breasted suit and vest, a curling frame about his bald head like everyone's father, turns down the corners of his mouth and croons in a quavering voice usually reserved for weddings and private parties.

The songs may be those of Emmerich Kalman, detailing with how the angels come to Vienna for a holiday, or the tales an old chestnut tree in Grinzing could tell if it could talk.

Elsewhere Karl Harlass' famous "Third Man" zither or a gypsy zimbalo may provide the music, and a voiceless accordion player — likely the local choirmaster — may bark out the lyrics a la Rex Harrison.

But the effect is always the same — timeless, sentimental, Viennese, and what the heck, let's have another glass of wine even if we do hate ourselves in the morning.

We drove eastward the next morning through the rolling farmland of Eastern Austria, past the Russian cemetery where red stars instead of crosses decorate the graves.

Sport-gliders swooped silently like gulls above the ruins of a hilltop castle. We passed through towns entered via massive medieval gates, some still equipped with portcullises. In the Alpine fashion, house fronts are painted with picture stories. One of them commemorates the school days there of composer Joseph Haydn.

COLORS OF AUTUMN

The hills are terraced at odd angles and striped with the colors of autumn. Apples from the trees lining the road crunched under our tires.

In a village we passed a solemn funeral procession led, traditionally, by the local firemen wearing their war decorations. Among the chiselled peasant faces with the deep eyes and great mustaches, one aristocratic bearing was discernible. "That is the Count", said our guide respectfully, crossing himself as the horse drawn hearse passed. "He lives up there on the hill. An important man must have died".

We passed through Bad Deutsch-Altenburg, once Carnuntum. The ruins of an 8,000-seat Roman amphitheatre still stand. This was the easternmost of Roman European settlements. They went no farther because beyond, in the Carpathian Mountains, dwelt Goths and Vandals.

They still do. Just out of sight lies the Danube, bordered on the Czech side with barbed wire instead of trees. Ahead of us, the lovely Castle of Bratislava in Pressburg, almost within reach, the Iron Curtain falls across the road and brings an effective end to a Western-er's casual tour.

Beyond are watchtowers, mine fields and other impediments of tyranny, effectively preventing tourism from the other direction.

Question: We intend butchering a hog soon and I would appreciate any recipes you may recommend for liverwurst and Polish sausage. When prepared could the liverwurst be kept in a freezer? I believe the Polish sausage is smoked and will keep for some time under proper conditions. I have several methods for smoking meats so only the actual recipes is necessary. My husband is Polish and likes garlic in a sausage, but I suppose flavoring is optional. I would also like a recipe for Worcestershire sauce.

Eileen Y.

Answer: I admire your ambition, Eileen. I've answered your questions, now all you have to do is find the ingredients.

Dinner Menu

Appetizers of Cheese-and-Anchovy-Stuffed Celery with Vegetable Juice Cocktail; Baked Squash with Oyster Stuffing (see Tuesday); Mixed Crumbed Parsnips; Spinach Hollandaise; Plum Cobbler; 10% Cream; Coffee.

LIVER SAUSAGE (Liverwurst)

To 4 pounds of well-cooked pork from boned hogs' heads or jowls add 2½ lbs. of well-cooked pork (or beef), liver, 3½ lbs. of well cooked tripe and ¼ lb. of flour. Cut the meat, liver and tripe into small pieces and after mixing them thoroughly with the flour, put the mixture through a coarse grinder. Season with 3 oz. fine salt, 1 oz. finely ground white pepper and ½ oz. finely powdered sage, and regrind finely. One finely chopped onion may be added if desired. Stuff the meat into hog bungs or round casings, and cook the sausages for 10 minutes in boiling water until they float. After cooking lay them in ice water to cool and whiten and then hang them up to dry. Do not freeze. Also do not keep as smoked meat does.

POLISH SAUSAGE

To 9 lbs. of beef are added 3 lbs. of pork trimmings and ½ lb. of buckwheat flour. The beef and pork should each be ground finely and then mixed. To the meat add the flour, and for every 9 lbs. of meat add 1½ oz. salt ½ oz. finely ground black pepper, ½ oz. sage, ½ oz. mustard seed, ¼ oz. powdered garlic (optional). Regrind the mixture so that the seasonings and the flour will be thoroughly mixed through it. Stuff the mixture into casings, smoke the sausages for 2 hours, and then cook them for 8 minutes in water at a temperature of 165 deg. Fahr., not boiling. Care should be taken to see that the smokehouse is not too hot, for if it is the grease will cook from the sausage and it will be dry and tasteless.

WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE FORMULA

(Note: One dram is 1/16 oz.) 2 drams pimiento, 1 dram clove, 1/dram black pepper, 1 dram ginger, 1 oz. curry powder, 1 dram capsicum, 2 oz. mustard, 2 oz. shallots, bruised, 2 oz. salt, 8 oz. brown sugar, 4 oz. tamarinds, 1 pt. sherry wine, 2 pts. wine vinegar.

The spices must be freshly bruised. The ingredients are to simmer together with the vinegar for an hour, adding more of the vinegar as it is lost by evaporation; then add the wine, and if desired, some caramel coloring. Set aside for a week, strain, and bottle.

YOUR FURS NEED T. L. C.

Furs were never more "in" than right now. Hats, coats, jackets, stoles, ascots, tuck-ins, and even jerkins made of fur, parade this season's fashion show runways. Lynx, minks, fox, persian lamb, electrified lamb, sable broadtail, leopard, all the seals and even the humble rabbit, all need tender loving care to remain at their best.

Fur fashions are made for our cold Canadian winters. It will take a great deal of will power to resist some of these appealing fur fashions, particularly as they are so practical. We can only suggest that you buy the best quality fur in your price range. A first-class muskrat is a much better investment than a cheap beaver, although both would cost about the same. There are occasional bargains to be had in furs, but only from reputable retail stores, who stand behind their merchandise.

Once you have bought your fur — be it a full-length coat of mink or a small pillbox of cosy bunny, there are a few ground rules you should follow in order to keep your fur in best condition. Because of its leather backing, fur should never be stored near heat. Drying will result and then the fur will crack and peel, resulting in bald spots, or the seams will loosen and a rip or tear will appear.

Avoid carrying your hand-bag over your arm or shoulder, as constant friction on the same place will eventually produce baldness. Furs should be worn, not stored away, as the air and light help to maintain the gloss and lift of the hair. Here is the garment which is definitely not too good to wear to work! Wear it everyday and enjoy it.

If you get caught in a sleet storm, as you probably will, because you live in Canada, don't attempt to do more than mop up the excess water from your fur, with a soft towel. Don't put to work with a hair dryer, as one of our friends did. The result was a dried out pelt, which ended its life as a not too successful remodelled jacket.

Polythylene bags would seem to be wonderful storage bags for furs, as they are air-tight and repel moths. Just because they are airtight makes bags of this type the worst things you could wrap around your furs. Nothing beats professional fur storage care during the warm months of the year.

There is a wonderfully scented coat hanger cover on the market, which will perfume the lining of any coat — it seems to go with mink, though. Needless to say — we hope — no one in their right mind would put perfume directly on fur, although it used to happen. This causes a bleached bald spot.

When you are tempted to be overly casual with your fur, just remember lots of T. L. C. and daily exercise and you'll both last for years.

If you have a question, just write Pegg Rogers care of The Ontario Intelligencer.

The Golden Years

Lower Pride, Use Imagination To Earn Money in Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

Mr. W. George Cookman has built up a $400-a-month business since his retirement a year ago, and would like to tell others how it's done.

"I first had to make accommodation with my pride," he says. "Almost everybody must do that after 65 if he wants to get anything done. There are very few jobs a retired man can strike into that have the same level of prestige as his career job. Most men are embarrassed to step down to where they must, which is why so many of them lost their way to the cemetery."

Mr. Cookman went into the typewriter repair business.

"I worked in the office of a large insurance company, and had a reasonably good desk job. One of my collateral duties was the upkeep of all the office equipment, which was mostly typewriters. We had 60 of them in use.

"This was one of the most troublesome chores in the place," he continues. "Outsiders had to do the upkeep jobs and we could never find anybody who was satisfactory. We tried calling in individual repair men or specialty repair shops when something broke. The cost was high and the service slow.

"We tried contract repair service — so much per month to keep everything running. This was no good.

NEW SYSTEM NEEDED

"When I moved up toward retirement we were still playing the thing hand-to-mouth and about a third of our typewriters were always on the blink . . ."

Mr. Cookman got all the books he could find on typewriters from the public library. He wrote to the manufacturers of the major brands, asking for all literature that might help him become a typewriter repair man. He bought two second-hand models for $20, and with about the same tools and the same puttering urge the normal householder has, he took them apart to see what made them work.

"It was pretty simple to sell my company on the idea that I could be its typewriter repair man after I retired. Its only reservation was that I be responsible for only 20 typewriters as a starter, and if I could handle that I could take over all of them . . . on a monthly contract fee basis.

"Companies — the good ones at least — are always inclined to throw anything of this type to their retired employees. But in this case it wasn't a kindness matter; I knew of a company problem that the company couldn't solve. I was offering to solve it . . ."

Mr. Cookman worked out a system on the typewriters as soon as he took over all 60 of them. He talked the company into buying four extra ones. One of these, always in top shape, was kept in a company office for emergency replacement. The other three were on the repair circuit.

Every Monday morning, Mr. Cookman started delivering three reconditioned machines to the company, and picking up three used ones. In this way each typewriter was reconditioned every 20 weeks.

HOME REPAIR BENCH

"I have a big repair bench in the basement, and have bought a few tools. I plan to spend about three hours every morning, five days a week, at the bench. But as the system gets rolling the typewriters hold up better. I am actually putting about 10 hours a week into the job, plus a couple of hours for delivery every Monday morning . . . and, incidentally, three typewriters fit perfectly in the back seat of my car . . .

Mr. Cookman says it was a bit awkward to change his status from a white-collared office man to a repair man. He alleviated the pain somewhat by announcing he was setting up a company called "The Fix-It Company, Limited" . . . "and the word 'Limited' didn't mean a stock or two and 60 minutes of imagination to the idea.

The Exchequer Court judge also told a press conference that opposition Leader Pearson believed Canada's international defence commitments should be re-examined. Mr. Pearson agreed with 5½ of the delegation's six points, the only reservation being on the question of NATO control of nuclear weapons if they were secured in Canada.

Mr. Justice Thorson also said New Democratic Party Leader Douglas fully supported the nuclear disarmament brief, and that A. B. 79 Gifts and a Big Headache

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—Every year Christmas staggers us. Instead of a joyful season, we worry how we are going to pay all the bills. These are the ones we provide gifts for:

1. Our three children.
2. Ourselves, from our three children ($1.00 for each gift.)
3. Unemployed couple, rooming with us free.
4. Husband's secretary.
5. Christmas box at my husband's office.
6. 24 gifts in all, given by the three children to music teachers, leaders at "Y" and church, and school Christmas baskets.
7. Four grandparents, one great-grandmother; 14 brothers, sisters and in-laws; 18 nieces and nephews, two old maid aunts.
8. Milkman, mailman, paperboy.
9. Baby sitter.

We buy each other something which we would simply have to get anyway. Last year the children's friends gave them gifts; we didn't reciprocate and the children felt badly. On top of all this we sent 163 cards and got 200.

We dread and hate Christmas every year. Could you please help me?—CHRISTMAS BLUES.

DEAR WOULD-BE SANTA—Are you serious? Your list adds up to 79 gifts and a great big headache. If your sisters and brothers and uncles and aunts are doing the same, all of you must have the Christmas blues.

You could take the lead in calling a halt. It's getting popular to put family and in-law names in a hat in advance and draw one. If you do this, each person will receive one carefully chosen gift.

No teachers or leaders expect gifts. More thoughtful and less expensive, would be a note in such persons expressing thanks for special help given during the year.

Limit your card list to real friends at a distance—the ones you can't phone and won't be seeing.

Don't let big talk from other boys and girls make your youngsters greedy for the recognition they think goes with giving. The essence of Christmas is the thoughtfulness and love that warm the heart. This can be expressed by a note, a parcel of a dozen homemade cookies or a jar of your own special jam. Or a teen-ager's gift of an evening's baby sitting.

You are not alone. Your example and your ingenuity may relieve other Canadians of their perennial Christmas Blues.

DEAR DORIS—I am an eleven-year-old grade six student and I like poetry. Both my teachers and friends say it is pretty good. Could you please send me the addresses of some children's or teen's magazines which might publish my poetry? —J. M. O.

DEAR J. M. O.—Look them over in your library. See the poems they publish. If they seem to be something like yours, try sending one in to the editor. If you want an answer or your poem back, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If your teacher thinks your poetry worth publishing, don't fret one or two rejections floor you. Send it to the next one on your list. Maybe Number Nine or Ten will take it'

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED—It's just as much your lack of sympathy as your lack of physical ability to co-operate that produces nervousness and short temper in your husband. He is virile and still needs his mate.

Talk with your doctor to learn more about this. Affection from you, genuine understanding and some mutual hobbies can help release the tensions under which he is struggling.

bishops and the place of the laity.

A microphone in St. Peter's Basilica has carried every closed council session, word by Latin word, into the Pope's private study.

The pontiff thus has been able to hear the approximately 250 prelates who have spoken so far.

Estimates all along have been that the council's second phase would begin after Easter, April 14. Sources are now saying that many bishops want to get the council going again in January.

Other sources say thinking favors a 10-month lapse with resumption next October.

No one can say yet with assurance which of the three possibilities the Pope will adopt.

completed Monday. The equipment is valued at $5,000,000.

Department officials said India had not submitted any request for additional weapons but authorities here said U.S. Brig.-Gen. John E. Kelly was due in New Delhi over the weekend to discuss further aid.

French Ambassador Jean Paul Garnier announced that his country is speeding military equipment, including helicopters.

FLY CANADIAN PLANES

A Canadian official said six Dakota transport planes from Canada should be in New Delhi next week.

Prime Minister Nehru told a meeting of civil servants the government has started making suitable weapons that should be available in large quantities by next month.

He also said the Soviet Union, which he described as "in a fix because they are allies of China," is standing by its promise to supply India with MIG jet fighters. He said deliveries are expected in December.

Nehru accused Peking of responding to Hitlerian "lie" tactics in offering what Nehru said were phoney peace offers.

RETURN TO CAPITALISM?

"They came into the market from the collection of a collateral descendant and were bought for £2,900 ($10,900) by E. and F. Kraus of New York, who outbid the Plymouth city council by £100 ($300). Plymouth has objected to the grant of an export licence, and we should think so, too."

Hastings J.F. Attend Annual Church Service

The Hastings County Junior Farmers held their annual church service at St. Andrew's Church in Stirling, at which Mr. Gibson Patterson, of Carleton County, past assistant agriculture representative of Hastings County spoke on the topic, "By Your Works You Shall Be Known." He was introduced by Lyle McLaughlin, assistant agriculture representative.

The choir for the evening consisted of Junior Farmers of the county under the direction of Mrs. Lorne Matthews, organist and choir leader, Mr. Grant Richardson and rendered two lovely hymns: "Christ Is All You Need," and "Thou Will Keep Him in Perfect Peace."

The Scripture, from St. Matthew and St. Mark was read by Ruth Morgan and Don Bailey and the offering was donated to the Benevolent Fund.

A Lift for Living

We Defeat Our Own Desires By Living in Ivory Towers

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

The other day we were were. tensely awa ti ng de- velopments in the Cuban cri- sis, I asked a taxi-driver whose cab I entered, "What is the latest news?" He replied: I don't turn on the radio to hear the news. Whatever happens, we can't do anything about it anyway."

To be sure, the game of world politics is played on such a vast scale that many indi- viduals feel themselves to be just helpless pawns. So why bother about world affairs? And they turn their thoughts in o themselves.

After the First World War and again after the Second we had hundreds of books on how to find peace of mind and inner happiness. When we try to live in ivory towers of comfortable thoughts while the world goes to the devil, we destroy the spirit of democracy and even- tually defeat our own desired ends.

There is a more worthy way of thinking. May we lay down a prescription given several cen- turies ago by one who made a defective body dynamic enough to undergo incessant travel and unspeakable hardship, one who rose to such stature that his shadow fell across the whole Mediterranean world. I refer to the Apostle Paul, and to his formula for self-mastery, which he wrote to his friends at Philippi: "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembl- ing for God is at work in you, both to will and to work for his good pleasure."

Let us look at the first half of that formula. Work out your own salvation." In this self-help we have our new psy- schological aids of which Paul never heard. We have learned about that region of the mind which lies below the level of conscious thought. We know that down there are our suppressed desires, our lost memories, our instinctive drives, our sources of mysterious strength. We have discovered that this hidden dy- namo of the Unconscious can be made to work for us.

We have modern ways of talk- ing ourselves into new states of mind. We were told in the 1920's by Fr. Coue that we could sweeten our dispositions and lighten our shadows by repeat- ing to ourselves, "Day by day in every way I am getting bet- ter and better." We know that our minds are most susceptible to these health-giving suggest- ions at certain times, as for in- stance in the morning before the awaking censor has closed the mental shutters, or at night evokes the mood of relaxation. We now recognize that our minds can be made to work for us even while we sleep and often unle the knotty problem which has baffled our waking hours.

With all these modern scien- tific insights, why call on God to help us? For one thing, the thought of God imparts a sense of sacred responsibility to the process of self - improvement. When Paul said "Work our your own salvation with fear and trembling," he did not mean the craven cowardice of one who dreads future punishment, but the sensitive carefulness of one who handles entrusted funds with more care than his own. It is the feeling of a good son who fears that he may hurt his father. It is the feeling of a good father who fears he may let his family down.

This fear of being unfaithful to God and to others helps to free us from the self-centred fears for our ov health and suc with the interes our families a in our nation It keeps us liste and calls of nee us to help.

DELAYED PRIDE

Also, God h ps us from thinking too hig ly of ourselves. Dr. Everett H lells of a man who got stuck beneath the overhead girders of an Oklahoma. was stalled. Th highway ex- perts worked for hours to re- lease the truck. Power trucks tried to push or pull it free. Finally a little boy, who was eagerly watching, asked this simple question, "Why don't you let the air out of the tires of the trailer?" The air was let out and the truck was re- leased. Often a divine deflation of our pride will help us out from our difficulties.

Moreover, God often imparts flashes of wisdom when we are at "our wit's end." When rged and al- mmersed him- great orator- said that the Hallelujah Chorus he heard. From a Power above after watching bed of a sick mother exclaimed, "I didn't in me to do all the strength was given her as given to Saint able to do ex- ceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think according to the power at work within us."

Yes, remember the Apostle's words, "God is at work in you both to will and to work for his good pleasure."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It had to come sometime and the Detroit Red Wings' fans in these parts are not bemoaning the fact their favorites finally bowed to the inevitable—and are taking the usual ribbing from the Canadiens supporters.

They flashed a brilliant path across the young National Hockey League horizon, racking up a 10-game unbeaten record before bowing the other night to the Habs.

They may have reached the end of the spectacular victory drive, but the slump will have to be of cliff-like proportions. The nail-biting duo that with Sawchuk out for the time being, it may affect the club. He was sensational during the drive and his work kept the Wings' morale at high level.

Sid Abel says: "As long as they keep working as hard as they're doing right now they'll be tough to stop. It's when you don't work that you get in trouble."

The sensation of the club has been a young man by the name of Calvin Parker MacDonald, a journeyman left-winger with a fast, deadly shot. Until this season the erratic Red MacDonald was a player who couldn't hold down a regular position in the league because he didn't score often enough to mitigate defensive shortcomings.

Parker had scored only 42 NHL goals in 294 games across eight seasons. He added some eight for Toronto, 15 for New York and 19 for Detroit.

In the 1960-61 season MacDonald played a full schedule for the Red Wings, scoring 14 goals but early last season he was ordered to Sudbury and refused to go. He went home to Sydney, N.S. under suspension, then agreed to join the Detroit farm club at Hershey.

When training camp opened two months ago, Parker was 29 and apparently still going nowhere. Sid Abel, however, had other ideas. He wanted "a guy who can put the puck in the net when he gets close," despite Gordie Howe. "I knew Parker could do that and besides Howe had said he always liked him because he knew what to do with the puck."

"Gord would say, 'Get MacDonald in front of the net and I'll get the puck to him and he'll put it in the net. I figured," said Abel, "if Howe had that much confidence in him, he was worth a shot on the line. I felt myself that he was too good a scorer to be sitting on the bench. He's not as bad a defensive player as he's been made out, either."

The line has been producing like a shotgun since MacDonald started to work with Howe and Delvecchio. About half the club's output is its current record, which includes power plays. The Wings have scored ten goals in 38 power-play chances and have allowed only three in 42 opposition attempts.

The Wings with their ten-game unbeaten string have executed the most spectacular start of any Detroit team in history.

The currently lowly Boston Bruins hold the record for the longest undefeated string of 23 set in the 1940-41 season. The Bruins had 15 wins and eight ties, starting with a 5-4 win over Detroit December 22, 1940, and ending with a 2-0 shutout at the hands of the New York Rangers on February 25th, 1941.

Hawks, Habs Iron Men Out Tonight

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It looks as though both Chicago and Montreal may be without their iron men in tonight's battle for second place in the National Hockey League standings.

Glenn Hall, iron man of the Black Hawks' camp with 551 consecutive NHL games to his credit, will definitely be sidelined for the game in the Montreal Forum and Canadiens' mainstay Jacques Plante is listed as a doubtful starter.

Hall was forced out of the Hawks' last game Wednesday midway through the first period by the recurrence of a back injury he had suffered in practice the previous day.

Coach Rudy Pilous said Friday night he plans "a good rest" for his first-string netminder.

"He won't be back in the lineup tonight," he said.

Plante himself was doubtful about starting.

"I really don't know whether I'll be able to play or not," he said Friday night. "My leg is still taped and I don't dare let the splits for fear of making it worse."

"I suppose I'll get a rushing in Montreal tomorrow night," Maniago remarked Friday by French-Canadian DeJordy.

Rare is the promising French-Canadian who plays Friday in any NHL team except Montreal.

Shut Out Peterborough 20-0

Quinte Wins COSSA Grid Crown

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Unbeaten, untied Quinte Secondary School's powerful senior gridders rolled to the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association championship here yesterday.

The Saints, unleashing their offensive power, blanked the Adam Scott Collegiate squad, Lake Ontario champions, by a 20-0 score.

Les Hall scintillated, in the victory scoring two touchdowns, with Ted Butcher going over for the third and Mike Chatlin booting two singles.

The Quinte victory could be the forerunner of a Bay of Quinte clean sweep of COSSA football titles. Marmora High won the Junior "B" crown yesterday, defeating Ajax High 26-6. BCI junior "A" squad battles Oshawa here this afternoon with Nicholson College meeting Whitby High for senior "B" honors, weather permitting.

Peterborough - born Jack Sisson, the Belleville coach, gave much of the credit for his club's win to the defensive unit.

"The defensive team won the game for us when they held off Peterborough near out goal-line early in the game," said Sisson.

Adam Scott coach Garruth Ives said there was no luck about the Belleville win. "They were a better and heavier team" he said.

The power of the Quinte squad that had carried them to seven straight wins prior to Friday's game was evident early. Mike Chatlin kicked from the Peterborough 30-yard line for a point, almost as the game got underway.

Full back Les Hall of Belleville scored his first of two touchdowns midway through the first quarter, going around the left end after taking a handoff from Dave Irwin. Hall missed the convert attempt and the score stayed at 7-0.

Prior to Hall's score, Peterborough had recovered a Belleville fumble deep in Peterborough territory. But Hall intercepted a Peterborough pass on the home team's 20 yard line. Two plays later he plunged over for the score.

Hall shook loose from Belleville's 30 yard line on a play straight through centre and went the distance with Clark Speed at his heels. He added the score at 13-0. The convert was missed.

A pass interception by Ted Butcher deep in Peterborough territory set the stage for Belleville's final touchdown. Brian McBride carried for five yards, then Butcher found a hole in the Peterborough line to go over for the touchdown. He missed the convert attempt, and Belleville lead 19-0.

A few plays later Chatlin booted a 45-yard punt which went for a single point and a 20-0 lead for Belleville.

WINNIPEG (CP) — A touring Russian hockey team will play Winnipeg Maroons here Nov. 28 during the visitors' two-week Canadian tour, it was announced Friday. It will be Russia's only appearance in Western Canada.

Moss Admits He Is A Coward!

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Stirling Moss, the British auto racing ace who for 16 years has played a constant hide-and-seek game with death, admits he's a coward.

He breaks out in a cold sweat when he has to go on a scripted television show. Some highways give him goose pimples. And he's petrified sometimes by taxicab drivers, especially those in Tokyo and Buenos Aires.

"I'm as chicken as the next man—I think that's the appropriate word—I think that's the expression you Americans use—where the danger is involved, and I imagine more scared than most," the wiry daredevil said during a stopover here Friday.

"But I've never once been nervous or scared behind the wheel in an auto race. The reason—I don't think there is any real peril in it."

Moss almost killed last spring when his car hurled off the track at 90 miles an hour at Goodwood, England.

The 33-year-old driver one of the all-time greats of the sport, spent almost a month in bed with head injuries and cuts on his back and legs. Now, almost fully recovered, he is preparing to return shortly to racing.

DANGER? TUT! TUT!

"It isn't hazardous at all, or I wouldn't be in it," he said. "If, when I get behind a wheel, I thought there was a five-percent chance of my getting killed —or even a one-per-cent chance —I'd quit. But I'm...

"As I say, I'm strictly a coward. I've been in more than 500 races. I've only had a half dozen or so accidents, two of them what you would call serious. Now, what does that make the odds? Infinitesimal. Rugby, on the statistics, is more dangerous."

He added:

"To me, auto racing is something of an art—like a painter with oils or a violinist with a bow. I don't get a kick out of speed for speed's sake. I like the challenge—that is, of making a 50-mile curve at 51 miles an hour or an 80-mile curve at 85. . ."

Titans On The Rocks, To Be Sold

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Titans of the American Football League, on the financial rocks and unable to meet the payroll, will be sold in the near future, probably within a week.

Milt Woodard, assistant commissioner of the AFL, said Friday the league has loaned the club about $2,500,000 to meet the player payroll through Sunday's game with Dallas Texans.

Asked whether the league would continue this policy indefinitely, Woodward replied: "No. We trust the affair will be completely settled by another week."

Harry Wismer, Titan owner, has offered the club for sale. He's asking $2,500,000. Wismer is reported to have lost $1,700,000 attempting to compete with New York Giants of the National Football League since the AFL was founded three years ago.

Woodard said at least three parties, all New Yorkers, have expressed interest in buying the franchise.

Eskimos Are Not Bankrupt

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference are not bankrupt and the deficit will be less than expected, club president Hastings (Red) McMahon says.

McMahon at a press conference Thursday mentioned no figures, but an informed source unofficially placed the likely deficit at $25,000 "give or take $5,000 depending on the playoff pool revenues." This was $15,000 less than earlier estimates.

The 1961 loss was $73,000 and the two deficits almost exhaust the community-owned club's financial reserve.

Hull Nips Fronts, Braves Win

It would appear that Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Kingston Frontenacs, long-time rivals in the Eastern Professional Hockey League, have an arrangement when the teams meet. Hull wins in Hull and Kingston wins in Kingston.

Canadiens moved to within two points of the league-leading Frontenacs Friday night with a 3-2 win at Hull and Sudbury Wolves, playing before their largest crowd of the season, took a 4-2 decision over Syracuse Braves.

Canadiens, league champions for the last two years, were outplayed Friday night but took advantage of every scoring opportunity before putting up an air-tight defense against Kingston.

Habs rolled to a 2-0 lead and 3-1 going into the third.

The winning goal was scored in the second period by John Rodger, in his second year with Canadiens and other marksmen were Brian Smith and Keith McCreary.

Dick Cherry, a Kingston public school teacher who isn't playing hockey, scored both goals for the losers.

Trudeau Down Juniors

BY GARRY ALEXANDER
Sportswriter

"I think we'll be all right" was the way coach Don Barclay put it last night after his Belleville Junior "A" had shoveled a 10-2 defeat at the hands of the City League's Trudeau Motors team.

Despite the loss, Barclay was optimistic. The game was his club's first and only exhibition prior to their OHA Eastern Junior "B" league opener here against Kingston Frontenacs next Friday night.

"We got a good skating team but the boys didn't take advantage of it tonight", added the rookie coach. He said he would make some cuts from the 21 players who dressed for last night's game but declined to say who they would be. Barclay added that he would dress ten forwards, four defencemen and a goalie for league play.

Judging from last night's game, Sam Haskill will likely get the starting nod in the nets with Gary Reid and Paul Zakos forming one defensive pair and Ted Rowland and Jerry Duvall, Paul Paquin the other. Paquin impressed with his agressive style.

Gary Duvall centred "Whitey" Hull and Stu Muirhead on one forward unit. Another line had Les Moreau playing with Jerry Jones and Garry McMillan and also with Don Goodfellow and Billy Faulkner. Kyle Adams, who can also play defence, teamed up with Jim Rutherford and Norm Richards while a fourth line had Jack Donnan working with Glen and Gordie Hagerman. Defenceman Bob Ethier is expected to play juvenile but will be on call to the Juniors at all times. Barry Duguid backs Haskill in the goaltending chores.

Trudeaus jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first period last night but the Juniors came to life with two quick goals early in the second. Richards got the first, on a rebound, assisted by Rutherford and Rowland. Zakos clicked on a screened shot minutes later to make it 3-2.

The winners came back for a 5-2 lead at the end of the second period and scored five without a reply in the third, including a couple of softies.

Haskill gave up four goals in the first half of the game and Duguid six in the second half while the losers drew nine of the game's 15 minor penalties. Referees Ron Rainford and other City League players, got a chance to each frown on "Shaker" Baker and Gordie St. Louis, "Pug" Kellar, Ed Marinko, Jack Rowbotham, Gary Goyer, Ray "Spider" Allen and Bob Gilchrist drew the others. Buce Gelithorpe and Kellar drew four assists each, Marinko and three, Goyer two, Baker and Rowbotham one apiece.

What the Juniors lack in ability, they should make up in hustle with Barclay cracking the whip. He had the club skating at full tilt all night.

A small crowd, estimated at 125, took in the nine o'clock game.

Trudeaus: C. Carr, Gelthorpe, Plata, V. Goyer, Marinseau, D. Moreau, C. Rowbotham, Kellar, Allen, Bob St. Louis, Cris, Baker, Bucky Ethier.

Referees - Tim Williams and Bill Hurst.

Picton Jrs. Defeat Cobourg 8-4

PICTON—Led by the high flying centre, Harold Daddock, with his 2nd hat trick in 3 games the Picton Mercurettes emerged from a rough and tough 8-4 victory over the Cobourg Jr. entry.

After two periods of reasonable hockey and the Merchants enjoying a 4-3 lead, to edge the 3rd period broke wide open.

The penalty parade started at the 7.24 mark, and referees, Stacey and Cork handed out the 15th penalty of the period at the 16.01 mark.

This was the last exhibition encounter for the Merchants before they host the Trenton Jrs. in the 1st league game on Thursday the 15th at the County Centre. Game time 8.30.

Chatham Has Junior Star

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Junior Maroons of the Border Cities Junior B Hockey League think they may have a future National League star in 18-year-old centre Mel Wakabashi.

Wakabashi turned in his fourth consecutive three-goal performance Friday night as Chatham turned back Riverside 13-3 here. Last year's league scoring champion, the Japanese Canadian youth also had two assists Friday night. His season's total is 15 goals and eight assists for 23 points in six games.

Meet Hard-Hitting Cowboys

Giants Face Tough One

NEW YORK (AP) — Green Bay Packers and New York Giants are winging their way toward a second successive meeting for the National Football League title, but the Giants may run into the heaviest flak concentration of the season Sunday.

While the defending champion Packers are given little to worry about in their visit with Philadelphia Eagles, New York must gather its oft-punctured defences and battle the league's top offensive team — Dallas Cowboys.

A victory by the Giants at Dallas and one by Washington Redskins, who play host to Cleveland Browns, would put New York in a highly favorable position to get its fifth Eastern Conference title in the last seven years. Washington is second in the east, half a game behind the Giants, while Dallas and Cleveland are tied for third, 1½ games back.

In other battles Sunday, Detroit Lions (6-1) are at San Francisco against the 49ers (3-3), Baltimore Colts (4-1-2) are at Los Angeles against the Rams (1-7), Pittsburgh Steelers (4-4) visit St. Louis for a fight with the Cardinals (2-5-1) and Minnesota Vikings (2-6) are at Chicago against the Bears (4-4).

Denver Broncos and Boston Patriots, division leaders in the American Football League, play in Denver. Dallas Texans are at New York against the Titans, Buffalo Bills meet the Chargers in San Diego and Houston Oilers clash with the Raiders at Oakland.

Picton Macs Open At Uxbridge

PICTON — Monday the 12th the Picton McFarlands intermediate "B" squad journey to Uxbridge to open the season's schedule.

The following night they are home at the County Centre to host the Bowmanville "Shamrocks" in their first league home game.

With such fine teams as Uxbridge, Bowmanville, Trenton, RCAF Globetrotters and the newly formed Macs, the Picton fans should be in store for some fine hockey this season.

Led by playing coach Lionel Botly and manager Keith MacDonald the team so far consists of Bob Fawcett, Ron Weese, Doug Murray, Sam Mulholland, Davy Jones, Ron Hull, Joe Scott, Les St. Denis, Sid Faulkner, Jim Guernsey, Lou Garrison, Neil Denard, plus Tom O'Halloran in the nets and spare netminder "Fingers" Inraham.

In pre-season exhibition the Macs have a 2 and 2 record winning and losing 1 each from RCAF Globetrotters and the Brockville Senior "A" team.

Brewer Holds Cajun Golf Lead

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Gay Brewer Jr., who equalled the course record with an eight-under-par 64 in the opening round of the $17,500 Cajun Classic Golf tournament, had trouble with his putts Friday and shot a 71 but still held a three-stroke lead at 135.

Brewer, who followed Brewer Thursday with a 68, had a 2-under-par 70 in the second round for a 138 total and second place.

Three players tied for the third spot with 139s. They were Al Johnston of Montreal, Fred Leffingwell and Lionel Hebert.

Jerry Mage of Toronto shot a 69 Friday for a 145 total. Jack Blessger of Val Morin, Que., fired a 71 for 145.

The cutoff point after the second round was 147. Two more 18-hole rounds remain to be played.

Say Other Teams Gets More

Als Unhappy Over Playoff Payoff

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, on the eve of their sudden - death Eastern Football Conference semi-final playoff with Ottawa Rough Riders were reported to be worrying about money.

The Montreal Star, in a sportspage story by Ian MacDonald, says "the biggest concern among the Alouette players is money—or, to be more specific, the lack of it."

MacDonald says the Als aren't happy with the money they are to be paid for the game.

"They are disenchanted because they know that at least one other club in the Eastern Conference is getting considerably more. As fate would have it, that club happens to be . . . Ottawa Rough Riders.

"Conference regulations call for the paying of $300 to each player for a playoff game. Obviously this is a considerable 'cut' in pay for most of the imports. Regulations go further in disallowing the paying of 'bonus' money for winning games. But the Als' players know differently.

"Dick Cobee, for instance, the former Alouette who played the games with the Rough Riders before being dropped this week, claims he was promised a bonus by the Riders should the team make the playoffs.

"They didn't mention any specific amount of money," Cobee was quoted as saying Thursday night, 'but other players told me it would be $300. The guys who have been on the team for a while talked about extra money for winning the playoff as well."

Stamford CI In Finals

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Winners of the SOSSA One Four League championship, Stamford Collegiate's Senior football Hornets moved to the final round of the playoffs Friday, defeating St. Catharines Tricolor 22-13.

Hornets, unbeaten in eight scheduled games this season, now meet the Niagara District seniors for the playoff championship at Oakes Park Wednesday in a sudden-death battle.

71 Canadians Take Off

Games Team Perth Bound

By JIM PEACOCK

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seventy-one Canadian athletes flew away in the rain early today bound for the 1962 British Empire and Commonwealth games.

Their chartered aircraft took off 12 minutes after midnight—17 minutes behind schedule—after nearly 300 relatives, friends and well-wishers had given them a noisy sendoff from Vancouver International Airport.

They were scheduled to arrive Tuesday in Perth, Australia, site of the games which open Nov. 22, making stopovers in Honolulu and Brisbane en route.

The team, described as the best-balanced Canada has ever assembled for international games, boarded the aircraft in the glare of television lights after spending 90 minutes in the terminal.

The athletes, with 20 officials and coaches who also are making the trip, stood out in the crowd, their red blazers, trimmed with white and adorned with an embossed maple leaf crest, and their light straw hats presenting a picture of lively color.

'BEST-BALANCED' TEAM

They came to the airport from a provincial government dinner where Jack Davies, team commandant, had stated: "This is the best-balanced team Canada has ever sent abroad."

Sprinter Harry Jerome and shot-putter Dave Steen of Vancouver didn't attend the dinner and their absence caused some conversation, but team general manager Charles Wayland said they were not obligated to attend.

The games end in Perth Dec. 8 and most of the team will leave there for home Dec. 8, possibly carrying medals in the sprints, the shot put, pole vault, middle - distance runs, rowing, swimming, diving, wrestling, weightlifting and fencing.

Wayland said he leaves predictions to the team coaches, but added: "The prospects are much better than they have been for some years."

Canada has been backward in sport because of lack of public support, summed up the feeling here at departure time:

"The whole country is watching us now."

Davies, who told the dinner

Louis Cyr

Honor 'Strongest' Man

MONTREAL (CP) — Half a century ago today a man who was talked about as "the strongest man who ever lived" died in his Montreal home.

He was Louis Cyr, whose prodigious feats of strength brought him acclaim in Europe and North America. Louis Cyr undoubtedly was the first great idol among French-speaking Canadians.

In memory of Cyr, and marking the 50th anniversary of his death, special observances are to be carried out today at three places—in Montreal at St. Pierre Aporte Church, Dorchester and Visitation Streets, in the parish where he lived; at the church in Napierville, where he was born; at the church in St. Jean-de-Matha, near Joliette, where he was buried.

Louis Cyr was born Oct. 10, 1863, in Napierville. He died Nov. 10, 1912, at the age of 49.

STARTED AS BOY

As a lad he took a delight in lifting heavy objects—stones, iron bars, lengths of railroad tracks. He was 19 when he took up competition among the strong men of his day—at weightlifting or almost anything called for enormous strength.

He won the Canadian championship from David Michaud of Quebec and went on to defeat world-renowned strong men.

In his prime Cyr could lift 553 pounds with one finger. With one hand he could lift 387 pounds, and with two hands 1,897 pounds. He could push up 250 pounds from his shoulder and he could carry 4,300 pounds on his back.

Louis Cyr was still competing when he was 44 years old, but in the later years of his life he was a sick man. He died from a combination of kidney and heart diseases.

EFL Committee Meets

Discuss TV Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Tenders for television rights to Eastern Football Conference games next season will close at 2 p.m. on Nov. 27, the EFC television committee announced Friday.

After a six-hour session here which also dealt with a report that Ottawa Rough Riders were breaking conference regulations by offering bonuses to their players, the committee said the tenders are being called on a one-year or more basis.

This means that a network could make an offer for as many years as it would like to have TV rights to the games. The successful bidder would also have an option on the TV rights to the Grey Cup game in the East.

The private CTV network has held the rights in the East for the last two seasons. It is reported to have paid $375,000 for them in 1962.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Ted Workman, president of Montreal Alouettes and spokesman for the committee, said the highest bid would not necessarily be accepted.

"I would like to emphasize that CTV didn't get the rights only because of the money involved," he said. "There were other considerations which we considered very important."

He did not say what these considerations were.

Workman said conditions of the tender were altered from previous years but said he did not wish to go into details of the changes.

He said the committee has discussed the Board of Broadcast Governors' ruling requiring the CBC to carry the 1962 Grey Cup telecast as it originates from the CTV. He said the EFC committee "hopes the problem can be settled to everybody's satisfaction."

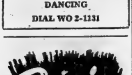
STUDY 'BONUS'

The meeting was called primarily to go into a report that the Ottawa club offered a bonus to its players if they win Saturday's EFC semi-final game here against Montreal.

Such bonuses are not allowed by the conference and Workman said reports of them have caused some unrest among Montreal players.

Workman said that Ottawa officials had admitted offering "travel allowances" to its players.

He refused to say whether "no wall on the field Saturday and also at the box office."



The EFC decided to allow the arrangement to stand for Saturday's game only and ruled that any other such offer on the part of an EFC club would lead to disciplinary action.

At the end of the seven furlongs, completed in 1.25, just 3-5 off the track record, the horses were a length ahead of Chopaxana.

In the quinella, based on this event, Cyprian Cat ($3.60) and Indian Crossing combined for a $21.40 return.

Cyprian Cat's $1,765 first place earnings Friday brought his seasonal total to $20,255.

Doborough in the first race at 24-1 odds, coupled with Roma Lucata, winner of the second, set up a daily-double return of $253.10.

Royals Rap Hawks

Flyers Shade Petes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This has been a productive week for Niagara Falls Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The Flyers edged Peterborough Petes 3-2 at Peterborough Friday night for their third win of the week and it moved them into a tie for first with Montreal Junior Canadiens.

In other action, the last-place Guelph Royals, looking like a team that should be higher in the standings, rapped St. Catharines Black Hawks 8-3 at Guelph.

Rookie Bill Goldsworthy of Waterloo scored the tying and winning goals for Niagara Falls within one minute and 36 seconds.

The Flyers spotted Peterborough two unanswered first-period goals, scored by Tom Carty, but fought back with a goal by Terry Crisp and two by Goldsworthy in the second period.

TIE 'EM UP

The Petes were so tied up by Niagara Falls checkers they managed only five shots at the Flyer net in the final two periods.

John Makins, Gary Sabourin and Borden Smith scored two goals apiece for Guelph and the Royals' other scorers were Terry Pembroke and Bob Plager.

Brent Hughes scored twice for the Black Hawks on screened shots, both after Guelph had built up an 8-1 lead. John Stevenson scored the first St. Catharines goal.

Rams Lose Again

Tigers Whip Maroons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Tigers have changed their ways in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series, but Sarnia Rams keep bumbling along.

Tigers, with temporary coach Eugene (Bun) Martin handling the team for the first time, won their first game of the season Friday night as they whipped Chatham Maroons 7-2. Sarnia, in last place, lost its sixth game in six starts at Woodstock Friday night when Woodstock Athletics dumped the Rams 6-4.

Tigers' first coach Phil Vitale, after a loss to Galt Terriers this week and started off on the right foot under Martin.

It was Tigers' second win of the season and moved them five points ahead of Sarnia.

Only 483 fans saw the newlook Tigers outhustle the third place Maroons to take a 3-1 lead in the first period. Kitchener-Waterloo scored the only second-period goal and completed the rout in the final period.

Forward Lou Angotti scored two goals and had two assists for the winners and Bobby Forhan also registered a pair of goals. Sonny Osborne, Bob Robinson and Mac Dubois scored one apiece.

Harvey Nash and Frank St. Marseille scored for Chatham.

Athletics' win over Sarnia moved Woodstock into second place, two points behind the undefeated Galt Terriers who were idle.

Andy Gauthier and Cary Hymers scored two goals each for Woodstock. Others were clicked by Art Sullivan and Beryl Kilnck.

Reg Mulholland scored twice for Sarnia and Willie Menard and Jerry Mara once each.

"No one, ever, was quite like EL CID...world hero!
He was the invincible champion of his people. It is said that "no foe prevailed against him." Spain, the nation he helped create, made him its hero. Every movie was his story into a legend. His enemies named him El Cid, which means

The Lord—from the Arabic el seid—and they added Campeador which means victor of the battlefield. So, in the opinion of his foes, he was at the same time a merciful lord and a ruthless fighter."

"How come it's always paper napkins for MY family and linen ones for YOURS?"

strological Forecast

For November 11
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Avoid militant attitude, especially where finances are concerned. Full Moon creates imbalance through cycle of minor irritability. Be sure you are on solid ground. Listen.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Meet obligations, responsibilities. You are under emotional pressure which requires creative outlet. Be diplomatic. Avoid family squabble, legal complications.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Full Moon emphasizes employment, service, spiritual awareness. Means you can come to vital decisions regarding methods of advancement.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Spotlight on friends, creative forces, travel, change and ideals. Display ingenuity, courage. Explain yourself clearly. Give of yourself when it comes to affection.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) Security occupies much attention. Better for reviewing past than for jumping into something radically different. Permit experience to be your guide.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Fine for originating plan of action. Talk things over with associates. Obtain spiritual advice, too. Full Moon emphasizes comfort obtained from words of wise men. Listen well!

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 22) Money matters should be put aside today. Come to compromise agreement. Much pressure points up need for rest, relaxation. This is perfect day to regain strength. Do so.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Very good for expressing true feelings. But don't forget your sense of humor! Be aware of inner truths and your outer appearance. Dress up. Sparkle, be original.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Adhere to schedule. Fulfill promises, your own resolutions. Remember those who have made great sacrifices. Correct errors which lead to mis-management.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Full Moon in good aspect to your sign; you can make influence felt. Emphasis on romance, love, self-expression, personal satisfaction. Mingle with people. Talk plan, take advantage of opportunity.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Fine day for fixing things around the home, improving personal appearance. Tendency to many restlessness is evident. But this can be used favorably, as vital, creative force.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Could be day of revelation if you take your time. Meet people through short journeys. Write, telephone, speak up. Don't confide in those you couldn't understand.

If today is your birthday you are sensitive to feelings of others. But, at times, friends are not quite so considerate where your feelings are concerned.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:— Full Moon places spotlight on Taurus and Scorpio. Day when the past and the future appear to mingle.

For November 12

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Practical matters dominate attention. Key is to be flexible, diplomatic, even forgiving. Bear no grudges. Former adversary could become tremendous ally.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Many opportunities may appear 'fickle'. But actually you could be undergoing "test period". Means be persistent. Do not lose faith. Maintain sense of humor about temporary setbacks.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Cycle high today means you gain joy by sharing. Give of yourself. Communicate thoughts, ideas. A winning, Gemini personality can prove invaluable. Know this and act with confidence.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Create, originate, be true to yourself. Toss off false values. Know that superficial charms are bound to fade. By standing up for principles, you gain self-respect.

Leo (July 22 to August 21) Many observe your "performance." Be certain you are showing off best qualities, including Leo showmanship. Tonight you can be stimulated by company of friends. No time to be "hermit."

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Sound, money-producting ideas should be put on paper. Consult others about their opinions. Gather news, information. Find out where to look for purposes of research.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good lunar aspect later. Means "build up" strength, resources. Be ready to give your all. Do not be afraid to stand up and be counted. Idealism is key to fruitful day.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Early discouragement turns to optimism. Self-discipline necessary. Finish tasks which you map out for yourself. Attend to details personally. Trusting others may not prove wise. Be there - in person.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) There may appear to be a "broken promise" in the picture. Don't take this too seriously. Some adjustment, change, possible travel. Welcome challenge and new opportunity.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid needless worry. Do what must be done. Be at your best. Improve personal appearance. Strive for harmony, especially in connection with domestic situation. Stick close to home.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Romance, communication, creative expression all highlighted. Show that you can act on convictions. Be aware, alert. Stick to convictions, even if accused of being stubborn.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) A tendency to overlook minor matters might prove embarrassing. Be ready to quickly grasp opportunity for self-advancement. Avoid individual who says "it can't be done."

If today is your birthday your sense of humor is sparkling. Although often it is of a subtle nature.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:— Cycle up for Taurus, Gemini, Cancer. Practical matters dominate news, including finances and Stock Market reports.

Picton News

First Time in 24 Years Infantry Battalion Will Be Stationed at Camp Picton

With the arrival of the First Battalion of the Canadian Guards, Camp Picton will cater to an infantry unit for the first time in its 24-year history. First used as an anti-aircraft shooting range, in 1938, the Camp Picton — Point Petre area has seen servicemen from most parts of the Commonwealth.

The Point Petre range was the first section to come into use. Number Four Heavy Anti-Aircraft Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery camped there, for a month, during the summer of 1938. The next year, the battery trained there for three months, still living in tents. During August of 1939, the battery was shipped to Halifax.

The Air Force was the next customer. During 1940, the runways and some of the present buildings were built, and civilian pilots, from the United States and Canada were stationed there fore service training. During 1941, the RCAF and the Commonwealth Air Training Plan dominated the scene.

BECAME GUNNERY SCHOOL

In 1942, the station became Number 31 Bombing and Gunnery School, of the Royal Air Force. Using Point Petre as a bombing range, the RAF trained their own, and Commonwealth personnel at Camp Picton until 1944. After 1944 the RCAF took over the base, using it for storage of aircraft. During 1944, 45 and 46, some reserve anti-aircraft batteries used the Point Petre range. In 1946, the camp became the home of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery's anti-aircraft section. This school continued, using normal anti-aircraft cannon, until 1953.

In 1953, the army became interested in guided missiles for anti-aircraft defence, and training at Camp Picton was concentrated on them until 1960, when most of the missile training was transferred to Camp Shilo, in Manitoba.

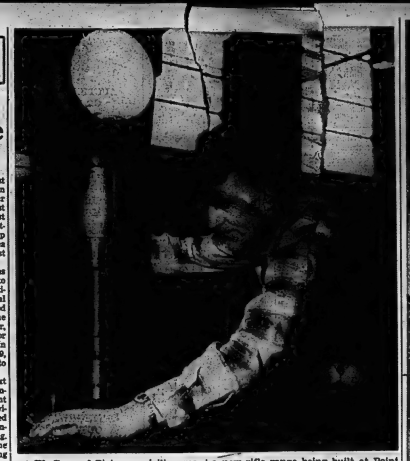
During October of 1960, the Camp saw missile training again, in the form of surface to surface missiles. Units training for this specialty were removed, during the past spring, to Camp Shilo.

CAMP NOT DESERTED

But the camp has not been deserted. Number 22 Works Company, of the Royal Canadian Engineers, was left to maintain the base, and to maintain Militia armories throughout the district. This unit is also responsible for erecting and maintaining the Civil Defence Warning Sirens, in towns and cities in this area.

Number 210 Workshop, of the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, has been established at the camp since 1947. Maintaining all mechanical and electrical equipment in the camp, and for camps and militia units throughout the area, this RCEME unit is composed of about 47 service personnel, and employs 24 civilians. Presently the unit is occupied with servicing the Guards' vehicles, and with repairing and testing the electrical equipment to be used by the Guards in their training.

BUILD FIRING RANGE



The RCEME unit is also doing some of the mechanical work for the new firing range being built at Point Petre, by the RCE.

This range consists of nine "lanes", each 350 metres, (about 400 yards), long. Along these lanes, targets about the size of a man are located, normally out of sight. From a central control house, the targets can be brought into sight, and made to disappear again by the officer in charge, producing the effect of a man taking cover. The targets are located at 50 meter intervals along the lane, and the marksman must estimate the range as he aims. This, and an existing 25 meter range now being rebuilt, will be ready for the Guards when they arrive.

MARRIED QUARTERS

Picton Heights, a town designed for about 250 families, is the married quarters for the camp. With its own school, and the use of the camp recreational facilities, it is a self contained town in itself, but it is planned to function as a suburb of Picton.

Since 1940, Camp Picton has been a focal point of Prince Edward county, while there were units stationed there. With the arrival of the Guards, it will add about 2,000 people to the population of the county. And all because an anti aircraft battery once camped at Point Petre, and liked it.

W. Gray of Picton, a civilian mechanist employed by the RCEME Number 210 Workshop at Camp Picton, drills a steel plate to be used in part of a new rifle range being built at Point Petre. The RCEME detachment has complete machine shop facilities, and services army and militia equipment throughout the area.

Cpl. John Code, of Cobalt, Ont., of the RCEME Number 210 Workshop at Camp Picton, adjusts a test instrument, while aligning a light, two-way radio to be used by the First Battalion Canadian Guards while they train at Camp Picton.

ask henry

Henry invites letters from readers. For the most interesting letter he receives each week, he will award a copy of his best-selling book, "Ask Henry," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

This week's winner is Linda Craigie, 133 Humbold Ave., Winnipeg, Man.

Dear Henry—I have a problem. I always sit up in bed and I think that I'll die before I am 21. Can you help me?—YOUR FRIEND JOHN.

Dear John—Do you know that more children your age die by accident than of natural death? It's a fact. So don't worry and always look both ways before you cross the street. And I guarantee you will live happily ever after.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—The children of my grade four and five classes saw you on TV on "What's My Line." They wanted to write you about their problems.

It is impossible for you to answer the letters individually, please write a "general type" letter to the class. They would truly appreciate it.

We all loved the program.—MRS. VICTOR PETERSEN, St. Pius X School, Rock Island, Ill.

Dear Mrs. Petersen—Thank you very much for the 45 letters. They are all very interesting and the problems are all different. I will do my best to answer as many as I can.

This column is devoted to your class and their problems.

I am also sending to your pupils my book "Ask Henry," which has just been published.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I think there should be a mechanic man for a teacher to teach school. I think the mechanic man should be all automatic. I think there should be only five hours of school and I think there should be a recreation period for half an hour.—CHUCK.

Dear Chuck—At least you are thinking. Good work and good ideas.—HENRY.

The drum is silent now,
But the wind sighs
Where once they walked,
And the stars that watched
The valour of their days,
At each new dusk
Remember.

KENNEDY AIR RAIDS MAY START WAR

Typhoon Karen Renders Guam Nearly Helpless

One Dead, Many Hurt, Damage $100,000,000

HONOLULU (AP) — Typhoon Karen—described as the worst tropical storm in Guam's history—has rendered the island nearly helpless, leaving hundreds injured, at least one dead and an estimated $100,000,000 in damage.

Karen ripped into the tiny Pacific island—hub of the U.S. Pacific defense ring—late Sunday night and early Monday, with winds estimated at 150 knots.

The navy's Pacific fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor said a three-day warning of the coming big blow "saved countless lives."

Residents immediately began digging out of the literally battered island.

ASKS FOR HELP

Guam's acting governor, Manuel Guerrero, sent an urgent appeal to Washington for aid. He said "entire territory devastated by Typhoon Karen."

Guerrero's message said 95 per cent of the island's civilian communications, commercial and residential—was useless or destroyed.

The Pacific fleet headquarters four of every five civilian homes had their roofs blown off.

The acting governor's message said two high schools were destroyed. Guam Memorial Hospital, the island's public health department and utilities agencies were extensively damaged, Guerrero said.

DISASTER AREA

He asked the office of emergency planning to declare Guam a disaster area.

Communications were completely blanked out as the storm ripped out antennas and transmitting equipment.

Residents took refuge in storm shelters and government buildings constructed to withstand such a blast. The Federal Aviation Agency said some dependents were to be evacuated from Wake Island when Guam's airstrips could be cleared. Immediately after the storm subsided, the FAA reported all airstrips inoperable.

Some 70,000 persons live on Guam, about 40,000 natives or civilians from the United States. The other 30,000 are military men and their dependents.

POLITICAL TV DEBATE IN QUE TAME AFFAIR

Lesage, Johnson Heard by Millions

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage and Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson met Sunday night to debate the main issues of Wednesday's general election before a television-wide television audience.

Both Mr. Lesage, Liberal party leader, and Mr. Johnson, Union Nationale party leader, used the TV debate—first of its kind ever held in Canada—to reiterate the arguments they have brought up on the hustings since the campaign began seven weeks ago.

Mr. Lesage renewed his plea for a mandate to expropriate the private power companies so that Quebecers can reach the economic mastery in the province, attacked the Union Nationale's past record and defended his government's record after 27 months in office.

Mr. Johnson criticized the expropriation as a smokescreen that the government used to hide the real issues—its record for increased taxes, higher loans, and greater debt, and called for a return to a "policy of common sense."

The debate, which went slightly beyond its scheduled time of 8:30 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. EST, was carried on the CBC French television network, with simultaneous English translation on some CBC and private radio stations.

TONE IS MODERATE

Its tone was moderate and, except for brief interruptions by Mr. Johnson while Mr. Lesage was speaking on one issue, was carried off according to the rules agreed to previ-

HOUSE BEGINS BUDGET DEBATE IN COMMITTEE

Possibility Govt. Could Be Beaten

OTTAWA (CP)—The House of Commons will take its third bite today in its long progress of trying to digest last spring's preelection budget.

Debate on the budget resolutions will continue with the whole Commons sitting as the ways and means committee which must approve any charge on the taxpayer before the House will formally accept legislation to implement it.

Last spring's budget took effect when it was introduced by former finance minister Donald Fleming, now minister of justice. This was in accordance with usual practice—based on the assumption that the government always can win a subsequent vote of confidence, as it now has, in an overall majority of Commons members supporting it.

In this Parliament, however, the government is in a minority, with Liberal, Social Credit and New Democratic parties arrayed against it in various divisions. If they should all unite against the government, the administration could be defeated — as the Liberals were long to do in order to force a new general election.

PROPOSES CHANGES

The resolutions now before the Commons are those tabled by Mr. Fleming last April 16, proposing a number of economic incentives to stimulate production and employment. He originally had forecast a budget deficit of $745,000,000 for the current fiscal year that he tabled April 9.

With the introduction of emergency measures to trim spending, stabilize the exchange value of the Canadian dollar and boost Canada's balance of payment difficulties after the June 18 election, however, the budget deficit was cut sharply and the effective rate of import duty raised on a wide range of goods.

The government is anxious to have the old budget formally written into law so the legislation can be based on finance legislation as it really is, and not as it is assumed to be with the formal ratification by Parliament.

Kennedy Calls Negotiators For Talks on Cuba Problem

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy summoned his three Cuban crisis negotiators to the White House today to discuss "developments to date" in their talks with Soviet and United Nations representatives.

The announcement of the meeting did not elucidate. But one development certain to be on the agenda is the Soviet missile withdrawal.

Deputy Defence Secretary Roswell Gilpatric arrived Sunday the United States has counted 42 Russian missiles on ships steaming away from Cuba.

But he stressed that without on-site inspection the United States can't be certain whether the 42 were all Moscow sent in.

"The objects said there were 42," he said. "We have counted 42 going out. We saw fewer than 42" in U.S. reconnaissance flights over Cuba.

"Until we have so-called on-site inspection of the island of Cuba we could never be sure that 42 was the maximum number the Soviets brought into Cuba," said Gilpatric.

The negotiators Kennedy will see today are UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, Charles D. Yost, Stevenson's Security Council deputy, and John J. McCloy, chairman of the president's Cuban crisis co-ordinating committee.

A delegation spokesman said Sunday the three will discuss with the president "developments to date in negotiations on the Cuban question with Acting Secretary-General U Thant and Soviet First Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov."

Among the matters apparently still unresolved are:

1. Inspection of Cuba and ships entering Cuba.

2. Disposition of a score or more Ilyushin-28 medium jet bombers in Cuba which Kennedy included in the category of offensive weapons that had to be withdrawn.

Cuba's UN representative, Carlos M. Lechuga, told reporters Sunday Cuba has not altered its objection to any inspection of its territory or ships. But he said Cuba did not object to inspection of ships of other nations on the high seas.

Authoritative UN sources said Sunday the United States and the Soviet Union have been unable to agree on how long the International Red Cross Commission should inspect Cuba-bound Russian ships to make certain no more Soviet missiles are shipped in.

They said the United States wants a longer period of Red Cross inspection than the Soviet Union is willing to accept. But they said the periods mentioned in the talks fluctuated, and that the United States has reduced its early demand of 30 days.

Thant has declared he hoped to announce final agreement on all points by Tuesday.

Washington sources have said the United States insists the Soviet Union also pull out the jet bombers.

'TRUE ATLANTIC COMMUNITY' URGED ON NATO

Kefauver Presents Declaration at Meet

PARIS (Reuters) — Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tenn.) today presented the NATO parliamentarians conference here with a declaration calling for "a true Atlantic community" with a permanent high council and a consultative Atlantic assembly.

The declaration, presented on behalf of 24 delegates to the conference here, also called for a trade partnership between North America and the European Common Market, an Atlantic high court of justice and a common strategy inside and outside the Atlantic area.

The delegates backing the declaration adopted the text last April and obtained signatures to it from 239 prominent figures in NATO countries, including 11 former prime ministers and foreign ministers and only NATO country not represented be open to all other "qualified nations of the free world."

It called for the development of the NATO parliamentarians assembly which would review the work of all Atlantic institutions and make recommendations to them.

Walter Hallstein, president of the European Common Market Commission, told the confer-

Hurls Challenge To Smallwood For TV Debate

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — While Monday, Nov. 19, Newfoundland election one week away, the campaign shows signs of heating up with a possible television debate.

Progressive Conservative Leader James Green said Sunday he has sent a telegram to Liberal Premier Smallwood challenging him to "public debate" the issues of the election campaign on a half-hour radio and television program at the premier's convenience.

Mr. Smallwood said an interview later that he will make a 15-minute television appearance Wednesday and invited Mr. Greene to watch the program for his answer to the debating challenge.

Mr. Greene suggested they start with 10-minute statements and wind up with a five-minute rebuttal under a mutually acceptable chairman.

Mr. Smallwood has declined to say what else he will talk about Wednesday, but "it will hit home."

UN Threatens To Take Action After Bombings

Tshombe's Men Struck Against Baluba Region

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations Congo command is threatening action against the secessionist Katanga province air force after reports of bombings in north Katanga.

A message from the UN command in Leopoldville said the UN air force will fly over the area to verify the reports and would announce later what action, if any, it would take against Katangan planes.

UN officials said they had "fairly reliable" reports that about 10 Katangan planes dropped at least 60 bombs Saturday in five successive strikes at objectives in north Katanga. There was no estimate of casualties but the reports told of bombing victims being evacuated.

The United Nations recently has issued reports indicating that Katanga President Moise Tshombe, who had only one operational plane in September, 1961, now has something like 30, along with 20 to 30 pilots and technicians.

HIT HOSPITAL

The message from the Leopoldville office of Robert K. A. Gardiner, in command of the UN operation in The Congo, estimated that about 10 DC-3 planes may have carried out Saturday's bombings, striking a road junction and a hospital and nearby bridge.

It did not speculate on the effect of the bombing. But the area is peopled by Baluba tribesmen hostile to Tshombe, and Premier Cyrille Adoula's Congolese national army is there, perhaps by try to recapture Katanga. The UN worked out a Congolese - Katangan cease-fire agreement last month but Adoula repudiated it.

Acting UN Secretary-General U Thant has said repeatedly that he does not intend to resort to force to end Katanga's secession. But action by the UN force against Katangan aircraft might well develop into warfare.

Ecumenical Council Will Meet May 12

About 2,500 cardinals, bishops and other Catholic churchmen from all over the world have been attending the council which Pope John opened Oct. 11.

NEHRU HOPEFUL RUSSIA TO SEND PROMISED JETS

Soviet Union Says It Will Honor Pact

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India today tensely awaited developments in its continuing border struggle with Communist China in the wake of a warning by Prime Minister Nehru that the conflict could broaden with the possibility of air raids.

Nehru, addressing a mass rally here Sunday, also said he hoped Russia would honor promises to supply India with MiG jet fighters and set up a factory in India to build the planes.

Informed sources Saturday reported that Nehru had told a parliamentary committee Russia had promised to stand by its agreement to supply the planes and that the first ones would arrive by mid-December.

Nehru told Sunday's rally military production in India had more than tripled during the last three weeks with ordnance factories working around the clock.

Nehru warned the rally to be prepared for more shocks in the border war and said the conflict could involve "air raids or things of that kind."

PLAN NO SHELTERS

Meanwhile, Mayor Nur Uddin Ahmad of New Delhi said the capital city had so far made no plans for raid shelters.

"We are not even thinking in those terms," he told reporters.

The New Delhi newspaper Indian Express carried reports six days ago that the city would have 1,000 air raid shelters and train 800 air raid personnel under a civil defence plan.

"In Peking, the Chinese were told Sunday of Nehru's statement that Russia has promised to keep the agreement to supply MiG fighters."

The main Chinese Communist party newspaper People's Daily published a brief story quoting Nehru as another army saying the United States was "keeping up a militia of arms and sending of military personnel to India to boost the Nehru government's large-scale invasion of India."

Caouette Says Some Members Of Legion 'Worse Than Reds'

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the Social Credit party, says some members of the Royal Canadian Legion are "worse than Communists."

He was commenting on the cancellation of a scheduled Remembrance Day rally at Sturgeon Falls after protests by the legion's executive.

Mr. Caouette said in an interview:

"I'm a better Canadian than some of the people who are trying to stop me."

In his intended address at Sturgeon Falls—200 miles away—was cancelled Saturday night after a protest by James Cull, Legion president there. The Knights of Columbus and the town council also withdrew permission for use of either of two halls for a rally.

Wilfrid Marengere, Sturgeon Falls Social Credit president who cancelled the meeting, said it was done "because the Legion was causing trouble. . . . it was told there would be violence if Caouette came."

Legion Vice-President Russell Clark said the branch did not threaten violence but he was afraid violence would occur if Mr. Caouette had come.

100,000 Canadians Who Gave Lives in Battle Remembered

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Remembrance Day services were held across the country Sunday to honor the more than 100,000 Canadians who gave their lives in battle.

The traditional two minutes of silence was observed at 11 a.m.—44 years after the guns in France fell silent at 11 a.m. on Nov. 11, 1918, to end the First World War.

Governor - General Vanier, who lost his right leg above the knee in the 191-18 war, led the nation in honoring Canada's war dead.

He placed the first wreath on the war memorial in Ottawa as a crowd of more than 10,000 stood silently.

The Governor - General was followed by Mrs. Dominique Lanteigne, 73, who lost three sons in the Second World War.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and the president of the Royal Canadian Legion, as well as the chiefs of staff of the three armed forces also placed wreaths. At the end of the service some 200 wreaths banked the memorial, including one from the Canadian Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Services across the country were generally well-attended, although rain interfered with some ceremonies.

The governor - lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay and Premier John Robarts attended services at Brantford, where the Lieutenant - Governor took the salute in a march-past by 1,000 veterans, militia members and regular army servicemen.

In Sturgeon Falls, Ont., a parade that was to be addressed by Deputy-Social Credit Leader Real Caouette was called off after protests by the local branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

The Sunrise Service, held by the legion every Remembrance Day since 1919, opened ceremonies in Toronto.

The day holds a special meaning for Bill Noakes of Brantford, who was a signaller with the 4th Canadian Machine Gun Battalion in the First World War.

Mr. Noakes received the signal marking the end of the war and has it framed in his home.

Brantford MHO Denies Water Supply Poisonous

BRANTFORD (CP)—Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Brantford medical health officer, denied Sunday night the city's fluoridated water supply is poisonous to children.

Dr. Fraser said Dr. James J. Rae, a University of Toronto chemistry professor, said 20 per cent of Brantford children suffer fluoride poisoning from the fluoridated water.

"I don't know where he gets his information," said Dr. Fraser, "It seems all the anti-fluoridationists want to take a crack at Brantford."

He added that if any children were suffering from fluoride poisoning, the city would immediately stop fluoridating the water supply.

PUBLISH LETTER

Dr. Rae said Dr. Rae published a letter in the Canadian Medical Journal last May claiming there wasn't enough fluorides in the water supply.

He said Dr. Rae contended the incidence of low tooth decay was due perhaps to a better diet or hygiene here than elsewhere rather than fluoridation.

"Now six months later, he says there are too much fluorides in the water. I don't think this man's statement is consistent with what he had said before."

K Prestige Seen Slipping By Close West Observers

MOSCOW (AP)—The fourth anniversary of Premier Khrushchev's statement that he would settle the Berlin question in six months finds the issue perhaps even farther from settlement—and Khrushchev unruffled.

Khrushchev, nearing the peak of his power at home and abroad, announced on Nov. 10, 1958, at a Polish-Russian friendship rally in Moscow, that a treaty with the two Germanys should be signed at once. If the West did not agree, "he said, then at the end of six months he would invite Communist nations and any others who chose to come to sign a separate treaty with East Germany. He contended that a treaty would make West Berlin, encircled by Communist East Germany, a "free, internationalized city."

Time after time the deadline was passed. Now there is apparently no deadline.

Khrushchev told correspondents at a Kremlin reception last week that, with the Cuban situation growing quiet, the Berlin situation was becoming more acute.

But a significant thing developed at the reception. At the premier's elbow as he delivered the formal toasts for the 45th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution stood the other three members of what now is called here the "quadrumvirate" — President Leonid Brezhnev, Frol R. Koslov, a top party secretary, and Alexei Kosygin, a first deputy premier.

Throughout the anniversary parade in Red Square, these four have been shown together. Anastas Mikoyan, the other first deputy premier, was in Havana conferring with Premier Castro.

Moreover, in the various meetings with the leaders from other Communist states over the last dozen days, the quadrumvirate has been on hand, with an exception or two.

No one knows for sure what is going on inside the Kremlin.

But from the viewpoint of interested foreigners it appears that the premier's sails have been somewhat trimmed, and that these three associates now share more than before the power that long was largely in the hands of Khrushchev alone.

Again, remembering that this is a view from outside the Kremlin, it would appear that setbacks are impairing Khrush-

Canada Would Be Belgium Of Third War Veterans Are Told by Col. Angus Duffy

In the event of nuclear hostilities Canada would be the Belgium of a third world war — and Canadians must accept the implications for being prepared on the home front.

This was the warning given area civil defence co-ordinator Colonel Angus Duffy to Remembrance Day banquet of the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans Association in Belleville Saturday night.

The greatest danger lay in public apathy to the ever-current threat of nuclear war, the individual disregard of measures to ensure personal protection in such an event.

"We as Canadians are too damn prone to say 'Let George do it — George being the government".

The government cannot undertake to protect every citizen from the effects of nuclear attack, he warned. Building of fallout shelters and stockpiling of individual food supplies is a private responsibility.

"If a man lands anywhere in Canada there would be a terrific dislocation of communication".

It would then be too late to start taking personal securities measures.

He used the recent Cuban crisis to graphically underscore his remarks.

When the crisis erupted, said Col. Duffy "if I had 10 hands there would not be hands enough to handle the situation. It was too late to do anything and nobody in Canada knew what to do. This is wrong".

NO THE LAPSE CLAIM

"We are assuming in Canada as we have in the last two wars that there will be a time lapse (after the outbreak of hostilities). Well there won't be."

Of nuclear survival, Colonel Duffy bluntly told the veterans: "The fact is you don't want to hear about it - neither do I. What is big is wrong that we don't want even to consider it".

The fact is it (the nuclear threat), exists and we must face up to it."

The effects of atomic attack have grossly misrepresented, Colonel Duffy charged.

The trouble with this business is there are too many crackpots who are distorting the truth. They do not know what they are talking about. They are downright lying and I am being polite when I say they are lying."

He proposed undertaking a survival program to an insurance, a nuisance to pay but recognized as a necessity.

"You read the fine print and you sign on the dotted with a check. This should be your attitude to survival."

He reminded the veterans of the many comrades who died in war. These men in effect, said Colonel Duffy, laid down their lives with an unspoken promise that might be: "We leave you this our world and our country and we expect you to see that Canada stays free."

By ensuring the survival of themselves and their families they were reaffirming their responsibilities to the ideals for which their comrades died.

IN TWO CAMPS

He reminded the gathering that the world was divided into two camps armed with a nuclear war almost a split-second possibility.

"If we think we should do something to prevent this terrible thing happening. I pray about it every day because I hate and dread war as do all soldiers.

Nevertheless, he re-iterated that Canada must accept protective measures could not be shirked as a matter of individual responsibility.

The veterans gave the colonel a standing ovation. Introduced by Frank Grue, he was thanked by Stan Melbourne.

Among the head table guests were Belleville, M.P. Hamilton South; Elmer Sandercock, MLA Hastings West and Alderman Robert Temple, representing the city of Belleville.

Hunters Having Successful Deer Hunt

As a statistic the deer hunter in the Quinte district has little to complain of as the current season strides into its second week.

The Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed this morning reported the first official check of hunting groups over the tweekend showed a hunter success of 32.9 per cent — well up on last year.

A total 1,086 hunters were checked by Kaladar and Bridgeado game wardens Saturday and Sunday. They showed the following bag: 358 deer; five moose, 22 bears—and one wolf.

Some officials were surprised at the high number of bear kills. However, the fact bear is now a game animal may have some bearing on the total.

While the signs are good for a possible record, game warden Ross Lewis said that officially the first week of checking reveals a higher kill percentage than the last week of hunting.

"All we can safely say right now is that it is as good as last year," said an official.

Last Thursday, the regular monthly meeting of Unit 301 was held and a large number of members were present. Warm letters of appreciation and thanks were received from the recipients of ANAF Scholarship grants, donated annually by the Unit.

Dom. Pres. Jack Lundberg expressed his regrets that he could not be present for the Remembrance Day, the first one he has missed since joining the Unit. He will be representing the ANAF Vets in Canada at the dedication of the new Book of Remembrance containing the honored names of comrades who fell in the Korean War and the Remembrance Day Services being held in Ottawa. He also praised and thanked the publicity committee for the way the window of the cafe rooms was decorated in honor of Remembrance Day. The ANAF (Unit 301) Pipe Band have volunteered their services for the Santa Claus Parade and the members are ready to help make this annual treat for the children the success it deserves.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served and when everyone was comfortably settled films of the D-Day landings in Normandy were shown by courtesy of the Provincial Life Insurance Co. of America. Pres. Cec Brown thanked Cdr. Jack Lundberg for his efforts in getting permission to show these films. He concluded his remarks with a reminder to the members to turn out for the Remembrance Day Parade.

High School Teachers' Pay Over a Million

The three high schools operated by the Bay of Quinte District High School Board have become a million dollar industry — the teachers' salaries are concerned.

The teachers' payroll for the high school boards reached the million dollar mark with the beginning of the fall school term, the board reported to city manager J. R. Reynolds.

This annual amount is for teachers' salaries only and does not include costs of heat and school costs of any kind.

And the million dollar salary figure is only the school teachers' — they will get another boost when the new addition at Quinte Secondary School is completed and in operation.

Costs of the addition at present being constructed at Sinclair and also of the addition at Moira Secondary School, are to be born by the Federal and Provincial governments but the local municipalities will be responsible for their share of operational costs.

With the exception of minor details the Sinclair addition was completed in time for September occupancy. The Quinte addition is now scheduled for completion next summer.

Enrolment at the three schools now stands at 3,000 with all available classroom space being used in all of the three schools. With the completion of the Quinte addition the pressure will be relieved for a few years, but it is possible that in three or four years time the question of accommodation will again become acute.

Napanee Water Tank Punctured, Man Arrested

NAPANEE (Special) — A 250-year-old man has been named in a warrant for illegally discharging a .303 rifle after Town's water-tank was punctured by gunfire Sunday.

Two bullet holes were discovered in the tank after town officials checked a noticeable drop in water pressure. The 250,000-gallon tank lost several thousand gallons before the holes were found. They cannot be plugged because of the high pressure on the sides of the tank when it is full.

While assistance is being sought from manufacturers the water pressure will remain below normal.

Police have charged Robert Parks with illegally discharging a firearm and malicious damage. Mr. Parks, at the time the warrant was issued, was believed away hunting.

Fire Chief Says Two Fires Were Set Deliberately

Chief Gerald Vance of the Fire Department reported this morning that two fires had been deliberately set in the city over the weekend.

Fire was started on a bench in the swinging section in the east hill playground on Sunday evening about 7.00 p.m. The floor in the building had been forced open and the blaze scorched a partition inside.

At 4.40 p.m. Saturday afternoon, Mr. J. Clarke, proprietor of a BA gasoline station on East Dundas, noticed heavy smoke coming from the door and windows of the Riwanis swimming pool, across the road.

Chief Vance said a window and door had been forced and fire was set in a toilet bowl. His said yards and yards of toilet paper were stuffed in the bowl and set afire.

The fire-men were marks on the cement floor where other fires had been set, and, that, if anything, setting these fires is located he will be charged with arson.

Fire-hall firemen were held back temporarily when they arrived at the swimming pool, from extinguishing the flames, believed coming from the toilet.

However was not considered extensive be said, but if they had not been noticed in time, both building could have been a complete loss.

Hunt for Hunter Missing 5 Days Now 'Desperate'

BANCROFT (Special) — The search for a 21-year-old hunter missing in three bushed west of here entered its fifth day here this morning at what police described as "near the desperate stage."

Search parties of police and volunteers, assisted by a Department of Transport helicopter, have been scouring an area around Paudash, about miles west of Bancroft since Wednesday for David Casselman of Smithfield.

The veteran hunter failed to return from his deer runway Wednesday evening. No trace has been found of him since.

"It is rather baffling," said one searcher this morning.

"We have found no clue to his whereabouts whatsoever."

Between 30 and 50 men split into search groups as the hunt got under way again today.

Barge Freed From Harbor

TRENTON — Bay Anna, the 1,500-ton coal barge that spent an unplanned night in Trenton Harbor Thursday, was freed Saturday by the tug, Salvage Prince, of Kingston.

The barge had discharged her load at the B. W. Powers Co. dock in Trenton and cast off for the trip down the Bay of Quinte Friday night. Saturday morning officials of the Powers Co. were surprised to see her still waiting in the harbor.

Lacking a small boat, they could make no contact with the barge, and could not explain why she had spent the night in the harbor. Fears that she had dragged anchor and might have been stopped by engine trouble, or she might have been aground in the lake did not materialize.

Mud and rock tow away from the Hamilton Mountain and buried a car against a trestle on the Lakeshore Conservation road. Police rescued Adrian Pyl, 65, and his wife Johanna, 64.

Most of southern Ontario received at least two inches of rain and traffic moved slowly on provincial highways. Telephone service in London and Oakville was cut off and in Sarnia harbor loading and unloading was halted.

Minor hydro failures were reported in the St. Catharines area.

The Saturday rain, however, came nowhere near the total on the night of Friday, Oct. 15, 1954, when hurricane Hazel dumped 7.2 inches of rain on the Toronto area.

According to the report, Mr. Weese was unable to stop his vehicle, due to the wetness of the pavement. The Buell car sustained $200 in rear-end damage; the Weese car, $50 damage to the front end.

Gerald Finley, 28, of Heber St., Trenton, sustained a bruise to his left forearm. Other passengers in both cars, were uninjured, as were the drivers.

Storm Saturday Was Worst One Since Hazel

TORONTO (CP) — The weather office says Saturday's rain storm was the worst to hit southern Ontario since hurricane Hazel in 1954.

Many southern Ontario communities had flooded basements and streets as well as disruptions to hydro and telephone services. Cars stalled in flooded underpasses in Metropolitan Toronto.

Conor O'Brien Says False Report Given on Start of UN Intervention in Katanga

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Conor Cruse O'Brien, Irish ex - diplomat, claims Dag Hammarskjold helped with and was responsible for what O'Brien calls a false United Nations account of why and how the first battle of Katanga province in The Congo began in September, 1961.

Hammarskjold, Swedish chief executive of the UN died in an air crash soon afterward and 11 weeks later O'Brien was retired from UN service on the initiative of Hammarskjold's successor, U Thant of Burma.

The controversial O'Brien had been Hammarskjold's top representative in Katanga in the unsuccessful UN effort to reunite that rich secessionist province with the larger and poorer parts of The Congo.

O'Brien's accusation is in a book written to give his version of what went on behind the Elisabethville scenes.

OFFICIAL VERSION

At one point in the book—entitled To Katanga and Back published Sunday — O'Brien said of Hammarskjold:

"He allowed the world to be given an official version which he knew perfectly well misstated the reality of what had happened, making what had been an active intervention by the United Nations look like a defensive action.

"These words will make painful reading for Hammarskjold's many admirers. I know this because they are words which are painful also to write."

O'Brien said Hammarskjold had arrived in Leopoldville Sept. 13 without knowing that fighting had flared a few hours earlier between UN forces and Katangan President Moise Tshombe Independence seeking forces. The secretary-general had left for Northern Rhodesia four days later for a meeting and truce with Tshombe and died when his plane crashed in the Rhodesian bush.

O'Brien maintained that the UN account of why and how the fighting started—was false on two crucial points:

1. The UN launched operation "Morthor"—a Hindi word meaning "unleash"—to end the secession of Katanga. Instructions to undertake the operation came to "Brien and his colleagues from Leopoldville headquarters. But the official UN report portrayed the military operations as a continuation of past fighting and a result of Tshombe's white mercenaries.

'NOT REPORTED'

2. Fighting began Sept. 13 when Indian UN troops advancing on the Elisabethville Post Office were shot at from the roof of the building housing the Belgian consulate. But the official UN report said UN troops were attacked on their way to the UN garage where arson had been discovered. O'Brien insisted, however, no act of arson had been reported by or to him and indeed there was no UN garage.

O'Brien argued these "important practical implications" flowed from what he called the "historical inaccuracy" of the UN version:

"It put the UN, in every sense, in a false position. False, literally, first and worst of all; false from the point of view of public opinion, false militarily and false, politically. . . .

O'Brien said Hammarskjold did not know in advance that O'Brien had been ordered to launch forceful operations ending the Katangan secession. His instructions, according to O'Brien, included the arrest of leading members of the Tshombe government and seizing in certain circumstances Tshombe himself.

But O'Brien maintained Hammarskjold had time and opportunity in Leopoldville, the Congo capital, to have learned essentials of those instructions —if not from UN chiefs in Leopoldville themselves, then from O'Brien's own situation reports.

LAYS FIRST WREATH — The Government of Canada Remembrance Day wreath is deposited at the base of Belleville's cenotaph by Lee Grills, M.P., at yesterday's service. It was the first of the traditional tributes to the Belleville district's war dead, laid by senior and civic civilian representatives. Parade marshal for the event was Les Digby, seen in background.

Remembrance Day Observed At Academy

Lieutenant - Colonel Joseph Black, commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, was the guest speaker at a Remembrance Day program held at St. Michael's Academy, on November 9.

The speaker reminded the students that it was 44 years ago, on November 11, that the great warring nations ceased hostilities. Men had gone overseas to fight what they considered a war to end all wars. There has been another war, and there are rumors of war.

"When we read the papers we realize the type of world to which we would be subjected today, had not dedicated people sacrificed everything that their country and their families might be free.

WATCH AND PRAY

In the past there was the conventional type of fighting — killing one another with rifles and bombs. If there is another war we are all going to be involved. It is a horrible thought but we can do something about it. We can all pray and we can be prepared. Prayer and preparedness are the two weapons at our disposal to protect our country and our way of living, and they are a duty for all.

"Preparedness applies to civilians as well a the military. We are prepared for such things as 'National Survival.' At this time my should attack this country with inter-continental missiles, they would have to come in physically and occupy it. It is the man on the ground who wins the war. If the enemy realize that we are dedicated, they will not attack.

Finally, Lieutenant Colonel Black emphasized that freedom has been bought at a great price. Safety and security for coming generations must be provided.

Jaime Laredo, Violinist, to Play Here

Three years ago, Jaime Laredo won the Queen Elizabeth of Belgium music competition. He triumphed over hundreds of applicants from all over the world in what is known as the most difficult musical contest anywhere.

Since winning that contest, young Laredo, now only 21 years old, has toured Europe twice, and has been acclaimed by audiences in North and South Americas.

Laredo was born in Bolivia, South America and early showed great musical promise. When he was given a violin at the age of six, he instinctively tuned it to concert pitch without the aid of the piano or a pitch-pipe.

The young artist's first public performance came when he was eight years old; when he presented a full recital (including the Mendelssohn Concerto). He later played with the San Francisco Symphony under Fiedler, when he was eleven.

Since then his career has been a steady progression of public appearances and general acclaim. Laredo has been widely praised by critics. Most of the Washington Poste wrote: "He is going to be one of the great names in violin playing. He is an amazingly fine artist, a true virtuoso whose playing is as colorful and enchanting as anything Washington has heard for a long time."

For his first RCA Victor recording he has been named The Best Young Performing Artist of the Year".

The rare privilege of hearing this fine young violinist comes to the members of the Belleville Community Concert in the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium on Thursday, November 15th at 8.30 p.m.

It is hoped that the club will meet again in a fortnight's time but the locale for this meeting is not yet determined. At the club's first meeting two weeks ago a bus-load from Kingston attended. Saturday evening there were again some Kingston club members present.

4-Car Crash Brings Charge At Tweed

TWEED (Special) — Ontario Provincial Police say they have charged a 75-year-old man with careless driving after a four-car accident late Friday night.

He was identified as Arthur Mullett of Moira.

Police allege Mr. Mullett's car struck two other automobiles angle-parked on the village's main street, then bounced into a third car.

Total property damage was estimated at $450.

Madoc OPP investigated the incident.

Three Stirling People Injured In Collision

Three persons were injured when the car in which they were travelling was struck broadside as it turned on Highway 33 at Glen Ross, about two miles south of Stirling, last night.

They were the driver, 61-year-old Oscar Clapper, 31 Frankford Road, Stirling, who suffered bruises and chest injuries; his wife, Edna Clapper, with a broken pelvis and bruises, and Mrs. M. Runnells, also of Stirling, with knee injuries.

Trio Arrested After Curling Club Entered

Police swarmed around the Quinte Curling Club at the city's fairgrounds late last night after the crew of a patrolling cruiser believed they had disturbed a break-in.

The police were holding three men in connection with the incident. They say the trio were apprehended in the vicinity of the club.

The alarm was raised about 11.30 p.m. as the cruiser approached the club for a routine check of doors and windows. An officer saw several men scatter from the building and run off in different directions.

Uniformed and plainclothesmen were rushed to the scene and a search started of fields and property around the Fairgrounds.

Later officers confirmed the club had been entered and a quantity of goods, including cigarettes was missing. Detectives this morning were still checking out details on the incident.

The names of those apprehended were not immediately released by police.

Inspector J. B. McLauchlan is in charge of investigations.

Collide at Detour

Property damage was extensive but there were no personal injuries in a two-car crash on Highway 401 at the Sidney Street detour, northwest of Belleville last night.

Drivers of the cars, which struck as they approached from opposite directions along the detour, were identified as Janine Theoret, Montreal, and William Russell Babcock, of Belleville. Damage was estimated by Ontario Provincial Police at $500 to the Theoret car and $300 to Babcock's vehicle.

Tray Missing

Momentary failure of memory can have embarrassing consequences.

Sunday, the management of a roadside restaurant on Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton, reported one of its trays was missing. So, they called police.

An O.P.P. officer tracked it in possession of a Trenton man.

His excuse?

He forgot to return it.

Police did.

Fleeting Half-Hour Links Soldiers and Civilians in Remembrance Day Service

That fleeting but never-forgotten annual half-hour of Remembrance Day service once again linked soldiers and civilians in Belleville yesterday.

War veterans' groups, militia and armed service contingents linked common thoughts with a big gathering of citizens for the Remembrance observations at the city's cenotaph.

The grey cloud blankets that had loosed rain steadily for almost 24 hours before had cleared by Sunday and the weather was clear and bright, with a slightly cold wind.

The service, its pageantry never failing to somehow add more solemnity to the occasion, went with scarcely a hitch.

The parade moved off on time — at 10.20 from the Bridge Street armories — arriving on schedule at the cenotaph by way of Pinnacle and Station streets.

The only unforeseen incident occurred just as Rev. Father Maurice Imhoff stepped forward to make the keynote address. The public-address system went dead, but Rev. Imhoff carried on and made his remarks heard to the large assembly.

Father Imhoff reminded the assembly that the two nations of North America were founded on the ideal of liberty. The ideal now was once again being put to the test in a war to hoff carried on and made his remarks heard to the large assembly.

"We have fought two world wars to protect this way of life. We who survive saw the horror of hell on earth in order to pass the nobility of man on to posterity."

Father Imhoff was one of three denuminational figures present — all of them who saw war service.

The Remembrance prayer was pronounced by Ven. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell and the Scripture reading by Salvation Army envoy Bram Humphreys.

Immediately following the service, a profusion of wreaths was deposited at the base of the cenotaph, flanked through-out the Remembrance observations by four Sea Cadets, standing with bowed heads and reversed rifles.

The parade then returned down Station Street and Front Street.

Three bands, RCAF Station, Trenton; the Navy pipe band and the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment band, supplied the music.

Sea Cadets, members of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans and Royal Canadian Legion organizations and their ladies auxiliaries, joined, the militia and air force contingents in the column.

Heading the parade were the color parties and representatives of the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Among the wreaths laid at the cenotaph were: Government of Canada (by Lee Grills, M.P.); Province of Ontario; city of Belleville (by Mayor A. Mc-Lean Haig); Army, Navy and Air Force and veterans organizations. A number of individual wreaths also were deposited.

Slight Damage In Printing Shop at Batawa

A fire in the printing shop of the Bata Shoe Company at Batawa, broke out early Saturday morning, but damage was reported as slight.

The fire chief at the shoe factory said an employee working in the boiler room noticed smoke coming from the printing shop at about 2.40 a.m. There was no one working in the printing department at the time.

The Belleville fire department was alerted and asked to stand by. A truck was sent to the scene from Belleville, but was called back after an OK was given from the factor; that the fire was under control.

The blaze was confined to the printing shop where damage was caused to machinery and paper located within the shop.

An official estimate of the damage was not available, and there were no injuries reported.

A Reasonable Proposal

Canada should break off diplomatic and trade relations with Cuba, as an indication of this country's solidarity with the United States in matters of North American security.

That is the suggestion of George Hogan, who is national vice-president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada. Since the policies he suggests run contrary to those followed to date by the Federal Government, which is formed by his party, Mr. Hogan's suggestions may cause some raised eyebrows. They ought not to be summarily dismissed on that account. Because a policy was correct at its inception does not mean that it necessarily remains correct in the light of continual developments.

There is, we suggest, all the difference in the world between trading with Cuba at a time when the commitment of Castro and his aides to the communist cause remained in some doubt, and in trading with that same nation after it has offered itself as a base for offensive weapons aimed at the heart of our good neighbor, staunch ally and one sure protector.

To suggest that Canada could live secure in today's world without the shelter of the umbrella provided by U.S. nuclear weapons is to talk utter nonsense.

We may not like the fact of this dependence, but it remains a fact and a fact, moreover, for which the U.S. can in no way be blamed.

If there is anything which can be said against Mr. Hogan's suggestions, it must surely be merely that any change now in government policy would come so late as to be obviously too little a contribution to the U.S. effort in the crisis now, apparently, happily solved.

Perhaps the elapse of a decently short interval of time might prove less embarrassing to us But let us not wait too long. Before any new crisis arises, we ought to make it clear to our friend and neighbor that we are not interested in easing the economic burden on the communists of the duty to support Cuba and sustain her. Some consideration could be given to making an exception of foodstuffs in any trade boycott. But of the desirability of demonstrating our solidarity with the U.S. on matters of defence there can be no reasonable doubt.

Deformed Have Right to Live

Few there are who would not sympathize with the initial reaction of Suzanne Vandeput. How many are there who would support her subsequent step? Therein may lie a basic social question of our age.

Madame Vandeput has been on trial in Liege, Belgium, for poisoning her child, born armless after the mother had taken the tranquilizer thalidomide.

It is little more than two months since a legal precedent was set up for this sort of thing in Sweden. At that time the thalidomide horror was at its crest and Mrs. Sherri Finkbine, of Phoenix, Arizona, recollected she too had taken the drug. She sought an abortion and when her state and country refused the request she went to Sweden where it was fulfilled. The child indeed proved to be deformed and Mrs. Finkbine won her gamble.

Madame Vandeput made the discovery of her child's deformity after it was born alive. She is now being tried for murder in a trial that has evoked deep public emotion.

"What I did was the only possible solution. I felt the child could not be happy as it was," she told her jurors.

Perhaps that was the same motivation that moved the Finkbines. Yet human life is the ultimate possession and no person or state has the right to decide whether an individual shall cease to exist when that same individual constitutes no menace to other life. This applies whether or not its mental processes have reached what is loosely termed the "age of reason."

Physically, these children would be misfits, yet this fact has never rendered the handicapped incapable of adapting themselves into normal society. Parents who think otherwise are guilty of prejudgment with appalling consequences.

Such bodies, as religious, atheist and agnostic philosophers commonly agree, are but the chambers of the intellect. This, above all, is the precedent set by such actions as those of the Finkbines and Madame Vandeput. They have destroyed human intellect because its body was ugly and retarded. In so doing, they have shunned a basic duty to humankind and thus misguidedly committed the greatest crime of all.

For society to think otherwise would be the ultimate disgrace of civilization.

Strictly Personal
Failure Breeds Success

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was watching a mother in the park playground the other Saturday morning. Her 4-year-old boy was climbing the monkey bars, perhaps for the first time. She thought she was helping him learn how, but she was really hindering him.

She would not permit him to do anything wrong, to make a mistake. Her misplaced zeal controlled him and commented by Dr. Earl Kelley in his interesting book, "Education For What Is Real." Dr. Kelley pointed out:

"The learning experience must provide for child and error, with a recognition of the fact that more is often learned by what we do wrong than by what we do right. We materialize almost universally in that we fail to realize the educative value of mistakes."

This misguided mother was following the child around to see to it that he did not do anything "wrong." But doing things wrong — with the corrections they bring — is what actually promotes growth, learning and the ability to deal with problems with a sense of security.

You may recall the anecdote of the 4-year-old in a little village who was asked where he got his wisdom from. "From my good judgment." "And where did your good judgment come from?" he was asked. "From my bad judgment," he replied.

Perhaps the most important part of education — both at home and at school — is helping children to enjoy and appreciate the adventure of being wrong, of picking back and dusting another trail. As Dr. Kelley says, "To be always right, if it were possible, would be deadly dull, and one would never learn anything."

Too many parents follow their children around to keep them from making mistakes; instead the children should be told that making a mistake is not a sin or a crime, but a way to try out and change and growth. "If a child," observes Dr. Kelley "gets the idea that to make a mistake is to sin, so great becomes his fear of error that he refuses to try, and retires into inaction."

The research head of a great industrial firm remarked many years ago that children should be judged not what it takes of be a "researcher," but in the errors they start school, children are scared out of their fears; if they flunk, it's a disgrace; if they fail once, they're out.

The research head of a research head went on, "all research is 99.9 percent failure and if you succeed once, you're in. Here's what we ought to teach them: The only time you don't want an experiment to fail is the last time you try it."

I hope the mother of the 4-year-old, and others like her, read this — and take it to heart as well as to mind.

Explanation Simple Here

Winnipeg Tribune

The Toronto police force is worried about its "public image" since Mrs. Brown appeared on television.

She is the wife of Constable Sid Brown.

Constable Brown is the president of the Toronto Metropolitan Police Association, and the police association is seeking salary adjustments from the municipality.

Mrs. Brown, along with two other police wives, got some time on television and asked their views on the delicate negotiations.

Constable Brown was called into Chief Constable Mackey's office to explain how the wives got mixed up in the affair. Brown's explanation has not been made public.

What is there to explain? The girls got together and, fed up with the stories they heard at home, they decided to do something about it. So they went on the air and revealed that policemen have wives and problems in making their pay cheque last. Nothing new in that. If anything it ought to improve the policeman's image which is now revealed as being as ordinary as all the other images going around these days.

And Constable Brown most likely answered, "No."

Suggest Cows In Ottawa

Oshawa Times

Barry Mather is a columnist for a Vancouver newspaper. Until last June's federal general election, it was a daily column of rather thin humor and satire. Mr. Mather ran as a New Democratic candidate in that election and was elected. We do not know what he had to say in his campaign speeches but we imagine they were more substantial than his maiden speech in the Commons which he devoted largely to praise of the cow as a regulator of rural life.

The fate of the cow, he told a numbed House, was spiritual as well as material. It sustained the physical man with its milk, but it provided the milk at hours which made it impossible for the farmer to gad about, in the fashion of urbanites. Because of the cow, the farmer rose early and went to bed early.

We don't know if this is good or bad. Presumably the Mather thesis dictates that it doesn't object too strenuously, or he'd succumb to the temptation to turn the shafts of ridicule in his direction. Mather's comments inspired the Sarnia Observer to wonder if a few more members of Parliament Hill would improve matters at Ottawa. The Observer wondered that

In this time of austerity they might keep the grass down and the lawns fertilized. This would probably bring protests from the sheepmen who claim their animals could not live on the bits of grass between the sidewalks and the curbs. Perhaps we should remind parliamentarians that agriculture is not the only things which can be clipped several times a year.

There is the calculated risk, of course, that milk from cows might cause taxpayers to draw a parallel between what the milkers were doing to the cows and what the Department of Revenue is doing to them.

Another calculated risk might be from the cow's ability to look intelligent despite its acknowledged stupidity. There could be caustic taxpayers who would see in the cow and their parliamentary leaders an unflattering similarity.

It might be just as well to leave the cows to contemplate lanes, farmers and city executives where they are. Disturbing the status quo could be embarrassing.

Old Tailor Firm Closing

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

At Cambridge, seat of a great university, the oldest tailoring firm, Pratt, Manning and Co. Ltd., has decided to close after 90 years. The main reason: an 80 per cent drop in student trade.

The manager explained: "Thirty years ago undergraduates were proud of their dress, buying three or four expensive suits at a time. Now, they prefer to shuffle around in jeans and sweaters."

This must be taken as an indication that students in England are no longer so formally conscious of their wearing apparel. This may be due to the changing times, because those seeking higher learning are now coming from a more diversified strata of society.

Universities, which a couple of decades ago had an enrollment of a few thousand now and the totals tripled and quadrupled. It would be difficult to conceive of the present-day generation conforming to the formal vest and bowler, marks of distinction some years ago for the "well dressed man."

We can sympathize with England's sensitive tailoring firms, forced to close their doors due to whims in college men's attire. Such fads can't stop change, and comfort in dress and more informality among students seems to be soundly established there now.

Non-Smokers More on Ball

Secondary school pupils who think it is necessary to smoke might be interested in the results of a Harvard School of Public Health survey. The study covered 6,810 pupils in high schools. It revealed that non-smoking pupils have a higher IQ than the smokers.

Said the report: "Among the boys of every grade, non-smokers have a higher mean IQ than discontinued smokers, who who again, have a higher mean IQ than smokers." The survey showed a distinct relationship between smoking and achievement. The researchers are not sure whether smoking causes lower achievement or low achievement triggers the smoking.

To Year Good Health
Respiratory Infections Are Dangerous to Babies

By JOSEPH G MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We hear so much of infants dying suddenly from a respiratory ailment.

Just how careful do we have to be with our children? My boys, one two years old and the other two months, have had respiratory troubles since birth and although they are under a doctor's care, they're always a little rattly. — Mrs. L. R.W.

I'm sure you are aware of the worry that once existed — and not so very long ago, either — over babies who supposedly were "smothered by blankets in their cribs."

This did not seem reasonable to many physicians who recognized that even having the face covered with a blanket does not shut off all air. There is enough to breathe.

Investigation of these cases then disclosed the real cause: the babies were victims of sudden, overwhelming respiratory infection. It is the principal cause of sudden death among very young children.

Usually the infection is unsuspected. If it developed more slowly, at least two factors turn the sufferer's fate to good behalf. First, treatment would be possible. Second, there would be more time for the parent to muster their own small defenses against it. The baby nearly always tries to fight off infection, of course.

Infants are born with temporary immunity against some diseases, but this does not — by any means — protect from persons probably cannot — include immunity against all the disease organisms around us. Even through life gradually building up immunities, in varying degrees of permanence, against the different germs with which we come in contact. Various cold, flu and grippe germs may be the most numerous.

A child starting school, especially if before that time he hasn't had much chance to play with other youngsters, encounters heavy exposure to many kinds of germs. He develops a lot of colds, the first with the number of colds declines.

The same thing happens with babies. They get their light exposure to some germ, and acquire a gradual immunity. Or they may encounter heavy exposure to some germ for the first time — and the result can be tragic.

That is why, if we are wise, we don't take a tiny baby where there are crowds of people, why hospitals are so strict about visitors in maternity wards, why we ourselves stay away from a baby if we come down with a heavy cold, why a mother with a cold wears a gauze mask while handling baby.

We can't keep babies "wrapped in cotton wool." But we can take reasonable precautions to let them come gradually into contact with the germ-inhabited world. It's a problem which, for the most part, is likely dangerous only to the very young infants.

"They're always a little rattly" may not mean a respiratory infection. It may be allergy, and your doctor, by observation, can reach a conclusion on that for you. Allergies are a nuisance and rarely can be a bit harmful, but they are rarely deadly, such as can be true of sudden contact for the first time with some germ or other.

Dear Dr. Molner: Five weeks ago I was operated on for prostate trouble and have not had a normal urination since. Is there a chance for me to return to normal? — W.W.C.

Yes, indeed, but this sometimes takes a little time.

Note to W.W.C.: I have no objection to milk of magnesia when it is needed. And I've written favorably a good many times about doctify sodium salicylate as an antiseptic agent especially useful for older people who have developed some constipation problem. But I decline to recommend one trade* brand over another.

What do you know about your heart? Simply, calmly, and plainly, Dr. Molner's new booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," tells about the heart and heart disease, and also adopted beats to AV blocks. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Belleville Intelligencer, Box 639, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. asking for a copy of this valuable booklet, enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Nov. 12, 1942 . . .

Revolutionary forces commanded by Gen. Richard Montgomery captured Montreal during the American War of Independence 167 years ago today — in 1775. Gen. Montgomery had sold his commission in the British Army three years previously. In December he and Benedict Arnold launched a two-pronged attack on Quebec City which failed. Gen. Montgomery was killed in the first discharge of artillery by the British and died New Year's Eve, 1775.

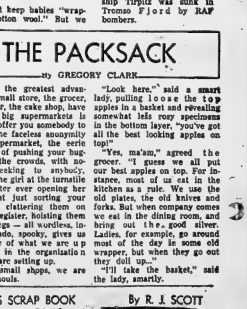
1951 — The then Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh completed their royal tour of Canada, 1951-52. The German battleship Tirpitz was sunk in Tromso Fjord by RAF bombers.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Perhaps the greatest advantage the small store, the grocer, the butcher, the cake shop, have over the big supermarket is that they offer you somebody to talk to. The faceless anonymity of the supermarket is the loneliness of pushing your buggy amid the crowds, with nobody speaking to anybody, not even the girl at the turnstile cash register ever opening her mouth, but merely totting your purchases, clattering them on the cash register, hoisting them into big bags — all without a communicado, spooky, gives us a foretaste of what we are up against in the organization a world we are setting up.

In the small shops, we are still free souls.



"Look here," he'd say, a smart lady, pulling loose the top apples in a basket and revealing somewhere in the middle, buried in the bottom layer, "you've got all the best looking apples on top!"

"Yes, ma'am," agreed the grocer. "I guess we all put the best apples on top." For instance, most of us eat in the kitchen as a rule. We use the old plates, the old knives and forks. But when company comes we eat in the dining room, and get out the good silver. Ladies, for example, go around most of the day in some old wrapper, but when they go out they doll up."

"I'll take the basket," said the lady, smartly.

Explains Why Some Seat Belts Failed in Test

OTTAWA — The fact that some seat belts failed to measure up to the new standards established by the Canadian Standards Association does not necessarily mean they are unsafe," declared W. Arch Boyce, executive director of the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

"Some of these failed because one out of a number of belts submitted for testing revealed that its entire weld was at fault. Another failed to meet the 4,000 pound force held by one or two pieces, although it did withstand a force considerably greater than it might ever be required to meet."

Mr. Bryce spoke in connection with a flurry caused recently by the report of an interview with a CSA official in Vancouver. "After a number of years of crash research experiments and studies in the United States by automotive manufacturers in co-operation with university researchers, and the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars and a great deal of time and energy by these experts, it was established that seat belts, if used, would save lives and reduce the severity of injuries. Based on this undeniable advice, the Canadian Highway Safety Council has been conducting a nation wide campaign to promote the use of seat belts in cars in Canada. To this it has had strong support from provincial safety groups, governments, the police, the medical, legal and judicial professions, the National Council of Women and others.

Out of these promotions, a new Canadian industry has grown and had been established. Manufacturers of seat belts participated in drawing up the new CSA standards for belts which are based on standards previously set by the Society of Automotive Engineers. The SAE standards were met by belts made by responsible manufacturers before the CSA standard was introduced. Thus belts sold in Canada prior to Oct. 1, when CSA issued its standard's were reliable if they bore the legend 'SAE J4'.

The wide publicity given to the Vancouver interview, and the subsequent publicity given to the need for motorists to ascertain the quality of the belts they buy, may in the long run, result in greater care being taken by purchasers to belt quality. It was unfortunate, Mr. Bryce said, that this had to come about by publication and broadcast of inadequate information which seriously distorted the motorists' viewpoint in relation to seat belts and disregard of a new and legitimate Canadian industry. "We feel sure," he said, "that the motorist will recognize the inadequacy of the information contained in the original item and the fact that seat belts identified as SAE or CSA certified are reliable and safe and will prevent death and injury in traffic accidents to a great extent."

Young Couple Escape From Sleepy Gunman

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP) — gunman forced a young couple to travel to Cudworth, Sask., apartment house Sunday after a caretaker was shot at and another was beaten in the building was threatened and then tied to his bed.

The couple, forced to drive the gunman away from the apartment, escaped when the gunman fell asleep. They turned up here safe about 12 hours later.

Police said roadblocks were set up around this centre and a province-wide search was started for the gunman. They added that they believed he was in the city and on foot.

But they would not comment, nor would the couple after talking to police, on what happened after the gunman and the couple's escape or how they reached this town, 85 miles northeast of Regina.

The couple was identified as Margaret Palmer, 22, and Alan McGuire, 25. The car used was owned by McGuire.

Police said they were looking for Alex Palmer, 25, of Osler, Miss Palmer's brother, for questioning about the incident.

Mac White's Rink Wins Mixed Spiel at Club

Another successful and well conducted event has been concluded at the Quinte Curling Club. The mixed bonspiel which was held last Monday evening was concluded with a buffet supper and dance at which prizes were distributed. The club, Ev Gowsell declared the season officially opened and Mrs. Peggy Wambolt, president of the women's section added her agreement.

During the week of splendid curling on almost perfect ice, the rinks entered had eight top teams by Friday night and these were given a one-game play on Saturday evening previous to the social hour, and distribution of prizes. The rink of Mr. and Mrs. James Durant with Mr. and Mrs. Mac White was declared winner of the spiel with eight points—a one count for each end won and two points for winning the match. In the words of Skip Mr. White had a count of 21 points.

In second place was a rink skipped by Jim Coverdale with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lomas and Mrs. Gwen Sutton as vice skip. Rinks skipped by Frank Creegan and Charles Lovett were tied in points but Mr. Creegan had the most points during the spiel and therefore was given third spot, while Mr. Lovett went to fourth place. On Mr. Creegan's rink were Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Neil and Mrs. Anna Parsons, while on the Lovett rink were Mrs. Doreen Lovett and Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Livingstone.

The same thing happened with Ernie Wilkinson and Murray Johnson, who scored four points but Mr. Wilkinson had the better score in the week's play and was given fifth place with a rink of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alexander and Mrs. Connie Wilkinson. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Mercer with Mrs. Louise Johnson comprised Mr. Johnson's rink. A rink of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Mercer in the air, and Mrs. Ron Benn won the seventh place and a rink of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Palmer with Mr. and Mrs. Gil Walmboldt won the last playoff-spot.

COMMITTEE THANKED

In declaring the season open Mr. Gowsell sincerely thanked the committee under the chairmanship of Edward Lewis for the fine arrangements and carrying out of the evening's play.

"It is this co-operation that will make the club a success. Every event will be conducted by a separate committee and they have the full authority of the directorate," said the president. He also thanked Mrs. Jean Riley and Mrs. Heatlier White for the excellent decorations that were provided in the clubhouse. "These women worked long hours to create the delightful atmosphere and deserve our thanks," said Mr. Gowsell. The women's section was also thanked for providing the delightful refreshments during the course of the spiel.

Ed Lewis as chairman of the committee thanked his fellow members for the wonderful help given in all phases of the work to make the spiel a success and Stuart Bush explained the draw committee operated. Mr. Lewis distributed the prizes to the lucky winners and then the large assembly, the lounge room being filled to capacity, saw the delightful buffet supper. The evening was closed with a dance and a social hour that continued 'till the midnight hour.

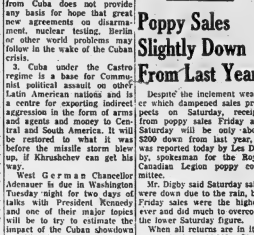
Cherry Valley Rabbit-Meat Factory Opens



PICTON — Prince Edward County's newest industry, Pic-Freez Rabbit Industries, Ltd., was officially opened Saturday afternoon at Cherry Valley. The ribbon-cutting ceremony was in charge of president Willard Eves, assisted by Warren Jorgensen, Parliamentary secretary to the Minister of Agriculture and Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P., Prince Edward-Lennox. Mayor H. J. McMahland, a director, spoke of the venture as an important one.

A rabbit luncheon was enjoyed by 125 guests, many eating rabbit for the first time and finding it delicious.

Educational films were also shown.

The project involves an investment of around $55,000. The plant is of concrete block construction, 44 by 66 feet and has the latest in equipment. It is designed to kill, process, pack and freeze 2,800 rabbits in an 8-hour shift of 16 workers when operating at capacity. The rabbits will be sold whole or in sections, for frying, roasting or stewing.

A special breed of rabbits, maturing in 8 weeks, is required and these are grown on a contract basis. Mr. Eves, who has spent several years making plans, says the future appears bright. This is the first such government-inspected plant in Canada.

Police Stage Raids After $6,000 Holdup

HAMILTON (CP) — Saltfleet police staged two predawn raids today, questioning suspects in connection with a $6,000 holdup Saturday at the Stoney Creek branch.

Chief Gordon Osmond and Sergeant Tom Braithwaite interviewed three men in Saltfleet and Hamilton.

No arrests were made but several new leads developed in the last few hours the chief said today.

Evidence is on its way to the attorney-general's crime laboratory in Toronto for expert examination.

The dairy was robbed while two crews were on the sundaes in an adjoining building.

Cashier Leonard Hollingsworth, the stepped out of his second floor office at around 8:15 p.m. Saturday after counting the receipts.

He walked into the muzzles of two guns.

Two men, their faces masked with strips of adhesive tape and carrying a pistol and saved-off shotgun, ordered the cashier back into his office.

The men lashed Mr. Hollingsworth to a chair with tape. They bound his mouth with a broad slab of adhesive.

One gunman pulled a clear plastic bag from his pocket and scooped up $6,615 in bills from the cashier's desk. The pair fled, leaving a stack of coins behind.

Lonely Divorcee Counts Blessings

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—This is a letter to "Only Half Alive." I'm a woman in the same spot. After more than twenty years of marriage, my mate decided other pastures were greener, so I think I know how you feel.

It's four years now, and though I didn't know just how I was ever going to adjust, I've finally calmed down.

I did as you suggested, Doris, and interested myself in other things. I'm still lonesome and still hope some day I may meet someone who needs companionship as much as I do. I wish I could really talk to "One Half Alive" and tell him there are many things to be thankful for, even if it doesn't seem so just now.—THANKFUL TO BE ALIVE.

DEAR THANKFUL—The city of happiness is in the state of mind." Counting our blessings is good therapy. Mind you, this is only after you have done all you can to make a marriage work.

* * *

TO OLD BALL—If you would like me to send you that pamphlet about hair removing, I would like to have a stamped, self-addressed envelope from you in which to send it to you.

* * *

TO YOUNG LADY—You can show you are growing up by taking care of your clothes, bathing regularly; hair care; learning how to speak properly. There were errors in grammar in your letter which show carelessness. Learn to use English properly.

(Write for Doris' advice on growing up or growing old, living with or without loved ones. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Kidneys Promoted

(Managing Meat Money Con'd.)

by Mary Moore

Here we go again on this cheap meat chase.

This time, I bought a beef kidney weighing one pound and costing 33c.

Besides the economy and deliciously different flavors of the organ meats most are high in vitamins and minerals. Beef kidney is an excellent protein and contains calcium, phosphorus, iron and vitamins A, B and C.

The recipe is called Kidneys Madeira and came from Spain. It calls for 2 tablespoons Madeira wine but I used cooking sherry. If you do not use wine in your cooking you can omit this.

Kidneys have a rich and distinctive flavor and I think need a good carbohydrate companion. This is true of all kidneys except veal, in my opinion, (see below). I served buttered fine noodles with ours but rice would be good too. There are families who always serve potatoes in some form every day. If you serve mashed potatoes for dinner you do not need the rice or noodles of course. If you do not want to prepare any of these three starch items, simply use thinly sliced bread, and toast it and cut it into long precise triangles and serve the kidneys on them.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Ground Beef Cakes: Tomato Sauce; Fresh Frozen Asparagus; Delicate Mashed Turnip; Relish Tray: Tomato Quarters, Green Pepper and Cucumber Strips; Steamed Carrot Pudding with Brown Sugar Hard Sauce; Coffee.

KIDNEYS MADEIRA (serves 4):

1 lb. beef or lamb or veal kidneys, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ¼ lb. mushrooms, sliced, ½ small onion, chopped, ½ cup chopped celery, 1 chicken or beef bouillon cube, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley (optional), 2 tablespoons Madeira wine or cooking sherry (optional).

Cut kidneys and trim away fat and velnous portions and cut into 1" pieces and soak in cold water 1 hour. Drain. Discard soaking water. Add 1 cup fresh water and simmer covered until tender or pressure cook. Time of cooking kidneys differs; beef and pork kidneys require longer cooking than veal and lamb. The beef kidney I used required 30 minutes at 10 pounds pressure. When tender drain and measure liquid. You need ¾ cup. Melt the butter or margarine in large frying pan and saute in it gently the onion, celery and mushrooms until limp but not brown. Add salt and flour and when blended stir in the ¾ cup cooking liquid until thick. Add bouillon cube, cooked kidneys and simmer covered for 5 minutes. Just before serving add wine or sherry and parsley if used. Serve on or with rice or noodles or mashed potatoes or toast points on preheated platter. If desired, more parsley may be used for garnishing platter.

CRUMBED VEAL KIDNEYS:

Split veal kidneys in flat halves. Trim off any excess fat. They require very little trimming. Soak in cold water 15 minutes. Drain and dry. Dip in beaten egg then in fine salted crumbs. Saute in butter in frying pan just long enough to set the meat. Delicious with a mixed grill of bacon and mushrooms and green tomato slices or with steam-fried sliced Spanish or Italian onions.

If you want an alluring new figure, you want Daisy Fresh! This best-selling bra has elasticized under-arm shirring to prevent "sagging," elasticized straps and waistband. Sizes 32-36 A, 32-38 B and 32-40 C, $2.50.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, a clergyman, three editors and a woman's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counselors and social workers.

JEANNE T. — She's angry at me for no good reason. What did I do?

FLORA I. — She has kept me waiting for the last time. I've had it.

Jeanne T.: Flo and I have been friends right through high school and after. We live on the same block and belong to the same club. Most of the time we go to the movies and other places together. Last week when I told Flo I'd meet her at the bus stop so we could travel to the club meeting together, she said no, she'd go alone. When I asked why, her answer was you figure it out.

Well, I can't. I knew she was burned up because I was late for our last date, but I couldn't help it. I had locked myself out accidentally and had to wait for my brother.

Flora I.: Late for our last date! Believe me, it was our last! She was one whole hour late, while I stood on a rainy corner downtown. We were due at a birthday party and arrived when the candles were being blown out. The hostess had given up waiting for us.

I don't have to put up with Jeanne's nonsense. She's a nice enough kid and we've had some good times together, but if she wants to stay friends with me it's on one condition — that she goes alone and I go alone. She's never on time anywhere, and I suffer for her carelessness. I'm a punctual person. But with Jeanne along, I've never been able to prove it.

The Council: We doubt that this spells the end of a beautiful friendship. Even if Flora no longer arrives with her old side - kick, we have an idea they'll make the return trip together. No matter how late Jeanne is at the outset, she'll look good as a companion for the trip home, especially since she's on the spot and doesn't have to be called for.

The problem here is chronic lateness and psychologists have some views on it. They attribute it to "ego trouble." It's a way of forcing attention, as most theatre-goers who've been disturbed by latecomers will testify.

Jeanne will deny this, no doubt. But a look at what lateness accomplishes may give her pause, and make the above theory more plausible: You hustle up to Flora (or into a meeting room) breathlessly. Everyone looks. Ah, recognition. Someone's what happened. Ah, solicitude. So Jeanne has the satisfaction of being specifically noticed. She feels important; and rather smart to be so "busy."

Baloney. By planning, leaving enough time and being a considerate of others, a person can usually keep an appointment on time. When he can't he usually has a good reason such as weather, transportation an accident. And he's believed and forgiven, because his tardiness is the exception, not the rule.

Persistent lateness, the experts say, indicates a sort of hostility. The offender is angry over something — inferiority feelings, frustrations, humiliations. Maybe someone once made Jeanne wait an hour herself and, though she's forgotten who or when, she's taking it out on Flora and everyone else.

Flora's position is right. Perhaps two any-old-time friends can get along fine, taking turns on who can be later. But Flora deserves a break. She should henceforth go alone, or with a pal who's as conscientious as she about punctuality. Eventually, of course, she should consent to another date with her "late" friend, Jeanne, testing for improvement at the "go" end.

GIFT TIPS FOR TOTS

Thinking of buying a Christmas toy for a charming little tot on your gift list? Then listen to the voice of experience (it's a trifle hoarse at this point) and read the fine print on the package first.

I say this advisedly, thinking back to our happy little group last Christmas morning. Our five-year-old son went into ecstacies over a remote-controlled car, which, alas, lacked even the remotest control. The loving uncle who sent it didn't read the key phrase somewhere on the bottom of the box in very small print which, however, told a big story — namely, "batteries not included."

So there we were with a sobbing child who couldn't be controlled either. I got hoarse trying to explain that the hardware store wouldn't open until the following day, and father got a peach of a cold slamming around an icy garage in search of a battery. he knew he had seen it here only last summer. We finally borrowed the batteries from the only working flashlight in the house to get Christmas into the proper spirit again. But this year, I'm advising all interested relatives to read instructions and send the works. In fact, it might be a better idea to forget the car and send a batch of batteries, instead.

Seriously, though, choosing the proper toy for a child does require a bit of research. There's more in the fine print than meets the bifocals.

For instance, very often the box will give the age group for which the toy is designed. A group of interlocking blocks may teach a three-year-old something about color and design, and enable him to exercise manual dexterity and coordination. A younger child given the same toy, however, might become completely frustrated trying to put the blocks together and end up scaling them at the nearest relative or grinding them into the carpet. So try to choose a toy that's been engineered to the interest and capabilities of a given age group. The child is much happier with it, and, naturally, so are the parents.

Then there's the matter of instructions. When buying a toy that's to be assembled, it's wise to read the instructions first and see if you can understand them. If you can, then father most likely can, too. But if assembling anything is beyond his grasp (most fathers have scant finger dexterity) then it's only right and just that the donor show good manners and set the thing up himself. Very often, though, a store will put together a tricycle or a midget car for a slight additional charge. It's worth investigating for the sake of preserving peace.

Another pitfall to avoid is the toy of one million pieces. This is best reserved for a birth day when there aren't quite so many packages and wrappings for key pieces to get lost among. Last year I threw away something that looked like an old electric light socket. How was I to know it was the main connecting link for a whole construction set? My son never did get around to building that better mousetrap and if I have my way, this year he won't get a second crack at it.

Denim Goes to School

By TRACY ADRIAN

Here's a costume that has won the hearts of high school girls both in the classroom and after school.

The Bermuda skirt is of navy blue denim and is back-wrap and quite short and full. It ties at the waist with a spaghetti-string belt. Curved patch pockets are outlined with white stitching.

'Probation Beginnings' Topic Given at Albert College W. G.

Absent through illness from the September and October meetings of the Albert College Guild, the president, Mrs. F. Wilson, was in the chair for the November meeting. Still convalescing she delegated some of the duties of office to the vice-president, Mrs. F. Davidson.

With the approaching "Remembrance Day" in mind, a minute's silence was observed.

Mrs. T. R. Colden led the worship service, taking as her theme "Love the Greatest Thing in the World." She gave some gems of thought from Drummond's classic on this subject. This service was a fitting approach to the address of the afternoon on "Probation in Ontario."

GUEST SPEAKER

The speaker, Mr. D. I. MacKinnon, was educted in Upper Canada College and in England. He served in the RCAF and on his discharge in 1946 joined the staff of the Ottawa Family Court as probation officer. After four years with that court he came to Belleville to establish the court for Hastings County.

He is active in a number of community organizations, one being the Christie Lake Boys' Camp, another, the youth committee of the YMCA.

Mr. MacKinnon related something of beginnings of Probation service, in the United States, Great British and in this country and province.

From statistics he showed the size of the job in probation. Also with 12 thousand on probation in Ontario at present one could reckon the cost of keeping this number in jail at $2,000 for a person, for a year; and the savings, when the probation cost, for a person, for a year, is less than $100. To say nothing of what it means to the province to have the probationers remain earners.

FEW REPEATERS

It was on a re-assuring note that the speaker closed his address, with a statement that nine out of ten probationers don't get into trouble again in proving that they find a friend in the Probation officer.

Miss Grace Tucker expressed the appreciation of the members for this intersting presentation of our Probation services, their organization, their progress, and their encouraging results. All of which was discussed over the tea cups during the social hour.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary To Present 'Fashion Fiesta'

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital makes its annual bow to the Belleville Public on Wednesday evening, when it presents its 1962 version of "Fashion Fiesta". This many-splendored event will be staged in Collegiate auditorium.

This is the one event under Auxiliary auspices where the public of Belleville and County of Hastings, may assist the Hospital Auxiliary and at the same time enjoy itself. The proceeds of Fashion Fiesta will go towards the purchase of a linen folder for the laundry department of the hospital which has been a long-felt need.

With a membership of slightly under two hundred, of which onehalf is active, the auxiliary maintains an extensive volunteer program — in hospital and fund raising. The Opportunity Shop in the Bay Hall building, the Coffee Shop at the hospital and Fashion Fiesta are the fund raising projects, while the "In Hospital Volunteer' services include a library, admitting service, informatics, hair dressing, magazines and out patient hostesses. The puppet—coffee—continuously make and supply hand puppets for the small patients and at Christmas and Easter all the patients are especially remembered. Bursaries for student nurses are made available by the auxiliary and the organization is always ready to assist the Board of Governors and the hospital administrator in every way possible.

Eight handsome door prizes will be given during the performance, any one of which would be a handsome acquisition.

Small Talk

...by Zena Cherry...

"Uranium! That's got sex appeal. I'm interested", so said the brash and bouncy little promoter Joseph H. Hirshhorn in 1933 when Dr. Frane R. Joubin first told him about Algoma. Their Blind River discovery turned into the richest uranium field in the world — a 2 billion dollar bonanza.

Born in Latvia, Hirshhorn landed in America when six years old, with his mother and her ten children — he was the youngest. He came to Toronto in 1923 and began collecting Canadian companies — eventually he controlled more than 50.

4,000 PAINTINGS

Now he's collecting art. As well as 4,000 paintings he has the largest collection of modern sculpture anywhere — 800 pieces including some Henry Moore's and Rodin's massive bronze, "The Burghers of Calais", which cost him $250,000 in cold cash. "I buy art like some men buy neckties," he explains. Some 400 pieces of Hirshhorn sculpture are now on exhibit at the Guggenheim Museum in New York.

62-year-old Mr. Hirshhorn has one home in Greenwich, Conn., one at Antibes on the French Riviera; offices in New York and Toronto. He is separated from his third wife — he has six children.

JEWISH BOY

Describing himself as "a little Jewish boy brought up in the gutters of Brooklyn", he was recently asked if it was true he was worth $130 millions. He replied, "if I had that much money I'd feel vulgar. After a couple of million bucks all the rest is baloney.

Crewman Wins Big Race

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP)—Crewman, chestnut son of Sailor, won the $273,830 Garden State Stakes by six lengths Saturday at Garden State Park. He picked up $164,118, the largest winner's purse of any horse race in the world this year.

It was a climax in the two-year-old championship struggle of 1962, as Never Bend—the overwhelming favorite — finished third. He was the 1-2 choice, first odds-on favorite in the race's history.

Crewman, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, took the lead almost at once. He whirled around the 1 1-16 miles without once taking a back seat. Second horse was In The Pocket.

In The Pocket took second place by three lengths over Never Bend.

BET $20,000

Crewman paid $10.60, $3 and $2.20. In The Pocket returned $6.60 and $2.20 and Never Bend $2.20. The show pool totalled $116,600, and $97,946 went on Never Bend. It, created a $16,642 minus pool/One plunger bet $20,000 to win and lost 10 cents on the dollar.

Crewman had won only $12,730, winning three of six races before Saturday.

At Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., Fred W. Hooper's Sky Gem got up in the final stride for a nose victory over Copy Chief in the $54,585 Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes.

The winner, ridden by Braulio Baeza in the mile event for two-year-olds, trailed the Fourth Estate Stable's Copy Chief by a head with one-eighth mile to go and the two raced head and head to the wire.

Bramazon Farm's Telethon was third, four lengths back as Hooper picked up $34,342 for the victory.

Sky Gem ran the distance in 1:37 2-5 over a slow track and returned $8.60, $4.20 and $3.20. Copy Chief paid $3.40 and $2.60 and Telethon $4.00.

SUFFERS COLIC

Jaipur's bid for the three-year-old championship suffered a jolt when he dropped a length decision to Dead Ahead in the 1 3-16 mile $37,300 Roamer Handicap at Aqueduct in New York.

US College Football

NEW YORK (AP)—Wisconsin barged into the Rose Bowl picture Saturday with a 37-6 upset of previously unbeaten Northwestern, the top-ranked college football team in the United States.

The victory boosted eighth-ranked Wisconsin into a share of the Big Ten lead with Minnesota and Northwestern, each with a 4-1 league record.

Minnesota (No. 10) beat Iowa 16-0, but is ineligible for the Rose Bowl because it went last time. The rout of Noghwestern put the Badgers in commanding position for the post-season classic, since Wisconsin has two conference games remaining, Northwestern only one.

Southern California, the most likely contender for the host spot in the Rose Bowl, won its seventh straight and enhanced its ranking as No. 2 with a 30-14 victory over Stanford.

Alabama, rated third and seeking to regain the No. 1 spot and fourth-ranked Mississippi ruled an unbeaten. Alabama bashed Miami (Fla.) 36-3 with a second half comeback while Mississippi crushed Chattanooga 52-7.

Oklahoma State punctured Army's 15-7, Syracuse routed Navy 34-6, Purdue upset Michigan State 17-9 and heavily favored Georgia Tech was held to a 14-14 tie by Florida State.

Terriers Beaten Twice

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maybe it was a black week-end or perhaps just the law of averages catching up on Galt Terriers.

Whatever it was, the Terriers, who could do little wrong in winning their first five games of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, lost twice during the weekend, 3-2 in Windsor Bulldogs Saturday and 4-3 to Chatham Maroons Sunday.

Those two games, plus Windsor's 7-0 triumph over Kitchener - Waterloo Tigers and Woodstock Athletics' 7-5 win over Sarnia Rams Sunday left Windsor, Woodstock and Galt tied for the leagde leadership with 10 points each.

Galt's first loss came when Tom Micallef broke up the game for Windsor with just 50 seconds left to play, sinking a blazing shot from the blueline. The Terriers had twice battled back to even the score.

Bob Brown and Derek Holmers were the other Windsor scorers, while Larry Pfaff and Keith Worrall scored for the Terriers, who were on home ice.

SNAPS LOSS SKEIN

Chatham's win snapped a three-game losing streak.

The Maroons, playing at home, took the lead in the first period on a goal by Frank Marseille and a second-period goal by Ted Power before Jack Wilton got the Terriers' lone marker. George Usitalo fired Chatham's insurance goal.

Windsor's win over Kitchener-Waterloo was marked by the excellent goaltending of substitute Monty Reynolds. Lou Bendo scored the game's lone tally.

Stamps Clobber Saskys

CALGARY (CP)—It's a good bet coach Steve Owen will have more than a few funny stories to tell his Saskatchewan Roughriders before the second half of the Western Football Conference semi-final in Regina tonight against Calgary Stampeders.

The Stampeders, with an overpowering defensive show and a hard-hitting aerial display, routed the Roughriders 25-0 in the first game of the two-game, total-point series Saturday in Calgary.

The series winner opens the best-of-three WFC final at home against Winnipeg Blue Bombers next Saturday.

Owen said Saturday he was surprised Calgary had been able to stop high-scoring Roughrider halfback Ray Purdin, who scored 14 touchdowns in the regular season.

FACES SCORERS

Larry Robinson, WFC rookie of the year last season, paced the Stampeder scorers Saturday with a touchdown, field goal, two singles and two converts. Fullback Earl Lunsford, making his first start in several games, and rookie Jim Dillard of Oklahoma State added touchdowns.

Before 17,780 fans the Stampeders jumped ahead 8-0 in the first quarter, made it 15-0 at half and 21-0 after three quarters.

A missed field goal by Robinson from 25 yards out went for a single early in the first quarter. Minutes later quarterback Eagle Day hit Robinson with a 23-yard pass to the Saskatchewan 17. Another pass to Dillard and a four-yard plunge by Lunsford gave Calgary its first touchdown. Robinson converted.

Two passes to Dillard set up his touchdown from the one-yard line late in the second quarter. The Miller-Coleman punt return set the stage for a 35-yard touchdown pass to Robinson. In the final quarter, safety Harvey Wylie intercepted a pass and returned it 48 yards and set up Robinson's second single, again on a field goal attempt. Another interception, by Jerry Keeling at the Riders' 16, set up Robinson's field goal.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In the Western Hockey League this season, you either win or you lose.

The eight teams have played 50 games so far this season and none has ended in a tie.

On the other hand, the National Hockey League, after 41 games, has had a total of nine deadlocks among its six teams.

Some of the answer lies in the fact that the WHL plays a 10-minute, sudden-death overtime period to clear up such messy things as ties. The NHL goes to the final buzzer and lets it go at that.

Just about any of the WHL games during the weekend could have ended up knotted.

On Saturday Calgary Stampeders were downed 4-2 in Spokane while Los Angeles Blades were defeating the visiting Edmonton Flyers 4-3.

On Sunday Spokane Comets moved over to Seattle for a 3-1 victory over the Totems and Calgary lost another close one —3-2 on the home ice of Portland Buckaroos.

Los Angeles, tops in the Southern Division with an 8-3 record, plays host tonight to Edmonton, second in the northern race, with a 6-7 secretary.

Both teams won Sunday night, the Bisons 7-3 over Cleveland Barons and the Aces 4-3 over Baltimore Clippers. Buffalo's triumph put the Bisons eight points ahead in the Western Division, while Quebec moved four points in front of the Eastern Division.

In other games, Hershey Bears tripped Providence Reds 4 - 3 and Springfield Indians played to an 8-8 overtime tie with Rochester Americans.

Crush Eagles, Giants Win

Packers Still Unbeaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Green Bay Packers, led by fullback Jim Taylor's four touchdowns and a vicious defence, rolled to their ninth National Football League victory without a loss Sunday, throttling Philadelphia Eagles 49-0. New York Giants took a solid grip on first place in the NFL's Eastern Conference with a 41-10 walloping of Dallas Cowboys.

Both victories moved the clubs closer to a second straight title meeting, with the Packers still two full games ahead of Detroit Lions in the Western Conference and the Giants a full-game up on Washington in the East.

Washington (5-2-2) all but killed Cleveland Browns' hopes of tightening the Eastern race with a 17-9 victory, while Detroit (7-2) kept its flickering Western Division hopes alive by beating San Francisco 35-24. Dallas and the Browns are well back of the Giants (7-2) with 4-4-1 records. Pittsburgh (5-4) stayed in the Eastern battle with a 26-17 win over St. Louis.

Dallas Texans took over first place in the Western Division of the American Football League with a 52-31 victory over New York Titans while Eastern Division-leading Boston defeated Denver 33-32. Boston's victory dropped the Broncos (7-3) a half game behind Dallas (7-3).

Houston (6-3) stayed a half game behind Boston (6-3-1) with a 26-20 victory over Oakland (0-9) while Buffalo easily defeated San Diego (3-7) 40-20 in other AFL games.

The rest of the National Football League action saw Chicago Bears edge Minnesota 31-30 on Roger Leclerc's field goal in the final 13 seconds; Pittsburgh defeat St. Louis Cardinals 26-17 and Baltimore Colts spoil Harland Svare's debut as Los Angeles Rams' head coach with a 14-7 win.

Pender Stripped Of Title

BOSTON (AP)—The world of 160-pound boxers over which Paul Pender reigns as champion consisted Sunday only of his home state of Massachusetts.

Pender was stripped of the title by New York, California, Europe, the British Empire and the Orient Friday because he had failed to defend it within six months.

Massachusetts, however, is sticking by her native son.

The rest of the boxing world recognizes Dick Tiger of Nigeria as middleweight champion. He won a share of the title by defeating Gene Fullmer recently.

Pender first won his share of the crown Jan. 22, 1960, when he beat Sugar Ray Robinson. He lost it to Terry Downes July 11, 1961, and won it back last April 7 in a return bout with Downes.

Pender had agreed to defend his title Nov. 15 against unranked Jose Torres of Puerto Rico. The New York State Athletic Commission refused to recognize it as a title bout.

Move Into East. Finals

MONTREAL (CP) — Notre Dame de Grace Maple Leafs moved into the Eastern Junior football final with a 32-0 triumph Sunday over Ottawa Scooters.

The Maple Leafs now meet Sarnia Knights here Nov. 18 with the winner qualifying for the Little Grey Cup game in Hamilton Nov. 25 against the Western finalist.

Against the Scooners, NDG rolled up a 20-0 lead in the opening quarter.

Hair Specialist Here Tuesday

Will Show Men and Women How to Save Hair and Prevent Baldness

OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville Tuesday, November 13, at the Quinte Hotel.

Specialist C. A. Tander will be in charge, representing the dynamic Roberts Hair and Scalp Specialists organization. "... will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 12.00 to 8.00 p.m.

This new treatment is neither "mail order" nor "cure-all". It is adapted-to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked at regular intervals by a Roberts Specialist.

Who Can Be Helped?

Will the new Roberts treatment cure baldness? "No!" For we cannot help men and women who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair; you can at least save and thicken what you have. Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time!

Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss, dandruff, itching, over-oiliness or dryness, follicle clogged with sebum or seborrhea— can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.

"DON'T WAIT UNTIL ITS TOO LATE"

Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced, you are going to keep right on losing hair 'till you're bald —unless you get your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition again.

Examine You Free

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to yourself. We do not accept cases that will not respond.

Guarantee Satisfaction

The Roberts Specialists will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied within 30 days or it will cost you nothing.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. Tander's room number. He does not make appointments, so come in at your convenience.

Examinations are given in private.

Face it, some things have to be imported!

But would a buffalo do as well? The trouble is that we Canadians import too much for our own good. We are, in fact, the world's greatest importers of manufactured goods.

Look at these figures which show the average yearly expenditure on imported manufactured goods for the people of four nations:

Canadians—$235 per person. Americans—$35 per person. British—$75 per person. West Germans—$60 per person.

If each of us reduced our import buying by just $100 and diverted that money to the purchase of Canadian products, we would still be amongst the world's greatest importers of manufactured goods. But the province of Ontario would gain 600,000,000 vital dollars which would help provide 60,000 new jobs!

Every consumer should satisfy himself that there is no Canadian equivalent before he reaches out his hand for an imported product. By becoming "label conscious," he will probably find that often habit has led him to the imported product. The Canadian product, alongside, may be just as good. Buy that, and help create the 60,000 jobs that Ontario needs for the prosperity of all its people.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Someone said it all started down in Crooked Rib, Arkansas, where the sheriff, an unpopular cuss even with the good guys, was addicted to slicerated teeth. The local Wyatt Earp suffered so much and so consistently that his buddy the mayor figured a little constituent sympathy would help.

So he upped the taxes on "red eye" one cent a gulp and inserted an advertisement in the local printed word announcing that he declared the following Thursday "Swelled Jaw Day."

He asked the citizenry, regardless of politics, color or race to observe the day and date and to remember and sympathize with all those who suffered with jaws made mountainous through murderous molars.

The idea caught on. In fact it swept the country. Nor did time decrease its popularity. In fact the "day" was extended to a week. The Sioux Indians declared a "Shitting Bull Week." The Cubans had a "San Juan Hill Week," but since have changed it to "Castro Oil Week."

Everybody wanted to get in the act. In fact in some places fifty-eight-week years are being advocated in order to fill all requests.

The most of the respected observances honor good causes. We have Boy Scout, Girl Guide, Minor Hockey Weeks and others asking to support research for disease and help for needy people.

Then there are the off-beat weeks and days. Some are tinged with commercialism as was noted here a few weeks ago when a paid newspaper announcement called for the observance of "Electrical Appliance Day"—or was it week?

I'm not against these efforts to honor certain people, groups and efforts, in fact, I'm going to suggest one in this column. I believe it is very deserving and all sportsmen will or should concur.

I would like to see a "Bay-of-Quinte-Central-Ontario-Secondary-School Association-District-Sports -Directors-Coaches-Players-Officials and Cheer Leaders' Day" noted and observed.

In fact I hope the mayors, reeves and councils of the communities which contain COSSA representatives note and act accordingly.

After all, I believe it is the first time in the history (will the keeper of the archives please correct) of this district in COSSA that its representatives have brought home three football and three volleyball championships in one season.

Yaaauh, today the Quinte district boasts six of the best clubs and another not quite so good in the far-flung Central Ontario Association area.

Quinte Secondary's senior gridders claimed the major football honors with BCIVS lugging home the junior bacon. Marmora High School won the senior "B" honors on the football field while a gallant Nicholson College squad, Quinte district champions, bowed out in the association finals.

Moira Secondary's fine girl athletes won both the COSSA senior and junior volleyball "A" titles with the Marmora High co-eds adding the senior "B" bauble to the boys' gridiron honors.

Athletic honors, particularly at the secondary school level do not come easily. Behind them lie hours of hard work, practice, not a few headaches (coaches please note) and team co-operation.

And while in the heat of victory the football heroes are the young, well-padded gridiron gladiators, those fellows who tramp the sidelines, sometimes biting fingernails or twisting their hands, should not be forgotten.

They are the Sissons, the McBrides, the Barbours, the McGees, the Townsends, and their assistants, not forgetting the dynamic duo of the coaching staffs. These are the lesser-sung people who, after all, are the larger cogs in championship machinery.

Wins COSSA 'B' Title

Whitby Downs Nicholson

Whitby Collegiate Institute won the COSSA senior "B" football championship here Saturday defeating Nicholson College 17-0 on a greasy, slippery OSD field.

The game was transferred to the OSD grounds after the morning's torrential rain turned Albert College field into a near quagmire.

Nicholson, Bay of Quinte COSSA champions, found the wet ball difficult to handle and fumbled five times in the first half.

Whitby scored two touchdowns, one converted and two rouges to account for the score. They led 9-0 at halftime.

It was reported that a Whitby player was injured when trying to block a kick. The ball, it is stated struck him in the eye necessitating hospital treatment.

The teams battled to a scoreless tie in the first half with both sides missing chances and hampered by the condition of the field.

Early in the third quarter Whitby grabbed a 2-0 lead when Nicholson was forced to rouge. Later in the quarter Gary Shuvan intercepted a Nicholson pass at the 50-yard line and ran it back to the collegians' 25. Successive plunges resulted in the first major score. It was not converted.

In the fourth quarter Stan Sibrama picked a forward pass out of the air and ran 15 yards for the touchdown. Garrett Hammer converted. Earlier Nicholson had recorded their second rouge of the game.

The winners intercepted another Nicholson pass but failed to capitalize on the advantage.

Wings Win, Tie; Leafs Good For Pair

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gentle Syd Abel, who believes strenuous practices make tired hockey players, still has his Detroit Red Wings in first place in the National Hockey League. But Punch Imlach, who cracks the whip on his hirelings when things go sour, is bringing his Toronto Maple Leafs along fast.

Abel's coddled Detroiters picked up three points of a possible four during the weekend, tying Boston Bruins 3-3 and downing New York Rangers 3-2 in successive nights.

But Imlach's chastened Stanley Cup champions hung a pair of 5-3 defeats on Chicago Black Hawks and the Rangers emerging as the weekend's only double winners and running their winning streak to three since Imlach ordered them out of bed for 8 a.m. practice after an inept performance a week earlier.

Montreal Canadiens, whose directing spirits haven't committed themselves on the Abel-Imlach dispute, took a 3-1 lacing from the Hawks at home Saturday and rounded out a 4-2 victory at Boston the following night.

WORSLEY KEPT BUSY

In Toronto Saturday, New York goalie Gump Worsley kept Rangers in contention until the 12-minute mark of the third period, though Leafs had a wide edge in play.

Dave Keon of Leafs and Camille Henry of Rangers scored in the first period. In the second, Leafs took a 3-2 edge on goals by Frank Mahovlich and Bobby Baun, countered by a marker by Rangers' Don Prentice.

Andy Hebenton tied it up 3-3 early in the final period, but Leafs pushed the puck past by Billy Harris and Red Kelly.

In Boston Saturday Bruins' Tommy Williams scored his first goal of the season in the third period to give Bruins a 3-3 tie with Detroit.

Murray Oliver gave Boston a 1-0 lead at the end of the first period. Goals by Pete Goegan and Gordie Howe of Detroit and Doug Barkley gave Detroit a 3-2 edge early in the third.

ROOKIE FOILS HABS

In Montreal Saturday, Canadiens put on a lack-lustre display of skating and passing, while rookie goalie Gerry Desjordy was nearly unbeatable in the Chicago nets.

Chicago's scorers were Ken Wharram, Ron Murphy and Stan Mikita, while Montreal's only goal came on a long pass halfway through the third period by defenceman Tom Johnson which deflected in off Chicago defenceman Jack Evans.

Sunday night in Chicago, Desjordy was busier as his team lost to Leafs, who pelted him with 35 shots, compared with 19 on Toronto's Don Simmons.

Hawks held a 1-0 lead at the end of the first period on a goal by Wharram, but in the second Leafs Dick Duff, Kent Douglas and George Armstrong connected along with Chicago's Ab McDonald to put Toronto in front.

Kelly scored what proved to be the winner early in the third period, and after a Chicago goal by Murphy, Mahovlich connected to put the game out of Chicago's reach.

TAKES SCORING LEAD

In a fight-studded contest at New York Sunday night, Detroit's Alex Delvecchio was the central figure, backed up by steady netminding by Terry Sawchuk.

Neither team scored until Henry counted for Rangers early in the second. Detroit came back with two second-period goals by Delvecchio and Larry Hillman.

Earl Ingarfield tied the score 2-2 in the first minute of the third, but Delvecchio scored the winner at the 14-minute mark. His two goals were his fourth and fifth of the season, and together with 11 assists put him atop the league scoring race.

A free-for-all erupted at the seven-minute mark of the second period, touched off by a collision between Faulkner and Dave Balon of Rangers. Balon got a minor and a major, and Bruce MacGregor and Billy McNeill of Wings got minors.

In Boston, Canadiens' needed a last-minute goal by Donnie Marshall into an open net to sew up their win.

Boston goalie Bob Perreault kicked out 38 of 41 shots against him, compared with 19 saves by Canadiens' sub-goalie Cesare Maniago.

Gilles Tremblay, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Ralph Backstrom also scored for Canadiens. Williams and Cliff Pennington countered for Boston.

Moira Girls Win Honors

Moira Secondary School captured top honors at the Girls' COSSA Volleyball championship tournament held at the Ontario School for the Deaf on Saturday.

The city school won both the Senior "A" and Junior "A" titles. Other crowns went to Whitby Secondary in the Junior "B" division and to Marmora High School in the Senior "B" grouping

Four teams took part in each division with each school playing a best two-matches-out-of-three game against each of the other schools.

While the Moira Seniors swept through to their title without losing a match, let alone a game, the Juniors had a little more difficult time.

Officials of the tournament said that the Junior "A" division provided by far the best volleyball of the tournament.

Moira, Oshawa and Trenton each won two matches and one to bring about a tie in the division. Moira then defeated first Oshawa and finally Trenton to wrap up the crown.

Earlier the champions had defeated Lindsay 15-7, 15-7, then Oshawa, 15-4, 15-3, while losing to Trenton 13-9, 14-10.

Moira Seniors topped Peterborough 11-8, 15-9, downed Oshawa 15-4, 15-4, and completed their sweep by taking Trenton 14-12 and 11-8.

Marmora, winners of the Bay of Quinte COSSA championship, went through to the Senior "B" crown in fine fashion. The winners defeated Whitby 15-3, 15-3, Fenelon Falls 15-4, 12-14, 15-8 and Madoc 14-7, 14-11.

Whitby also had an undefeated day on the way to the Junior "B" title, defeating Madoc 15-4, 15-7, the host OSD teams 3-15, 14-3, 11-3, and Lakefield 14-12, 15-5.

OSD had only the Junior "B" team in the tournament. Besides the loss to Whitby, OSD defeated Lakefield 13-10, 15-3, and lost to Madoc, 15-7, 7-15.

Miss Lalonde, who coached the OSD girls, was very happy with the tourney and paid tribute to the fine officiating, as well as to all the teams and to the boys and girls who ran the entire show.

Following are complete results:

SUGAR RAY SCORES TKO

LYON, France (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, former world middleweight and welterweight champion, scored a technical knockout over French welterweight Georges Estatoff in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round bout Saturday night. The 42-year-old American floored Estatoff twice in the fifth just before the Frenchman's manager threw in the towel.

Redmen Shade Mustangs

Golden Gails Blank Blues 29-0

If he was a professional gambler, they'd call him lucky Frank Tindall.

The head coach of Queen's University Golden Gaels is deadly when it comes to flipping coins.

For the third year in succession, Queen's will meet McGill Redmen in a sudden-death playoff for the Intercollegiate Senior Football League title. And for the third year in succession, Queen's has won the flip for the site.

The Gaels trampled University of Toronto Blues 29-0 at Kingston Saturday and McGill edged University of Western Ontario Mustangs 9-8 at Montreal in the season's final games.

The wins gave Queen's and McGill a share of first place in the four-team league and left the Blues and Mustangs tied with two wins and four losses apiece.

The final 'will be played Saturday at Queen's.

Last season the Gaels whipped McGill in the playoff and in 1960 the Redmen took the crown.

Had Western and Toronto won, it would have created a four-way tie.

McGill's win, on a mud-covered field, was a thriller. George Telesh, named top athlete at Cornell University last year, kicked a 17-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to prevent an upset win by Western.

Eric Walter, McGill's surprise scoring star this season, scored the lone touchdown for the winners to give him the league scoring title with 48 points.

Western's brilliant rookie, Brian Consciner, was tied with Walter going into the game but was kept off the scoresheet and fell six points behind.

The lone touchdown was scored when Jack Cowin, a 250-pound centre, fell on a fumble ball in the McGill end zone in the second quarter.

McGill quarterback Tom Skypeck fumbled the mud-soaked ball when he was swamped by Western tacklers as he faded back to pass.

A first quarter single by Larry Ferguson and a convert by John Nash rounded out the Mustang scoring.

Western held an 8-0 lead at one point and marched to the McGill four-yard line on an other play before being held Queen's overpowered Varsity at Kingston. The Gaels were led by crafty quarterback Carl Conner and a hard-running backfield composed of rookies Jim Young and Bayne Norrie, sophomore Bill Edwards and veterans Gord Simester and Robin Ritchie.

CALL BACK TO RUN

Young, a dynamic runner from Hamilton Westdale, scored two touchdowns on runs of 25 and 36 yards and had an 18-yard touchdown run called back. Simester also had a touchdown wiped out.

Edwards and Conner scored the other Queen's touchdowns and Ritchie kicked a field goal and two converts.

The Blues, because of yards lost on pass attempts and on a bad third-down snap, gained only eight net rushing.

Queen's, led by Young with 116 in 11 carries, rolled to 334 yards along the ground.

Fronts Clip Wolves 11-4, Hold Winner

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sudbury Wolves were having delusions of grandeur in the Eastern Professional Hockey League this week, but brought back to reality Saturday night.

The Wolves went to Kingston riding high on a four-game winning streak. But the league-leading Kingston Frontenacs went wild at times to record the highest winning score, 11-4.

Hull-Ottawa Canadiens kept pace with the Frontenacs to stay only two points behind when they edged Syracuse Braves 3-2 at Syracuse Sunday night.

Two Kingston players figured in the scoring. Rookie Jim Kozie scored twice and other marksmen were Bobby Leiter, Red Ouellette, Billy Knibbs, Pete Panagakos, Randy Miller, Jean-Paul Parise, Wayne Schultz, Jeannot Gilbert and Dick Cherry. Parise scored what proved to be the winner.

Paul Andrea scored twice for the Wolves and Dave Richardson and Tim Johnson scored one apiece.

'Mud' Larks Snatch Win From Riders

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Perry Moss was still on Cloud Nine when reporters talked to him in the Montreal dressing room Saturday afternoon after entered the Eastern Football) Conference finals with their 18-17 win over Ottawa Rough Riders.

In his hand was a copy of the game statistics which showed that quarterback Sandy Stephens hadn't completed one of his three passes during the sudden-death semi-final.

"We won it and still didn't get a yard passing," the Montreal coach exclaimed.

Losing coach Frank Clair appeared shocked by the result.

"I predicted it would be close but I was sure we would win," he said.

Clair refused to take refuge in excuses because of weather conditions. Rain which began early in the day had reduced the playing field at Lansdowne Park to mud. Players were plagued by uncertain footing and the wet ball produced eight fumbles and almost eliminated passing plays.

SAME FOR BOTH

"The rain was the same for each team," Clair said.

Ottawa halfback Ronnie Stewart was slightly bitter.

"They fumbled five times and only lost the ball once," he said. "We fumbled three times and lost it twice."

It was the first time in four games this season that Alouettes beat Riders. They open a two - game, total - points series against Hamilton Tiger - Cats next Saturday.

Clair said earlier that Riders had to stop Montreal's George Dixon and Don Clark to win. Instead he had to a gain of 36 yards in 10 carries but Clark romped 100 yards in 11, one all-time record for touchdown run. Larry Hickman took up the slack with 105 yards in 15 trips, one of them a touchdown smash from the one.

Bobby Jack Oliver scored the other Montreal points on two converts, a field goal and a single.

Ottawa's fullback Dave Thelen was tremendous in defeat. He picked up 103 yards rushing, caught two of the only four completed passes for 39 more and scored both Ottawa touchdowns.

Moe Racine kicked a field goal and a convert while Jim Conroy batted a single for the other Ottawa point.

The deplorable weather, which kept the crowd to 20,232, seemed to have more effect on Riders in the first quarter.

Ottawa fumbled the opening kickoff and then were bogged in their own end of the field for the full 15 minutes. Oliver got booted a field goal from the 15 after an Ottawa kick was blocked. After a Thelen fumble on the Ottawa 38, Montreal marched to a touchdown, Hickman scoring.

But Riders shook off their bad start in the second quarter to take an 11-10 lead. Racine booted a seven-yard field goal, Thelen broke loose for a 51-yard touchdown gallop which was converted by Racine and Conroy kicked a single from the Montreal 36.

Ottawa had the only scoring points of the third quarter. Jackson hit Thelen with a pass and the Ottawa fullback went total of 22 yards for the touchdown.

ATTEMPT FAILS

The convert attempt was no good when Jackson couldn't control the snap from centre.

Then it was Montreal's turn to take over. They did it with eight points in the final quarter and a fine display of ball control.

Chapman opened the last quarter with a 22-yard single. Minutes later Montreal's ground corps began a 52-yard scoring march that ended with Clark dashing into the end zone from the Ottawa 10. Oliver converted for the winning point.

Riders had one more threat-ening march downfield. They scrimmaged from their own 12 after the kickoff, got down to the Montreal 41 on six plays but then Stewart was trapped for a seven-yard loss by Ottawa castoff Jim Reynolds.

That forced Riders to punt with just less than five minutes to go. They spent the rest of the game in a desperate, unsuccessful attempt to have Montreal give up the ball.

All ran nine ground plays that produced three first downs. On the last play of the game Chapman booted out of bounds at midfield.

Win COSSA 'A' Championship

BCI Juniors Edge Oshawa

By PETER CARVER

Playing in a foot of mud on a miniature "Lake Moira," Belleville Collegiate Institute junior "A" gridders won their second COSSA crown in three years Saturday, edging a heavier Oshawa Central squad 8-7 in a waterlogged thriller.

Coach Jack McBride's squad brought the second 1962 COSSA football title to the city. Quinte Secondary taking the senior crown on Friday with a 20-0 victory at Peterborough.

With the score knotted at 7-7, BCI's Kirk Lightfoot set up the winning play with less than three minutes to go. He blocked an Oshawa punt, grounding the ball at their 17-yard line. Successive plunges took him to the one-yard line where Ron Walsh booted a third-down punt for the winning point.

A BCI last-minute interception crushed any Oshawa hopes, the winners "playing out the clock" to snatch the victory.

Passing was practically im-possible although Oshawa on two occasions had receivers in the clear only to have the slip-pery ball fall short. Both teams threw four passes completing none.

Oshawa ran their attack from the shotgun formation using a double-pitch and run and off-tackle play for the majority of the game. Big Bill Fedorczeuiso did the Oshawa kicking and most of their running.

Most of the game was played around mid-field with the teams trading punts on nearly every sequence of plays. BCI's Ron Walsh's toe was in fine shape despite the field conditions and a spirited Oshawa rush.

The first quarter was all Oshawa. Early in the period Gary Lilley galloped 45 yards around the end for a major, but a clipping penalty nullified the score.

Again they marched from mid-field to the three via BCI penalties and solid interference along the wing line. Fedorczeuiso plunged over for the touch-down but the convert was no good.

Later in the period Walsh booted a 40-yarsingle. Fedorczeuiso kicked a 35-yard rouge in the dying seconds.

Midway through the second quarter BCI's Walsh intercepted a flip pass at the line of scrimmage on the Oshawa 50 yard line and behind good blocking went all the way to tie the score. The conversion attempt was wide. The half ended a 7-7 deadlock.

The winners took on a new life in the second half as their defensive line, led by Stew Mc-Intosh, threw Oshawa for losses on several occasions. Oshawa had a chance to pull into the goal but the punt from the Belleville 30 went out of bounds and the Collegians took over.

The game seemed doomed to go into overtime until the blocked punt, and that was that.

Alex Delvecchio, versatile centre and left winger who scored two goals—including the winning goal—in Detroit's narrow 3-2 victory over the Rangers in New York Sunday night.

Rookie goaltender Denis Dejordy of Chicago, who stopped 33 of 34 shots in his first complete NHL game Saturday night as the Hawks dumped Montreal 3-1, registered his 30 saves against Toronto Sunday night.

Sunday night's featured race, the ninth, was won by Piper Boy, owned by Buff MacQuarrie, Ferguson, Ont. The payoff was $14.70 and the time 2:09 4-5.

Hand Baby Habs First Defeat

Flyers Take Over Lead

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers, riding high from three straight wins, showed Montreal Junior Canadiens Sunday that it wasn't just luck.

Flyers, playing in the Forum handed Canadiens their first loss in eight games this season 4-2, and leapt into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Most of the credit for the win is due George Gardner, Flyers goalie who turned back 37 shots. Jocelyn Cardinal at the other end of the ice was stopping 29.

In the only other game Sunday Peterborough Petes nosed out Hamilton Red Wings 6-5 in Hamilton, while in a Saturday game at St. Catharines the Black Hawks trimmed Guelph Royals 5-2.

Niagara Falls had to overcome a 2-1 deficit for the win after Habs right winger Yvan Cournoyer beat Gardner twice in the first period.

SCORES TWICE

Left winger Wayne Maxner scored twice for Flyers. Defenceman Ron Hergott and left winger Fern Belanger scored singles, in the dying moments with the Montreal net empty after Cardinal had been pulled for a sixth attacker.

The win left Flyers with 13 points, two more than the Habs, who have played three tie games.

At Hamilton defenceman Bryan Watson scored the winning goal for the Petes with four minutes left to play.

The victory moved Peterborough into third place in the six-team league with eight points, one more than St. Catharines. The loss left the Wings, defending Memorial Cup champions, in fifth place.

Canadians Way Back

U.S. Wins Canada Cup

SAN ISIDRO, Argentina (AP) — The United States held its third straight Canada Cup golf crown today but the U.S. tandem of Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead almost lost it on the treacherous 16th hole of the Jockey Club course.

The Canadian team finished far back, tied with Switzerland for 22nd place.

Hole No. 16 is a par four 486-yard dogleg. It appears harmless enough but is lined with hidden obstacles.

It was there that Palmer three-putted for a five Sunday. Snead did even worse. The Slammer hooked his drive near the towering pine trees, slammed an iron shot over the back of the green, hit a bank trying to reach the velvet and wound up with a six.

Argentina's Roberto de Vincenzo won the individual championship with a final round 68, two under par for the 6,746-yard layout.

Snead, who had led the tournament during its first three days, skyrocketed to a closing 74 Sunday.

PROTECTS LEAD

It was Palmer's 69 that protected the lead of the Americans, who finished with an overall score of 557 for the 72-hole test for the cream of the stars from 32 nations. The total left Palmer and Snead two strokes ahead of de Vincenzo and Fidel DeLuca, who fashioned a 559 total.

Australia trailed the Argentines in third with 563. England was fourth with 572 and France fifth with 585.

Alvie Thompson and George Knudson, both of Toronto, wound up with a total of 606. They each had 75s Sunday, Thompson 35-40 and Knudson 34-41.

Excess Braking Will Create Heat Problem

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Heat is a problem which brakes must constantly fight the year 'round . . . especially the linings. More road traffic, higher sped limits mean more braking, more heat generated.

Heat is produced by the friction required to provide good braking, — and often reaches 500 degrees or more. Downhill braking, for example, can quickly build temperatures up to 750 degrees.

The ability of the lining to dissipate, conduct or pass heat away from braking surface is important . . . especially with today's smaller wheels. Some types of linings do this much more efficiently than others . . and thus they run cooler and also wear better.

Fade . . . e.g., serious loss of holding power, or complete brake danger, but excessive heat can also score and even crack brake drums.

C. McK. writes: "When the carburetor adjustment is not correct, I know it can affect gas mileage. Will it also hurt engine performance in any manner?"

(A) If fuel mixture is weak (not enough air in proportion to fuel — there will be a definite loss of car pep. . .

J. L. writes: "Every winter I read: 'Watch out for icy roads when the temperature is just at the freezing mark.' Isn't the road just as dangerous at any temperature which causes ice formation?"

(A) Ice is always dangerous, of course . . . but the warmer the air temperature, the wetter and more slippery the ice.

From F. W.: "For the first time in nearly 35 years of driving, I broke a leaf spring. My garage tells me they usually outlast the car engine, but not when they are abused. What are these so-called abuses?"

(A) — Overloading — faulty shock absorbers — high speeds on rough terrain — and, in frigid weather, driving carelessly during the first few miles when all parts are still cold and brittle.

B. P. asks: "Lately, I never know how my car will act. Sometimes, it won't start at all without a push, sometimes it takes several tries before it will start, and sometimes it starts all right but then the engine starts missing for a long while".

(A) Check first for a loose or corroded connection at either end of the coil to distributor cable — then have the coil, itself tested.

Gale Storm's Son Ready To Resume Act After Crash

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The mother-son team of Gale Storm and Phillip Bonnell is still going to be in business, despite a brush with death.

The team was organized only this summer, when the television star, ended a long period of inactivity to romp through a Wildcat in tent theatres in the eastern United States. Nineteen-year-old Phillip joined her for his acting debut, playing a minor role. He also sang and danced in the chorus, much to his mother's surprise.

Gale and her insurance-executive husband, Lee Bonnell, then went on a vacation to Mexico City. Phil flew home to Hollywood where on Sept. 9 he was an occupant of a car that swerved off the road and plunged 40 feet down an embankment.

Despite a smashed head and limply hanging arm, Phil managed to get out of the car and climb up the highway to send for an ambulance.

The ambulance took him to a hospital and immediate brain surgery. A hole had to be cut in his forehead to repair the damage. Doctors despaired for the sight of one eye. The left arm required and operation to reset a bone.

After weeks in and out of hospitals, Phil is home. He faces two more operations—to insert a plate in the forehead cavity and to reshape his nose. But the handsome lad already looks well on the road to recovery.

Now he's anxious to get back to school—at the University of Southern California. He also thinks he'd like to try his hand at some more acting.

"He seems to like it," says his mother. "I think he's good, too. I've been having some serious talks about getting back into television with another series. It would be something that Phil and I could do together.

"We've already worked on a format; the next thing is to shoot a pilot. We'll have it ready to go for next season, or perhaps as early as January, when the first rerunlies of the season start to fall."

Danny Kaye, Lucille Ball Excellent in NBC Special

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Kaye is probably the most talented and endearing clown currently performing and Lucille Ball is generally conceded to be top comedienne.

Throw them together before the television cameras and the result is bound to be just what it was Sunday night—a delight.

In the hour-long NBC special, Kaye danced, sang and told a droll story in a perfect imitation of Maurice Chevalier's accent.

Miss Ball did a tentative twist and even essayed a song. She also attempted a few imitations. If she did not quite capture her subjects — Judy Garland, Carol Channing and Marlene Dietrich—it was much funnier that way.

The hour went by on running feet, which doesn't happen very often these days.

Arthur Godfrey made one of his rare television appearances Saturday night on CBS. It was an hour variety show about Hollywood. He wandered around showing us the corner of Hollywood and Vine, an empty Hollywood Bowl, a CBS rehearsal hall.

During the whole grand tour not a single Hollywood star was glimpsed—only Art Carney in a dust apparently taped in New York. Godfrey seemed subdued and the hour long and lackluster.

Recommended tonight: Ben Casey, ABC 10-11 EST—an amnesia case for the earnest neurosurgeon.

AT THE PARK — "Adam and Eve", at 7.05 and 9.45 — "Fury In Paradise", at 8.25 only.

"GIGANTIC, THRILLING ENTERTAINMENT!

It has rarely, if ever been equalled. In the extravagant historical epic tradition of The 'Ten Commandments' and 'Ben Hur'! A grandly exciting and super-spectacular movie!"

cher's position:

1. His agricultural reforms—and he has been the prime mover there—have not brought prosperity. It is the worst element of the Soviet economy.

2. In 1961 he tried to liquidate finally the Stalinist anti-party group headed by V. M. Molotov but so far as is known, some are still in the party. One of the group, Marshal Voroshilov, has completed the cycle from disgrace last year to a respected place of honor on Lenin's tomb, where he appeared at the recollection of demonstrations.

2. The Berlin affair—which Khrushchev is largely credited with initiating.

4. The failure of the Cuban missile manoeuvre. Western analysts here still marvel at how close the Russians came by that manoeuvre to a much improved position — even a dangerously dominant position—to demand a settlement on Berlin, which is the major trouble area.

Political TV

costly by representatives of both parties.

After the program, both leaders predicted victory Wednesday. Mr. Lesage saying his party would be re-elected by "a large majority" and Mr. Johnson predicting "up to 75 seats."

There are 95 seats at stake. At dissolution, the Liberals held 54, the Union Nationals 40, and there was one Independent.

What impact the debate will have on the vote is impossible to say. There are 2,700,000 persons eligible to vote.

TO START SURVEY

However, Marc Thibault, the CBC official who organized the debate, said the CBC will start a survey of 100,000 Quebecers today.

One of the questions they will be asked is whether the debate led them to change their minds about their choice in the election.

Mr. Lesage said voters face a choice between equality before the law and a form of arbitrariness and privileges, "between pride and a return to chains," and "between unity and chains of an infernal machine."

Mr. Johnson said that his party had a program to "help the little man," and not to distribute favors to the rich, and opital insurance and free education to everybody, whether they need it or not.

Moderator Raymond Charette had to call Mr. Johnson to order a few times during the debate as the position leader interrupted Mr. Lesage by remarks that could not be clearly understood by the rest of the audience.

Mr. Lesage replied by calling from a statement by Edouard Masson, Union Nationale council appointee to the Montreal Catholic Corporation may proceed forthwith to remove or demolish the dwelling, or the Judge may extend the time for appeal as he deems advisable under the circumstances.

MAKES INVIDIOUS CHARGE

These were made when Mr. Lesage charged that Mr. Johnson had sold Quebec's gas distribution system in Montreal.

Mr. Lesage quoted the report of Sidney Smith's royal commission, which held an inquiry into the sale, as his authority for making the charge. He said Mr. Johnson made a profit of $5,250 with the stock units.

Mr. Johnson denied he bought 150 units, saying Mr. Elie Beauregard, Mr. Johnson's brother-in-law, had bought them.

He repeated that the Sirois royal commission, had not checked the figure.

He accused Rene Salvas of trying to destroy his reputation and questioned his impartiality.

Mr. Lesage replied by quoting from a statement by Edouard Masson, Union Nationale council appointee to the Montreal Catholic Corporation may proceed forthwith to remove or demolish the dwelling, or the Judge may extend the time for appeal as he deems advisable under the circumstances.

Garden Notes

Making Your Own Dish Garden

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

If you brought in cuttings from small leaf coleus, fiberous rooted begonia and Zebrina (Wandering Jew) you can combine these with such house plants as you have on hand to make a dish garden. Perhaps you have a small leaf Philodendron, one or more types of small leaf ivy and an African Violet. Ripple Peperomia combine a few of these plants and pot them up in your handsome dish garden. Choose cool fee tables or any spot where a collection would be better than one plant.

If the cuttings are not rooted yet place them in small clear glass jars or bowls and set small potted plants and the jars in a bowl. (Roots form faster in light than in darkness). Place the plants around to get the best effect. Some should be climbing or trailing such as the Philodendron, ivy or others to creep over the edge of the dish so the effect when finished will be compact and upright.

If you must start from new plants - three cuttings from new plants will do, better still five small ones. Variegated Peperomia, or the small leaved fittia is called Water mellon Peperomia, ivy (every) Sansevieria, Grape ivy, dwarf Sansevieria, Rex Begonia, African violet, Kalanchoe and Maranta (prayer plant) are good plants you might choose for a collection.

Succulents are plants that need sun, air and little water, they are grown in a sandy soil and make up attractive collection but do not include them in the dish garden group. Dry, moist, cool soil and no direct sun.

The receptacle can be any wide, low bowl, or dish that is not deep enough to hold much of soil. A salad bowl, soup tureen or casserole dish will do. All receptacles, whole or broken, must have holes are not necessary. In this case you support the plants with wet moss. Broken flower pots crushed rather fine and a few lumps of charcoal mixed with the soil is watered this acts as a drain and helps to keep the soil fresh. A water that will feed back up to the plants as they need it.

Put the layer drains down as follows it and this aeration is the soil. Then a generous layer of excess of indoor plant culture. This layer should be one inch deep.

The soil layer should be a mixture of equal parts of good leaf mold and sharp sand. Two parts soil to one each of leaf mold and sand. You can add one teaspoonful pellatized fertilizer or one or two bone meal tablets to the mix. You can buy bags of house plant soil in the fall as well as chopped peat.

Move the plants around to get the best effect. Keep the soil on their arrangement plant. Water the plants according to their natural position, as near as possible and firm the soil around the roots well.

To keep the plants growing well, feed with liquid fertilizer once a month. Keep out of drafts and place in good light but not a direct sun. A dish garden will not require much water except for a few seconds then drain off excess by gently tipping it out.

Million Dollar Pearl Collection Stolen in Texas

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A pearl collection valued at $1,000,000 wholesale was stolen Saturday night from the hotel room of Hikoji Sakata, 38, a member of a prominent Japanese family. Sakata told police.

Sakata has been displaying the pearls in various cities. He displayed them at exhibits at the Texas State Fair in Dallas and were brought to Fort Worth for display in three department stores.

Sakata said the pearls, weighing 1,000 momme, or 3.75 ounces, were taken while he was out visiting friends.

Sakata said most of the pearls were natural and thousands of them in the collection were cultured.

Sakata described one of the natural pearls as the largest in the world. He said it is 18½ millimetres in diameter and perfectly round. He said he refused $10,000 for it.

A large number of the pearls were set in brooches, bracelets, earrings, tie clasps and other jewelry. There also were 750 strands.

Sakata said the pearls were insured but did not disclose for what amount.

True Atlantic

ence he preferred the concept of an Atlantic partnership in relations between Europe and the United States to the term "Atlantic Community."

He said he felt the term "community," with implications of federal elements and partial political unity, would be unacceptable to U.S. public opinion.

He raised the point because it had direct relevance to the question of future membership in the Common Market.

He said the negotiations for British membership "form part of the theme of Atlantic partnership."

Earlier, Senator Pietro Micara of Italy, conference president, said President Kennedy found the Atlantic allies solidly behind him during the Cuban crisis but warned NATO must close ranks to face other dangers.

Opening the five - day annual conference of legislators from the 15 nations of the Atlantic alliance, including Canada, Micara said the Cuban crisis "proved once more that the solidarity between the two continents is indispensable for world peace."

But, he said:

"We must close our ranks still further to ward off other dangers, namely Berlin, which remains the most important danger facing the Atlantic alliance."

He said NATO must remain strong because strength is "the only argument the Soviets understand."

FBI Agents Recover Money, Small Arsenal

BALTIMORE (AP) — FBI agents took a suitcase full of money Sunday from the neat Baltimore suburban home of Bobby Randell Wilcoxson and Jacqueline Ruth Rose, captured Saturday.

After agents spent several hours counting bills ranging from $1 to $100 denomination, Thomas J. Jenkins, the special agent in charge of the Baltimore office, announced the amount as approximately $21,000.

Most of the money was neatly stacked, held in place with wrappers of the kind used by banks.

The home in a quiet neighborhood here also yielded a small arsenal and a mail-order bag containing money, which one agent wryly referred to as "petty cash."

The 33 - year - old Wilcoxson and his 19-year-old friend had been sought in a series of bank robberies. In one, the $34,000 robbery of the Lafayette National Bank in Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 15, Wilcoxson is accused of slaying a bank guard with the four bank holdup charged in to Wilcoxson.

Three Liberals Acclaimed in Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — More than 11,000 electors won't have to go to the polls in Newfoundland's provincial election Nov. 19. The election in their ridings was sewed up Friday.

Three Liberals, two of them in Premier Smallwood's cabinet, were elected by acclamation when no others filed out papers by the 2 p.m. deadline. That gives the present Liberal government a 3-0 lead in seats before voting for the new 42-member legislature begins.

Finance Minister Edward Spencer, Fisheries Minister John Cheeseman and Gerald Hiu were the only candidates in Fogo, Hermitage and Labrador South, respectively, when nominations closed.

Altogether 88 candidates were nominated for seats in the legislature.

Only the Liberals entered a full slate. The Progressive Conservatives, led by 34-year-old James J. Green, passed up seven seats, nominating in 35. Ten ridings were captured by the Conservatives—Green Bay, Humber West and White Bay South—Labrador and the New Democratic Party candidates.

The NDP, led by former newspaper man Ed Broy, Jr., of Corner Brook, named five in all. Other candidates are two Independents, a self-styled Labor representative and a member of the United Newfoundland Party, formerly a Conservative.

U.S. Is Deeply Involved In 'Secret' War in Viet Nam

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is deeply involved in the biggest "secret" war in its history—the struggle to suppress the pro-Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

The war is being fought without official reports of any sort to the public on the number of troops involved or the amount of money being poured in.

There are two reasons for this lack of information, according to "unofficial" not for attribution statements at the state department.

The first is that if the U.S. -backed communiques, it would leave the impression that the Vietnamese government served merely as a U.S. puppet.

The second arises from the rules for 20th century diplomatic doubletalk. Under the terms of the 1954 Geneva accord which brought Viet Nam independence from France and resulted in the establishment of a Communist government in North Viet Nam, all parties agreed to refrain from the introduction of additional arms.

Both sides have ignored the arms ban, but nobody has admitted anything officially.

ALLIED WITH DIEM

The U.S. is in South Viet Nam to halt the spread of communism through what Soviet Premier Khrushchev calls "wars of liberation." In this effort it is allied with the South Vietnamese government headed by Ngo Dinh Diem.

By Western standards Diem is by no means an ideal ally.

U.S. correspondents in South Viet Nam repeatedly make the point that Diem permits absolutely no political opposition from any source.

Whether Diem's police state is also a corrupt one is a matter of dispute. The U.S. Agency for International Development has sent two investigators to the South Vietnamese capital at Saigon to find out how local officials distributed several hundred thousand dollars worth of U.S. aid.

To help suppress the Communist Viet Cong, the U.S. has committed — unofficially—10,000 soldiers, marines and airmen to South Viet Nam as military "advisers."

Since mid-1960, the U.S. has poured — unofficially — some $2,000,000,000 worth of military and economic aid into South Viet Nam.

USE NO NAMES

For Washington correspondents interested in what goes on in South Viet Nam, there are background briefings by defence department and state department officials, none of whom will permit quotation by name.

Then there are reports by U.S. correspondents in South Viet Nam.

The two accounts of what goes on contrast so greatly that sometimes it is difficult to determine whether they refer to the same war.

The state department often accuses reporters in Saigon of "inexperience."

The reporters reply that U.S. military and diplomatic officials are filing self-deluding reports to Washington.

The impression one gets at the defence department is that many of the 10,000 U.S. servicemen in Viet Nam are working in the jungles, leading a life of danger and hardship.

Some do, especially the professional Rangers.

U.S. correspondents report, however, that many are shuffling papers in Saigon, while officers are scattered through the provincial capitals, or in large villages where they have private rooms, soft beds, mess halls and recreational facilities.

'Aleing' Junkman Forgot Horse

LONDON (AP) — A junk dealer got a ticket Friday for parking his horse while he slipped off for a beer in downtown London behind St. Paul's Cathedral.

Charlie, the horse, ambled away from the curb and then settled down directly in the stream of heavy traffic. He refused to pull his cart out of the way. Traffic was snarled.

When the junkman showed up, he coaxed Charlie back to the curb.

The junkman was fined 10 shillings (about $1.50).

British Plan for Atom Test Met by Wave of Criticism

LONDON (CP)—Britain's decision to conduct another nuclear test in the United States met a wave of criticism today.

Many commentators found the timing of the announcement Monday perplexing. It came just as Russia and the United States were ending their series of tests and renewed disarmament talks at Geneva appeared hopeful.

As The Evening Standard put it, Britain seems to be "getting in a quick one" before closing time is called on all nuclear tests.

Labor party leaders oppose the test because they believe Britain's nuclear deterrent should be phased out altogether. They also think the test would endanger disarmament negotiations by giving the Russians a pretext for stalling on any suggested agreement.

Party leaders planned to ask Prime Minister Macmillan for a full explanation of the decision in Parliament.

Moscow Radio anticipated the British government Sunday by warning that the test would "seriously ruin the chances for achievement of agreement" on a test ban.

In his announcement, Defence Minister Peter Thorneycroft said the test was required for "essential military purposes." He added that the test was not the start of a new series but a second experiment with the device Britain exploded in Nevada last March.

Britain's low-yield test will be a mere firecracker beside the big U.S. and Russian blasts of recent months. It is believed to be a device concerned with a new British triggering mechanism for atomic weapons.

Most British newspapers express reservations about the need for testing what The Daily Mail calls the "peanut bomb."

"What the hell is Mr. Macmillan up to in permitting this piece of folly at a crucial moment in world affairs?" asks the pro-Labor Daily Herald in a front-page editorial.

The Times says the test is "a miserable clumsy gesture" while The Daily Sketch suggests the test "may encourage Britain can make is to talk now, test later."

The Manchester Guardian calls the British test "insignificant" and says agreement by comes soon it "will not complicate an agreement if the Americans really want one."

The Daily Mail concludes the government "must have decided that the military advantages outweighed the political odium."

Kennedy Insists Bombers Be Moved Out Of Cuba; Mikoyan Supports Castro

Soviet Deputy Premier Backs Demand U.S. Leave Guantanamo

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Kennedy's threat to Cuban crisis negotiators return to the bargaining table today armed with White House orders to keep up their insistence that the Soviet Union pull its jet bombers out of Cuba.

Kennedy was reported determined to stand fast on the bomber demand at a conference in Washington Monday with Adlai Stevenson, the chief U.S. delegate at the UN, Stevenson's Security Council deputy, Charles W. Yost and John J. McCloy, special adviser on the Cuban crisis.

Stevenson and his team were expected to brief Acting Secretary-General U Thant on their talk with the president and to schedule a new round of negotiations with Soviet delegates. U.S. informants said Stevenson and his aides gave Kennedy a full report on two sessions they had with the Russians last week in which the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, Vasily Kuznetsov, was reported to have balked at removing the bombers.

CONSIDERS OFFENSIVE

The informants said Kennedy made plain he considers the Soviet bombers must be removed under Premier Khrushchev's pledge in return for a U.S. guarantee not to invade Cuba.

Expectations mounted at UN headquarters, however, that the United States might drop its demand for inspection in Cuba to make sure the Russians have dismantled the missile bases they built on the island and have shipped out the missiles.

Both Soviet and Cuban officials have made clear they have been turned over to Castro and are under his control. But the United States is expected to continue its naval blockade of Cuba until the bombers are removed.

Reliable sources in Geneva said the International control center the Red Cross had dropped plans for any immediate inspection of ships going to Cuba to guard against re-importation of offensive arms.

The sources said the committee considers such inspection no longer necessary to prevent a Soviet build-up and is now willing to undertake a task so outside its usual scope of activities if only a catastrophe was threatened.

HAVANA, Cuba (Reuters) — Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan said Monday night Russia supports Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's demand for the evacuation of the U.S. Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba.

Mikoyan made the announcement in his first public speech in Cuba since he arrived Havana 10 days ago for talks with Castro in the wake of the Soviet decision to withdraw its missile bases from the island.

He told a group of students and teachers at Havana University "We are going to tell the imperialists: 'Hands off Cuba.'"

Mikoyan described Castro's five demands for a settlement of the Cuban crisis as a "program for peace for the Caribbean" and said Russia gave its full backing to them.

Among the points are the demand for the evacuation of Guantanamo base and measures to ease U.S. political and economic pressures on Cuba.

ALWAYS BACKS CASTRO

Mikoyan said "The Soviet government will always be behind Premier Castro and the Cuban people."

The Russian called Castro a "great Cuban leader, a Cuban Marxist-Leninist" and praised him as a "legendary personality who is now leading the country from victory to victory."

The veteran Communist said he had devoted 40 years to revolutionary studies and "I am glad that my last 10 days of studies have been in Cuba."

Mikoyan was welcomed by University Chancellor Juan Marinello.

Marinello added: "The crisis is not over and will probably loom again because of the barbarousness of the imperialists, but the solidarity of the socialist world will overcome it."

MAY REDUCE DRUG PRICES BY NEW BILL

Would Place Rigid Control on Samples

OTTAWA (CP)—The possibility that some reduction in drug prices will result from a government bill to tighten up the Food and Drugs Act emerged Monday in the Commons.

Health Minister Monteith dropped a hint that he has considered such a possibility.

One section of the bill will place rigid controls on distribution of free drug samples to doctors, dentists, veterinary surgeons and pharmacists.

Mr. Monteith, replying to questions concerning a price drop, told the House:

"I do not think we shall be in any position to indicate the difference in the cost of a drug purely because there is not so much sampling. I do think, however, that if less sampling is done then, at some place along the line, there is less cost."

New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas said he understands that some drug firms send out as many as 20,000 samples of new drugs. This type of promotion was bound to affect the market cost of the drug," and if samples may now be sent out only by request, the cost should certainly be reduced.

LIMITS SAMPLES

Under the bill, which received approval in principle, pharmaceutical firms would be permitted to send samples only to doctors and dentists, veterinary surgeons and druggists who request them by letter.

However, they would not be prohibited from soliciting such requests through the use of mailed circulars.

Until now, drug firms have been in the habit of sending out unsolicited samples — especially to doctors. The object is to familiarize them with the drug and get them to prescribe it for their patients.

The legislation is simply to the "effect that this wholesale advertising by samples be

Minister Favors Commission On Canada's Dairy Industry

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister Stewart of Ontario indicated Monday night that he would view favorably the creation of a royal commission on Canada's dairy industry.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture that one of the last acts of the province's provisional government, Parliament which dissolved itself Nov. 5, was to request such an inquiry.

Mr. Stewart said there are "many points in favor" of the idea. The commission "might recommend a national dairy policy, and particularly a policy for the dairy - producing provinces of Ontario and Quebec, which could result in some co - ordinated marketing effort."

"A commission would allow all of the facts to be brought out in an unbiased way and possibly could be a sound, logical reason for maintaining the status quo of the dairy industry in Ontario until workable solutions are reached."

The minister said he didn't believe he had ever witnessed such confusion and such conflicting opinions, divergent efforts and misleading and misunderstood statements.

"I have no hesitancy in suggesting that possibly this bulling out is being done under the spoon of discontent and disillusionment by people who only have interests at heart other than those of the well-being of the dairy industry."

He said the government has taken many attempts at consolidation of thought and policy by Ontario's dairy industry have been "nullified by deep-rooted blocks of insular thinking, watered down by individual and commodity group interests."

At present Ontario's dairy farmers are divided into four groups, cheese, fluid milk, concentrated milk and cream producers. "Each organization has been trying without success to persuade the groups to unite to present a solid front to the provincial milk - marketing plan.

Mr. Stewart said that with the dissolution of the provincial milk marketing board "we are back where we started, with much the same divided, sent feeling of helplessness in the minds of many that the four dairy groups cannot separately get together in some co-ordinating board.

"This helplessness is tinged with bitterness and there is a widespread feeling that we must develop between some of the producer groups."

He said last week he received a brief from one of the four groups, the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board, asking the government to rescind legislation which protects the fluid milk producers and gives them an unfair advantage over other milk producers in the province.

Ontario Govt. Approves Tunnel Under Welland Canal

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government today announced approval in principle of a proposed $10,000,000 tunnel under the Welland Canal in Welland.

The joint announcement, made by Premier Robarts and Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton at a press conference today, said negotiations would start immediately with the city of Welland and the federal transport department.

Mr. MacNaughton said the tunnel, 3,000 feet long including approaches, likely would be started late in 1964 or early in 1965 and could conceivably be in operation by 1967.

The tunnel, aimed at relieving road traffic congestion at bridges which now must be lifted for ships' passage, is one outcome of a year-long traffic study carried out by the provincial highways department and municipalities in the region.

The government also announced that tenders will be called, late this year for construction of the first three miles of highway 406 — a new controlled-access freeway to link Welland and Port Colborne with the Queen Elizabeth Way at St. Catharines.

Details of the first contract will be from Westchester Avenue in St. Catharines with the town line road, slightly more than three miles away. The remaining 12 miles will be built later, Mr. MacNaughton said.

The highways minister said the tunnel would be toll free—"We doubt that the federal government would be sympathetic to being tolled in."

Tolls for passage through the tunnel could also be a determ-

Quebec Voters to Elect 95 Members

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage and opposition Leader Daniel Johnson were in their respective home ridings today for Quebec election eve campaigning after holding big rallies in Montreal.

An estimated overflow crowd of 8,000 — Lesage rallies chairs in Montreal's big Show Mart Hall—heard Mr. Lesage ask Montrealers to help wipe out the Union Nationale and thereby render the province a service.

Meanwhile, Mr. Johnson pledged before a crowd estimated by police at 4,000 that a Union Nationale government would contribute $25,000,000 towards holding a world's Fair in Montreal in 1967.

Today, Mr. Lesage was in Quebec West riding, to which he was first elected in 1960. Mr. Johnson, after a stop in Granby, was to tour his rural constituency of Bagot in the Eastern Townships, a riding he first won in 1946.

Slightly more than 2,700,000 Quebecers are eligible to vote between 9 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. EST Wednesday to elect 95 members to the legislature. There are 224 candidates. The Liberal and Union Nationale parties each have a full slate of candidates. The new Action Provinciale has 19 and the Union Independante Party a threat to the Canadian Wheat Board.

Premier Minister Diefenbaker jumped to the defence of the agriculture minister Monday in the House of Commons. "Farmers are not now a part of government policy. They'd have been rewarded as a class for debate among farmers to ascertain their wishes."

But leaders Lester B. Pearson of the Liberals and T. C. Douglas of the New Democratic Party wanted to know how much government responsibility there is for the present price ideas which Mr. Hamilton put to the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool in Regina last Friday.

Mr. Hamilton told the farmers he wants them to consider setting aside some of their income as part of the insurance against possible non - payment for grain sold abroad on credit.

He also wants them to organ-

Kennedy, 'Little Stupid Brother' Assailed by Mississippi Judge

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Circuit Judge W. M. O'Barr during the term "totalitarian dictatorship" in contest with a reference to the Kennedy administration, ordered a grand jury Monday to focus evidence gathered by what he called "unlawful" army searches.

The strongly-worded charge came amid indications that indictments may be returned against those involved in recent rioting and demonstrations following the entrance of James Meredith, a Negro, to the all-white University of Mississippi.

Senator George Yarbrough, Governor Ross Barnett's personal campus spokesman during the Sept. 30 riot, testified for more than a half-hour before the grand jury. He was one of several persons testifying who saw the bloody riot which killed two and injured scores.

O'Barr said the search of students' rooms at the university by soldiers was "in violation of every constitutional provision known to man. Every man shall be free from unlawful search and seizure."

The native Mississippi judge said the constitution had been "shorn of all meaning by a dictatorial political Supreme Court made up of political greedy old men who are not qualified to serve as a judge of any court."

"This court, together with the hungry, mad, ruthless, ungodly, power - mad men who would change this government into a democracy to a totalitarian dictatorship, have attempted to crush the people of this state through the excuse of upholding and enforcing an unlawful order that had not become final."

O'Barr reminded jurors that federal or state government employees are not immune from prosecution.

"Any man who neither pulls the trigger of a gun or orders some other person to . . . should be indicted and tried in the court of competent jurisdiction.

"This applies . . . to John F. Kennedy, little stupid brother Robert Kennedy, Mr. (James) McShane or any other human being."

The grand jury was expected to complete hearing evidence today and report whether or not an indictment has been returned in the deaths of Ray Gunter of Oxford and French reporter Paul Guihard, both killed during the riot. Guihard was employed by Agence France-Presse.

Political Storm Whipped Up Over Grain Credit Sales

OTTAWA (CP)—The fury of an old-time farm fanning mill has] nothing on the political storm blowing through the Parliament Hill over grain credit sales.

The Commons Wednesday will debate two controversial suggestions made in two separate stories last week by Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton. Opposition leaders see them as a threat to the Canadian Wheat Board.

Mr. Hamilton told the farmers he wants them to consider setting aside some of their income as part of the insurance against possible non - payment for grain sold abroad on credit.

He also wants them to organize a sales pitch to supplement the Canadian Wheat Board's sales effort.

The two proposals . . . in my opinion are simply a device to avoid and undermining the scope and function of the Canadian Wheat Board," said Mr. Pearson when he moved for an immediate full-dress debate on the subject. He moved the motion and the debate was set for Wednesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker quoted from the Hamilton speech in which was distributed here while the minister was in Regina. The speech was put forward merely to spark public discussion and answers during the coming winter.

"There is no possibility of any of these matters being considered until the farmers have cogitated on them and discussed them among themselves for several months," Mr. Diefenbaker added.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said a debate was needed because wheat sales are related to the international scene. The Social Credit party opposes wheat sales to Communist China.

Mr. Pearson pointed out that exports of manufactured goods are insured against credit risk

T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, tried unsuccessfully to obtain an immediate debate on proposals made in Regina Friday by Agriculture Minister Hamilton.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker promised there would be an opportunity Wednesday for a full debate on agricultural affairs.

The House completed study of proposals from last April's federal budget.

Trade Crusade In U. S. Opened By Macaulay

NEW YORK (CP) — Robert Macaulay, Ontario's minister of energy resources, says economics and development launched on Ontario trade crusade in the United States will help end the promise that Canada is determined to correct the trade imbalance with the United States.

Mr. Macaulay told a group of financial editors, reporters, bankers and investment dealers that Canada would prefer to do this on an expansionary basis rather than on a restrictive one. He offered these reasons:

More capital investment in Canada - based, United States branch plants. Canada has to date $700,000,000 in goods imported now from the United States.

Allow Canadian subsidiaries to enter the export market.

Free Canadian subsidiaries from the necessity of buying from their parent companies even when Canadian equivalents of comparable price and quality are available here.

Make licensing agreements with Canadian firms so they can sell goods they now import, and Study our goods with care for price and quality.

"I want to make it clear," said Mr. Macaulay, "that we welcome American advertising and investment capital . . .

But we must be able to balance our books, pay our bills, stabilize our currency.

Assertion 'Dag' Concealed Reality Called Irresponsible Fabrication

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A spokesman for Acting Secretary-General U Thant accused Irish ex-diplomat Conor Cruise O'Brien Monday of irresponsible fabrication in his new book To Katanga and Back.

The spokesman accused O'Brien also—by publishing the French Communist Le Monde $700,000,000 in goods imported now from the United States.

Allow Canadian subsidiaries to enter the export market.

Free Canadian subsidiaries from the necessity of buying from their parent companies even when Canadian equivalents of comparable price and quality are available here.

Make licensing agreements with Canadian firms so they can sell goods they now import, and

"I want to make it clear," said Mr. Macaulay, "that we welcome American advertising and investment capital . . .

O'Brien wrote in his book of publication Sept. 21 that Dag Hammarskjold "allowed the world to be given an official version which was obtained as to conceal the reality of what had happened, making what had been a positive intervention by the United Nations look like a defensive action."

The UN spokesman said Dag Hammarskjold is on record in the country and was aware of the contrary and more recent interpretation to anyone at UN headquarters prior to his leaving the organization or in articles published in British newspapers soon afterward.

"Whatever Mr. O'Brien's personal reasons for this remarkable piece may be," the spokesman added, "it is necessary, in view of the absence in his book of any supporting evidence or documentation for it and the existence of copious official records to the contrary, to expose it as the irresponsible fabrication which it is."

The spokesman said that in writing his book O'Brien drew widely on information and events available to him in his privileged position as a UN official.

Hazards of Cigaret Smoking Outlined to BCIVS Students

The "Hazards of Cigarette Smoking was the subject of an informative address delivered to the students of B.C.I.V.S. during their recent weekly assembly, Dr. Ralph Beverley Lynn, F.R.C.S., head of Cardiac Thoracic Surgery at Queen's University was the speaker.

The impressive list of degrees and research accomplishments with which Principal E. A. Orr introduced the speaker left no doubt in the minds of his audience that the guest's remarks would be based on facts established by systematic investigation over a prolonged period.

It was no ordinary "parental appeal" to the youth to stop smoking but rather a direct presentation of a choice between a reasonable assurance of a normal life-time of good health, and the possibility of a much abbreviated life fraught with grief and suffering from lung cancer or some form of cardiovascular ailment; this, according to statistics, in the life of one of eight of all young cigarette smokers who use a pack a day.

FILTERS INEFFECTIVE

Dr. Lynn placed little confidence in the worth of cigarette filters in protecting the smoker from the toxic effects of nicotine, prussic acid, and various tars that are inhaled. For those who maintain their inability to stop smoking, he advocated a reduction in the use of cigarettes, or as an alternative, the smoking of pipes or cigars whose characteristic pungency would almost prevent inveterate inhaling.

Dr. Lynn emphasized that research has definitely shown that the smoking habit reduces the vitality of the athlete, and that persistant stimulation by nicotine is particularly harmful where respiratory and circulatory weaknesses are already present.

WHY SOME SMOKE

The speaker directed some of his remarks towards those students who have not yet become addicted, drawing to their attention some reasons set forth by psychologists and other authorities that exist for boys and girls starting to smoke. The reasons given extended from the satisfaction of feeling or appearing grown up, to the excuse among young couples that where it seems impossible to counteract the rank fumes emanating from clothing and to become accustomed to the asenic appearance of the smoker, it is best to assume the habit.

Some impressive figures were presented regarding the cost of cigarettes and the restrictions the habit imposed upon students who would like to have a larger share of more worthwhile things in life such as food, good, clothes, and further education.

That Dr. Lynn's remarks were taken in a serious vein was indicated by the barrage of questions directed to him by the students following his address. It would seem to say as well that the students were grateful for the interest in their welfare shown by the Bay Quinte District High School Board by inviting Dr. Lynn to speak in the city secondary schools.

Dr. Lynn received a similar reception from the students in the Belleville secondary schools in recent weeks.

Cubans Claim Sabotage Effort Smashed

HAVANA (AP)—Cuban security officials said today they have smashed an attempt to sabotage the copper mines at Matahambre and captured a man they called the principal agent of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in Cuba.

Officials Havana identified the captive leader as Miguel Angel Crespo, once an army officer under dictator Fulgencio Batista. It said two groups of saboteurs landed near Matahambre, on Cuba's western tip, with a half ton of weapons to called them CIA agents.

The mining centre is 30 miles northwest of Pinar del Rio and is linked by cableway with the Gulf of Mexico coast.

Standby Fee For Protection Raised $400

Belleville is raising the price of fire protection to outlying municipalities, due to increased cost. Chief Gerald Vance, of the Belleville Fire Department, attended Ameliasburg council meeting last night, to break the news.

The township has had a contract with Belleville since 1940, with one rate revision in 1958. The new rate revision, to take effect January 1, 1963, doubles the standby fee, from $400 to $800. There is no change in other charges.

Chief Vance pointed out that the Belleville Fire Department's budget this year is about $300,000, up about $100,000 since the current fees were laid down, in 1958. The city maintains 10 pieces of equipment, and 50 men in the department, and the standby fee helps pay the depreciation on the equipment.

"We offer the cheapest fire protection in Ontario," said Chief Vance. "When you can get $1,000 worth of truck and men to drive seven miles through any weather for $25 I think that is a very good deal." Ameliasburg council agreed that the fire protection rates were fair, and indicated they would sign the new contract.

200 Residents Request Names Be Added

Nearly 200 Belleville residents whose names have been omitted from the municipal voters' list or who have had a recent change of address, have been requested by city hall to have their names correctly added to the list.

Of the close to 200 applications, about 125 were made at the assessment office and the balance at city hall.

City Assessment Commissioner Leighton Thompson said the majority of applications were from persons who had changed their address and wished it corrected listed.

Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson will hold a court of revision at city hall tonight at which time persons omitted from the list will be able to have their names added. Those making previous applications at city hall to have their names added do not have to appear in person before Judge Anderson.

Council Asked To Restrict Custom Work

The Ontario Department of Highways is concerned with municipalities using their road equipment for custom work, according to a form letter from Ab Grosvenor, read at Ameliasburg Council at its meeting last night.

The letter points out that custom work will reduce the working life of equipment purchased with Departmental subsidy, will reduce the work available to contractors, and may keep machines and men tied up while there is public road work to be done.

The department concedes that municipalities have the right, if they choose, to take on custom work for other municipalities but requests that the amount accepted by strictly limited.

Accused Fail To Obtain Bail At Hearing

The unspoken difficulties of setting bail for accused persons consumed much attention on part of the harried magistrate in court dockets of the year in Belleville today.

A total of 70 cases, ranging from alleged infractions of the Criminal Code to minor municipal by-laws were listed for hearing before magistrate T. Y. Jones.

Much of the attention focused on three separate cases involving charges of theft among them the fourth appearance of two city youths charged with breaking and entering.

Once more before the magistrate were Robert Thomas Bennett, 17, and Frederick Leonard Clifford Wood, charged with a break-in at Lafferty's Bridge Street East premises, October 29. Bennett is seeking $5,000 bail while Wood was ordered to find $2,500, reduced from the original prosecution request of $5,000.

Defence counsel Louis Marsakas said Bennett figured he could obtain bail in a week. Wood, meantime, believed he could raise $2,000.

"He bargained it down to $2,500 the other day. Now he is trying to shoot another $500," commented the magistrate.

"I do not like chiselling". However, he added, the property title were in order there might be quarrel over the figure.

The further remand drew some protest from acting crown attorney Frank Kelly, who requested that the two youths be remanded in custody to plead to the charge. This would mean the accused would have to make another by what court they would be tried.

"They have been up four times and have not come up with something" he told the court.

"They are in custody at the present time. The burden is theirs to buy them", replied the magistrate.

Both Woods and Bennett said they did not prefer proceeding with their case immediately.

"I think they are entitled to that", said Mr. Jones.

"These people will be balled to November 23rd and they will be expected to make an application. If they don't elect on the 23rd I will make an election for them and the preliminary hearing will go ahead", he warned.

Insurance, Other 'Agents' Under Fire at Hearing Of the Court of Revision

About 7,200 Eligible to Vote In Election

TRENTON — Trenton residents whose names do not appear on the voters' lists, but who think that they are entitled to a vote in the forthcoming municipal elections, must get in touch with clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry, on or before Nov. 15. Voters lists have been placed in the municipal offices, the Trenton post office and the police station.

Residents who pay at least $300 in taxes, or who rent or lease an apartment, comprising of two rooms, or more, are entitled to vote.

This year's sum total of eligible voters has been set at 7,200 a number approximating last year's total.

Election Day this year is Monday, Dec. 3. An advance poll will be held in the town hall on Dec. 1.

The town hall too will be the setting for nomination night, Nov. 22, (8 p.m. to 7 p.m.) when nominees for three council positions, the board of education and one position on the Trenton utilities commission, will be elected.

Trenton High School auditorium has been chosen for a citizens' meeting on Monday night starting at 8 p.m. Here, last year's councillors, school trustees and utilities commissioners will report to the people and the amount of assessments as brought down by assessment department and appealed by assessors.

KEEP NO FILES AT HOME

J. C. Coutts, an insurance agent, told the court that he kept no files in his home and that he carried duplicate forms around in his car, in a brief case.

Gordon Jeffery, another insurance representative, said that he didn't come to his home to buy insurance.

The court will give further thought to the problem before attempting to come to a decision. The best thing that could happen, in the opinion of the court members, is to have some particular agent take the case to the court of revision. In this way, a clear cut ruling might be arrived at.

Present at last night's meeting were this year's court chairman, Councillor Lloyd Worrall, and court members D. R. Fraser, Frank Filion, F. Clark and Walter Stevie.

And still on the subject of "agents," that's what the "insurance" Warehouse on Byron St. is now known as, a new agent would pay a 50 per cent business tax on their tail outlet, which brewery heads claim the warehouse is, pays a 30 per cent business tax only. This, assessor Carl Charlton informed the court, has been established in court proceedings in Belleville. The court agreed to go along with this thinking when it heard that the chairman of Court of Appeal had come up with the decision affecting other centres.

If the court is confused in this thinking on matters pertaining to agents, appellant R. J. "Dick" Whitley isn't confused with the assessment on a number of his properties. "The buildings are assessed out of all reason," says Mr. Whitley.

However, the court didn't consider this argument valid and affirmed the assessments, while agreeing that Mr. Whitley was consistent in his arguments.

NUMBER OF REQUESTS

A number of requests that school support be changed from separate school to public school, slipped through the court's hands and assessor Charlton did requests from the assessor that assessments be changed because of "palpable" errors, after the court members had learned that "palpable" meant, in effect, an oversight and referred to mistakes in addition of figures or errors in measurements.

One appellant objected to being assessed for laundry tubs, when, in fact, he didn't have any. Another claimed that the "forced air heating system" in his assessment notice was nothing more than a converted space heater in his basement. The court could see the logic of this sort of reasoning and lowered the assessments.

A Mr. Donald Sharpe had his assessment for business tax removed when he told the court that he didn't conduct a decorating business on his premises and that the only thing he had done was to paint an ad on the side of his truck. Individual Most Important Speaker Tells Rotary Club

"Let us not fool ourselves as we do - there was never a time in the history of the world when the individual was more important than he is today. Whether he be a Canadian, American, Britisher, Frenchman, Chinaman or Russian, the individual's responsibility to God and man is still a solemn and an awful one," Brigadier Alfred Simester of the Salvation Army told local Rotarians at their annual Remembrance Day program in the Quinte Hotel yesterday afternoon.

In looking at the modern situation the speaker suggested that civilization today had arrived perilously close to fulfilling the five qualifications which Gibbon claimed to be the reasons for the fall of the Roman Empire: (1) the decay of home life; (2) the destruction of the economy through high taxation; (3) the rot of character through mad craze for pleasure; (4) the effort to maintain enormous armaments to protect the nation from without when the true problem was within; and (5) the decay of true religion.

Brigadier Simester suggested that never was the maxim "we depend on God and He depends on us" more true and that such proposals as that of Julian Huxley's Godless Religion, in which he proposed that man had outgrown a "childish dependence" on supernatural religion and was capable of hewing his own destiny without such guidance as religion offered, "looks pretty stupid in the light of the ingenuity of the 50-megaton bomb."

Throughout his talk the speaker compared present history with a prize fight. The First World War, the war to end all wars, was considered to be the first round. The second round covers the period from 1918 to 1939 with the Second World War being the third round. From 1945 to the present is the fourth round. There be a round five, Brig. Simester queried.

There was much truth in Sir Anthony Eden's statement, made in 1938, that in all probability the world was getting its last chance to help God create a lasting peace.

Some people may wonder just what 100,000 Canadian died for and Brig. Simester asked the speaker. Many of those did not know what they died for. he suggested.

QUOTES POEM

If has been called, at various periods in man's history, the Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence, the Atlantic Charter and the Four Freedoms, the speaker said.

If the ships should fail again
"you and I will hardly settle for anything less than freedom", he said.

B-igadier Simester concluded his talk by quoting a poem written by a soldier shortly before the battle of El Aghela on December 14th, 1942, and found after the battle was over:

"I know that death is but a door,
I know what we are fighting for:
Peace for the kids, our brothers freed,
A kinder world, a cleaner breed.
I'm but the son my mother bore,
A simple man, and nothing more,
But, God of strength and gentleness,
Be pleased to make me nothing less.
Help me O God, when death is near,
To mock the haggard face of fear,
That when I fall, if fall I must,
My soul may triumph in the dust".

The speaker is in charge of the local district headquarters of the Salvation Army and previously served as youth secretary for all of Canada and during World War II, was in command of all Salvation Army work in the Mediterranean theatre. He was introduced by fellow Rotarian Ron Adamson and thanked by club member Bob Lanning. The meeting was conducted by President Dr. Harry Burns.

Accused Given Freedom on Bail of $400

A Department of Highways workman, charged with indecent assault of a Belleville woman, was remanded on $400 bail in city city magistrate's court this morning.

David Ian Roberts, 25 formerly of Ottawa, was charged Saturday after police were called by the woman.

Acting crown attorney Tom Lally asked for $500 bail, but defence counsel Don Templeman suggested $300 would "be reasonable".

Roberts, father of two children ann soon separated from his wife, intimated he might be able to put up the bail himself.

"The idea of bail preferably is that somebody other than the accused pledges for his appearance", remanded magistrate T. Y. Wills. "If he is thinking of putting up his own cash that is not in accordance with the principle of bail".

The magistrate queried whether Roberts job might be jeopersilled by his detention.

"If I get out at the moment I can go back to work here", he said the accused.

"Suppose we split the figures. Could we make it $400?" suggested the magistrate.

While knowing nothing of the circumstances of the charge added the magistrate, he had known many indecent assault cases, some of them serious and "some of them not too serious as indecent assault".

Neighbor's Bull Managed to Jump Fence

A farmer's fences are not always a guarantee that cattle may quietly graze.

Ontario Provincial Police from Bellevill were called yesterday by an irate Lonsdale district farmer. The farmer said a neighbor's bull had managed to jump the fence into a field where he kept a small herd of heifers and Holsteins.

The bull was later returned to its owner and police returned to headquarters to ponder ramifications of the incident.

What about charges?

"How about trespassing with intent?" queried one local wit.

For the moment, the investigation is continuing.

Bail Totalling $7,000 Is Set For Four Youths

Four Belleville youths, charged yesterday with breaking, entry and theft at the Quinte Curling Club after a midnight police search of the area, were remanded on bail today.

In city magistrate's court were Bruce McGrimmon, 20; his 19-year-old brother Douglas; Michael Francis Culhane, 17, and Terry Bennett, 22.

The bail figures set by Magistrate T. Y. Wills were $2,... property for each of the McGrimmon brothers, $1,000 for Culhane and $2,000 for Bennett.

The four were charged after the crew of a police cruiser saw a group of men run into the night as the patrol car approached the club premises. Extra police were rushed to the area and began a search of the club and nearby city fairgrounds property.

"It was not so much that anything valuable was taken but there was a considerable amount of damage," acting Crown Attorney Tom Lally told the magistrate as he requested the bail guarantees.

Joanne Jarvah Still Looking For Lost Collie

With the Christmas season looming up in the very near future, it isn't right that a little six-year-old girl should be sad hearted.

But that is the case with Joanne Jarvah, 301 Herchimer Ave., who still yearns for her short haired Collie pet "Sandy" which two weeks ago broke his way and hasn't been seen since.

The dog didn't turn up at the city dog pound so the Jarvah's feel another family must have taken him in. When "Sandy" disappeared he was trailing a 12-foot section of chain attached to his collar.

Every day Joanne waits expectantly for "Sandy" to return home, but so far her expectations have been in vain. She would appreciate very much if anyone knowing the whereabouts of her sandy haired pet would give her Mommy a ring at Woodland 2-0423.

Youth Given Probation for Shop Lifting

A strong warning against shop-lifting was handed down by magistrate T. Y. Wills in Belleville this morning.

He said he felt a jail term on conviction for such offences was "necessary as an example to others and - - - to people who do not seem to learn any other way."

Charged with theft of a cigarette lighter from a downtown store was Belleville youth David E. Faul.

The report of a medical examiner was shown the youth before the magistrate disposed of the case.

In light of the report, said the magistrate, "I think there is an exception in your case."

He placed Faul on a year's probation.

The proportions of cost which each of the three levels of government will bear in the next act location of the tunnel would be subject to further negotiation, he said. Location near and replacement of the Lincoln Street bridge had been suggested.

STUDY BRIDGE

The highways minister said that in the early stages of study a high - level bridge crossing had been suggested but was ruled out because of cost and the unfeasibility of building it "over top of the city."

Highways department engineers explained that it had been proposed to build the tunnel on dry land, float it into position and sink it in a dredged placement. The project would be carried out in winter to avoid interfering with canal shipping.

Mr. MacNaughton said the traffic study in the southern Ontario area likely would involve more changes to improve traffic flow.

Although some Welland businessmen had objected that Highway 406 would pull business away from their city to St. Catharines, he said, it seemed to him that the freeway "would be of benefit to the entire area."

Consulting engineers on the tunnel so far have been Fenco-Harris and Gibb, Underwood and McLellan, but this would have to be subject to approval by the federal transport department, Mr. MacNaughton said.

Careless Driving Brings $50 Fine

A Belleville youth, charged with careless driving after an accident on the Cannifton Road, this morning lost his driver's licence for six months.

In addition, James Maxwell Lockwood was fined $50 and costs by magistrate T. Y. Wills. Police said Lockwood lost control of his car on a curve in the road and rolled it.

Death Sentence Against Detroit Man Appealed

OTTAWA (CP)—The case of a double slaying in Toronto a year ago was brought before the Supreme Court of Canada today as Arthur Lucas of Detroit opened an appeal against his murder conviction and death sentence.

Toronto lawyer Walter Williston is seeking to have the conviction quashed on grounds of miscarriage of justice in the trial of Lucas, 54, for the murder of Therland Crater.

Crater, 44, and 21-year-old Carolyn Newman who lived with him in Toronto, were killed last Nov. 17 in a struggle in their apartment during which their throats were cut.

During the trial, defence counsel argued that Lucas was the victim of a frame-up.

In his case submitted to the Supreme Court, Mr. Williston argues that the trial jury was prejudiced by actions of the Crown counsel, and that Chief Justice James C. McRuer misdirected the jury as to the law and the facts in his charge to them.

Mr. Williston argues that the Crown counsel unfairly prejudiced the jury by leading evidence as to other criminal acts alleged to have been done by Lucas, and by having alluded to his opening address to damaging facts which later presenting evidence to prove them.

O'Brien Urges Independent Probe of Congo

LONDON (Reuters) — Conor Cruise O'Brien, former United Nations chief in the Congo's secessionist Katanga province, called today for an independent tribunal to investigate fighting last year between UN and Katanga forces.

The United Nations has formally denied allegations in O'Brien's book, To Katanga and Back, that its late secretary-general, Dag Hammarskjold, had allowed a false version of the UN action to be published.

O'Brien claims the UN was attempting to cover up accession of Katanga from the Congo by force. The UN has claimed it was trying to halt the activities of foreign mercenaries in the Congo.

O'Brien, here for publication of his book, said he was prepared to back up the charges in the book with documentary evidence.

Among the documents, he said, are a military situation report from the UN command warnings from the Congolese central government for the arrest of Katanga President Moise Tshombe and his ministers and a central government order placing certain officials at the disposal of a UN official.

O'Brien said that, "in view of the importance of the issues at stake, the matter should be investigated by an impartial body."

Socreds May Abstain From House Votes

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Monday it may be necessary for Social Credit MPs to abstain from voting on further non-confidence motions unless political manoeuvring by other parties in the Commons is discontinued.

Mr. Thompson said the matter will be discussed at the caucus meeting of Social Credit MPs Wednesday.

He reiterated the view that an election now would be wrong but said that Prime Minister Diefenbaker has not said whether any defeat of the government in a vote on any issue in the House would be regarded as a vote of non-confidence involving an election.

"Unless the political manoeuvring in the House is discontinued, it may be necessary for us to abstain from voting and debate on any non-confidence motions, he said.

Such a step would leave almost evenly balanced forces in the Commons on any vote—99 Liberals, 19 New Democrats and 116 Progressive Conservatives. Social Credit holds 30 seats.

Mr. Thompson said that if as a result of a Social Credit abstention the government is defeated by a combination of Liberal and New Democratic votes, "We will just have to go our own way."

The Congo Appears to Be Rolling Toward New Crisis

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

After almost a year of uncomfortable peace, the Congo appears to be rolling inexorably toward a new crisis point.

For 2½ years Moise Tshombe has resisted pressure from the United Nations and the central government to bring his rich Katanga province back into the Congo.

Now time is running out for the UN, and acting Secretary-General U Thant faces the choice of taking decisive action against Tshombe or pulling the UN force out with Tshombe still in control of Katanga.

Thant has set an unofficial deadline of Thursday for some move by Tshombe towards acceptance of a UN reunification plan. UN sources report that Thant has threatened to take action against the Katanga regime if no progress is made.

CASH RUNS OUT

How long the UN can stay in the Congo is not known. Some reports have spoken of a withdrawal as early as February. The $200,000,000 bond issue floated by the UN has raised only immediate crisis, but much of the money has already been spent.

In addition some of the nations contributing to the 15,000-man UN force are reported anxious to see the operation wound up. India in particular, contributing about a third of the force, needs its troops at home to face the Communist Chinese threat.

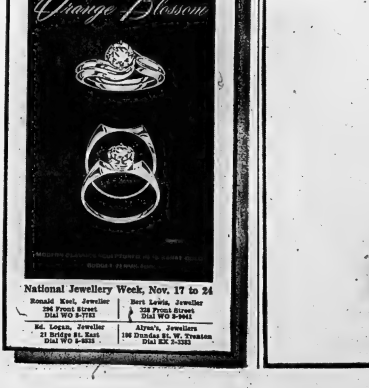
Until last weekend Tshombe appeared to be playing for time, talking reunification while holding tightly to independence in hopes the UN would be forced to leave.

This approach appeared to have a fair chance of success, since Thant has consistently opposed use of force against Katanga. Some Western countries, led by Belgium and Britain, have argued against either force or economic boycott.

DENY RAIDING

But a new factor was introduced by UN charges that Katangan planes had raided northern parts of the province held by central government troops during the weekend.

Tshombe is much more ready for a showdown now than he was in earlier clashes in September and December of last year.



In the September encounters the Katangan "air force" had only one operational plane. Now the UN says it has some 50 planes. Katangan ground forces also have been built up, with estimates of their strength ranging from 12,000 to 40,000 men.

The UN continues to maintain a strong force in the Katangan capital of Elisabethville. But clearly the regime cannot now be brought to submission without a major operation.

EDITOR IS FINED

PARIS (Reuters) — Pierre Sidos, former editor of the banned right-wing weekly magazine, Jeune Nation, was fined 2,000 new francs (1400) Monday for having published a cartoon of President de Gaulle that showed disrespect for the chief of state. The magazine was banned by government decree early this year. The cartoon found offensive showed de Gaulle dressed as a surgeon and amputating Algeria, Tunisia, Morocco and Madagascar, from France.

The Wrong Argument

The United Nations General Assembly has recommended severe trade and diplomatic boycotts of South Africa, because of that republic's apartheid policy. Canada was one of sixteen nations opposed to such punitive measures. Opponents argued that sanctions could well worsen the plight of the non-white population.

This is true. - It is also completely irrelevant. If sanctions are effective, they will damage South Africa's economic life. Otherwise they would not be punitive. No reasonable person would expect the South African Government to take action to prevent the black people sharing in the punitive effect of sanctions. The very fact that they are already poor, living from hand to mouth in most instances, may make the sufferings of these people worse than those of the white. But it is also true that, because they have more to lose, the white people may find sanctions more irksome than their poorer black neighbors.

To argue about this point, though, is to debate the obvious. The question is not whether the black people will suffer, because it is obvious they will, but whether they are anxious to have sanctions imposed, whether they are prepared to suffer a little more now in the hope of reaping substantial benefits later. And the evidence suggests the answer to this question is in the affirmative. Nor need we be surprised at this. There are few, if any, records in history of any oppressed group discovering a method of relief which did not involve early increased hardships.

This argument against sanctions, therefore, is not a valid one. That does not necessarily mean sanctions should be applied; indeed, it would be an act of shocking cruelty to do so if there were serious doubt that they would be effective. To be effective they must inflict such damage on the South African economy as to force the white ruling minority to abandon, or at least relax, its apartheid policies. Little in the record of the Boers in South Africa, or the nations of the world, in bowing to the wishes of merely numerical majorities, gives much reasonable hope that sanctions at this stage will do more than inflict suffering, on the black as well as the white. The threat of their application if harsher measures are employed by the government against the black majority might be more useful than their actual imposition, in a half-hearted fashion, at this point.

The Pursuit of Happiness

What is happiness?

Sydney J. Harris touched on that question in his column on this page the other day.

Happiness, of course, is what everybody wants, above all else. Harris called happiness "that most fragile, elusive and equivocal of words." Happiness itself is elusive, too, so elusive that when our neighbors to the south founded their republic they talked of every man's right to life and liberty, but only of man's right to pursue happiness, not his right to possess it.

"The range of human desires is infinite and insatiable," says Harris, "and thus happiness can come only by rigorously limiting our wishes, not by relentlessly pursuing them."

It is doubtful whether, in a lifetime of writing, Harris will ever pen another sentence so equally compounded of wisdom and folly.

The range of human desires is, indeed, infinite, for the whole world has been set to enjoy this infinity is emphatically not to limit our wishes. Here is a point on which we, and many others of our generation, can speak from bitter experience. During the depression years there were so many desires out of reach of a lean purse that, in youthful ignorance, we adopted the policy Harris urges and rigorously limited conscious desires to those which came within the limited scope of our means. The result was certainly not the happiness of which men dream.

Later, much later, the full extent of the folly of this course came home home to us. Happiness, we suggest, comes nearest most grasp when we have desires, as many as possible, pursue them, as vigorously as possible, and possess the means, physical, mental, and monetary, to make this pursuit relentless. In this pursuit, we may not capture happiness, but we shall come as close to it as is humanly possible. This proximity will produce an elation which is not to be confused with the contentment sometimes vouchsafed those who follow the course Harris advocates, and severely limit their desires, an exhilaration which is as much to be prized above mere contentment as life is to be prized after death.

As for a future life, every man must judge for himself between conflicting vague probabilities.—Charles Robert Darwin.

Ottawa Offbeat

Dave-Fulton Not About To Trade East for West

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Forget about those smoke signals rising from both Parliament Hill and the West Coast that Public Works Minister R. (for Edmund) Davis Fulton, after 17 good and successful years in Ottawa, is heading for Victoria to take over the leadership of the British Columbia provincial Conservatives.

This is one cloud of smoke where there is no fire.

And for three solidly good reasons:

First . . .

. . . While he no longer is the "Boy Wonder" of the Federal Conservatives he was when he first entered the Commons at 29 back in 1945 . . .

. . . Nor any more the "Snow White" of his political salad days when he fought his successful crusade against crime comics . . .

. . . And likely now is further out of the running for the National leadership (which does not happen to be open anyway) than he was when both John Diefenbaker and Donald Fleming beat him six years ago.

He is a senior ranking member of the Federal Cabinet, and so, one of the reigning political "power elite".

A CIPHER

Now, out in British Columbia, as leader of the provincial Conservatives, he would be a nothing, at least to start, and probably to finish, too.

For the West Coast Tories are a party in name only, having neither a leader nor even one lonely member in the Legislature. The party is a cipher, and across the Rockies that is by no means a new experience for it.

Secondly . . .

. . . As Public Works Minister in Ottawa he does draw a rather adequate annual $27,000, comprising $15,000, as a member of the Cabinet, $10,000 in Parliamentary pay and $2,000 in car allowance.

As premier of British Columbia, he wouldn't be starving . . . on a $15,000 salary, a $3,400 Legislative indemnity and $1,000 in expenses — but he would be short by a not inconsiderable $7,600 of his present income.

But money is not everything.

. . . In fact, for the West Coast Conservatives at present, at this moment, money would be less than nothing. He simply would not have any. being neither a member of the provincial House, nor leader of a party having even the slightest standing of a single seat.

So, unless there came a miracle . . . and in politics such occurrences, this is unlikely . . . he would have everything to lose and nothing to gain by going for broke for the leadership.

THE SWITCH

Thirdly . . .

. . . The final reason is perhaps the most intriguing.

For it already has been whispered in both the Liberal and New Democratic opposition, that if Davie Fulton did run for leadership of the Tories, he would be plainly as the first member of the crew abandoning ship.

It would be read as a signal that the Conservatives were not themselves expecting much longer to weather the stormy Diefenbaker political era, with one of their senior officers taking to the lifeboats.

So, rightly or not, its being a desperate, if not impossible gamble to attempt to lead the leaderless and demoralized Conservatives to power . . . could Davie Fulton cast what the Opposition would undoubtedly publicly brand as a stinging reflection on confidence in his colleagues of the present administration?

Fulton is making the pilgrimage to the West Coast next month to attend the convention but not, almost certainly, to contest it.

For not only are the West Coast Tories without members sitting in the Legislature, but in what really counts — votes — they are less than one per cent of the provincial total, a shade ahead of the Communists and the Independents.

The "Snow White" of yesteryear's crime comic clean-up may even yet be a crusader — but scarcely that starry-eyed.

Letter to the Editor

Longer Store Hours Seen Hard on Staffs

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

In connection with proposed longer shopping hours there are certain factors which deserve reflection before decisions are made and voiced. Management, staff and the buying public all have responsibilities as well as interests. Elected councils also have a duty to perform.

Retail and related enterprises engage taxpaying employees. This group of wage earners should not be ignored when merchants or councils make rules. Commercial store hours are longer now than those of other industrial groups. Surely, those entrusted with authority will act in such a manner as to maintain fair and just hours and working conditions. On a comparative basis with organized labour, as it is there is inequality. Surely the taxpaying public will agree. All those concerned should view all the facts in formulating opinions, and before expressing themselves.

Why two or more nights open? Current shopping hours are sufficient and convenient for those who really want to buy. As for extra sales volume, night opening does not increase the dollar potential available nor how much spending is done but is just distributed over more.

Let us not miss the forest for the trees. The purpose of the proposal is to accommodate an outside concern wishing to locate here, on its terms. It is not desirous of accepting by-laws now governing both downtown and shopping plaza merchants. Furthermore, how many Belleville citizens will be employed? If the enterprise is to be open for 24 hour personal service to customers, the longer hours would be shouldered, in the main, by present retail staff. Staggering of hours is difficult in practice and most inconvenient to permanent employees. At present operating costs, merchants could not afford to add extra help or pay overtime wages just to do the same sales totals. Retail personnel are clients and customers of those in other fields of endeavour and what affects standars in one group reflects in the other."

It behooves councils, now empowered to act, to weigh both in city and township, to their credit's wisdom. New property taxes are a consideration but so is the employment of all Belleville and district workers. So, too, are the prosperity of business taxes, of those businesses already established, most importance to this community.

This matter is the concern of all those in production of goods and services in Belleville and vicinity. You pledge a week is just a wedge. These organizations operating with more limited personnel than average, whose income, other than taxes and dividends, will not remain in this area.

Regardless of decisions made elsewhere, the local welfare view of what is really best for Belleville and district should be taken now.

It is my sincere hope that Council will act justly in this matter. All are familiar with the manner in which Council has handled recent closing by-laws on which they should be complimented.

Nuclear Age Living Design Urgent Need

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I picked up a paperbound book at the airport last week that occupied my attention all the way to North Carolina and back. It is called "Breakthrough to Peace," and I recommend it to all Americans who are puzzled, confused and concerned about the present state of the world.

Edited with an introduction by Thomas Merton, the well-known Trappist priest, this book presents 12 views on the threat of thermonuclear extermination. I found some of the most clear, reasonable and human commentaries I have yet read on our global predicament.

The book's epigraph is a profound statement made by Einstein more than a dozen years ago: "The splitting of the atom has changed everything except our modes of thinking, and thus we drift toward unparalleled catastrophe."

All the 12 men who contribute toward this volume — historians, editors, scientists, psychiatrists — have made a break-through in their modes of thinking about war and peace, have recognized that the world of the 1960s is fundamentally and totally different from the world of 20 years ago.

"Breakthrough To Peace" discusses such central problems as "The Morals of Extermination" by Reinhold Niebuhr; "Letters, Survival and Common Sense" by Norman Cousins; "Can War Be Cured?" by Bertrand Russell; and "Human Conflict and the Dominion of Fear" by Prof. Herbert Butterfield, the distinguished professor of modern history at Cambridge.

The distinguished professor of modern history at Cambridge.

In his introduction, Father Merton points out that "in this situation, where the issues are too enormous for the mind of the average man to grasp, when the threat is too appalling for his political habits and institutes to control him adequately, the tendency is to take refuge in fanaticism or in passive desperation."

There are no slogans or easy answers given by the contributors to this symposium. However, general agreement that a total reform of thinking and cultural ways of feeling must be abandoned — that only a revolution in thought can avert the terrible consequences of a physical revolution in the release of atomic energy.

And yet, such revolutionary thinking, as Father Merton reminds us, is traditional and humanistic in the deepest and most spiritual sense. It is "faithful to the Judeo-Christian tradition on which our civilization was built. There is no hope for us if we lose sight of these perspectives. There is no other human way out."

Friend's Prediction Is Very Ridiculous

By JOSEPH G MOLNER M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When my daughter was a young child she had occasional stomach upsets and would run a fairly high temperature. At such times her eyes would roll up in her head so much but the whites would show. She never had a convulsion or anything like that.

She outgrew this, is now in high school and as far as I can see, a perfectly normal teenager. However a "good friend" who remembers her eye-rolling days warns me that I can expect mental trouble sooner or later... Mrs. M.H.

Glad you put quotes around "good friend." Her prediction is ridiculous, without foundation, and without any element of human kindness, either. Lots of small children will roll their eyes like that when ill, especially when vomiting, or suffering from a high fever.

They may also have convulsions with a fever, but this has no bearing on anything else in life, nor on their mental equilibrium.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is fibrositis of the lung? Is it a lingering illness? — Mrs. R.T.

Fibrosis of the lung is a technical way of saying that the tissue has been scarred. It can be from tuberculosis (in which case the scarring can be in a small area) or it can be from other causes, not always known leading to extensive scarring. In that case, it can cause great difficulty in breathing. Thus it can be a worrying problem or it can be of no detectable trouble at all, depending on the extent.

Dear Joe: I read your column every day and it's the best. The best of kix kind — and I've read them all. I find I have to read them to keep up with the many patients throw at me every day!

Ordinarily your dermatological answers are excellent, but for the one attached, a more plausible answer would be so called "lingua geographica," or "geographic tongue." Kind e at present regarding and keep up the good work. — J.R.

This note from a skin specialist I know is typical of the letters I get from kind colleagues. However, some of the correspondence is quite technical and even includes copies of technical papers.

The original question involved a mother's worry over "peculiar lesions" that appeared from time to time on the tongue of her three-year-old son. They would disappear and then return in a different place.

I suggested that it might be from a food allergy, but it could indeed, be a "geographical tongue" which, in some instances, has been dignified as "eczema of the tongue."

This is usually a mild and transient thing, and ordinarily requires no attention beyond keeping the general health in good shape.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a teen-ager. Many veins in my feet are protruding and are becoming visible in my legs, front and back. Is this the start of varicose veins? — R.B.

Everybody has visible veins in the feet. And in the backs of the hands. These aren't varicose veins are just close to the surface. Stop looking at your own feet and look at the feet of people your age. You'll see that I'm right and that you are worrying over nothing.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any exercise (chest, waist, abdomen, etc.) that is harmful to a pregnant woman? — Mrs. J.B.

Many factors are involved and I can't be dogmatic. It's best to be guided by your doctor, because what would be fine for one woman could be harmful for another. Walking is always good exercise and not too strenuous.

U.S., Russia 3 Miles Apart

St. Thomas Times-Journal

It has been said many times during the Cuban trouble that Cuba is only 90 miles from the nearest United States territory, but there is a distance between United States and Russian soil is less than that.

Havana radio came up with the statement that the distance between the mainland of Alaska and Russian territory across the Bering Strait is 54 miles.

But the distance between Russia and the nearest territory is even shorter than that.

There are two islands in the strait, one on each side of the international dateline. One called Big Diomede is on the West, or Russian side, and the other, Little Diomede is on the American side.

These islands are only three miles apart. Big Diomede is much the larger of the two.

If Russia built nuclear launching pads on Big Diomede which apparently is about 27 miles from Alaska, the United States couldn't do anything but if it keeps protest to Russia or declare war.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If anybody wishes to do a kindness to some New Canadians of his acquaintance, whether Old Country or European, I suggest he give them a copy of a new book, "The Tiger of Canada West," by W.H. Graham. The Mumbling Tiger was William (Tiger) Dunlop, who at the age of twenty-two was a regimental surgeon during the War of 1812, and who later returned to Canada as an officer of the Canada Company, a land agency monopoly engaged in settling immigrants in the Canadian wilderness. Dunlop was a fantastic, eccentric, roistering giant of a man, but one who stands as one of this country's most picturesque pioneers.

Well, why give this book to a New Canadian? The answer is that Graham's book presents a more exciting picture of how this country was built than any novel they can read, or any course of historical study they could undertake at schools or night classes. And how this country was born must be a matter of interest to all newcomers trying to figure out the curiosities of character that embell it as Old Canadians.

And all Old Canadians will understand themselves a good deal better after reading "The Tiger," because Graham has arranged the facts of our birth in a new and lucid pattern.

Barbers' Assoc. Celebrating First Birthday

One of the world's oldest professions is celebrating a first-year birthday in Belleville this month.

Without taking time out for tonsuring city barbers are marking their first anniversary of their fledgling craft organization known as the Belleville Barbers' Association.

To mark the event the association has produced a press release reminding the public of the advantages accuring from its organization in its brief life span.

The association has striven for a city bylaw requiring all barbers practising in Belleville to be qualified and licensed under Ontario Labor laws. This, it says, would insure customers of being tended by barbers of high quality.

All city barber shops are now regulated under health and sanitary inspection regulations. Among other demands, all barbers are required to have annual chest x-rays to ensure the maximum of customer safety.

Among other benefits received by the barbers from their association is a monthly deduction of dues to underwrite a benevolent fund and dispensing of information to the public.

Goldwater Says Adlai Stevenson Soft on Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep, Ariz.) says President Kennedy should oust United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson and three other top officials in the administration.

Goldwater charges that the four now have "consistently urged a soft policy toward communism, both in Cuba and Vietnam where throughout the world."

Those in addition to Stevenson assailed by Goldwater were Chester Bowles, special adviser on Asian, African and Latin American affairs; Arthur Schlesinger Jr., a special assistant to the president, and Richard Goodwin, deputy assistant state secretary for inter-American affairs.

Goldwater urged the ousting of the four Monday night in addressing the annual dinner of the Wings Club.

He said that if Kennedy pledged to Soviet Premier Khrushchev that the United States would not invade Cuba "I think it is the greatest victory communism has won."

The senator said he had "no doubts" about the loyalty of Stevenson, Bowles, Schlesinger and Goodwin.

"They just don't understand communism and the modern world," Goldwater said.

Order Faraday Pay $84,985 For Pollution

TORONTO (CP)—Owners of six Bow Lake properties have been awarded $84,985 for lake pollution caused by nearby Faraday Mines.

A July 19, 1961 decision by mining commissioner J. F. Mc-Farland was appealed and upheld on the basis that the commissioner awarded damages on loss of profits incurred, by the pollution.

The revised award was based on property devaluation — the difference before and after pollution.

In addition cottage owners will collect five-percent interest rates on the $84,985—reaching back to July 19, 1961.

An Ontario Mining Commission spokesman, announcing the decision Monday, said waste from the mine did not create a health menace in the lake but discolored the water.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Arrowsmith were awarded the largest sum of $27,475.

Other claims were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hook ($30,375); Mr. and Mrs. John Horspool ($12,000); James Greenfield ($7,000); Mr. and Mrs. James McGuire ($4,810); and Thomas Horspool ($5,225).

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an income tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

In this article we will deal with the amounts appearing on the T4 slip in the box identified as "Taxable Allowances."

Taxable allowances are paid to the employee in addition to the salary or wages earned. These amounts are usually paid to the employee in order to fill a certain type of position with the employer. These are usually paid by contractors who require their skilled help to move with them from contract to contract anywhere in the country.

If the taxpayer is a single person, supporting no one but himself, the taxable allowance is additional income in his hands, and must be so reported on his tax return. If the husband of the taxpayer is married and maintaining a permanent home, he does not have to show the taxable allowance on his tax return providing he is away for over 36 hours. A single person supporting a dependent on whom he claims the equivalent to married status, will also be exempt from tax on such an allowance.

As some contracts are of a seasonable nature, and the taxpayer only works for part of the year, he must file an income tax return, even if his income do not exceed his exemption. The only way a taxpayer can receive a refund, is to file a tax return filed.

If the taxpayer is one who has a taxable allowance from his employer, that need not be included in income. He should's attach a copy of the letter his employment was located, and to verify he was not able to get accommodation.

Question: I work for an employer who has a construction contract outside the city. He provides free transportation to his truck from the city to the job. I receive no cash allowance. Is the value of this free transportation considered a taxable allowance?

Answer: No.

Question: I work for a construction company and live 10 miles from my home in the city. I drive my own car, and carry five other employees to work and back. The company gives me 10 gallons of gasoline per week from their storage tank located on the job. Am I to report the value of this gasoline as a taxable allowance? It does not show on my T4 slip.

Answer: No.

Ameliasburg Gives Contract For Snow Plow

Ameliasburg council last night opened tenders, at the regular meeting, for snow-plowing on the township roads. Three trucks were offered for the job, by different interests.

The lowest tender was from William Corfield, of Ameliasburg. He offered his 1962 four-ton dump truck, to be fitted with the township plow, for $6.50 per hour, with no standby charge.

Council liked the price, and the waiver of standby fee, but there were doubts about Mr. Corfield appreciating the cost of mounting the plow on the truck, and also the township had no intention of doing it for him. To check, they called Mr. Corfield to the Council Chambers.

Mr. Corfield did realize that hitching the plow to his truck would be an expensive operation, and he was willing to pay for it himself. Council decided to award him the contract, which will be drawn up as soon as possible. The contract will hold from the first snow until April 15, 1963.

Says Sentence On Woman 'Ludicrous'

TORONTO (CP) — The sentence imposed by a Magistrate on a Winnipeg mother of 11 was termed "ludicrous" Sunday night by Irving Himel, secretary of the Association for Civil Liberties.

Magistrate Isaac Rice placed Rita Pandurova, 34, of Winnipeg on suspended sentence and restricted her to the inside of her home and banned visitors except close relatives for two years after convicting her of being in possession of stolen goods.

"The Criminal Code doesn't allow for such a sentence," Mr. Himel said at a meeting.

"The whole thing becomes a sort of ludicrous," he said. "How is she going to look after her family with this kind of impossible restriction?"

The woman's 11 children are by two fathers, both of whom have been sent to jail by Magistrate Rice. The family is on welfare.

Police said they found stolen goods in her basement which explained were left by friends for storage. She said she did not know what the cartons contained.

Halidomide Bill May Get Some Tough Sledding

— By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The government appears to be heading for a serious battle over its thalidomide - control legislation unless it makes drastic changes demands for a committee investigation.

It is understood that New Democratic MPs are planning to precipitate a full-dress Commons debate should the government not send the bill to a committee Monday.

Informants said Monday night that such a course on the government's part will be taken by the NDP as indicative of possible negligence in the handling of the Distillers Corp. drug by the federal health authorities and of possible misinformation given by the government by drug manufacturers.

'NOT COMMITTED'

Health Minister Monteith has not committed the government to sending the bill to a Commons committee. He has said that if it is apparent a useful purpose can be served by a committee investigation, "I would be prepared to go along with that procedure."

If Mr. Monteith does not move a motion for an investigation, New Democratic MPs are reported to be prepared to do so when the measure has passed clause-by-clause study. This stage is expected today.

In this way the opposition could bring about a debate in which their suspicions about the handling of thalidomide could be voiced.

In part these suspicions are based on correspondence tabled by Mr. Monteith and indicating that between December, 1961, and April, 1962, drug company officials and Monteith argued there was insufficient evidence of the drug's babydeformities side-effects.

ORDERS WITHDRAWN

The government ordered the drug withdrawn from the market last April after drug companies issued a warning at the government's request against its use by pregnant women.

Both New Democrats and Liberals have said that a Commons committee make a study of the thalidomide-control legislation. But it is uncertain whether the Liberals will back the New Democratic move for a committee investigation if Mr. Monteith decided no useful purpose could be served by such a study.

An additional possibility exists that if the Commons does not undertake the inquiry, a committee of the Liberal-dominated Senate may do so.

House Briefs

DID NOT OBJECT

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Monday in Commons reply to Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) that the U.S. made no objections to the July 18 removal of tolls on the Welland Canal.

GETS NO REPLY

Andrew Brewin (NDP.—Toronto Greenwood) received no direct reply from Justice Minister Fleming when he asked for an investigation into the situation under which Real Caouette, deputy Social Credit leader, cancelled a speaking engagement in Sturgeon Falls, Ont., Sunday because of opposition from the Royal Canadian Legion.

EXPLAINS DELAY

Lionel Chevrier (L — Montreal Laurier) asked Transport Minister Balcer why British ships still carry cargoes between points on the St. Lawrence Seaway 16 months after the government announced that inland shipping would be reserved for Canadian ships. Mr. Balcer said the delay was caused by correspondence with Commonwealth countries and drafting of the necessary bill.

Former Mines Minister Named As Senator

OTTAWA (CP) — Appointment to the Senate of former mines minister Jacques Flynn, who was defeated in the June 18 general election, was announced Monday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Senator Flynn, 47, was named to the cabinet Dec. 28, 1961, as minister of mines and technical surveys. He was defeated soon after he was defeated by Liberal Jean - Charles Cantin in the Quebec South riding.

He was first elected to the Commons in a by-election in 1958 and in January, 1960, was appointed Deputy Speaker and chairman of committees. He held that post until his elevation to the cabinet.

Senator Flynn's appointment changes party standings in the Senate to 22 Conservatives, 60 Liberals, two Independents, and one Independent Liberal. Seven vacancies complete the 102-seat chamber.

Nuclear Arms Acquisition Re-Examined by Liberals

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal party is re - examining its position on Canadian acquisition of nuclear arms and wants the government and Parliament to do likewise.

So far, the Liberals have not come out flatly in favor of Canada declaring itself a nonnuclear power for all time, but this is one of the conclusions that might be reached in the current re-assessment of its position being undertaken by the party's brain trust.

Word of the reconsideration was given, last week to a delegation representing the Canadian Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament during its mass lobby of MPs and leaders of all parties. Some of the lobbyists immediately jumped to the conclusion that the Liberals definitely supported a "no-nuclear-arms-for-Canada stand.

This, a Liberal party source said Monday, was an improper conclusion, probably fostered by the ban-the-bomb enthusiasm of the lobbyists.

Liberal policy, as stated by opposition Leader Pearson, has been that acquisition or manufacture nuclear arms are not necessary for Canada, under either Canadian or NATO control, but that the overall needs of Can a d a currently must be watched constantly.

If world developments make the use of weapons by the Canadian forces at home or abroad necessary, then the Liberal party would expect that control vested collectively in NATO.

Government policy is that Canada should not acquire nuclear weapons as long as there is any prospect for international agreement on disarmament.

But the government will give no definite pledge against accepting nuclear arms any time in the future, when they may become necessary for the joint Canadian-American defence of North America, it is on this point that the lobbyists last week were disappointed in their interview with Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The Liberal opposition, however, has come out for a re-examination of Canada's stand on nuclear weapons. Mr. Pearson told the delegation that the Liberal party is already making the re-assessment of the situation.

Catholic Press Against Freeing Belgian Mother

CP from AP-Reuters

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano says the acquittal of a young Belgian mother and four others in the slaying of her thalidomide-deformed baby girl "did not cancel the moral guilt."

An editorial signed by the paper's editor, Raimondo Manzi, says "We do not want to be the judges of a weeping mother. Only God can give a personal verdict."

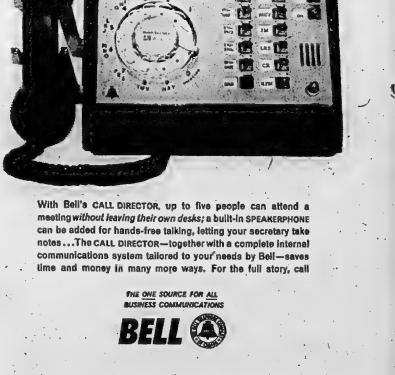
But, the editorial adds, "it's not permitted to kill: to suppress a life is a crime. No circumstance, but self - defence can allow us to suppress a life . . . there are laws of a divine and human nature that hang over us and it is not permitted to substitute an arbitrary emotional feeling for them."

The mother, Suzanne Vandeput, her husband and two other relatives, said Dr. Jacques Casters were found not guilty although all had admitted their part in the killing.

CONDEMN VERDICT

Belgium's Roman Catholic press condemned Saturday's verdict, but the remainder of the Belgian press was divided on the subject.

The Catholic La Libre Belge said it was legally and morally untenable.



But the Socialist Le Peuple said: "Justice is done. Justice is well done." It accused the Vatican radio of "intolerable pressure" in calling for a conviction.

The independent Le Soir called for an international inquiry and strict control of new drugs.

Vatican City radio said Monday the acquittal had "breached the dam protecting the weak, the fragile, the old, the tiring against all."

In the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church the child had been discarded as an imperfect product, but was in fact a person, enjoying all the rights and privileges of a human being.

'62 Christmas Cake Is Very Dark

by Mary Moore

We have worked ourselves into a dilemma. I could not let well enough alone.

As I mentioned last week, the fruit cake I am featuring this year is dark — almost black — an old-fashioned recipe for a cake really packed with fruits.

Subsequently along came a recommended recipe from a reader in Saskatchewan who had been to Florida last year. While there she was given a light fruit cake recipe which she tried and found delicious. So did those with whom she shared it. So did I and mine — so much that I am undecided whether to give it top billing or second place this year. My brother and sister say it is best. My other dependable tasters say if you want to give a cake that is what everybody expects when you say Christmas cake give the "black" one.

So I compromised. I'm giving both of them. So November 13/62 will go down in our files as the day we gave "that rich old-fashioned fruit cake" and tomorrow I will give you second choice — actually a dark blonde fruit cake.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Citrus Fruit Cup; Kidneys Madeira (see Monday); Omelet; Shoestring Beets; Pumpkin Tarts with Whipped Topping; Tea.

RICH DARK OLD-FASHIONED FRUIT CAKE 1962:

Wet Ingredients: (including sugar), 1 lb. (2 cups) butter (or margarine if necessary), 2¼ cups (approx. 1 lb.) well packed light brown sugar, 10 large eggs, ½ cup molasses, ½ cup orange juice or, fresh frozen orange juice, diluted.

Dry Ingredients: 3¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons salt, ¾ teaspoon ginger, ¾ teaspoon allspice, ¾ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Fruits and Nuts: 2½ lbs. (9 cups) clean dry currants, 2½ lbs. (9 cups) seeded raisins (these pack together a little more than currants so weigh a little more in terms of cups), ½ cup chopped candied pineapple (buy 2 "rings"), ¼ cup (approx. 2¼ oz.) mixed candied peel, ¼ cup (approx. 2 oz.) sliced red and green (reheated) glace cherries, 1½ cups (approx. ¾ lb.) whole blanched almonds (reserve 24 for top), ½ cup (approx. 2 oz.) broken walnuts, ½ cup (approx. 2 oz.) whole pecans.

Cream butter until light, cream in sugar until both are pale and airy. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating well to blend in each one between additions. Add molasses and orange juice. Sift flour and measure then sift with the salt and spices. To this flour mixture add all of the prepared and measured fruits with nuts. (Note: The pineapple pieces in ours measured about ¼ x ¼ x ⅛"). Add flour-fruit-nut-mixture to wet ingredients and stir until thoroughly mixed. Turn into 2 cake pans measuring 8 x 8 x 3" (or use your set of 3-tiered pans) which have been lined with at least 3 thicknesses of wax paper, brushing top one generously with butter. Arrange reserved almonds in pattern on top of cakes. Put large shallow water pan (broiler pan) in bottom of oven throughout baking period, replenishing water if necessary. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. (very slowly) for 5 to 5½ hours. Remove from pans and cool on racks without removing wax paper.

Highly recommended, moist, foolproof, old-fashioned fruit cake which should be made now, wrapped well and kept in cold place.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

QUESTION, Living in the suburbs, I often have to have food delivered when one of the children is sick or the weather is too bad to drive. Sometimes, the man who owns the store I deal with brings the order out himself. Other times, another man who works in the store makes delivery Both are well beyond their teens. Often, they're accommodating and take back empty bottles on the return trip. Each time a delivery is made, though, the same question arises in my mind: Should I offer a tip or not? Could you tell me if a tip is expected, or even customary, for this type of service.

— Mrs. W.W., Croton, N.Y.

ANSWER, The owner of any business usually isn't tipped, even if he makes a personal delivery. His customer's good will is payment enough, despite the added service. However, his assistant should be tipped occasionally, especially on days when he has a number of cartons to lug in, and a horde of bottles to take back. The amount should be based on how big the job is and how much time it takes him.

QUESTION: My fourteen-year-old daughter occasionally visits with one of her girl friends over the week end. Is it necessary for her to send a bread-and-butter note each time to the mother of her young hostess, or should I send a note on her behalf? Isn't a verbal thank-you enough for a child her age?

— Mrs. V.S., New Haven, Conn.

ANSWER: At her age, your daughter is certainly old enough to take care of her own social obligations. She may thank her young hostess verbally when she leaves, but she really should send a note to the mother after she returns home.

QUESTION: I'm always in a quandary about what to serve visitors to eat at an after-dinner party. Because we have young children, my husband and I prefer to invite guests in around nine, after the youngsters are in bed. Most of the time, we just serve highballs and small sandwiches, followed by coffee and cake. I'd like to serve more substantial food, and would welcome any suggestions about what would be suitable for such a late hour. — Mrs. R.H., Hempstead, L.I.

ANSWER: A late-hour menu doesn't have to be elaborate; it may consist of a casserole, such as chicken or shrimp in a cream sauce, to be served over rice or in patty shells. The latter may be purchased frozen and warmed in the oven just before serving. Chile is also the ideal food choice for a late party snack, and so it is baked ham and Boston baked beans, homemade, if possible, during the day. Plenty of hot bread or rolls, coffee and a not-too-sweet cake or pastry are the only accessories needed in addition to the main dish.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

THERESE H. — It would be so much easier if Joe adopted her children legally.

KAREN B. — They'd lose a lot of money that way. I want to be fair to them.

Therese H.: My sister Karen has just remarried. She was divorced from her first husband, who was paying her alimony and supporting their two children. Her new husband is a prince of a fellow. We all think the world of him and Karen's youngsters are delighted to have an attentive dad at last. Their real father ignored them.

But the kids are going to get all mixed up unless Karen makes a clean break with the past. Already they call themselves by their mother's new name, address her in-laws as Grandma and Grandpa, and consider themselves Joe's children. I'm urging Karen to make it official through Joe's formal adoption of them.

Karen B.: Joe is only too eager to adopt my children. And they, in turn, take to him as though he's been around from their birth. My son who is 10 will be real pals with Joe because Joe has the same enthusiasms — baseball, swimming and tennis. Joe is delighted to inherit such a fine son and a beautiful 7-year-old daughter.

The difficulty is mainly financial. As matters stand, my divorce decree and settlement include support provisions for the children which my former husband is living up to. In addition they are the beneficiaries of legacies from my former in-laws, when they reach 21. Legal adoption, I'm told, would deprive them of that.

The Council: No matter how many cushions, bumpers and soft-pedals are applied, divorce is always a hard blow. Admitted or not, visible or not, there are usually — as in road smack -ups . . . bruises, contusions and wounds. Some are to the ego, some to the pocketbook. The most pitiful, however, are to the children involved.

Hence, any device which can help Karen's kids feel that life is flowing along for them about as smoothly as for their friends that they're not really different from everyone else, is to be prized. Adoption and a name change is such a device.

Therese is right to speak up in favor of early. These children are caught up in the excitement of the new presence in the home — the gentleman who makes their mother happy and is so friendly to them. But no one knows what goes on inside them, whether there are moments of panic that this, too, shall blow up. A current magazine article by Midge Decter says, "How her children are really responding to her divorce, a woman does not know and probably will not know for years. They do let her know, however, that they will never again be able to regard the universe as quite a safe place. "

Things are not that bad for Karen's children. In fact, matters bid fair to become almost normal, with an eager and well-meaning step-father on the scene. We're inclined to add our voice to Aunt Therese's and remind Karen that her eye must ever be on what's most merciful for her children, regardless of the money angle, they may. If Joe wants to make the children his own and be responsible for their support, the dollars and cents of the old divorce settlement shouldn't stand in the way. And the new name, especially if there are new babies in the home, will help sort out explaining for the children.

However, theres the relationship with the real father to be explored. Is he willing to be completely pushed out, in return for the financial relief? All the adults involved must gather to discuss this, uppermost in their minds "What's best for these shook-up kids?"

Mother's Helper

YOU SHOULD, of course, keep the original of your child's baby picture in your safety deposit box. Have it photostatted, a negative and one positive print, to keep handy at home. On the back of the positive, write names and dates of any significant illnesses, allergic reactions, etc., your child may have had, in case they happen, so you'll be accurate.

Mother of Two Elected Canadian Vice-President Of Women's Institutes

By EDWIN WALTERS

PORT WILLIAMS, N.S. (CP)—Mrs. Keith Rand modestly describes herself as "just a farm woman." But to a lot of people in women's organizations here and abroad she's something more.

Elected vice - president for Canada at the 10th triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World at Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 22, the 43-year-old mother of two teaches a commercial course at a nearby rural high school five days a week.

She also finds time to be an active member of the National Film Board, serve in church organizations and a university women's club.

But she says her first allegiance is to home and family — even to the point of farming down work in which she is interested.

Seated in the front room of the comfortable old farmhouse occupied by her family for five generations, Mrs. Rand declined an offer to take charge of a painting session. "I can only do so much," she commented.

ELECTED IN ABSENTIA

She wasn't able to be in Australia for the ACWW conference. "It's hard to get away at the opening of the school year. I guess you could say I was elected in absentia."

Mrs. Rand explained that most of the work will consist of correspondence. But she will likely have to cross Canada on a tour of women's institutes at least once in her three-year term.

The ACWW is an international organization of women's institutes. Mrs. Rand is one of 40 vice-presidents representing as many countries. Each vice-president acts as sort of liaison officer between the international and national organizations.

She said her election was not exactly a surprise. "It was just a matter of stepping up" from her former post as president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

Mrs. Rand, who graduated from Acadia University at nearby Wolfville in 1933, says she has been connected with Women's Institutes for about 40 years. She takes an active part in institute work, which include adult education, scholarship administration, home economics and cultural activities.

WROTE CHURCH HISTORY

She was first appointed to the board of governors of the National Film Board in May, 1961, and at the end of her term last a further three-year term.

Her duties with the film board include reviewing films at meetings in Halifax two or three times a year.

Both her children, John, 17, and Rachel, 15, are members of the 4-H club. John, now in his last year of high school, plans to take a university course in agriculture and then return to the family farm.

Mrs. Rand's husband, a lifelong farmer except for an overseas stint with the Canadian Army in the Second World War, has no object to his wife's activities.

"I get a kick out of her being on the National Film Board," he said, "and it's all right with me if she wants to work with the Women's Institutes."

Adding to the list of his wife's accomplishments, he told how she had written a history of the Anglican Church in Port Williams.

Jap Kimono Scoring Hit In Shows

By YUKO NAKAMIKADO

TOKYO (Reuters) — A modified Japanese kimono is scoring a big hit in fashion circles here despite an over-all swing to Paris styles in the 1962 fall and winter fashion collections.

Two American fashion models won enthusiastic applause from both foreign and Japanese women when they appeared in the modified kimonos, specially designed for blondes, at a fashion show sponsored here recently by the International Wool Secretariat.

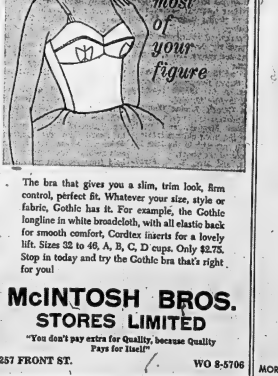
The show was one of a series here this fall that have showed improvements in texture and color of Japanese materials both woollen and synthetic.

Japanese wool spinners and dyers have been trying to minimize the threat of competition from foreign products when Japan frees her imports of woollen goods.

Imports of raw wool were freed in April last year. About 80 per cent of the raw wool which Japan imports comes from Australia, and the rest from New Zealand and South Africa.

The Paris fashion influence, as always, is predominant here this fall.

Of the collection presented by the Nippon-Designers' Kyokai, the largest fashion designing house in Japan, four per cent of the outfits showed the dropped hemline and 15 per cent the shorter hemline. The rest kept the length unchanged.



The semi-fitted waistline was favored, with variations of the high, low and normal waistlines, sometimes accompanied by a belt wide at the back and tapering in front.

Sleeves generally were narrower and shoulders were often accentuated by epaulettes.

Black emerged as the leading color, accompanied by some striking splashes of brilliant pinks and wine red. White and various shades of green, blue and brown also were popular.

Contrast tones for ensembles were more popular than matching or toning shades, giving an air of added dash.

WHAT'S THE 'INSTALMENT PLAN' WAY TO SAVE FOR A

RAINY DAY?

To make sure unforeseen problems never catch you without money in the bank, you need a long-range savings program you can stick to. Personal Security Program, or PSP—exclusive with The Bank of Nova Scotia—puts this kind of saving on a simple "instalment plan" basis. Here's how this protected savings plan works: you select a savings goal (between $100 and $2,500) and agree to reach it in 50 equal payments. As you save, you're life-insured for the full amount of your goal—at no added cost to you. And, when you reach your goal, you collect all you've saved, plus a cash bonus. PSP also helps you save for long-range projects—a trip abroad, or a wedding. Ask about PSP at your nearest Scotiabank.

Long tables along the sides of the hall were filled with different articles for sale, while the centre of the hall held the quartet tables at which the tea was served.

Mrs. Evans, president of the guild, welcomed the many guests at the door and Mrs. Rogers received the fees.

BROWN — VAN DE VOOREN

Baskets of pink and white chrysanthemums formed a lovely setting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville on Saturday, November 3, 1962, at 2 o'clock when Jeanne Coenradina Van de Vooren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Van de Vooren, Belleville, was united in marriage to John David Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown, Belleville. The Rev. W. H. V. Walker officiated at the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was played throughout the service and included "O Perfect Love" previous to the ceremony.

The bride given in marriage by her father was lovely in traditional wedding gown of white nylon organza featuring a fitted bodice with appliqued nylon flowers and short cap sleeves and wore elbow-length gloves. Her headdress was of nylon organza petals with shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses mingled with stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Allan Allan, sister of the bride; Miss Christine Brown, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, and the little flower girl Miss Nancy Smith were all similarly attired in red velvet with matching headpieces. The first two carried bouquets of pink and white 'mums, while the flower girl carried a petite basket of pink and white baby 'mums.

Mr. Steven Wilson of Ottawa attended the bridegroom and Mr. John Van de Vooren and Mr. Neil Brown, both of Belleville, ushered the guests.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in St. Andrews' Church parlors where the bridal table was prettily appointed with white linen cloth centred with the traditional wedding cake flanked with tapering candles. The bridal bouquets added to the lovely nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece brown satin dress and a corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who was attired in beige brocade dress with matching jacket and a corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip the bride chose a black and white ensemble, white fur hat, black patent shoes and purse, and a corsage of red roses.

Guests were present from Oakville, Burlington, Ottawa, Toronto, Foxboro and Belleville.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at miscellaneous showers at 177 Dundas Street, Belleville, with Mrs. Clara de Vries and Mrs. Gertrude de Boer as hostesses; at the School for the Deaf with the house mothers as hostesses, and at the home of Mrs. Smith, held by the ladies of the Anglican Church group.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside in Belleville.

Small Talk

By Zena Cherry

The prestige and power of the hairdresser, known with simple grandeur by one name — just like Napoleon or Caesar — has grown so that they are now credited on front pages of Broadway theatre programs. The hair man for Camelot got higher billing than T. H. White upon whose book and brain the musical was based.

Mrs. Kenneth, hairdresser, as we all know, is Kenneth. Kenneth who? Kenneth of Lily Dache that's who. He has taken on two secretaries. And Norbert of Revlon has a new title bestowed because the Duchess of Windsor chooses him to keep her hair happy when in New York. He's no longer called Stylist. He is now Director of Hair Activities.

HIGHEST PAID

The highest paid hairdresser in the world is George of Hollywood. In an interview he told me, "Marion Davies paid me $10,000 for hair-do's in 1930. Last year Marilyn Monroe paid me $1,000 for a haircut. I don't think I'm worth it but what am I going to do? It's a ridiculous phony business and I don't dig it at all. If I had my way I'd be out riding horses back."

He continued, "I have an instinct about women. They trust me. I'm not chichi and I want that understood. A woman looks like a woman when she leaves my shop. No big heads. No gimmicks. I cut with a razor and give a haircut in 1½ minutes. I expect to make $130,000 in 1962."

George is blond with blue eyes and a sympathetic ear. He was kicked by a horse a few years ago.

He is 23 years old.

Alpha Lambda Enjoys Cosmetic Demonstrations

Members of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, enjoyed a pleasant diversion from their regular meetings recently.

Some of the Sorority sisters attended and were thrilled with Hayda's "Creation," presented at Bridge Street Church by the choir, soloists and the Eastern Ontario String Quartet.

A second group enjoyed the FODE sponsored cosmetic demonstration by Miss Fellows, who made it most interesting.

Sorority sisters later gathered at the home of Mrs. V. Simonds. As both the Oratorio and the demonstration fitted well in the Beta Sigma Phi cultural program, members discussed profitably both events.

Refreshments were served by hostess Mrs. Simonds and co-hostess, Mrs. C. Young.

Six-Year Old Feels Rejected

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—My girl, six years old, thinks everyone is against her.

When she was about two years old my nerves were very bad. I had one aged three and her, and another on the way. My husband was out of work and everything was terrible. I was a nervous wreck and weight just fell off me. Her being the middle one now I don't know whether that makes any difference or not. She gets into things and fights with the other girls, even has deliberately told lies.

I've tried talking to her and we've spanked and punished her, but nothing works. I don't do any more for one than I do for the other two. But she has the idea that we don't love her.—HEART-BROKEN MOTHER.

DEAR HEART-BROKEN—Lies, fighting with sisters and brothers—these are normal up to a point. One way or another our offspring assert themselves.

But if she is convinced you don't love her, her rebellion may become intense. My diagnosis is "Middle-child-itis." As a baby, life was far from serene. Then when baby sister came she lost what security she had—to her own way of thinking.

It's not talk but action which will convince her. Share secrets with her; find her strong point (music, fort building, jig-saw puzzles) and give time and thought to playing with her. Give her affection. And keep discipline kindly as well as reliable.

DEAR DORIS—I have been going steady with this boy for two months. His birthday is coming up soon and then mine follows in a month.

Should I get him a gift or would it look like I just expected one for myself? Would it be proper to hold a party for him? —WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED—Compromise. How about a specially-picked card to go to him in the mail, with an initialled linen handkerchief tucked into the envelope? Anything more might be construed as hinting.

A party is the best gift of all—and Mrs. Grundy will smile on you!

'Joey' Smallwood May Quit Politics After This Election

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Many Newfoundlanders are asking why, after being returned to office only two years earlier with a big majority, Premier Joseph R. Smallwood called a provincial election for Monday, Nov. 19.

In public statements, the answer is that the Liberal premier wanted a new mandate from the people to improve the province's fisheries.

Opposition politicians have called the issue a red herring. They said fisheries are a cover-up for the real issue—higher income taxes—and assert that with his great majority in the legislature the premier already had a mandate for a fisheries program.

If Mr. Smallwood has something besides fisheries in mind, however, he hasn't let it slip. After many years in politics he isn't likely to unless it's part of the plan.

But there are some who say the premier seems to be getting bored with his job, even if he does still love to get out of his office for a speedy drive across the province, opening new public projects along the way.

ALWAYS ON MIND

After 13 years and four election victories, Mr. Smallwood says:

"There hasn't been an hour in all that time, not even an hour when I'm in bed at night, when some problem hasn't been on my mind."

He spends long hours working in his office. Even when he's at his big ranch-style home 50 miles from St. John's on Roche's Line, he keeps in touch by telephone. His favorite hobby, writing books about Newfoundland and its people, has suffered.

The man who guided Newfoundland to Confederation in 1949 and who has been a round-the-clock salesman for the provinces ever since may retire after this election. He will be 62 in December.

He doesn't say definitely he will retire. But he says that if he can get a good, strong young team of Liberals" in office and get the fisheries development program working, "I am gone."

For this election Mr. Smallwood was also running in Bonavista North, the district that first sent him to the legislature and that named him to the national convention preceding Confederation.

OPPOSED PC LEADER

He has left the district only once—in the August, 1959, election when he moved to St. John's West for a tough fight against Progressive Conservative leader Malcolm R. Hollett. After being defeated, Mr. Hollett was named to the Senate.

A colorful little man who started out in adult life as a printer, reporter and editor, Joseph—more commonly Joey—Smallwood remains a fiery figure on the platform.

He has lost little, if any, of his abundant energy. Most of his hair has gone in the last few years but his small frame still bounces from one meeting to another and his big voice pounds out hard - hitting speeches, mostly spontaneous or from a few notes jotted down minutes before.

King of Sweden 80 Years Old On Sunday

STOCKHOLM (AP) — King Gustaf Adolf VI of Sweden was 80 Sunday and his subjects lavished affection and gifts—including a pair of woollen socks "to be used when the north wind blows cold across the palace yard."

Thirteen couriers jogged into the palace bringing birthday greetings to the sports-minded monarch from athletic organizations in all parts of the kingdom. In relays, the couriers had covered an aggregate total of 7,800 miles.

For the first time in its 500-year history, the Swedish parliament gave a reigning monarch a meal. Members put on a luncheon for him at the city hall.

The gift of the woollen socks with the advice on when they were to be worn came from Mrs. Maria Jonsson, 101-year-old resident of Northern Jaemtland province.

The national gift of the Swedish people was a bank book with a deposit of 5,000,000 crowns (about $1,000,000) collected by popular subscription. The money will go into the king's royal foundation, which distributes grants and scholarships to Swedish artists and scientists.

United Church Says Changes Proposed in Separate Schools By RCs Cannot Be Justified

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada said Monday that requests by Ontario Roman Catholic bishops for changes in the separate school system cannot be justified and threaten the high standards of the province's public schools.

In what it termed a preliminary statement, drafted by a commission on church and state in education, the United Church said requests made in a brief to the government and legislature members "cannot be tolerated in law or the public interest. . . ."

A memorandum accompanying the statement said the United Church would, after further study, submit its own detailed brief to the legislature.

The preliminary statement by the commission, formed prior to the Roman Catholic brief, was made now because "some of the statements and implications of (the bishops' brief) strike at the very heart of the school system of the province."

ASK CHANGES

In their brief made public Nov. 2d, the Roman Catholic bishops asked for establishment of Roman Catholic teachers' colleges, for a rate security for schools, a review of corporation tax distribution to schools, consultation of Roman Catholic experts on separate school text books and greater freedom in framing the curriculum.

The United Church statement of the church, was to be sent, approved by the sub - executive to members of the general council executive, the church state education commission and church officers.

The statement said the United Church "endorses the Roman Catholic concern for Christian education, but views with gravity the increasing demands of a particular religious denomination which seeks more special privileges and a larger and larger share of public taxation."

It said it sympathized with the desire of the bishops to get the highest possible level of education for Roman Catholic children and appreciated the public manner in which the brief was presented—"to provide all of us with the opportunity to study and discuss these issues."

"We recognize quite clearly that some differences of a religious character will be involved in our discussion," the statement said, but "we must set forth plainly our position on this subject."

Dealing with the request for separate secondary schools, the United Church said the whole constitutional background, "not just those parts of the constitution or law which are said to justify the claim," should be considered.

"If we are to review the whole body of law, there seems no good reason why we should not ask whether . . . in the situation in which we stand in 1962 we should not seriously ask whether there is justification for the continuance of separate schools."

The United Church said the bishops' request for government-aided Catholic teachers' colleges contained a veiled suggestion that public school teachers do not have the same concern for the moral and spiritual welfare of pupils as Catholic teachers.

It is unwarranted and unfair to the dedicated public school teachers of this province to suggest the contrast by seeking to establish separate training colleges."

"When we see it clearly argued that these separate teachers' colleges are necessary that the 'Catholic philosophy of life' may be imparted to the teachers, we recognize at once that we are invited to create separate institutions of learning at public expense to provide religious instruction for one denomination of the Christian faith.

"In effect, this means that the taxpayers' dollars will provide a part of the religious machinery and maintenance of the Roman Catholic Church."

SEES AS UNIFYING

Asserting that Roman Catholic and Protestant children are educated together in many communities, the United Church said:

"In the creation of understanding and the avoidance of mistrust, the public school system is one of the greatest unifying powers in our society."

On the bishops' request for a revision of the basis for assistance to separate schools, the United Church asked:

"With the mounting cost of education in a complex technological society, can we afford the duplication of capital and equipment which the creation of separate secondary schools suggests?"

Moreover, if all the religious groups in Ontario were to presume to make the same claims to separate education facilities, we fail to see how it could possibly improve our educational system."

FREEDOM OF ACTION

Regarding the Roman Catholic bishops' request for greater freedom of action in framing separate school curricula, the United Church said that over the years the education department has been "extremely fair" in insuring that Roman Catholics are included in the provincial curriculum committee.

"From the very beginning of organized education in 1841, members of the Roman Catholic church have been included in the committee."

Noting that the bishops' brief had suggested the existence of discrimination against Roman Catholic pupils, the United Church statement said: "Surely nothing could be further from the facts."

stopped and regulated," said Mr. Monteith.

The bill before the House—amendments to the Food and Drugs Act—is an outgrowth of the thalidomide tragedy, and is primarily designed to prevent a similar one in the future.

In addition to regulating the distribution of samples it would prohibit the sale of certain designated drugs—including thalidomide—and control the introduction of new drugs to the public.

BLAME THALIDOMIDE

Thalidomide is blamed for about 60 malformed babies in Canada born of mothers who took the sedative in the early stages of pregnancy.

It was originally licensed for prescription sale as a sedative but came to be used by expectant mothers for relief of morning sickness. It was withdrawn from the market last march.

An amendment moved by Harry Hurley (L—Hilton) occupied much of the House's time Monday night—and was still being debated when it rose at 10 p.m. EST.

The Liberal member, a doctor, proposed that federal inspectors be given authority to remove from the offices of physicians, dentists, druggists or veterinary surgeons any drug whose sale is banned under the revised act.

Guy Marcoux (SC — Quebec-Montmorency), also a doctor, opposed the amendment on grounds it would grant undue powers to the federal government. Government speakers including Mr. Monteith took the same line, while Liberal and New Democratic speakers supported the amendment.

Irate Surfies Say 'Ho-dads', Jackeroos, Rockers, Gremlins Introduced Gang Warfare

BY HAROLD TILLEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY (CP) — Parents of teen-agers here are holding up mirrors in public to their offspring and youngsters are using the same method to reflect their parents.

In the process of newspaper controversy, the teen-agers become "typed," affecting varying styles of dress, interests and conduct.

Parents are seen as "outdated do - gooders," plain "squares" — couples who couldn't care less what their children are doing, or as people using their children at "prestige" schools to gain entry to circles otherwise closed to them.

To the mother who wrote to the press to say "I have lost my son to the 'surfies'" and described the leisure-time wasting and gate-crashing practices of the cult, dozens of surfies protested and disclaimed him as one of their sect.

They said "ho-dads," "jackeroos," "rockers" and "gremlins" had introduced gang warfare into Sydney's socially-ambitious north shore circles and had brought discredit to real surfies.

An "irate" surfie wrote that true surfies wanted to ride the surf and did so to their heart's content in the cold months when the combination of tides, wind and sea swells provided surfable waves.

That was heaven for the board rider but when the warm weather came late in October, there came also beach inspectors, tourists, eggs (learners) and the miscellany of humanity.

LOAF AND HOPE

Most surf riders waited for the next winter, months and spent their leisure at bush haunts but unfortunate who had no other resources loafed around beaches with their boards hoping for surfing waves.

They were frustrated, however, by inspectors, patrols and park rangers who even tried to break up groups of more than five.

Another defender said the surfie was a cleanest youth with a clean haircut. He surfed most of the year. Ho-dads were street hoodlums, wore black sweaters, tapered pants, pointed shoes and had a "rocky" hair-do. Although they were mistaken for surfies they were heckled and ostracized by surfies and rockies.

Rockies or rockers, got around with long hair brushed back and well oiled, wore skin tight jeans, bright shirts and had an aversion to surfies.

All types it seems are addicted to party crashing.

A surfie correspondent anxious to add to the sum of community cultural—enlightenment explained that a surfie's day was full and could involve even early rising to hitchhike to favored beaches.

PARENTS TO BLAME

The "real" surfie, the correspondent said, was a bloke who, though good at school, had the parental love and make a general mess of life than be dubbed a "square."

Surfies were not as bad as they wanted people to believe. Many "even went to church" and did good deeds but they kept it dark or they would be branded as squares. Parents were to blame, he said.

Another surfie correspondent said "these kids should not be knocked." It took real skill to ride a board. True, they kept in fashion with tight pants, pointed toes and bleached hair but they went blonde "only for kicks." Their girls hair now was normal.

During the week their girls did ordinary jobs and if they had a "turn" (party) it was on "rocky" lines without parents present because parents trusted them.

"Sure we have a keg and some of the boys get stoned but the girls kept things in check."

"Jest a Second"

"He wants to be the first man to cross the Atlantic by gondola."

Will Study Fixed Date For Easter

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Study of a perpetual calendar with a fixed date for Easter was urged today at the Roman Catholic ecumenical council.

A spokesman said speakers in the closed council meeting declared such a world calendar "could be especially significant for both religious and civil life if done in conjunction with other churches, especially those in the east."

The question of calendar reform — apparently using calendar proposals advanced in United Nations bodies—came up in the Vatican Council's discussion of reforms in public worship.

Several Catholic prelates here have said calendar reform, in that it would require agreement from other churches, could serve the cause of Christian unity. Pope John called the current council with an aim at clearing a path to closer contacts between Catholics and non-Catholics.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

If there is anything scarcer than a hen's tooth with the exception of a blotch with a molar, it is the bowler who comes up with the perfect game.

I know of only two Belleville keglers who reached the bowling pinnacle of fame and they are Joe Legault, who performed his masterpiece on a Peterborough alley and Jack Young who turned the trick in the city a few years back.

Young's achievement, I think, was made in league competition while Joe attained his one and only while playing in a tournament in the Liftlock city.

In those days Jack and Joe would be known as "Top Cats" for bowling establishments were the lowly tag of "alleys."

Tabbing modern "Palaces of Bowl" with the name "alleys" would be like calling a cafe society dowager a domestic. Touches of glitter and glamor have transformed them into "Lanes," "Bowls," "Bowl-O-Dromes," and other high-sounding titles.

So in keeping with the trend, it seems the bowler who achieves some sort of "lane" immortality by coming up with a perfect score, should be dubbed the "Lion of the Lane" or the "Baron of the Bowl."

Apropos of that, the latest "Baron of the Bowl-O-Drome" is a former well-known athlete of these parts. He is Doug Radnor, a pedagogue for some years, who taught in district schools and was a softball pitcher of more than passing ability.

Doug entered the kegling hall of fame last week when he bopped a perfect "450" at the T. and F. Bowl-O-Drome in Campbellford. Incidentally, I understand he is now teaching school at Havelock. Ironically, despite the Radnor score, his team came out on the losing end.

And for the benefit of bowlers who some day hope to achieve the elusive perfect game, the loot list, according to the Radnor "take," has assumed near box-car proportions.

First of all a banquet has been arranged at which he will be the guest of honor. With the feasting and the accolades dispensed with, Doug will be the recipient of prizes, awards and whatnots to the value of $1,500.

That's quite a far cry from the emoluments Joe Legault and Jack Young received after their perfect game effort. Joe, I believe, received $100 from the Peterborough "Alleys" and $15 from the owner. Young, if memory is correct received $50 as a token of achievement.

But get this! Mr. Radnor will receive an unidentified amount of cash, a suit of clothes, a camera, luggage, a quarter of beef, a carton of cigarets a month for a year, a pound of butter a week for a year and 100 gallons of fuel oil. No, Virginia, there is no mention of an automobile.

A tip to city bowlers. The Radnor list of loot applies strictly to the district in which he bowls. It could be a lot of personal gifts are included in the take, for Doug, I understand, enjoys a wide popularity both at home and in sport. What the "take" would be here in the event of a perfect game being bowled in either five or ten pins is not known, at least, to this department.

Radnor is well known in softball circles in this city and immediate district. He was a stout righthander here some years ago when, I think, he taught school at Frankford or Marmora.

He played with the Belleville junior teams and later with the Frankford Merchants. He was rated among the better younger pitchers hereabouts during that time.

Uxbridge Downs Picton

PICTON (Special)—Uxbridge Black Hawks unleashed early season power in their home town intermediate "B" debut last night defeating Picton McFarlands 7-1 in a wide-open battle.

The Hawks, last year's intermediate "B" finalists scored three unanswered goals in the first period and added two more in the second. They made it 5-0 midway through the third before the Macs broke the egg. The Hawks fired home the final tally late in the frame.

The Hawks ace line of Rennick, Lehman and Bertrand stole the scoring thunder racking up eight of the club's 16 points.

Rennick scored three goals and one assist; Bertrand rapped home one with two assists and Lehman drew a lone helper.

Redshaw was another Hawk star firing home a pair of markers and being credited with two assists. Ferguson got the remaining Hawk tally.

Sam the Man Mulholland scored the Picton goal whipping it home the puck on a three-way foray with Keith MacDonald and Davy Jones.

The game was rugged but not rough, officials handing out thirteen penalties, six to the McFarlands. Todd of Uxbridge drew the only major when he slashed at St. Denis.

The McFarlands open their homeland tonight with Bowmanville the opposition.

Russ Jackson Top Quarter In East

By WILF GRUSON

TORONTO (CP)—Russ Jackson, a 25-year-old high school teacher who turned down an opportunity to become a Rhodes Scholar so he could play professional football, was named Monday as the Eastern Football Conference's all-star quarterback—the first time in 16 years a Canadian has been picked for the job.

The choice of Ottawa Rough Riders' brilliant exponent of the run-pass option play for the key quarterback spot and the unanimous selection of offensive halfback George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes and defensive backfielder Don Sutherin of Hamilton Tiger-Cats highlighted the voting for the 1962 Canadian Press EFC all-star teams.

Balloting for the offensive and defensive teams was conducted for CP by members of the Football Reporters of Canada in the four league cities. The 31 selectors turned in the offensive power of the league-leading Tiger-Cats for the backbone of the offensive team and to the standout defence of the runner-up Rough Riders for the bulwark of the defensive squad.

The voters, whose ballots were weighted to give equal balloting strength to each league city, picked six Hamilton players for the offensive lineup and three for the defensive team. Ottawa landed three men on the offensive team and four on the defensive squad. The third-place Alouettes were chosen for two positions on offence and three on defence and the last-place Toronto Argonauts picked up one offensive berth and two on the defensive team.

Jackson set a record of 1,530 yards rushing and topped the scorers with 90 points on 15 touchdowns. He also has been nominated as the East's candidate as the outstanding player in the country.

Sutherin plays a key role in Hamilton's crack defence and with eight interceptions led the league in that department for the second straight year. It was the second year in a row that he was chosen for the defensive squad.

The selection of Dixon, Ernie White of Ottawa, Dick Shatto of Toronto and Bobby Kuntz of Hamilton as the offensive halfbacks and Hal Patterson of Hamilton and Marv Luster of Montreal as the offensive ends provides that unit with great running and passing power. Shatto, who led the league in pass receiving, was named an all-star for the sixth time in the last seven years.

The remainder of the offensive line is made up of centre Ron Watson of Hamilton, picked up in a trade this season with British Columbia Lions, guards Hardiman Cureton and Ellison Kelly of Hamilton and tackles Bronco Nagurski of Hamilton and Moe Racine of Ottawa.

Watson, Racine and Kelly joined Jackson as the four native Canadians selected for the offensive lineup. They were chosen for the defensive unit—halfback Joe Poirier and cornerlinebackers Jim Conroy of Ottawa and Zeno Karcz of Hamilton.

6TH TIME FOR HARROW

Defensive tackle John Barrow of Hamilton won all-star rating for the sixth straight year and middle guard Kaye Vaughan of Ottawa for the fourth successive year and the sixth time in the last seven seasons.

Halfback Jim Rountree of Toronto also made the defensive team for the fourth year in a row and inside linebacker Ted Tindall, Ottawa Rough Rider, did it for the third successive time. Tackle Bobby Jack Oliver and end Billy Ray Locklin, both of Montreal, were chosen for the team for the second straight season.

Stamps, Bombers Clash In Final

Kelso, Carry Back Next

REGINA (CP) — Calgary Stampeders mauled Saskatchewan Roughriders 18-7 here Monday night before more than 9,000 fans to capture the two-game total-point Western Football Conference semi-final series 43-7.

The Stampeders now meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers, defending Grey Cup champions, in the first game of the best-of-three WFC final in Calgary Saturday. Kickoff time is 2:30 p.m. CST.

The series then shifts to Winnipeg, where the second game will be played Wednesday, Nov. 21 at 8:30 p.m. CST, with the third game, if necessary, Saturday Nov. 24 at 2:30 p.m. CST.

Entering the semi-final, Calgary had failed to beat the Roughriders in three league meetings, losing their season opener in Regina 17-6, tying the Riders 7-7 in Calgary and then dropping their final game of game, held command throughout.

Saskatchewan jumped ahead 7-0 in the first quarter Monday, but field goal and four converted touchdowns moved Calgary ahead to stay in the second. After a scoreless third, Calgary added the only point in the final quarter.

After a period of victory was Calgary quarterback Eagle Day, who fired touchdown passes to halfback Ed Buchanan and end Pete Manning in the second quarter.

Day completed 10 passes out of 25 attempts for 217 yards. Day left late in the third quarter and substitute Jerry Keeling finished up and failed on his single pass attempt.

A fumble by halfback Ray Purdin at his own 10 on the first play of the first quarter, set up Calgary for its first points—a field goal by Larry Robinson from inside the 10. Robinson also converted both touchdowns and end Jim Furlong punted 45 yards for a last-quarter single.

Purdin, Saskatchewan's offensive star throughout the regular season, took a 23-yard pass from quarterback Bob Ptacek for Riders only touchdown, mid way through the initial quarter. Steve Myhra converted it.

French Horse Wins 'Pot'

LAUREL, Md. (CP)—A horse named Match—If blasted past the top three thoroughbreds in the United States Monday to heap new honors on France in world horse racing.

Match II's victory in the $125,000 Washington D.C. International came over Kelso, Carry Back and Beau Purple, all leading candidates for Horse-of-the-Year honors in the U.S.

Kelso was beaten by 1¼ lengths, Carry Back by six. Beau Purple finished 11th in a field of 13 from nine nations. Lebon M.L., owned by Max Bell of Calgary, finished 12th.

Two French horses had won the International previously, Worden II in 1953 and Master Boing in 1956, and two others were runners-up in 1954 and 1959.

The three French victories are second only to the five for the United States, which has the advantage of home grounds and more familiar conditions. The International is raced at 1½ miles on grass, but most European races are run the opposite of America's counter-clockwise route.

NAMES PRICE

Francois Dupre owns Match II, and it was reported that it would be bought for $600,000.

Match II let Kelso, Carry Back and Beau Purple have their own way for more than a mile and then took the $70,000 first prize handily in the last 1820.

Match II had won the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes in England and was fifth in the Arc de Triomphe at home.

CBC Wants Sponsorless Cup Cast

National Coverage Again 'In Air'

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC says it wants to carry the 1962 Grey Cup game on its national television network — but not with sponsorship arranged directly or indirectly by the private CTV network.

R. C. Fraser, CBC vice-president for corporate affairs, reiterated this stand Monday night in counselling on the offer by CTV's football sponsors to purchase exclusive CBC network coverage of the Dec. 1 football game in Toronto.

A Board of Broadcast Governors' statement, tabled Monday in the House of Commons, disclosed that on Oct. 1, the sponsors had acquired the Grey Cup TV rights previously held by the CTV and one of its 10 affiliated stations, CFTO-TV Toronto.

The BBG, questioning why the CBC, publicly-owned sponsorship, said the publicly - owned corporation had stated that its object is to "teach a lesson" to the CTV network, CFTO-TV, the sponsors and others.

ASKS IDENTITY

Outside the House, Mr. Fraser said he had no personal knowledge of such a statement being made and said he wished the BBG had identified the alleged speaker and when and where the comment was made.

Dr. Andrew Stewart, BBG chairman, said in a subsequent interview that the remark was made by a corporation spokesman but declined to give any details.

He added that a few days ago he had asked the CBC for the conditions under which the corporation would take the game with the sponsors in question.

"I was told categorically, under no condition."

The Grey Cup TV dispute erupted again Monday after State Secretary Halpenny tabled the BBG statement in reply to Malcolm MacInnis (NDP —Cape Breton South).

The MP had asked for the reasons behind the BBG regulation, enacted last week, which requires the CBC to carry the CTV's telecast of the Grey Cup —complete with commercials.

TRANSFERS RIGHTS

The 1,000 - word statement made public for the first time that on Oct. 1 the CTV network transferred the TV rights to three sponsors — British American Oil, Labatt Coffee and Labatt's Beer.

The BBG statement said the sponsors were prepared to use the CTV network alone, but the board "did not feel that this solution was in the national interest." The BBG has taken the position that TV viewers should be able to watch the game.

The CBC in turn offered to take "a clean feed" of the game telecast from the CTV—meaning no commercials—but "because this would split the audience in the major markets, it was not acceptable to the owners of the rights."

Then, the sponsors offered to buy the CBC network exclusively. This offer would have provided complete Grey Cup television coverage, the board noted, but the CBC turned it down with an "adamant refusal" to accept the three sponsors' commercials.

The BBG observed that the three sponsors had been acceptable to the CBC over the years.

"Why does the corporation find it so essential to refuse the sponsorship of these three companies at this time?" the BBG asked. The board did not offer its own answer.

Mr. Fraser, commenting on this, said the sponsorship problem is the real issue. The question of coverage for the football game itself was "a tremendous red herring."

"We will carry the Grey Cup in a flash," Mr. Fraser added. "But we have refused to do so under sponsorship arranged directly or indirectly by the CTV network."

He declined to say whether the CBC actually will or will not carry the Dec. 1 game. The CBC's board of directors meets here Thursday to discuss the issue.

The BBG said in a statement last week that it would regard non-compliance with its regulation as "a deliberate infraction of the law."

In Toronto Monday night, the advertising agency representing the three sponsors, James Lovick and Company, indicated it was awaiting word from the Thursday meeting of the CBC board. Agency executive John Whitland said he didn't yet know how the game would be carried.

The BBG statement said the CBC would not carry the telecast with commercials included in the body of the telecast, but was willing to take commercials in the pre-game and post-game programs.

"Under no circumstances would we, as an agency, recommend to our clients to accept those terms," said Mr. Rowland.

In Toronto, John Bassett, president of CFTO-TV, said the CBC was trying to frighten CFTO and CTV from entering the competitive field of popular Canadian programming such as professional football."

"I certainly do not object to competition but I get sick and tired of the CBC trying to hide its real motives behind a veil of hypocrisy," he said. "I am glad that the highest authority in Canadian broadcasting (the BBG) has ripped this veil apart."

Als, Tigers Kickoff At 1 P.M.

MONTREAL (CP) — Kick-off time has been advanced here to 1 p.m. for the opener Saturday in the Hamilton-Montreal home-and-home series for the Eastern Football Conference playoff title.

The Als heretofore started all their Saturday afternoon home games at 2 p.m. but a club spokesman said it was decided to move it up an hour to allow fans to watch the first game of the Western finals on television. While the spokesman didn't make reference to it, it will also enable the Montreal coaching staff to scout the Western teams.

Coach Perry Moss meanwhile gave his players the evening off Monday night but called practices for the remaining evenings of the week.

Senior 'A' Score Lead Divided

GALT (CP)—Rookie George Usitalo of Chatham Maroons and Willie Menard of Sarnia Rams share the scoring leadership of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A group.

Official statistics released today covering the first two weeks of the season showed Usitalo and Menard heading the scoring list with 13 points, two more than Lou Angotti of Kitchener - Waterloo Tigers and Chatham veteran George Ahlan.

Usitalo tops the goal-scorers with eight while Aitken and Irwin Grand of Windsor lead in assists with eight apiece.

Dryden of Galt Terriers leads the defencemen with a 2.14 goals - against average. Sarnia defenceman Ray Morton is the most penalized player with 31 minutes.

Bobby Kuntz Returns

Twin 'Fulls' For Cats?

HAMILTON (CP) — The return of a healthy Bobby Kuntz to the Hamilton Tiger - Cats backfield is prompting speculation that coach Jim Trimble may use a twin-fullback system in the Eastern Football Conference finals.

Kuntz, who missed the last two games with a pulled hamstring muscle, will be a definite starter against Montreal Alouettes in the two-game, total-points series opener at Montreal Saturday.

With Kuntz back, speculators are saying he may be paired with reserve Frank Cosentino or Joe Zuger — will start Saturday's game, but it will be one of them. Regular quarterback Bernie Faloney, who has been hurting lightly in practice, isn't ready.

Faloney, who injured a knee early in the season, is also expected to be a doubtful starter should Ticats reach the Grey Cup game at Toronto Dec. 1.

There is also a slight chance that Hal Patterson, one of the best pass receivers in the country, will rejoin Hamilton for the finals.

Patterson, out with an ankle injury for the last few games, has been working out with the team but is a doubtful starter.

Should Patterson return, Trimble may use him in the backfield to allow Garney Hensley to return to the defensive team. Henley has been very effective on offense, but is even more valuable defensively.

Trimble hasn't announced which of his young quarterbacks — Frank Cosentino or Joe Zuger — will start Saturday's game, but it will be one of them. Regular quarterback Bernie Faloney, who has been hurting lightly in practice, isn't ready.

Quinte Basketball

Wilsons, Crawfords Win

Trenton Wilson Concrete used a big second half to dump Belleville Lightfoots 62-44 while Crawford Metals defeated the RCAF Flyers 72-54 in the opening games of the Bay of Quinte Basketball Association at Moira Secondary School gym last night.

The Wilsons, led by their sensational newcomer, big Bob Moore, scored forty points in the second half to pull out the victory. Lightfoots led 23-22 at half time but ran out of steam against the Wilson's one-two punch of Moore and Burleigh.

Moore, a centre, was little less than terrific on the backboards, dropping in one and two-handers to pile up 25 points for the night. Bob Burleigh hit for 16 points and got them all in the second half.

Don Smith was top man for the Lightfoots, sinking 12 points. Don Skinner was next with seven while Harry Pasternak hooped six.

The Crawfords jumped into an early lead against the Flyers and never looked back. They were in front 41-27 at half time.

Ted Batchelor, the loop's perennial scoring champ, who should get a strong run for his money from Moore this campaign, led the Crawford scorers with 26 points. Bert Faulkner, who also appears to be in for a good year, hooped 19 while Larry "Soup" Campbell got ten.

Wilf Borden, last year with the Wilson's, sank 14 points for the Flyers, followed by Mac McNichol with 12.

Crawfords made good on 14 of 21 free throws while the losers hit for 12 of 18 in a rather scrambly contest.

Frank Walker and LeRoy Wannamaker were the referees.

Ousted Rough Riders

Get 'Travel Allowance'

OTTAWA (CP) — President Barry O'Brien of the Ottawa Rough Riders Football Club said Monday that team members were given their "travel allowance" after Saturday's game even though the team was eliminated from league playoffs by Montreal Alouettes.

The "allowances" were discussed by a league meeting of the Eastern Football Conference here Friday when officials said the Ottawa club had broken league regulations by offering players a bonus for the sudden-death game with Montreal.

The Ottawa club insisted it was in the form of a travel allowance, promised to the players if the game and gate were successful. The sum mentioned in speculation was $300 a player.

"It's a small sum," said O'Brien Monday, "and it won't build any new wings on their homes, but it's a gesture of appreciation."

Baltimore — Joey Giardello, 162, Philadelphia, outpointed Johnny Morris, 161½, Pittsburgh, 10.

Tokyo—Junya Kosaka, 143½, Japan, knocked out Dick Carlos, 139, Philippines, 4.

NHL Scoring Race

Delvecchio On Top

MONTREAL (CP) — Johnny MacDonald, of Sydney, N.S., Bucyk, in his fifth season as left winger for Boston Bruins, scored one goal and assisted on two others in National Hockey League play last week to grab a share of third place in the individual scoring race.

Bucyk, with four points, tied for third with Ab McDonald, Chicago; Gordie Howe, Detroit; Henri Richard, Montreal; Stan Mikita, Chicago; and Cliff Pennington, Boston.

Alex Delvecchio, Detroit's versatile centre and left winger, picked up two goals and an assist last week and leads with 36 points.

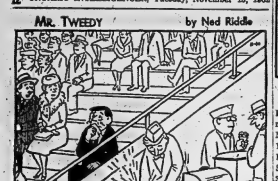
Official statistics originally had Toronto's Billy Harris with only 15 points, a gain of two goals over his total of last week. But the league statistician said later the report from the Detroit-Boston game Saturday credited Delvecchio with an assist.

Delvecchio's linemate, Parker MacDonald, of Montreal's Rangers (Boom Boom) Geoffrion are second with 35, although MacDonald has the edge technically since he has eight goals to the Boomer's five.

HAT TRICK

All alone in 10th place is Bill (Red) Hay of Chicago. Hay was the fourth last week with 12, but earned only one assist in the last three games.

Boston's Murray Oliver and Montreal's Jean-Guy Talbot are tied for 11th spot. Oliver is ranked ahead on the strength of his five goals, while Talbot picked up all his 12 points on assists.



The only NHL player to beat Bucyk's 5-point gain last week was Toronto's Billy Harris. Harris's three goals and three assists moved him up from 47th into a five-way tie for 12th.

With Harris are Claude Provost of Montreal and three Toronto teammates—George Armstrong—Frank Mahovlich and Dave Keon.

'Too Fast For The Old Man'

Moore, Clay All Set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An ancient Archie Moore and cocky Cassius Clay have finished their contact work for Thursday night's heavyweight battle.

The 20-year-old Clay, his unquenchable ego as active as ever, discussed his battle plans after boxing six rounds Monday with two sparring partners.

"I'm still using 170 knockout Moore in four," said Clay, "I'm too fast for the old man. I'm going right out in the first round and take charge of the fight and as soon as I see my chance I'll put him away."

The 48-year-old Moore was non-committal, aside from saying he was satisfied with his workout. He went three rounds with Eddie Jackson, Los Angeles heavy.

The promoters say the fight will attract 15,000 to the indoor arena and that their draw should be about $160,000. The odds still favor Clay at 2 to 1.

Asks Repeal Grey Cup TV Order

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg, Monday called for a repeal of the order compelling the CBC to carry a private telecast of the Dec. 1 Grey Cup game.

The Board of Broadcast Governors produced the order last week. Under it, the publicly owned CBC must carry the CTV telecast of the national football final complete with commercials.

Mr. Juba told city council he is sending a telegram to the BBG terming the decision "a tremendous disservice to both national television networks."

It set a dangerous precedent and "the forcing of a network to carry commercials can hardly be classified in the category of public interest. A repeal of the legislation is strongly urged."

OPEN AGAINST CARDS

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Meta, starting their second year in the National Baseball League, will open their 1963 season at the new Flushing Meadow Stadium on April 9 against St. Louis Cardinals, it was announced Monday.

Sweeney Tops AL Score Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Veteran Bill Sweeney of Springfield Indians has climbed back into the lead in the American Hockey League scoring race.

Sweeney, who had surrendered the lead two weeks ago, moved back to the top by collecting eight points last week, the AHL announced today. Last week's performance brought his total to 23 points on five goals and 18 assists.

Bruce Cline, Sweeney's linemate, also collected eight points and jumped into second place with 19 points. Cline leads in goals with 12 and Sweeney in assists with 18.

Cleveland Barons' Freddie Glover and John Ferguson share the penalty lead with 33 minutes each. Rookie goalie Jacques Caron of Springfield took over the net-minding lead with an average of 2.33 on 21 goals allowed in nine games.

Swede Gets $100,000 Tax-Free Offer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Promoter Chris Dundee said Monday he offer a former heavyweight boxing champion Ingemar Johansson a guarantee of $100,000 tax-free to meet the winner of the Archie Moore-Cassius Clay fight.

Dundee said he sent the offer to Edwin Ahlquist, Johansson's manager in Goteberg, Sweden, and set the tentative date for Jan. 19.

"It's a natural heavyweight elimination bout, with the winner getting a shot at champion Sonny Liston," Dundee said. Clay and Moore meet in Los Angeles Thursday night in a 12-rounder billed as a heavyweight elimination bout.

CITY WITHDRAWS

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—The Lausanne city council formally withdrew its candidacy Monday for the 1968 Olympic games. The council said organizing the games might have involved the city in a loss of some $3,000,000.

Gene Tierney Plays Role Of Martin's Mother-in-Law

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gene Tierney, her green-eyed beauty intact, has been back in Hollywood to continue her revived film career.

Her assignment: Playing Dean Martin's mother-in-law in Toys in the Attic.

This has caused some elevated eyebrows from critics who point out that Martin's official age is 45 while Miss Tierney is 41.

"But it's really not so unusual," says the actress, "only the mother of Yvette Mimieux, who is 20. I have a daughter of my own who is 19. So it is entirely believable that Yvette has married an older man."

For further credibility, Miss Tierney's brown hair was greyed. I saw her after she had finished the role and was flying home to Houston, Tex., without having had a chance to wash out the grey. She laughed about how her husband would wonder what Hollywood had done to her in two weeks.

LIKES TEXAS

She is now the wife of Howard Lee, Houston oilman, and she appears to be a confirmed Texan.

"I love it here," she remarked. "Howard and I were first married, we lived in Connecticut for four months. Then he said 'I'd like to show you Texas.' So we went down there and I knew right away that it was the place for me.'

"People are about the same everywhere in the United States but I find that they are more hospitable in the south and west. In Texas, for example, they give you a break from the start; then after they meet you, they decide whether they want to be close friends or not.

"You have to make it on your own after that. But at least they meet you more than half-way at first."

Sports Snapshots

By JIM PEACOCK

VANCOUVER (CP)—In Dave Skrien, Vancouver Lions' general, togetherness is a routine ingredient in football's recipe for success.

That's why he doesn't understand any excitement over his move to put his British Columbia Lions into a suburban hotel the night before an important season opener with Football Conference game here.

"To me," he said, "it's just a routine thing to do.

"There's no question that having the team together the night before a game helps the mental preparedness of the players.

"It gives them a lot more opportunity to talk about football and get the feeling that what's coming up is really important. It's fairly common practice in the Canadian Football League for the home team to take residence at a hotel in mid-afternoon the day of a game, have their meal together, rest and discuss football for three or four hours prior to kickoff. Skrien's Lions assemble this way 44 hours before game time.

ONE-POINT DEFEAT

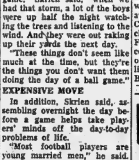
But when Lions needed a come-die game against Winnipeg's Grey Cup champion Blue Bombers here late this season, Skrien booked the club into a suburban hotel more than 24 hours before kickoff.

"The results were definitely worthwhile," Skrien said. "It's just that organization pays off on the field. It certainly created a lot more professional atmosphere and it helps to emphasize the things we want to do in the game."

Lions lost that game 35-34 to Bombers and died out of the WFC playoffs, but they gave an impressive account of themselves, failing short of victory only because of a few costly points were missed on placement attempts.

Skrien's week earlier, the night following a severe windstorm that caused widespread damage here, Lions were thumped 26-7 by the last-place Edmonton Eskimos.

"I know the night before that game," Skrien said, "when we had that storm, that they would have up half the night watching the trees and listening to the wind, and that's no way to expect up their yards the next day.



"These things don't seem like much at the time, but they're the things you don't want them doing the day of a ball game."

EXPENSIVE SEATS

In addition, Skrien said, assembling overnight the day before a game helps take players' minds off the day-to-day problems of life.

"Most football players are young married men," he said. "I'm a young married man, too, and I know there are interruptions at home from children, neighbors, wives, fans and

Paul Pender Takes Case To Court

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Pender's attorney said Monday he plans to start legal proceedings soon in New York State Supreme Court to set aside the disputed action against the middleweight fighter by the New York Athletic Commission.

Attorney John Cronin, who acts as Pender's adviser, called the commission's ruling "a flagrant abuse of discretionary power."

"Pender, of Brookline, Mass., had been named champion of the middleweight champion by New York, Massachusetts and by British and European boxing bodies.

But last Friday, the New York commission, acting in concurrence with European, British, Massachusetts and California commissions, removed recognition from Pender and named Nigeria's Dick Tiger as world champion. Tiger already had been recognized by the World Boxing Association.

The New York commission said Pender had failed to defend his title within six months of his previous defence.

WINS TROPHY

EDMONTON (CP)—Ted Fre-chette, 22, defensive halfback with Edmonton Eskimos, has won the rookie-of-the-year award in the Western Football Conference. The Edmonton club announced Monday that Frechette, a hometown product converted by Eskimos from an offensive halfback to a corner linebacker, has won the Dr. Beattie Martin Trophy.

The Merv Griffin Show Fine Daytime Entertainment

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—When the unpredictable Jack Paar decided to move into the staid and scripted prime time of television a bright light disappeared from evening television.

Johnny Carson, now presiding over the Tonight Show on NBC captains a tidy, ship. The show is amusing enough but it has not much of its exciting, sparkling quality.

But nighttime's loss is daytime's gain. The old twinkle light now is gleaming brilliantly on The Merv Griffin Show, a 55-minute excellent NBC serves up every weekday afternoon.

I think the most hilarious, spontaneously funny hour I have seen this season blew up Friday when Danny Kaye visited the Griffin show. Kaye was even funnier than he was on his excellent special two nights later.

There is finally something stimulating and unlabbited on afternoon television—a period too long abandoned to a dreary succession of suffering soap opera, interminable parlor games and old movies.

ABC has re - christened its old Wagon Train episodes—they will be called Major Adams, Wagonmaster—and will start re-running them late Sunday afternoon starting Jan. 6 when its football season leaves some open time in the schedule. The star, of course, is the late Ward Bond.

Recommended Tonight: Jack Benny show, NBC 9:30 EST.

AT THE BELLE — Sandwiched between Geraldine Page, Rebecca Welch, Rita Moreno, John McIntyre in "Summer and Smoke", in Technicolor, now showing at the Belle, "Hell Is For Heroes", with a great cast of new stars.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results went so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing in juvenile items on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed, convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

province."

Mr. Stewart said he was "shocked" by the brief. "This is an indication of the serious difference of opinion that is developing in the industry."

Explaining the government's decision to delay a formula increase of 19 cents a hundredweight in the price of milk delivered to dairies, he said it was determined that a rise in the retail price of milk would be unwise in view of increasing competition from "mutt-milk," a condensed milk product.

Mr. Stewart said the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League and several distributors have approached the government seeking classification of mutt-milk as a fluid milk product. As such it would be subject to higher wholesale prices.

Blame Ontario

The minister said he is "getting sick and tired of the blame which is being cast on Ontario for creating milk surpluses."

A recent study by his department's farm economics and statistics branch had indicated Ontario was a deficit area for dairy products from 1956 to 1961 and was only now approaching self-sufficiency.

"The evidence suggests," Mr. Stewart said," that Quebec and the Eastern provinces have played a major role in surplus accumulation."

The minister said he and his department "are not willing to sacrifice or disrupt in any way our Ontario dairy industry in order to take care of a Canadian problem and particularly one which has been aggravated by some other provinces."

"We must be willing, of course, to join in the many discussions which are going to result in a national policy that is sound and fair for the dairy industry, but which will not place us in the position of being the sacrificial goat."

Mr. Stewart listed six points which he said he is faced with the situation, inviting reaction from the producers and the press:

1. Creation by the producers of a fluid milk producers' marketing plan which would allow for gradual and orderly incorporation of all Grade A shipments.

2. Creation of a government-appointed board to study the problems of the whole dairy industry. Its activities would be similar to those of the milk industry board in relation to the fluid milk industry.

3. Creation of similar arbitration boards in Ontario and Quebec and of a supervisory federal board.

4. Introduction of a joint marketing plan for the fluid and concentrated milk industries.

5. Arbitrary introduction by the government of an industry-wide marketing plan "Here again, a similar opposite number in Quebec finds facilitating federal legislation . . . could help overcome most of the problems."

6. Establishment of a federal royal commission on dairying.

by the newly-strengthened Export Credits Insurance Act, and asked if the farmers now were going to have to bear the risk in credit sales of their products.

In his Regina speech, Mr. Hamilton said he was making the proposals in order to get farmers' views on things that would strengthen his hand on their behalf in Ottawa.

The government had taken a $190,000,000 loss on selling wheat on credit to Red China, Czechoslovakia and Indonesia if it wasn't easy in such cases to get cabinet approval.

Mr. Hamilton was not in the Commons Monday but is expected back for Wednesday's debate.

Cross-Canada Survey

Drought and Devaluation Cause Housewives to Pay More for Beef Than in '61

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian housewives are paying more for beef than they did a year ago and the reason can be summed up in two words—drought and devaluation.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press comparing the prices this fall and last of five selected cuts of choice beef shows an average rise of 12 cents a pound, although it's as little as a few cents in some centres and as much as 22 in others.

The five cuts are standing rib roast containing the rib, blade roast containing the bone, sirloin steak, porterhouse steak and round steak.

The average for these five cuts by provinces with 1961 prices in brackets: British Columbia $1.02 (88 cents); Alberta 98 (83); Saskatchewan 96 (82); Manitoba 99 (84); Ontario $1.02 (87); Quebec $1.06 (97); New Brunswick $1.15 ($1.06); Prince Edward Island $1.15 ($1.10); Nova Scotia $1.05 (93).

Prohibitive cost and shipping problems make Red Brand, or choice beef, virtually unknown in Newfoundland stores and rare in Prince Edward Island.

LOWER PRICES SEEN

Market officials and retail dealers trace the price boost back to the 1961 drought on the Prairies when cattlemen sold off young stock in the United States in the face of feeding problems and heavy American demand.

The continuing high demand for choice beef outstripped supply and forced prices up.

In addition, pegging the Canadian dollar below that of U.S. currency had the effect of raising beef prices to Canadian dealers because the free exchange of beef cattle across the border tends to level out the North American price.

But the complex laws of nature and international economics that govern the price of a steak at the corner butcher shop are beginning to work in a way that will push beef prices back down again in the new year, experts say.

In any case, the price is unlikely to climb much higher. "This present high consumer price has just about reached the point where the consumer is going to start substituting rather than pay $1.25 or more a pound for top beef cuts," says George Schell, chairman of the board of Canada Packers in Calgary.

PRICES VARY

In late October, the Canada-wide average price for the five choice cuts was $1.04 a pound compared with 92 cents a year earlier.

Increases have been heaviest where the price a year ago was lowest and lighter where the price was already close to the peak that the consumer traffic could bear.

A check of supermarkets in selected cities shows the following prices for sirloin steak with last year's price in brackets:

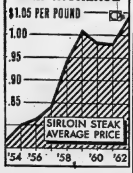
Halifax $1.23 ($1.07); Charlottetown $1.29 ($1.29); Saint John, N.B., $1.29 ($1.10); Montreal $1.32 ($1.16); Toronto $1.20 ($1.00); Winnipeg $1.15 (91); Regina $1.15 (89); Edmonton $1.09 (89); Vancouver $1.21 (99).

Weekend specials, of course, may reduce current prices for steak as much as 20 cents, sometimes more.

Market experts blame the price rise on the fact that the supply of both choice (Red Brand) and good (Blue Brand) cattle has been lagging behind demand. Marketing of top grades of beef in Canada is down about 17 per cent from last year.

FEWER SLAUGHTERED

While slaughtering of all cattle has been running about the same level as last year—44,000 head a week—the proportion of choice and good cattle slaughtered dropped to about 19,000 weekly during the first nine months of this year from 21,000 in the same period of 1961. Lately the average has fallen further to about 18,000.



The decline results from the heavy sale of feeders—young cattle being matured as choice and good beef on grain feed—to feedlots in the United States last fall. Faced with a feed shortage because of the 1961 drought, Western cattlemen last fall exported to U.S. feedlots between 12,000 and 13,000 head a week. Exports of feeders now are running at 4,000 to 5,000.

In addition, a rise in feed prices prompted Canadian feedlot owners to skimp on finishing, with the result that the product often did not grade as choice or good quality.

The easy international exchange of cattle is a factor in predictions that the price will drop in the new year. A big run of top-grade slaughter cattle off U.S. feedlots is expected then. With the Canadian price higher than that in the United States, Canadian packers will switch purchases south of the border. The result should be to force down both producer and consumer prices in Canada to the level of beefeaters and their budgets.

BEEF ON THE HOOF—About 600 yearlings are rounded up and driven to ranches for winter feeding or marketing after grazing during the summer in the Alberta foothills. The shortgrass area around Lethbridge, Alta., has produced some of the best beef in Canada. But a 1961 Prairie drought resulted in severe declines in stock and high meat prices this year. —(CP Photo)

BEEF COSTS RISE

Drought and devaluation have contributed to a sharp increase in the average Canadian retail price of sirloin steaks since 1954. Biggest climb was from 84 cents a pound in 1957 to $1.01 in 1958. The 1962 average of $1.04 is based on prices in the first eight months of the year, ranging from a low of about 96 cents a pound in March to $1.12 in August. — (CP Newsmap.)

Charlotte Uses Fists And Feet In Ottawa Brawl

Con. Paul Tardif M.P. Object of Her Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—Flery Mayor Charlotte Whitton, who has been tongue-lashing members of board of control and council for years, tried it with fists and feet Tuesday.

The diminutive mayor—she's about five feet tall and weighs in at about 130 pounds—tackled heavyweight Controller Paul Tardif at a closed meeting of the board.

"She swung at me four or five times, but didn't get in a good solid blow," said the" controller, 52-year-old former paint store manager and Liberal member of Parliament for Russell.

But other reports from the closed meeting indicate the controller-MP was given a footand-fist drubbing by the 66-yearold spinster mayor who once told controllers she is a "woman who has fought her way all her life."

ABSOLUTELY BERSERK'

"She was absolutely berserk," said Controller Tardif.

The mayor said in a statement that the attack "was in answer to a filthy obscene personal remark which would not have got his face slapped by an respectable woman."

Reports differ on what actually happened at the closed meeting, also attended by Controllers Don Reid and Lloyd Francis.

Controller Tardif is apparently the exchange that touched off the Donnybrook:

Tardif: "The growing pressure of city business, I am getting less than four hours sleep a night," the mayor is reported saying.

"Unlike you, Tardif, I have no children to worry on if I was at city hall."

Controller Tardif's son, Sergio, is seeking a board of control seat in the Dec. 3 municipal election. The controller is not seeking re-election).

Replied Controller Tardif: "It is too bad of mine that you have no children. You could, if you were not so busy and had time to other things."

The mayor jumped from her chair and unleashed a wild barrage of slaps, kicks, jabs and kicks at the surprised controller.

Adenauer in U.S. To See Kennedy On Berlin Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer meet today to weigh the impact of the Cuban crisis on the East-West dispute over Berlin.

Kennedy is understood to be interested in some new Western initiative for Berlin negotiations.

The problem before the president and the chancellor is tangled by the fact that the outcome of the Cuban crisis is not yet clear and the real effect of the Soviet withdrawal of missiles from Cuba on Premier Khrushchev's Berlin policies is not yet known.

When the present date for the Kennedy - Adenauer conference was set officials had hoped that the Cuban situation would be substantially cleared up. But they conceded today that with Soviet jet bombers still in Cuba the final results of the U.S.-Soviet confrontation are uncertain.

Adenauer arrived here Tuesday night by plane from Bonn.

COVER WIDE RANGE

U.S. and German diplomats said Kennedy and Adenauer would cover a wide range of issues of which continuing co-ordination of policy on Berlin is the most important.

Development of French-German relations, British membership in the European Common Market, the promotion of European political integration and the buildup of German armed forces within NATO are the chief topics—apart from Berlin —listed on the agenda worked out in advance of Adenauer's arrival.

Prior to leaving Bonn, Adenauer told reporters that he was not opposed to "negotiations in principle" with Russia on Berlin provided that the Russians give some evidence of good faith in their dealings with the West.

Nehru Declines Weight in Gold, Is Given Much More for Defence

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Gold, jewelry and applause were showered on Prime Minister Nehru today as he celebrated his 73rd birthday in the midst of the gravest crisis of his career—India's undeclared border war with Communist China.

Gold ornaments, bejeweled bangles and precious stones for the Indian national defence fund were given to Nehru as he held "open house" for hundreds of men, women and children.

Lament the State of Punjab had bestowed 301 pounds of gold on him for defence spending.

He said the people of Punjab wanted to give him his weight in gold, but "as my weight is not very great" he did not agree. However, they much more than doubled it with the golden gift.

In the c e l e b r a t i o n at his house, garlands of golden coins were offered to the premier and children presented their savings to the Nehru fund.

As Nehru strolled around the lawn among the well - wishers, they chanted "Nehru aggressor will perish" and "we will defend our motherland with our blood and soul."

In an editorial on his birthday the Indian daily United Press says "If China's capacity for deceit was infinite, our own capacity for self-deception was immeasurable."

The paper calls on India and Nehru "first of all" to disabuse from their minds. The past in terms of India's international thinking and deed."

Under the state of emergency declared to mobilize the nation against the Chinese threat, Nehru has led India since it became independent in June 1947 ago, holds unprecedented powers.

He can ban strikes, direct industry, impose censorship, control prices and cut through the tangle of red tape which has sometimes threatened to strangle the young nation.

Finance Minister Morarji Desai submitted to Parliament a request for an additional $190,-000,000 to meet increased defence costs caused by the Chinese invasion.

Home Minister Lal "Bhadur Shastri announced plans for expansion of the armed forces, with military training to be given every able-bodied man. Home guard units will be set up in villages armed in border districts.

THE WEATHER

Under partly cloudy skies afternoon temperatures are expected to reach the upper 40s today in southwestern Ontario counties but will be mainly in the 30s over the remainder of the province. Continued pleasant fall weather is expected Thursday.

DISCRIMINATION DENOUNCED BY LIBERAL M.P.

Urges Action To Help Indians

OTTAWA (CP) — A freshman Liberal MP from Manitoba says Canadians are guilty of practising racial discrimination against the Indian population.

The charge was made in the Commons Tuesday night by Roger Teillet, member for St. Boniface, who urged federal action to help "our red brothers to emerge from the ghetto."

"Let's face it, while we condemn people outside this country for racial discrimination, we are often as guilty as any outsider in that respect, and these people suffer on that account."

He spoke during debate on a government bill to set up a national council of welfare, a high-level federal - provincial advisory body modelled after the Dominion Council of Health.

ENDORSED BY ALL

The proposed council was endorsed by all parties, though several opposition members emphasized that appointments to it should not be "political plums" and that some guiding lines of policy ought to be laid down.

In other business, the Commons finished clause-by-clause consideration of amendments to the Food and Drug Act aimed at tightening controls over the sale of drugs to prevent a recurrence of epi sodes such as the thalidomide tragedy.

Health Minister Monteith, introducing second reading of the welfare council measure, noted that the federal and provincial

Ontario Liberal Leader Denies Deal-Profiteering

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said today he "did not make a dime" out of the operations of a company which sold 176 acres of land to the University of Waterloo in a four-year period.

He was commenting on a report, approved unanimously Tuesday night by Kitchener-Waterloo Labor Council, which named Mr. Wintermeyer as a director of the company up to Nov. 21, 1958.

"I could not and did not make a dime out of the company's operation," said Mr. Wintermeyer in a statement.

"These facts would have been given in evidence if they had taken the trouble to ask for them. They were, in fact, given

Soviet-Cuban Demands Said 'Just Move in Chess Game'

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Some UN delegates assessed today new Soviet-Cuban demands, reported to include U.S. withdrawal from the base at Guantanamo, as a bargaining maneuvre in negotiations to end the Cuban crisis.

"It is just another move in the chess game," said one diplomat. "Now the Russians will wait for the United States to make a move."

The United States was certain to reject the package presented to U Thant, acting secretary-general, Tuesday by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov and Cuban Ambassador Carlos Lechuga.

U.S. ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson was to see Thant today.

Stevenson met for 3½ hours Tuesday night with Kuznetsov and said talk was "constructive." He said it "served to identify and clarify the positions of the countries on the unresolved issues."

Kuznetsov presumably presented the new Soviet - Cuban proposal to Stevenson. The American delegate was believed to have countered with the main U.S. demands—that Soviet Union withdraw its IL-28 jet bombers from Cuba and permit adequate verification that Soviet missile sites have been dismantled and all rockets and other "offensive weapons" sent back to Russia.

The new Soviet-Cuban proposal was reported based on Premier Fidel Castro's five-point demand made Oct. 30 for an end to all U.S. activities against his regime and U.S. withdrawal from Guantanamo. The five points apparently were worked over by Russia's first deputy premier, Anastas I. Mikoyan, who has been in Havana since Nov. 2.

Informants said the Soviet-Cuban proposal dealt mainly with U.S. withdrawal from Guantanamo and included an end to the U.S. naval blockade of arms shipments and measures by the United States to prevent hostile activity against Cuba by exiles.

It also was said to call for firmer guarantees that the

Two Newspapers Say Kennedy Gives All Salary to Charity

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — President Kennedy's salary is going to charity, duplicating a procedure followed 30 years ago by president Herbert Hoover, the Minneapolis Tribune and Des Moines Register say in a copyrighted story.

Six charities benefited from the $94,583.32 the president received in 1961, the story said.

Fletcher Knebel of the newspapers' Washington bureau reported that all of the $100,000 Kennedy will receive this year will go to charity.

Knebel said the $50,000 annual expense allowance Kennedy receives is used for public entertaining he must do as president. Actually, the reporter added, not much of the $50,-000 probably is used because it is taxable and the president already is in a very high bracket.

Private entertaining is financed out of Kennedy's pocket. In an earlier story, Knebel had estimated the president's personal fortune at $10,000,000.

In Washington, the White House said there would be no immediate comment.

BROADCAST BODY WANTS LICENCE TAKEN FROM CTV

Grey Cup Decision Comes Under Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Broadcasting League said today the licence of the privately-owned CTV television network should be taken away from it and turned over to "public authority."

The pro - CBC organization said this public authority then should be given enough federal money to operate the "second" TV network in a way that complements and supplements the service on the CBC networks.

A league statement added that "if such action is not taken the second network will, for financial reasons, not be able to serve the viewers of Canada as, in the public interest, it should."

"Nor can the purely commercial purposes of the present CTV network be expected to coincide fully with the interests of the public in the best use of the airwaves."

CLAIMS MANY MEMBERS

The league claims to speak for national and provincial organizations including the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the Co-Operative Union of Canada, the Women's Institutes and the Canadian Association of Consumers. League president is Dr. John E. Robbins, president of Brandon College at Brandon, Man.

As a principle, the league said all national network broadcasting should be under public control and authority.

But in proposing transfer of CTV's licence, the league said it was referring only to the ethers and not to its privately-owned affiliated stations.

CTV has been operating for about 18 months and now provides network programming to stations operating alongside CBC or CBC-affiliated outlets in Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Moose Jaw, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver.

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. J. E. Robbins, president of the Canadian Broadcasting League, said today the Board of Broadcast Governors' Grey Cup television regulation is not a "sound form of regulation" and infringes the independence of the CBC.

"The present attempt by the BBG to force the CBC to carry a program—the Grey Cup game —which was contracted for by the CTV on an exclusive basis, and to require advertising for this broadcast be also carried by a CBC affiliate, is wrong in principle and illustrates the undesirable uncertainty about the position of the CBC which has arisen."

The president of Brandon College at Brandon, Man., made the statement in behalf of the pro-CBC voluntary association formed of 21 national and provincial farm, labor, co - operative, university and women's groups.

Bank Of Canada Lowers Lending Rate To 4 PC

Easier Credit Conditions Will Result From Cut

OTTAWA (CP)—Reporting a return to "sizable" capital inflows and the building in exchange reserves, the Bank of Canada lowered its lending rate Tuesday to four per cent from five.

The decision signalled easier credit conditions. It was the second reduction in the bank rate —the country's leading indicator of the cost of credit generally—since it was pegged at six per cent last June 24 when the exchange crisis became known.

A central bank statement reported these other economic improvements:

1. Last summer's decline in the total Canadian money supply, as measured by bank deposits and currency outside the banks, ended in early September and since then there has been "an appreciable expansion."

2. Liquid assets of the banks have increased. These assets had dropped after June 24 as the banks disposed of government securities to raise the strong public rapid rate of expansion of bank loans.

3. Market interest rates have declined in recent weeks. In most cases they now are back to the early-June levels.

QUOTES RASMINSKY

The statement quoted Bank Governor Louis Rasminsky as saying that Tuesday's action would be taken to mean that in his view of the capital inflows and the reserves improvement the bank feels "that greater weight could in the present circumstances be given to other factors."

However, the statement noted that the monetary policy followed after June 24 was aimed at the interest - rate level to attract enough foreign capital to offset the current account deficit and rebuild the reserves.

Speculation in financial circles in recent weeks has been that the bank would soon ease that policy because of the pinch that the outflow of American capital was putting on the United States reserves.

Quebec Voters Flock to Polls To Elect Govt.

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebecers vote today in a provincial election called by the Liberal government to obtain a clear-cut mandate to expropriate 11 private power companies.

The Union Nationale opposition, while not committing itself on the expropriation issue, has attacked it as a "smokescreen" picked by the Liberals to hide its financial mismanagement and broken promises after only 27 months in office.

Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., with 2,710,201 persons eligible to vote. This compares with 2,008,439 June 22, 1960, when the Liberals broke 16 years of Union National rule by a slim majority of 53 to 42, with one independent.

Through byelection victories, the Liberals increased their edge which at dissolution of the last legislative assembly Sept. 19 stood at 54 Liberals, 40 Union Nationale and one independent.

For polling day, Liberal Premier Jean Lesage, 50, was in his home riding of Quebec West where he was first elected to the legislative assembly in 1960.

Daniel Johnson, 47, leader of the Union Nationale party since September, 1961, was at St. Pie de Bagot home, county seat of the Bagot riding he has held since 1946.

Both expressed confidence in winning.

Indians Argue Religious Freedom Gives Them Right to Chew Peyote

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.) (AP)—Last April, sheriff's investigators officers raided an Indian shack made of railroad ties near the Mojave Desert town of Needles.

They said they found 30 persons in varying stages of stupor and claim the cause was the chewing buttons of peyote, a tiny cactus known among American Indians as a producer of hallucinations.

The officers arrested three of the group, Navajo Indians railroad laborers, and charged them with violation of the State Narcotics Act. They are Jack Woody, 29; Dan Dee Nez, 25, and Leon B. Anderson, 44.

The arrest set the stage for a test of what the defence calls the peyote cult's religious freedom of 250,000 Indians — and what the prosecution maintains is merely a question of illegal use of a dangerous narcotic.

Tuesday, in a San Bernardino courtroom, Frank Takes Gun, 56, of Albuquerque, N.M., president of the Pan-Indian Native American Church, testified that use of peyote was an integral part of the church's religious rites.

"The American Indian was original possessor of this continent," Takes Gun testified. "He has sacrificed to the government enough lands that he should be allowed to worship God as he believes."

He says that, if necessary, he will take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Dr. Omer C. Stewart, University of Colorado anthropologist, who began a study of peyote in 1937, testified Tuesday that he has never known an Indian to need hospital treatment for addiction to peyote.

On the contrary, he said, the moral teachings of the church have been beneficial to its members.

Waving a sheaf of feathers in one hand and shaking a gourd rattle in another, Dr. Stewart startled the courtroom by chanting the peyote ceremony.

He said he'd tried peyote himself "dozens of times" without harmful effects.

Kenneth L. Pike, chief trial deputy district attorney for San Bernardino County, rested the state's case after 15 minutes. The defence's case is continuing.

Action in Division Court Over a Warranty Heard

Canon Swan Special Speaker At Kiwanis Club

A sense of remembrance should always be a part of our way of life, the Reverend Canon W. J. Minns Swan told Belleville's Kiwanians at their annual observance of Remembrance Day yesterday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre.

Remembrance is a sacred thing which formed a part of one's sense of balance in life, the speaker said. It has to do with a spiritual side of man's life that is alive and meaningful rather than dead although those events or persons which evoke the remembrance may be physically dead or long past, he suggested.

Remembrance always issues a challenge to man from Heaven to earth for work for a lasting peace and brotherhood, Canon Swan advised.

He gave several examples of how remembrance of past events and persons evoke images and thoughts which are alive, virile and provocative, urging their presence to be a dedicated himself and his work towards higher goals.

The speaker also urged that people not forget their spiritual survival kit in these days when stress is laid upon having proper shelter, a first aid kit, food and a means of communication in the event of a national emergency. There existed a spiritual equivalent to each of these necessities which men must have realize to be equally if not more important, he advised.

Canon Swan concluded on the note that remembrance always issued a challenge for man to work harder for peace and brotherhood.

Following his address the Last Post was sounded by George Wardle, who also sounded Reveille following a prayer by Major the Reverend C. C. McCullough, M.B.E., of Kingston.

The remembrance program was under the direction of Kiwanian Archdeacon A. E. McConnell following the business section conducted by President George Hume.

General Sessions Of the Peace Opens Monday

The Hastings county general sessions of the peace open in Belleville Monday with 15 cases—both criminal and civil —listed for hearing by Judge J. C. Anderson.

The list includes four criminal cases involving robbery with violence, breaking, entering and theft and two of legal possession.

Among the non-jury cases is an action brought against the town of Trenton for alleged negligence by town resident Thomas M. Coon.

Who can be halted into court over a merchandising warranty, the manufacturer or its local sales agent?

This fine legality cropped up as a sidelight in an argument between two lawyers in Belleville division court yesterday, before county Judge J. C. Anderson.

The argument came in an action which in itself climaxed a series of differences of opinion between a city resident and a Belleville appliance house, that began in 1958.

Mrs. Dorothy Smith brought the action against John Lewis Company for return of an air conditioner, which she claimed should have been repaired free under a warranty. The company had withheld the unit pending payment of transportation and local installation costs by Mrs. Smith.

Company president William Doyle said he told Mrs. Smith, when she first sought redress for a breakdown in the unit, he doubted if the damage could be repaired under the warranty, due to the machine's condition.

The unit's fins were broken, "I'll send a duty and covered with grease."

However, he sought replacement parts and arranged to have obtained it from the manufacturer in Iowa.

Costs of discharge, customs and installation of the parts were billed to Mrs. Smith, who refused to pay them, he said. His company had already paid those expenses.

AGAINST MANUFACTURER

K. G. M. Ross, representing Mrs. Smith, claimed under warranty the replacement parts by the manufacturer replacements would be forwarded to the local distributor-or agent.

Ben Hurley, acting for the John Lewis Company, retorted that the warranty was between the U.S. manufacturer, not his client.

"No, but they were dealers weren't they?" said Judge Anderson.

"He is not bound by it," claimed counsel.

Judge Anderson said if an agent asks a company to supply under warranty and the company refuses so, he must then in acting for the company.

"If so, he has no agency for legal suit, your honor," submitted Mr. Hurley.

"They represent the company in this area and perhaps are subject to suit," Judge Anderson pointed out.

The judge's decision struck a compromise between both parties.

He noted the original warranty had not been produced in court and that under its terms, it should have been signed by the purchaser and returned to the manufacturer within 30 days. There was no evidence that Mrs. Smith had done this.

He ordered Mrs. Smith to meet company demands for $78 and the company return the unit.

High School Activities

MOIRA SECONDARY SCHOOL
By PAULINE JANITCH

The dreary prospect of exams is causing a sending activities at Moira to slow down to a lethargic chug - soon to complete inertness.

Football - On Thursday, Nov. 1, we faced our opponents, the icy weather and the tough BCI teams. Once again our seniors emerged victorious, completing an almost unmarred record, and placing second in district C.O.S.S.A. football.

Soccer - Our soccer team has gone comparatively unnoticed, the football craze drawing the crowds. Despite this lack of interest, they placed second in the Round Robin at Trenton Saturday, Nov. 3.

Volleyball - Nearly tying up the finish of volleyball season, our junior and senior girls' teams went off to the Volleyball Jamboree. In the past years, volleyball was the only sport offered to the girls' sports. This year, both teams played outstandingly well, disproving the previous opinion, placing second last Saturday, Nov. 10. Both teams won the C.O.S.S.A. title.

Assemblies - Assemblies have been continually progressing, besides being entertaining, they have also been informative. Mr. Boyd Neil - Kelly-named honorary guard of six accompanying him during his announcement in assembly. The purpose behind this was to exhibit the antique guns on display at the Historical Society.

Last Wednesday, Dr. Lyn of Queen's University was read smokers talk to senior school the physical harm (the possibility of lung cancer) they are exposing themselves to. According to recent statistics of 400 non-smokers, one is likely to get lung-cancer, while of 400 smokers, fifty will be stricken with this disease. Also a doctor, he also mentioned outward physical effects of smoking; nicotine-stained fingers, and offensive breath. After his speech was completed, members of the audience participated in a discussion with him, clearing up any questions they had.

Activities - The plans for Motorettes seem to indicate a successful production show - the theme - "Around the World in Eighty Minutes."

Gun Display At Museum Now Closed

The special display of antique hunting guns at the Hastings County Museum has now closed. The guns, from the collection of Mr. C. W. Ketcheson, had attracted close to 400 visitors during the latter part of October and early days of November.

For the next few weeks, the museum will be open only on Saturday and Sunday afternoons from 2 to 5. A special Christmas display is being planned for the first part of December. Plans for this special Christmas display are not yet completed, but it is expected that the chief feature will be the display and demonstration of puppets from all parts of the world.

Opening day will be Saturday, December 1, and Santa Claus will handle the opening ceremonies.

40 Final Year Electronic Students Tour N. E. Plant

About 40 final-year students of the Ryerson Institute of Electronics, in Toronto, toured the Northern Electric plant in Belleville, yesterday. The trip was arranged by the school chapter of the Institute of Radio Engineers, of which all the students are members.

Purpose of the all-day trip was to acquaint the students with the operation of a modern electronics plant, Fred Beeby, in chief of the plant inspection department, who guided the tour, explained that most students were very proficient technically when they graduated but they had no idea of just what the working day of an electronics technician would be like. Although most of them have worked during summers, most of the work involved jobs in stores or at vacation resorts.

Starting at 10.30 a.m., yesterday tour showed these students what they might expect on graduation. They began in the inspection department where most technicians begin their employment at Northern Electric and worked their way into the whole plant before leaving at 3.30.

PERPETUAL SHORTAGE

Mr. Beeby conceded that one of the Northern Electric's main interests in tours of this sort is to recruit technical students. They find a perpetual shortage of them and they have found that the provincial technical institutions are their best source of supply. He could not say, exactly, how many Ryerson graduates were employed at Northern Electric, but he knows that the Belleville plant has graduates of the first Ryerson electronics course, and of every successful course since. There are 53 of them in the inspection department of the Belleville plant. Because of the many major industries, Northern Electric is planning to get their share of this year's crop of technicians.

The course is designed for all parents. It will be available to any groups who inquire about it and to find out what this course is about and how it can be used.

An excellent display of literature pertaining to the program will be available for those in attendance.

Driver Had Right Key But Wrong Car

A car key unlocked a one-in-a-million coincidence at Batawa yesterday.

Ontario Provincial Police were called from shoe-factory village with a report of a stolen car in the area. Investigation of the car was later returned with no other result than personal embarrassment.

Police sorted out the incident this way:

A Batawa resident loaned his 1953-model car to a friend. Keys in hand, his acquaintance sought out the vehicle, parked, entered the motor and drove away.

Trouble was, he didn't have the right car.

The automobile he drove away was the same model and year as that owned by his friend. The ignition key also fitted.

The real owner, however, had no difficulty in identifying the other automobile left behind as definitely not his vehicle, and rushed in a stolen car alert.

Smell of Smoke Awakens Man In Apartment

A Coleman Street resident, Mr. George Gill, was awakened by the smell of smoke early this morning to find a chesterfield in his living room ablaze. The fire department was summoned and firemen had to wear air packs and masks to enter the building because of the dense smoke.

Mr. Gill's apartment is located above Doline's Annex at 280 Coleman St.

The alarm was turned in to the department at 4.40 a.m. this morning, and firemen remained at the scene for nearly two hours to make sure the blaze had been completely extinguished.

Fire chief Gerald Vance said there was slight damage caused to the apartment.

He was unable to give an official estimate of the actual damage.

Chief Vance said Mr. Gill was lucky to have been awakened by the smell of smoke.

United Appeal Fund Now Totals $61,618

The Belleville United Appeal reported today that total returns now amount to $61,618.47.

There are still some divisions to be heard from, in fact all divisions still have calls outstanding, but most have reported a better year than last.

The special names division under D. Gretzinger, has already bettered its 1961 figure and it appears quite likely that the national institutions, professional and payroll giving divisions will also exceed last year's receipts.

Contributions are still being received from the residential areas and many small contributions have been received via the United Appeal's P.O. Box 42, at the Belleville Post Office.

Aircraft Was Only Practising Water Landings

In the space age the quickness of an aircraft can deceive the eye—even on the water.

Reports circulated this morning in the Belleville area that a plane had crashed in the bay of Quinte.

A hurried check of the area revealed no foundation for the rumor—until the RCAF in Trenton discovered the explanation.

One of its amphibians—an Albatross—was practising water-landings throughout the morning on the Bay just south of the base.

Its manoeuvres apparently had been mistaken by a distant eyewitness for disaster

No Truth In Rumor Says Ald. Jarvah

Rumors that Alderman William E. Jarvah had now decided not to contest the mayoralty in the December municipal election, were denied today.

"I have heard it myself, but there is absolutely no truth in the rumor," stated Ald. Jarvah.

Ald. Jarvah said that he announced his intention to run for mayor only after giving the matter very careful consideration and at no time since had he even thought of bowing out of the race.

Tracking Dog Called in to Aid in Search

BANCROFT, (Special) — The search for 5-year-old David Casselman of Smithfield was a week old today, and police here said they intended continuing the hunt until they find a clue to the mystery of his disappearance.

The aged hunter went missing November 7 while seeking deer in the Faudsh area, eight miles west of here.

Search parties assisted by a Department of Transport helicopter, have scoured the area ever since—without success.

"We've pretty well covered the area. Not even a mouse could have got through," said one searcher.

"It's rather baffling. We have found no trace of his whereabouts whatsoever."

Yesterday, police tried a last resort.

From Marmora, they called in a tracking dog owned by Jim Reynolds.

The dog, said an officer, "has had a fair amount of success at this sort of thing."

Hopefully, the search parties moved out of here again this morning into the Faudash area. Up to noon, no word of success had come out of the bush, however.

Earlier, a report from police here said they would keep the search organized until they had either found Mr. Casselman, or some indication of what may have happened to him seven days ago.

PERTH (AP)—A mother of five children gave birth to a sixth Tuesday in a light aircraft over western Australia.

200 Additions Made to List Of Voters

Over 200 additions to this year's municipal voters list were officially approved last night by Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson who presided over a court of revision at city hall.

Only about a dozen voters turned up at the actual Court of Revision as the great percentage of residents wishing their names added to the list have made previous application with the city clerk or city assessment department.

City Clerk Gordon Walker said most of the people requesting their names be added were people moving into the city and those taking possession of new homes since the assessment roll was compiled.

Two Different Women Claim Boy as Son

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A chubby-cheeked boy, seemingly unwanted by anyone when he was abandoned in a bar Monday, is suddenly wanted by at least two different women in different states—each claiming to be his mother.

The boy, five or six years old, and brown-haired, has been in custody of juvenile authorities since he was left at the bar by a man presumed to be his father. The youngster has offered only these clues:

"We were looking for my other mother. My daddy told me he was going to sell me back to her."

The boy didn't identify his "other mother" but said; "My mother's name is joyce."

The youngster's predicament was described in news stories and pictures sent across the continent. They drew quick response.

In St. Petersburg, Fla., Mrs. Catherine Collins saw an Associated Press wirephoto of the boy and identified him as her son. Mrs. Collins, a waitress, said she has been looking for the boy, his father, David Sr., and another woman for six months.

In Little Rock, Ark., another waitress also saw the wirephoto and also identified the boy as her son. But after talking to relatives here she decided he couldn't be her boy."

Emke Brothers Have Secret of Raising Lambs

TOONTO (CP)—If there's a secret to raising top commercial lambs for the Canadian market, the Emke Brothers of Elmwood, Ont., appear to have discovered it.

This year at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, the brothers took the grand champion ships in the single lamb market class, the pen of three market lambs and the pen of 10 as well. They also walked away with most of the lamb honors at last year's Royal.

The grand champion market lamb sold for $1.70 a pound to Canada Packers Limited and the reserve grand, owned by John D. Hamilton, of Calgan, Ont., brought $1 a pound from Canada Packers.

Victim May Have Lost His Balance

CORNWALL (CP)—Dr. W. J. Shannon, Cornwall pathologist, testified Tuesday a fatal stab wound resulting in death to Clifford Macdonald, 37, last July 28 could have been caused by his losing his balance and falling as had a knife held by his wife, Elizabeth.

He was one of 12 Crown witnesses heard during the non-capital murder trial of Mrs. Eliza beth Macdonald, 29. Defence testimony begins today.

His statement was made during cross examination by defence counsel B. M. Wilson. Mrs. Macdonald sat sobbing during testimony of both Dr. Shannon and her father-in-law, Alex Macdonald, 64.

Clifford Macdonald was fatally stabbed during a domestic quarrel in the Lancaster cottage owned by his father.

Dr. Shannon said he saw his son strike the attractive mother of four before the fatal blow. A man was fatally stabbed.

He said they had been drinking.

Guam Clean-up Likely to Yield More Bodies

AGANA, Guam (AP) — Recovery teams began sifting through what appeared to be a massive junkyard on Guam today and said they expect to find more victims in the rubble left by Typhoon Karen.

Karen, officially described as the worst disaster in the history of this strategic U.S. outpost in the Western Pacific, damaged or destroyed nearly every civilian building on the island. Winds up to 174 miles an hour blasted the island for four hours Sunday.

The death toll in the wake of the fierce storm rose to seven today with the discovery of a man's body in the wreckage of a bicycle shop here. The dead also include a 27-year-old housewife and her three - year - old child.

Hundreds of persons were injured, damage is estimated at more than $100,000,000, and the governor's office places the number of families homeless at 5,000. Most of the wreckage still is unchecked.

"When we finally get to cleaning up the mess, we'll probably find more bodies," police officials said.

Suggest Control Of Noise Levels Of Jet Aircraft

MONTREAL (CP) — Aviation industry representatives from three countries have suggested international regulations be set up controlling the noise levels of jet aircraft.

Delegations from The Netherlands, France and Sweden discussed the problem of jet noise at the opening day of a four-day meeting of the aeronautical dromes, air routes and ground aids division of the International Civil Aviation Organization, a United Nations affiliate.

Action on the recommendation—if any—will not come until the end of the four - week meeting. But officials said action of some sort is likely, as this is the first meeting of the division since 1957, a year or so before jetliners went into general service.

No New Schools Planned for Next Five Years

TRENTON — In spite of the fact that Trenton's school population has grown by leaps and bounds in the past few years, the Trenton Board of Education has decided that no new schools will be built in the next five years.

Asked by town council to estimate probable capital expenditure requirements on a five-year basis, the school board has come up with the projected figure of $75,000, for school expansion of present schools only.

However, board members stress the thought that the school population might increase so rapidly in the next five years that at least one new school might have to be built and council will be told that the board's requirements in the next five years might change radically.

At Monday night's meeting of the school board, retiring member Ronald Reid was presented with a certificate in recognition of his service on the board. R. J. Gilbert, board chairman, Mrs. Gabrielle Griffiths presented Mr. Reid with a gift, on behalf of the board. Mr. Phinney will also be retiring at the end of this term, due to business pressures. Mr. Reid, who will be in Europe at the time of the municipal elections, announced his retirement some time ago.

In the reading of school principal's reports, board members were informed that because of certain husband conditions in the Prince Charles school ground, the children were climbing trees and using limbs of trees to imitate television heroes in imaginative games.

"The youngsters are swinging up by the fascinating forest reserve present on our property," wrote Prince Charles principal James Amm.

The board will depend on the services of a volunteer fireman to clear up this Sherwood Forest aspect of the school ground.

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — James Innes of Leeds, England Tuesday was awarded a £7,000 ($21,000) legacy by claiming successfully he was a Protestant and will remain so for the rest of his life. The case arose from the will of Innes's great-uncle, Alexander Innes, who died in 1958. The court was told James Innes was baptized a Roman Catholic, but now was a member of the Church of England.

Accused Given Six Months in Reformatory

TRENTON — In Magistrate's Court at Trenton yesterday, George Robert Henderson, 23, of 16 Bay Street in Trenton, was sentenced to six months definite and three months indeterminate, in the Ontario Reformatory, by Magistrate T. W. Wills, for his attempted armed robbery of Ketcheson's Store on Dundas Street East, on the evening of August 2. Henderson initially pleaded not guilty to the charge but was found guilty on the evidence at a subsequent court hearing.

In passing sentence, Magistrate Wills said that while the evidence fell short of establishing the incident as what could be termed "general robbery," it definitely warranted the conviction that it had been at least an attempt to take the rifle. What Henderson had done with the rifle, constituted the essence of the case, the magistrate said.

Evidence heard in court revealed that on the night of August 2, Henderson had entered Ketcheson's Store and that two clerks had spent more than an hour showing him hunting and camping equipment. Suddenly, Henderson levelled a 30-30 Martin rifle which he had been proved to be loaded) at the clerks and two customers and said, "Don't move."

One of the customers, Glen Gunter, disarmed Henderson, and a clerk called the police. Since the date of the incident Henderson has spent several weeks in the Ontario Hospital and has been examined by a Kingston psychiatrist. Magistrate Wills said that he could send copies of reports from the hospital and the psychiatrist to reformatory officials and recommend that Henderson be given the opportunity to take further treatments.

Up and Down Parliament Hill

There seems to be a new game devised especially for Parliamentarians who belong to the Social Credit and New Democratic parties. The ground rules for this game appear to consist of the single requirement that one should never get caught on base when it comes to a question of party principles versus party position.

The several close votes held recently produced a most interesting fluctuation of interests or loyalties on the part of the NDP and the Socred members.

On one vote the NDP's supported the government and its austerity and tight money program although they had previously declared themselves against it. In another vote, on the same issue but expressed in a different motion, the Socred members, or at least some of them, reversed and also voted for a continued austerity program and tight money policy.

There have been charges of political expediency, and fear of a general election hurled at these parties because of this little game. The latter is probably the most accurate since it is obvious the smaller parties can ill afford the cost of another general election campaign so soon after the last, which is not to suggest that the two larger parties are loaded with campaign funds either.

There has certainly been some compromising of conscience on the part of some of the members of the two smaller parties. Nearly half the B.C. members were defeated when Mr. Thompson led the remainder, minus two who broke ranks, to vote against a principle which they had just previously supported.

Perhaps, those who predicted a full term for the present Parliament might take a serious look at things. It looks as though some politician's conferences are beginning to bite away at continuing the little game of running up and down Parliament Hill in order to keep things level.

The two major parties have austerity wildly either for or against the issue of austerity and tight money. This is as it should be and it does give the Canadian citizen some inkling that the claim put forth by the smaller parties (that the old ones stand for the same thing and have no definite distinctive philosophies whereas only Social Credit and the NDP have the answers and the fresh approach) is considerably blazed.

One thing can be sure, however, the smaller parties are certainly getting more exercise as they bound from one side of the house to the other.

Paper Tiger

With the removal of Soviet missiles from Cuba, an estimated twenty IL-28 manned bombers remain. These subsonic aircraft can carry a four-ton bomb load, from Cuba, about 700 miles into the United States, and some officials are worried about them. They present no real threat to the United States, however.

Subsonic manned bombers and ballistic missiles are not even comparable as threats. The missile, moving at thousand of miles per hour, is dangerous. The bomber, moving at hundreds of miles per hour, is faced by interceptors moving at more than a thousand miles an hour, and anti-aircraft missiles. Subsonic aircraft attacking the United States from a base so closely watched as Cuba would soon be shot down off Key West.

To smaller nations, these bombers would provide a threat, but one which could be removed by the presence of an American aircraft carrier. In any case, the worst harm they can do is to tie up a few interceptors. Their removable should be demanded as a matter of principle, but the threat is being removed with the missiles.

Strictly Personal

New Breed Of Writers Evolving

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When John Steinbeck was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature this year, his award probably marked the era of an era in American writing. Steinbeck is about the last of the self-made" writers.

After being graduated from high school in Salinas, Calif., Steinbeck spent a year or so at Stanford and then left to go into newspaper work. With the exception of Sinclair Lewis, who received a degree from Yale (and then also joined a newspaper staff), almost all the older generation of writers did not have the dubious benefits of a college education.

Ernest Hemingway left school to become a cub reporter; he had no college training at all. William Faulkner spent less than two years at the University of Mississippi before he quit.

In the generation of the 1920s and 30s, such preeminent writers as Sherwood Anderson, H. L. Mencken, Carl Sandburg and Ring Lardner were utterly divorced from the academic community, and developed their literary satire and scorn were heaped upon the American colleges and universities in those decades.

Today, all this has changed. Not only do most writers of fiction take their degrees (and often go on to graduate work), but most of the leading writers are associated with colleges as lecturers, instructors, or "poets-in-residence." From year to year they travel the academic circuit, gaining weight on the honorarium and the prestige of the university.

It is still too early to tell how this new relationship will affect the output and the quality of their creative work. The old class of professional writers was independent, irreverent, and sometimes militantly anti-intellectual. Hemingway was their stock-in-trade.

The new breed has been quietly domesticated: they lectu re, they preside at seminars, they patiently participate in writers' "workshops." They lunch with the Dean, dine with the President, and partake before the trustees on ceremonial occasions.

Creative writers should, of course, be valued parts of their society: when they become a part of the Establishment, it is most whether they have gained more than they have lost. Certainly, a university should harbor talents; but does a talent do best in a barbor or on the open seas?

Steinbeck and his immediate predecessors lived their professional lives on the open seas; like the buffalo and the whooping crane, they are a vanishing species on the American scene. The organization man is now grazing peacefully even in the groves of Academe.

Hire Only 45 Men Over

Hamilton Spectator

While the unions are not concerns us, of course, the news that a large shoe company in Hartford, Conn., will hire only workers who are 45 or older should be greeted with hearty cries by those who are tired of the Canadian practice of neglecting to hire middle-aged workers.

According to R. H. Richards, 61, vice-president of the shoe company, industry stands to benefit "when the old bugaboo of not hiring men over 45 years of age goes down the drain where it belongs."

Furthermore, Richards says that "this idea that a man has passed his most productive capacity after he reaches the age of 45 is so much talk, and it has been our experience that men in this older age bracket are reliable, do their work well, are easier to work with, and above all have more mature judgment than many younger men."

Mr. Richards' shoe company employs 300 production workers. Only two are under 45 and they were employed before the 45-or-older hiring policy went into effect. The majority are 51 to 56, and one of them is 78.

Employees must retire at 65 under the standard company pension plan, but they don't have to.

While this experiment has proved eminently successful, it has posed a few problems. Several years ago, for instance, one worker, aged 65, asked his foreman if he couldn't switch to another job in the plant "with more of a future."

Because the company's name incidentally, is the International Shoe Company, just in case you think we've made this up.

Bad Mough With Clough

The members of the county council of Cornwall, England, have red faces at the moment. They are being caused by a green bird with yellow legs and beak. The bird, which it appeared t o be a Cornish chough, has adorned the coat of arms of the county council since 1930—but the council has just discovered, almost by accident, that the bird shown on the coat of arms, green in color, is actu- ally an Alpine chough. The Cornish chough, which is almost extinct, is black with scarlet legs and bill.

Because of the discovery, workmen are now busy repainting hundreds of green choughs black, and changing their legs and beak from yellow to scarlet. The coat of arms appears on all county vehicles and many signs throughout Cornwall, and orders have been given for all of them to be changed to the colorings of the Cornish bird.

Now all members of the council feel rather foolish. Especially because the error on the coat of arms was brought to their attention by an observant visitor. Someone apparently slipped up some 22 years ago when the coat of arms was originally approved.

But because of the rarity of the Cornish chough, it is just possible that none of the members of the 1930 county council ever saw a Cornish chough. And apparently none of them thought of securing a correct description of the bird with country coat of arms.

Now the council officials have a big paint job on their hands.

Election Act Needs Change

Montreal Gazette

The fact that the June 18 election in St. John's West, Newfoundland, has been declared void by Chief Justice Sir Albert Walsh, K.C., Judge Ilce H. A. Winters has stressed the importance of revising the Canada Elections Act to prevent a repetition of this vice vote.

In the course of the hearing Chief Justice Furlong described the way the service vote was handled as a "shocking state of affairs." What is more important, he found the method of-conducting the service vote is itself open to wide and glaring abuses. The system as it now stands "doesn't work. It is as simple as that." And as Mr. Justice Winters added, similar irregularities "may have happened all over Canada."

In St. John's West it was discovered that servicemen had been casting votes though their residences were in other provinces. And the difficulty now is that it is impossible to review any of these cases in the June 18 election. The request for a recount in a riding has to be made within six days after completion of the official count.

Since it is the system of the service vote as such, and not just the irregularities in St. John's West that are condemned by these justices of Newfoundland's Supreme Court, the appropriate changes should be made in the Canada Elections Act as soon as possible, preferably before another election may not be far away.

Letter to The Editor

Downtown Merchant Opposes Long Hours

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Reading an ad, dtd. through the eyes of a downtown merchant", your most recent news story regarding the request of the Plaza Merchants Association for the extension of retail shopping hours through additional evening openings, I was greatly dismayed by the proposal.

Firstly, the reason for this "vital" need bears some closer inspection. A check of the number of unfinished and vacant locations still in the Plaza would indicate that further expansion might seem rather illogical. If every available space were occupied and business firms were clamoring for locations, one might understand the need for such expansion.

Secondly, is it unreasonable to feel that the men and women employed in the retail field be allowed the same working conditions as people in industry? The 5-day week has long now been an accepted fact in industry, even as concerned management. Retail management and the large number of employees are certainly entitled to the same considerations. Additional hours would certainly work against the interests of such. It could be during this request by Plaza merchants, will the city council have available the figures that show what revenues accrue to our city through business and property taxes paid by downtown merchants, compared to that of chain-store operators which, doubtless, are increasing. These figures might be interesting! As elected representatives, would the council take into consideration the wishes of the downtown vested interests?

It is generally felt by independent merchants, and with justification, that no greater advantage is gained to anyone from additional hours of operation, but rather the present business is merely spread thinner over longer hours and at a far greater cost in dollars, efficiency and service to the public.

Your news report stated that a new shopping centre, planning to open in this expanded area, would do so only if there was the need of more shopping. Compare this attitude and this aggressive drive of the present Plaza Merchants, who, to their great credit, established themselves in our city under the existing bylaws that were passed as a result of democratic procedure, and who are generally a credit to the retail business through their co-operation in civic projects. Are they the majority wishes. How much would the poor people of this city and district suffer if this new store refuses to open in Belleville? A negative answer is immediately apparent.

Growth and expansion of a city are a necessity, but to be fervently desired and eagerly sought after by every person living within that city. That must be the feeling of every right-thinking citizen. But overexpansion could only result in chaos and an added expense to the individual, independent merchants and their employees, whose collective contribution to the material requirements of this city is essential that cannot and must not be disregarded.

What really bothers the let's-sweep - it-under-the-rug people in every instance is that age-old question: "What will the neighbors think?" The neighbors here being any outside community that might learn of the row, scandal or other cause of embarrassment.

Annual Diabetes Tests Are Recommended

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

We gradually are acquiri g relatively simple tests for a number of important diseases, including urine or blood tests for diabetes.

In nearly every instance, early discovery usually leads either to an accurate chance of a cure, or at least prevention of disastrous harm from the disease.

Only this fall I personally observed an example of using a faint clue to catch a disease early. It happened to be diabetes, and I want to relate it now because Nov. 11-17 is annual Diabetes Week, when special efforts are made to persuade people to have tests. In many areas, detection programs are in progress, and a good many doctors are giving their services without charge.

Anyway in the routine test that I recently gave, a woman in her mid-30 s learned that her blood sugar level was slightly higher than normal.

She was referred to her regular physician with this information, but she was not going to heed the advice, and go.

Again her blood sugar wasn't too far out of line, but traces of urine test showed no sugar at all at the time.

But perhaps because her doctor was a stickler for tracing suspicious signs to their source, because the woman wasn't the kind to kid herself, she then took a special test called a "sugar tolerance" reading, which is the final answer as to whether diabetes is present.

Yes, she has it. But she caught it early. The disease will be easy to keep under control, and she has every reason to anticipate long life with no disability.

Incidentally, she had but few other signs of diabetes. Yes, she was overweight. But there were no diabetes in the family except remotely. Above all else, she did not have oversize babies. She had neither excessive thirst nor urinary frequency.

Diabetes is a subtle disease that creeps us ominously, so watch out for it.

A yearly urine or blood test is a wise precaution, for diabetes is on the increase.

Consult your physician if you have any of the principal symptoms: Thirst and urinary frequency; overweight; other cases of diabetes in the family; vision changes, genital irritation in women; and having large babies, by which I mean babies weighing more than 9 or 10 pounds.

Early treatment means forestalling or entirely preventing dangerous complications, including blindness.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Most of us were bewildered, during the early days of the recent Cuban scare by the reports and newsreels from all over the country regarding the parades and demonstrations before the United States consulates in various cities by the bomb-happy enthusiasts.

To our astonishment, these gentry were protesting against the U.S. wiping off Cuba. Here was the United States taking the most effective steps take n by anybody so far to ban the bomb. They were not only banning the bomb but were threatening bodily assault if the bombs weren't banned forthwith.

It then appeared, of course, that those bomb-happy cities were not the bombs these particular ban-the-bombers want banned. And this identified those bomb-happy ban-the-bombers in general as Communist dummies.

I use the word dummies advisedly, because Communists, even in fairly high rank, are not only not supposed to think, they are explicitly forbidden to think. They are dummies, puppets, dangled on strings, incapable of anything but pitiful brief and muddled yelps.

Admits Driving On Wrong Side Of Highway 401

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—A man described by Magistrate C. W. Guest as "nothing but a potential murderer" when driving on the wrong side of Highway 401 was sentenced Tuesday to three months in jail for dangerous driving.

The magistrate convicted Peter Roman Gurba, 25, of Toronto on the charge, laid after a fatal accident on the highway Oct. 6.

"Any man who drives on Highway 401 on the wrong side of the median proceeding in the wrong direction with only one headlight and who had been drinking, was certainly driving in a dangerous manner and was nothing but a potential murderer," Magistrate Guest said.

Court was told that a transport truck going in the right direction stopped when the driver saw Gurba's car heading towards him, and flashed his lights. A car following struck the truck and Alexander Marisch, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Marisch of Kitchener, was killed.

Gurba told the court he had four of five bottles of beer before leaving nearby Toronto for Ottawa. He said he followed a car off the highway and became confused in trying to get back to it.

Pick Astronaut For 24-Hour Flight in April

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Astronaut Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr., will be the pilot for the U.S. manned space flight—a 24-hour orbital mission scheduled next April.

The 35-year-old air force major was named Tuesday to make the flight that will swing him 18 times around the globe, triple the six orbit ride made last month by astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr.

Informed of his selection while working at Cape Canaveral, Cooper said he was "very delighted that I have been chosen."

"I've been working toward this goal for a long time."

At their Houston, Tex., home, Cooper's wife, Trudy—whom he taught to fly soon after they were married — said she was happy and pleased at the choice. They have two daughters, Camila, 13, and Janita, 12.

governments have for years shared the cost of various welfare projects.

Paul Martin, a former Liberal health minister, warned that the council might be a government device for postponing action in other vital welfare fields in which it was already committed to take action.

MUST WAIT

The member for Essex East added it was a necessary to await formal establishment of the council before setting up a contributory old age security scheme providing a minimum pension of $75 a month.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North centre) said there should be no delay in an increase of the pension under the Old Age Security and the Old Age Assistance Act to $75 a month. He also urged the council measure should not be an excuse for inaction by the government.

P. B. Rynard (PC — Simcoe east) said that far too long welfare has been far too dependent on the whims of politicians. Action was needed to provide care for elderly people in their own homes, where they deteriorated more slowly than in homes for the aged.

Warrant Officer Alexander Vellenan, monitor at Radar and Communications School, RCAF Station, Clinton, is the producer of the Clinton Drama Club's first 1962 production "Havelot", to be presented Dec. 4, 5, and 6. WO 2 Vellenan is well known in the Belleville and Deseronto area.

United States will not invade Cuba.

President Kennedy made a no - invasion pledge contingent on Russia's living up to Premier Khrushchev's promise to pull out all missiles and other offensive weapons under adequate verification. The president has stressed that he considers the jet bomber offensive weapons since they can carry nuclear bombs.

The Soviet Union has balked at removing the jets, contending that they were turned over to Castro and are under his control.

Chances of lifting the blockade were remote following word from Geneva that the international Red Cross committee had decided not to take part in inspection of Cuba - bound ships under present conditions.

The United States has indicated it will continue the quarantine until the bombers are out.

Libel Suit Against Paper Will Proceed

VANCOUVER (CP)— Gordon Dowding, lawyer for University of British Columbia Lecturer Irene Rebnin, has filed a "notice of intention to proceed" Tuesday with the woman's libel suit against the Toronto Telegram.

The notice, filed at the court house, gives the newspaper 30 days to reply.

The trial was to have been held early last year but was delayed by a number of pretrial hearings, applications and appeals.

Miss Rebnin is suing the newspaper and its publisher, John Bassett, and Telegram reporter Peter Dempson, along with Ottawa reporter Richard Jackson. She charges she was libelled in an article in the Toronto newspaper in March, 1960.

The woman has been ordered deported from Canada as a security risk, but the order has been held up pending disposition of the libel action.

Nehru Declares Russia Remains India's Friend

By ADRIENNE FARRELL

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Prime Minister Nehru said today India has had Russia's "goodwill and wishes all along — even very recently."

Winding up a parliamentary debate on the national emergency caused by the Sino-Indian border war, Nehru said Russia was in an embarrassing position between a friend and an ally in the conflict, but had been consistently friendly to India.

He said the virulence of Pakistan newspaper attacks on India during the sino-Indian conflict did not reflect the feelings of Pakistanis or other governments.

"Now they are realizing the far-reaching consequences of this (Chinese action) and making a reappraisal," Nehru said.

EXPRESS RESOLVE

By a voice vote, Parliament approved the declaration of a state of emergency earlier this month and expressed firm resolve to drive the Chinese from India.

It also was announced Y. B. Chavan, chief minister of Maharashtra State, has been appointed defence minister following the removal from the post earlier this month of V. K. Krishna Menon.

The post was held briefly by Nehru after he removed Menon.

Chavan, 48, has a long history in Indian politics as a Congress party, minister at state-level and helped organize the home guard in 1946.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held their first meeting of the month with Senior Regent Nora Kaiser, presiding. Before the meeting, a delicious chicken supper was served by the following Brothers of the Loyal Order of the Moose: Jay Rollins, Cecil Lloyd, Edward Patrick, Fred Reid, Bud Kaiser, William Jones and Frank Mastervik.

After the supper, the men washed all the dishes. The meeting was then opened by the Sr. Rgt. Nora Kaiser, who asked all co-workers to stand and give the sign of courtesy to the workers. And to thank them for the lovely supper.

A class of candidates was enrolled into the defending circle. No business was discussed as it was an open meeting. The roll call of officers, escorts and chairman took place.

The Guides escorted Governor Fred Reid, secretary, Jay Rollins and the new caretaker Sandy Walling. Also Edward Patrick, oldest Moose member present to the altar. The following members, Fred Reid, Edward Patrick and Sandy Walling spoke briefly.

CO-OPERATION

The secretary, Jay Rollins, gave a talk on "Co-operation Between the Lodge and Chapter" and also invited the ladies to get behind the men and help them in their drive for new members.

Past governor, Wes. Prindle, also spoke briefly. He told the members present that he had sent in his resignation as caretaker of the Moose Hall. He also thanked the Chapter for the co-operation it had given him in the past in his capacity as governor and caretaker and hoped it would still continue to do so.

The meeting brought to close by the Sr. Rgt. Nora Kaiser, was followed by a social evening.

Music was supplied by Francis and Wayne Shandraw, Ron Cummings, Glen Cummings on the guitars and featuring "Bill" on the drums. Round dancing and square dancing were called for by Sandy Morris and Sid Welch and were enjoyed by all.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

ROSE J.: If we split up, it will be his family's fault.

MR. D.J.: She is out to drive my son into bankruptcy.

Rose J.: At present my husband and I aren't on speaking terms. Every argument we have revolves around his family and the business. I keep trying to open his eyes to the truth around they're giving him. For the hours he puts in working for his father, he could make twice the salary and we wouldn't have to be dependent on them all for a lift whenever our bills pile up.

They not only work him to death in the family business at coolie wages but, knowing that I see things clearly and will try to put Harry wise, they have poisoned his mind against me. Only they, not he, would accuse me of caring just about his money. He should be angry at them, not me. I'll be quit and took a job elsewhere, we'd get along fine.

Mr. D.J.: There is no satisfying this woman. Four years ago when she married my son, he was still an accounting student working part time. She promised to keep on working until he had his degree and a good job. After they rented an expensive apartment and mortgaged themselves for years with new furniture, she stopped working and urged him to quit studying and take a sales job in her old office.

Harry was lost there. So, although I had already retired, I went into business again opening an auto-parts shop. I expect Harry to run it and I pay him a good salary. In fact, he's not worth the check I give him each week because the profits are skimpy. But I must stop Rose's nagging. She won't be satisfied till Harry holds up a bank and brings her the vault.

The Council: The Big Question for Mr. J. to be asking himself is, "How did I get into this fight?"

Anything that was ever good about this match, as well as whatever's sick about it now, is between husband and wife. What has happened is that a flabby-spined husband has wriggled over to the supposed-to-be neutral corner of the arena and is pushing his father out towards the center to handle Rose's thrusts. So we remind Mr. J. that Harry is a big boy, old enough to get married and presumably old enough to face his wife in a disagreement. Don't be the fall guy, Dad.

This leads us to Rose whose pique should not be directed against her inlaws but against her husband who 1.) not knowing what he really wishes to work at 2.) bends to the will of anybody who blows him a fresh idea, and 3.) blames his discontent on her.

The financial wedge between the pair is easier to deal with than the emotional, although one will partially dissolve the other. The casualty may have to be Mr. J.'s new business, unless he can find someone else to hire. Harry's immediate project must be standing on his own feet — vocationally, financially and when his backbone is stronger, he may well return to his father's shop. But now he'd be wise to seek employment with non-relatives. And, since his beginning wage will certainly need padding, Rose should sign up for a job now, too. This would put the lie to charges against her of slave-driving, moneymadness, crassness.

But above all this case requires a few hours of marriage counselling to sort out the emotional snafu. We doubt that Mr. J. is the villain Rose paints, and that Rose is the conniver Mr. J. fears will ruin his son. Not only must surface bruises be healed and reputations restored, but also inner wounds must be examined, explained and "dressed." A counselor can help Rose and Harry achieve first self-respect and then respect for each other. Love? Let's wait.

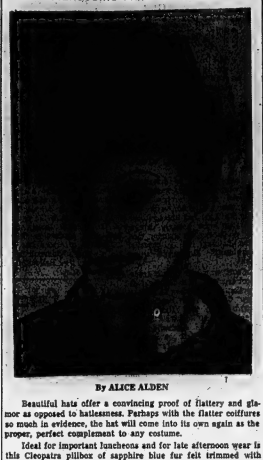
Easy But Elegant

An easy main dish, which is also festive is a homemaker's joy this time of year. Most varieties of shellfish are ideal for this type of dish, but one which especially comes to mind is the scallop. Scallops are in good supply right now and are reasonably priced. They are readily available in frozen form in many food stores.



The firm, lean, white meat of scallop has a rather sweet flavor which is especially good in a casserole dish. A wonderfully simple one to keep in mind for a busy day is Scalloped Scallops. Prepared in similar manner to the classic scallop, Scalloped Oysters, the scallops are quickly baked between layers of buttery crumbs. A little chopped onion and green pepper are added flavor fillips.

SCALLOPED SCALLOPS

1 pound scallops, ½ teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 1 medium onion, sliced, 1 medium green pepper, chopped, 2 tablespoons butter, melted, 2 cups medium-coarse soda, cracker crumbs, ¼ cup melted butter, 1 cup light cream, ¼ cup milk.

Thaw scallops, if frozen. Rinse well in cold water to remove any grit; drain. Cut large scallops in half. Season scallops with salt and pepper. Fry onion and green pepper in 2 tablespoons of melted butter for 5 minutes. Combine with scallops. Combine cracker crumbs and ¼ cup melted butter. Spread 1-3 of crumb mixture over bottom of a greased 8-cup casserole. Cover with a layer of scallop mixture. Repeat layers. Combine cream and milk. Pour over contents of casserole. Top with remaining 1-3 of crumb mixture. Bake in a hot oven 450 degree F., for 20 minutes. Make 6 to 8 servings.

Child Bride Still in Love

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I was very disappointed when I read your answer about the letter signed Child Bride.

When we married I was 20 and my husband was 33. In his fourteen years of married life my husband did have three major operations. During the last hospitalization I had three children to take care of, and I did it all alone. And still, we live together and love each other.

My opinion is that in a marriage, you have to do all your best to make it good. The better thing to do, from my point of view, is believe in God. Have plenty of love and respect for each other.

You should have said, "Our Voice of Experience," because I am another voice of experience. And I know many people who are closer in ages and I would not trade my life with them. My husband is my best friend.

Of course we have fights. Sometimes our fights would be good enough for an Ed Sullivan show. But we forgive and keep on loving each other.—ANOTHER VOICE OF EXPERIENCE.

DEAR ANOTHER—In short, would you say that successful living is to love, to forgive and to keep believing? It is a delight to have your real-life success story.

DEAR DORIS—I have a beef for you, and with all your education of social work, you still don't know all the answers. (A good natured beef.)

I am an old grandma living by my son's wife. Now you told a young wife to insist on moving away from her in-laws. How little we understand at your age just what that poor guy who will inherit his dad's farm must endure when he sees friction between them and his mother doing all in her power. Why don't you tell her, "You ungrateful person?"

She even has today all electric things the mom never had. Sometimes I think you advice givers should happen in on the scene. My, would you hate yourself for giving advice like "insist on a home of your own!"

I notice she says her man thinks it's O.K. to have his mother help cook things. How do you know it isn't the only decent thing he gets to eat?

Now if the man wasn't any good or a good worker like my son, O.K.; but times today on farms need an older brain to help manage till they learn how.—59-YEAR MOTHER-IN-LAW.

DEAR SIXTY-NINE—Congratulations! Obviously you and your daughter-in-law get along.

It's when an in-law's supposed mother love is more like smother love that a young homemaker needs room to breathe. And of course I don't know all the answers. Tell me more.

DEAR DORIS—One day I met this guy who is 18, real cute, real nice, and real popular. The next day at school I found out that his room was close to mine, and I saw him at noon and at 3.30 and sometimes going to classes. He seemed interested and friendly.

Well about a week ago I didn't see him any more and then found out that he had quit school. Now I don't ever see him. I really like him a lot. What I would like to know is, well, is there any way that I could see him again?

I can't walk past his house and hope he'll notice me one day. I think if I could see him again he might ask me out again. Anyway it would be worth a try.—WISHFUL THINKING.

DEAR WISHFUL THINKING—No, you can't picket his premises. Better leave him alone. He knows where you live and if he is still interested, you will be seeing him one of these days.

* * *

(Let Doris share your dilemma. She is a trained social worker and knows Canadian resources.

Women Hear World Food Problem Is Not Insoluble

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A group of 14 Toronto women attended a seminar here Tuesday on a subject close to their hearts—feeding a hungry world.

The women, members of the Toronto Branch of the United Nations Association, heard John Drake, liaison information officer of the Food and Agriculture Organization, declare that the world food problem "is not an insoluble problem."

The seminar was part of a busy four-day program that started when the group arrived here by air early Monday.

Monday afternoon the group gave a tea on the west terrace of the UN building, attended by representatives of the Canadian mission and other delegations.

At Tuesday's seminar FAO officers Drake and Morris Greene talked informally of the UN Freedom from Hunger Campaign.

'VISITS INVALUABLE'

Senator Muriel Ferguson, an observer with the Canadian UN mission, attended Tuesday's seminar and said afterwards she considered visits such as that of the Toronto group "invaluable."

"Seeing live people makes it more valuable than any amount of reading," she said. "I'd certainly like to see groups like this encouraged."

Mrs. G. A. Wrenshall, leader of the group and past chairman of the women's committee of the Toronto Association, agreed.

"I feel that it's tremendously important that women should be interested in the problems of getting along together at the world level—and this is the place where attempts are be made to tackle basic problems."

Mrs. Wrenshall said Monday's tea provided an excellent opportunity to chat informally with women of other countries. Among those attending were representatives from Japan, Nigeria, Ceylon and Poland.

Day; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. Davenport; flower convener, Mrs. C. Twiddy; press reporter, Mrs. D. Cameron; pianist, Mrs. E. Hall.

The devotional was opened by "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Mrs. F. Reid read from St. John 13, 10-17, and Mrs. E. Hall read an article on "Friendship."

Mrs. L. Reid told of her recent trip to Hawaii, which was interesting. Everyone was pleased to share such a colorful holiday.

Mrs. E. Hall has offered her home for the Christmas meeting.

Mrs. Griffith thanked Mrs. Reid for her talk, and all who helped make the meeting enjoyable.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

HOW TO SUCCEED WITH BABY-SITTERS

Anyone who has ever had to scout around for a baby-sitter just before a Big Night knows what a frustrating experience it can be.

During the holiday season, experienced and competent sitters are at a premium, so sleuthing becomes even more difficult. Sitters naturally prefer working for families who show basic good manners to those in their profession. If the going gets tough and sitters tend to play hard-to-get, perhaps previous experience has shown them that the parents aren't as diligent and reliable as they want their sitters to be.

Sitters have been known to dart down alleys to avoid employers who want them to do piles of housework in addition to minding the youngsters — and without so much as an extra sou. They've also been known to blacklist parents — and rightly so — who say they'll be back at a certain time, then don't show up until the crack of dawn.

Most sitters don't mind doing extra chores and staying overtime, as long as they know in advance what's expected and where basic good manners come in. It's unfair to hire anyone for a specific job, then have it turn into something else. If the job is to be done well and successfully for all concerned, then it's wise for parents to adopt these rules of good behavior:

First, let the sitter know exactly what's expected of her. If doing the dinner dishes is included, it should be clear-cut with the sitter in advance and an extra fee agreed upon.

When the sitter takes over, let the children know she's in charge, and no monkey-business. Both the sitter and the youngsters should be given a specific time for "lights out." The chore of getting a group of frisky little ones to bed is eased if pajamas are laid out in advance and the sitter is told what routine to follow — like leaving a night light for Janie and giving Johnnie the old worn-out teddybear before tucking him in.

Naturally, the sitter should be given a phone number where the parents or some other relative may be reached in an emergency. Other phone numbers that should be on hand include: the doctor's, the numbers of the fire and police departments and the name and number of a neighbor who could respond to an SOS.

When parents say they'll be home at a certain time, they should try to stick to their bargain. If, for some reason, they should be delayed, then it's only polite, to say nothing of good business, to phone the sitter and let her know what the situation is. If she's a teen-ager, she may have parents of her own who are worried about what time she'll be home. With some idea of what her deadline will be, she in turn can let her mother know approximately what time she'll be home, and set her mind at ease.

Finally, always pay the sitter promptly. Most prefer to be paid in cash, so it's a good idea to set the amount aside to make sure it's ready when needed. Parents should also make sure the sitter gets home safely. One may prefer to drive her home, but, if this is not possible, then the sitter should be seen safely into a cab. This additional fee usually is taken care of by the parents as an investment in future good will.

Question: When a husband and wife check into a hotel, does the husband sign the register for both, or do each sign separately? Our sixteen-year-old daughter will accompany us on a trip shortly, and I'd also like to know if she should sign the register in her own name, since she will occupy a separate room. Mrs. H.M.B., Miami, Fla.

Answer: The husband may sign the register for the family. On one line, he signs "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones." Since your daughter is no longer a very young child, her name, "Miss Mary Jones," is listed separately a line below yours.

Indian Women Asked to Give Gold Jewelry

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — A country-wide campaign has been launched to persuade Indian women to donate their gold jewelry to India's defence against red China or at least to exchange the ornaments for "gold" bonds bearing a high rate of interest.

Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of Prime Minister Nehru and former president of the ruling Congress party, has set an example by turning over all her gold jewels to the National Defence Fund.

Princesses, wives of wealthy landlords and businessmen, middle-class women and even humble peasants have responded by offering jewelry to the authorities.

Special booths have been set up in the prime minister's residence and at the branches of the state Bank of India in major towns to receive the donations. The bond plan also has elicited good response.

RICH AND POOR

A member of the former ruling family of Bhopal state turned in $10,000 worth of jewels. A Calcutta merchant's wife offered to give away 10 per cent of her jewel collection, said to be worth more than $1,000,000. A peasant woman donated silver and ivory ornaments worth $300.

It is believed gold held in the country in the form of jewels amounts to some $15,000,000,000.

For a Hindu woman gold is more than mere jewelry. It has deep spiritual significance. For those living in rural areas where banking facilities are few, gold is the best form of investment. Some wealthy farmers bury their gold in deep pits in the ground.

Official circs expect that in the next few months the government might be able to collect both as free gifts and against bonds at least $1,000,000,000 worth of gold.

Dark Blonde Florida Fruit Cake

by Mary Moore

It is fruit cake week. Yesterday I gave you what is officially my 1962 Christmas fruit cake. Today I am going to give you the recipe for what a reader in Saskatchewan calls a white fruit cake. It is an excellent, subtly-flavored cake but it is not white. It is dark-blonde. I cannot decide what darkens it so much unless it is the vanilla and abundance of pecans. It has a special significance for me for my niece Beverley did the experimenting while I made Chicken Kiev (tomorrow). It was as much fun working together as hearing Madame Butterfly (with Teresa Stratas) which we did last week.

Don't skip this. It is a beauty and should be in the fruit cake file of every girl in this audience who is a Mary Moore follower.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Roast Lamb Shoulder; Caper Sauce; Pan Roasted Potatoes; Green Peas with Green Onion White Sauce; Green Salad with French Dressing; Canned Peaches with Melba Sauce; Coffee.

DARK BLONDE FLORIDA FRUIT CAKE (courtesy Mrs. H. D., Horizon, Sask.)

These amounts yield 3 lbs.

½ lb. butter (no substitute), 1 cup granulated sugar, 5 large eggs, 1¾ cups unsifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ lb. sliced glace cherries (green and red mixed), 1 lb. candied pineapple (sliced on ¼" shredder or chop finely), 4 cups coarsely chopped pecans (buy 1 lb.), 1 tablespoon vanilla, 1 tablespoon lemon extract.

Cream butter and sugar together until very light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat in each one as you add it, until smooth ly blended.

Sift the unsifted flour with the baking powder and salt. Mix ¼ cup of this flour mixture through the prepared fruits and nuts which have been mixed together. Sprinkle remaining flour mixture over first creamed mixture and stir until blended. Stir in vanilla and lemon extract. Add floured fruits and nuts and stir well.

Turn into 2 loaf pans (6½ x 4⅝ x 2¾") lined with 3 thicknesses of wax paper, brushing top one generously with butter. Do not preheat oven. Put waterpan below cakes. (Three-quarters fill broiler pan with boiling water after it is in position in oven.) Turn on oven to 250 deg. Fahr. (to "bake" not "preheat" — which means only bottom burner is on.)- Bake 3 hours or until top feels firm to touch. Cool in pans on cake rack. This cake is moist enough that it slices perfectly within 24 hours.

I am grateful to Mrs. H. D. for this beauty of a cake and hope she will pass on our thanks to Mrs. Harvey in St. Petersburg, Florida.

The Experts Say

Irene Castle Not in Love With Twist, Other Dances

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—"Disgrace"—these epithets are ascribed to the twist, the mashed potato and other fads on today's dance floors by one of the great ballroom dancers of all time.

Irene Castle, dance queen of the First World War era, said "it's not the wagging of the fanny but rather the perky arm work" that is so annoying about today's dances.

"Vernon and I always tried to float and glide," she said, recalling the days when she and her first husband Vernon Castle established a vogue in ballroom dancing, persuading the public to give up the bunny hop and turkey trot with their own "Castle walk", the fox trot and the hesitation waltz.

"One thing about today's dances, though. They're not sexy. You're so far away from your partner, there's no time for that."

THINKS NEW DANCES HIDEOUS

Irene Castle, famous ballroom dancer of the early 1900s says modern dance crazes such as the twist are disgraceful, unbecoming and hideous. Miss Castle, who with her first husband Vernon introduced the world to new dance steps including the Castle Walk, was in Toronto for a CBC television show. Now 69, she devotes her time to the operation of a refuge for homeless animals. —(CP Photo).

'LIGHT AND GAY'

She described the Castle walk as "light and gay, just like skipping with stress on the 2nd beat instead of the downbeat." Most dances before the Castle era, for example the old one step and two-step, were done on the down-beat.

Miss Castle thinks all children, both boys and girls, should be sent to dancing school when they are about six or seven years old because this will help them to walk, sit and stand straight and with ease and poise.

"Ballet is very nice but not necessary," she discovered, having danced herself to international fame with only a few group lessons in which she learned minuets, tarantellas and other skirt dances. She never had a private dancing lesson in her life.

During the height of her dancing career, Miss Castle was truly a queen, not only of the dance floor but of the whole women's world. She was the first woman in America to bob her hair and right after she did so, nearly every woman in the country ran to the barber shop to have her locks cut off. And her slim boyish figure and her clothes, which she designed herself, were all the rage.

WED FOUR TIMES

For many years, after the death of her first husband Vernon in 1918, she remained a leading figure in fashion, society and theatrical circles, although popular interest in her dancing was replaced by interest in her personal life. She was married three more times so her full name is Irene Foote Castle Treman McLaughlin Zinsser.

Now, at the age of 69 (a fact which she is not in the least ashamed to disclose) Miss Castle is still glamorous and light on her feet and still has the lithesome figure of a fashion model. She still designs her own clothes too. During an interview she wore one of her becoming creations—a pale gray wool dress with a matching knee - length jacket trimmed with gray fox and with buttons she made from an amethyst necklace.

She lives alone in a Chicago suburb and devotes her time to her favorite charity, "Orphans of the Storm", a refuge for homeless animals which she founded in 1927.

DRAWS LIFE TERM

MOSCOW (AP) — One youth has been sentenced to death in Leningrad and two others to 10 and 15 years imprisonment for a payroll robbery that didn't come off. A girl who helped them got three years. The newspaper Trud reports that Heli Yakovlev was sentenced to death for shaping up the plan. Trud said all four had jobs but drink so much they needed more money.

Catholic Women's League Sponsors Fine Autumn Tea

DESERONTO — Beneath cloudy skies and a cheery atmosphere within the Catholic Women's League held a most delightful tea and bazaar last Wednesday at the Lions Hall.

Warmly welcoming the guests at the door was the League president, Miss Nora Fox.

The hall was decorated with lovely autumn flowers, and the tea table most attractive with white linen cloth centred with an artistic arrangement of bronze and yellow 'mums interspersed with golden sprayed greenery. Tapering white candles in tri-branched silver candelabra and the silver tea services added to the pretty setting.

Miss Marie Lalonde poured tea.

The little quartet tables with white covers, were centred by small containers holding tiny autumn flowers.

Those who assisted in serving included Mrs. T. Murphy, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. E. Dorey, Mrs. B. Petes, Mrs. D. Reid, Mrs. M. Cassidy, Mrs. A. Lord, Mrs. M. E. Dowling, Mrs. O'Ray, Mrs. aMrlow and Mrs. Hainje.

The apron booth was convened by Mrs. J. Gaulin. Many types of materials in plain and combination of colors were displayed; some were especially pretty for Christmas, some frilly in both the half-apron and all-over types in a wide variety of colors.

The miscellaneous booth was convened by Mrs. Frank Tyrrell assisted by Mrs. Joe Roach. Here was a lovely assortment of knitted, crocheted and felt articles, as well as linen cloth, pillow slips, socks, towels, baby clothes such as bootees, mitts, sweaters, dresses; also Santa stockings.

Novelties of all kinds were the feature of this booth.

The home bake booth was as always a popular spot, the wide variety of delicious dainties included, lemon, cherry, apple, pumpkin pies, bread; buns, tarts of all kind; nut loaf; chip cookies; also peanut brittle candy; fudge and boxes of mixed creams. Mrs. Ed Roach was convener, assisted by Mrs. Charles Doran and Mrs. M. Wilkoski.

No bazaar would be complete without its 'white elephant' booth, and the many customers were not disappointed for Mrs. Leo Palmer convener, assisted by Mrs. M. Sherman, displayed a number of nice articles, including perfume; powder, salt and pepper shakers; brooches, jewellery, earrings and others.

Tickets were sold also on a set of small cardboard animals.

The convener for the main draw was Mrs. J. Therrien and Mrs. Gerald Lott and Miss Linda Lott, drew the winning tickets.

Mrs J. Edwards was the convener for the cake doll.

Another delightful and successful autumn bazaar and tea splendidly convened by Mrs. M. Dowling and Mrs. A. Lord.

Club Activities

SIDNEY 4-H CLUB

The Sidney South 4-H Homemaking Club held its first meeting of the unit, "Separates for Summer" on November 5.

The results of the election of officers were as follows: president — Coby Mywaart; treasurer — Elaine Bush; press reporter — Donna Wilman.

After the conclusion of the business, the leaders Mrs. Mcens and Mrs. Aikens led in the discussion about materials and patterns for the project. In this club, each one must make a skirt and stitching blouse. The leaders also demonstrated how to take each other's measurements.

Many Friends Honor Couple With Gifts

WELLINGTON — A large number of relatives and friends from Frankford, Stirling, Picton, Belleville, Redneraville and Wellington gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Fritz recently, to honor Mr. and Mrs. David Fritz (Diane Monroe), recently married, with a miscellaneous shower.

Following a delightful social time, the honored guests were called forward and seated at a prettily decorated table piled high with many lovely gifts, which they unwrapped and passed around for all to admire.

David and Diane both expressed their appreciation to all for their kindness and invited them to come and see them when they are settled in their home in Belleville.

A delicious lunch was served by the sponsors of the party, Mrs. Len Reilly of Frankford and Mrs. Gilbert Lott of Belleville, assisted by some of the young ladies present.

St. John's Guild Holds Successful Tea, Bazaar

STIRLING — The parish hall of St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling was artistically decorated with evergreen boughs and colored lights for the tea and bazaar sponsored by St. John's Afternoon Guild under the direction of the president Mrs. Frank Harding on November 8th.

The guest musician was Mrs. Vernon Mathews who provided soft piano music during the afternoon. The Rev. F. F. Downing officially opened the event at 3 p.m.

As the large number of guests arrived they were welcomed by Mrs. F. Harding, the president and Mrs. Hiram Rodgers. Mrs. Howard Parsonson was treasurer and Mrs. E. C. Hay-Hills recorded the names for the door prize. At five o'clock the rector drew the number and Mrs. Hirman Rodgers won the lovely towels. At three o'clock the travelling apron was awarded to Mrs. H. B. Duffin of Stirling.

The long bake table was literally piled high with a large variety of cakes, cookies, pies, tarts, home-made buns and bread, jars of jams and relishes, and was soon sold out to the numerous eager buyers. Those in charge here were Mrs. Frank Myer, Mrs. Kenneth Cooke, Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, Mrs. Ritchie Geen and Mrs. Will Vardy.

The sewing table held a large assortment of colorful aprons, pillow cases, stuffed toys, kitchen accessories and crochet work and those in charge were Mrs. Wilfred Gravers, Mrs. George Mumby, Mrs. Sam McCrory and Mrs. Burness Demorest.

An assortment of potted plants was in charge of Mrs. R. E. Gould and her assistants. Mrs. John Green sold centennial plates and church calendars. A large aluminum Christmas tree decorated and lighted spread its branches over numerous gift parcels, each selling for a quarter. Mrs. Lorne Ash was in charge of this table.

A beautiful archway of greenery interspersed with glittering decorations and colorful lights led the way to the tea room. Mrs. John Villetorte escorted the guests to small quaint tables which were covered with white luncheon cloths and centred with a variety of Christmas centrepieces.

The long tea table was spread with a white damask cloth and centred with a silver bowl of red and white carnations which lent added fragrance to the Yule greenery. The centrepiece was flanked with silver candelabra holding red and green lighted tapers. At either end the silver tea services and dainty cups and saucers added a festive setting.

Those who poured during the afternoon were: Mrs. William Webber and Mrs. Harry Cooke, wives of the church wardens; also Mrs. Edgar Morrow and Mrs. F. F. Downing. Those serving were Mrs. Thomas Brooks, Mrs. Eugene McGee, Mrs. Donald Campbell, Mrs. John Haggerty and Mrs. Glenn Whitehead.

The tea table was replenished by Mrs. Frank Harding; the plates replenished by Mrs. Fred Houchin and Mrs. Joe Whitehead made the tea.

The affair was most successful and the Guild members are grateful to all those who assisted in any way with a special thank-you to those from other organizations who paid them a visit on this happy occasion.

Mrs. Harding, president of the Guild, reported that the finances were most gratifying.

Thrifty Casserole Dish

When it comes to holding fod costs in line, it's hard to beat a casserole made from plentiful, nourishing, low-cost foods. A good example, guaranteed to simplify an evening meal, is a Fundy Shore Casserole made from Canadian sardines, cheese and potatoes.

Canadian sardines are small, silvery fish of the herring family, caught principally in the Passamaquoddy area of the Bay of Fundy and canned in New Brunswick on the Bay's southwestern shore. In Fundy Shore Casserole they contribute high quality protein coupled with delicious flavor.

FUNDY SHORE CASSEROLE

3 cans (3¾ ounces each) Canadian sardines, 3 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons melted fat or oil, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 2 cups milk, 1 cup grated nippy cheddar cheese, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 5 cups sliced cooked potatoes.

Drain sardines. Reserve 6 whole sardines for a top garnish. Cook onion in fat until tender. Blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually. Cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and Worcestershire sauce; stir until cheese melts. Arrange half the potatoes, the sardines (broken or not, as desired), and the remaining potatoes in layers in a well-greased, 2-quart casserole. Cover with the cheese sauce. Garnish with the 6 sardines. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for 25 to 30 minutes, or until thoroughly heated.

Makes 6 servings.

HOW LONG has it been since you weeded out your child's room? If he's messy, it may be because there are too many things in his room for him to manage. Crammed closet, burned drawers and cupboards are difficult to keep neat. And while you're at it, how about checking your own room? Your example is more important than you may think.

cil's political action committee, the report also contended that Major Holdings was in a position to get inside information on the university's expansion plans because C. N. Weber, a director of the firm, was also a member of the university board of governors.

The report said another member of the university board, A. L. Rosenberg, replaced Mr. Wintermeyer as a director of Major Holdings, and thus also was in a privileged position.

TRY TO SMEAR'

Mr. Wintermeyer in his statement said he became aware "some months ago . . . that attempts were being made to smear me . . ."

"I made it my responsibility to make inquiries of all the principals in order to assure myself that the transaction, and my relations to it, had been completely honorable in all respects.

"I received confirmation that this was the case from all concerned, and particularly from the assessor of Waterloo and the president of the University."

He said he asked for and received a letter to this effect from the university president, J. G. Hagey.

"The facts are that the law firm in which I was senior partner acted as solicitor for the incorporation of Major Holdings Limited. I was an incorporating director but submitted my resignation in the early part of 1958 at the time I announced I was relinquishing all my business directorships. . . .

IT'S 'DIRTY POLITICS'

"I am disappointed that the . . . labor council has allowed itself to be used by those whose political desperation is so great that they will stoop to any sort of dirty politics. . . .

"My information is that there was no conflict of interest between the directors of the company and the university, and that the university was completely satisfied with the transaction in every way. . . .

"It is a shame that a young and promising university should be besmirched in this way."

Charlotte Uses

blow account of the fight, the mayor almost immediately connected with a straight left, high on Controller Tardif's shoulder.

They clinched briefly and then the mayor tried a long right to the mid-section and missed but scored with a hard left hook to the jaw.

What was the heavy-set controller doing? According to the same report he:

Caught Mayor Whitton on the point of her shoe with his shin; delivered a tremendous blow to her fist with his face; slapped the palm of her hand with his cheek, and caught her squarely on her knuckles with his nose.

'I TRIED'

Summed up Mayor Whitton: "There was no one else there man enough to knock him down, so I tried to."

Said the controller: "I never intended to suggest a stain on her worship's reputation. It is needless to say I did not advocate that, in her present single state, she have a family.

"I meant that, had she not chosen the busy career of politics, such a talented and charming woman would doubtless have accepted one of the many offers of marriage I am sure she has received."

Lamented Mayor Whitton: "I publish my brother didn't have a silver plate in his head; he'd come down here and knock him down.

However, Charlotte, who once captained a college hockey team, didn't appear to need help. She said the room emptied quickly.

"Only Controller Reid was man enough to stay and apologize," said the mayor.

(Controller Reid is a six-foot-four, 240-pound former football player.)

Controller Francis explained his quick exit:

"I was sick. She threw punches at him; she kicked him; she slapped him. It was the worst demonstration I have ever seen; the worst display in the history of the City of Ottawa."

Mayoralty candidate Sam Berger wondered if "the mayor is not well."

Mr. Berger, defeated by Miss Whitton in the last election, said she was told two years ago by her physician not to run for office.

"I feel that now, in her own interests, she ought to consider that advice."

Mayor Whitton hasn't announced yet whether she will seek re-election in December.

Senate Investigators Hear Of High Wartime Profits By Falconbridge Nickel Co.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senate investigators, having accused one Canadian nickel company of huge wartime profits at the expense of the U.S. government, last week shifted its sights to the contracts of another, International Nickel Company, world's largest producer.

The afternoon hearing of the Senate stockpiling subcommittee may be a lot of ways be a repetition of a day-long session Tuesday when investigators and witnesses peddled a story of American nickel supplies depleted by the Korean War, a desperate U.S. government bid to buy up supplies wherever possible and the high prices demanded by the established producers.

Senator Stuart Symington, subcommittee chairman, said the price demands of Sudbury, Ont.-based International Nickel Mines Limited were so exorbitant that he never would have signed such a deal. He described that as a result of U.S. defence contracts, the annual net earnings of the company skyrocketed by 1,000 per cent between 1940 and 1952.

The Missouri Democrat said Falconbridge had shown "greed" and that corporations should have gone out to the Canadian government to help curb the company's hunger for huge profits.

LARSON TESTIFIES

Jesse Larson, former chief U.S. nickel negotiator, said discussions did take place with the Canadian administration before the U.S. agreed to Falconbridge's 1953 price demands. But Larson said the late C. D. Howe, then defence production minister, didn't want any interference with the private enterprise system.

- Larson, now a lawyer, said he was one of several witnesses called to give evidence in a 150,000,000-pound U.S. government nickel contract under which Falconbridge received $1 a pound — roughly 45 cents higher than the market price prevailing at the time the contract was signed in January, 1953.

Prior to that deal, in 1952 Falconbridge received a $6,000,000 U.S. government "bonus" to step up production and build delivery — of 32,000,000 pounds to the U.S. stockpile.

But Larson and other witnesses testified that even with this $6,000,000 "bonus," Falconbridge insisted on getting another $45,000,000 for capital expansion in order to provide the additional 32,000,000 pounds of nickel between 1953 and 1962.

Larson said he was under orders to get "as much nickel — as he had to pay $1 a pound or more.

COMPANY 'MILKS' U.S.

Senator Clair Engle, California Democrat, said the U.S. government had been "milked" while Canadian and American soldiers were dying in Korea.

As it turned out, the U.S. government got more nickel from Falconbridge than it needed. In 1959, it worked out a deal whereby international Nickel would take back 146,000,000 pounds of the Falconbridge contract. International paid Falconbridge the full contract price. The U.S. government reimbursed International for the difference between the contract and market prices—roughly 41 cents a pound—in the form of surplus nickel valued at $61,000,000.

Symington said he couldn't understand why the U.S. negotiators agreed to pay Falconbridge $1 a pound under the original contract for amounts excess of 100,000,000 pounds—which included the full amount production costs of the $45,000,000 the company claimed it needed for capital expansion.

Symington said he just could not see why the negotiators had to agree to pay the same rate—which included the capital demand—on the additional 50,000,000 pounds when, in fact, the capital demands already had been provided in the 100,000,000-pound payment.

H. C. Coburn, subcommittee general counsel, said Falconbridge management had been given the opportunity to testify but it made no reply.

KEEPS BOOKS CLOSED

Under the original contract, Falconbridge refused to allow the government to examine company books to see if the $45,000,000 capital demand actually was spent for the purpose intended.

Government witnesses testified that the company's net earnings, which totalled $1,400,000 in 1949, swelled to $17,000,000 in 1951, leading Symington to suggest the annual profit rise was about 1,000 per cent during the 1940-51 period.

These witnesses also testified the company made an average net profit of about 26 cents a pound on government contracts —roughly about 73 per cent on its operating costs, compared to only 21 per cent profit on non-government operations.

Witnesses estimated that because of various costs and other factors involved, the nickel which the U.S. government now sells from the Falconbridge stockpile at cost is estimated to bear an over-all cost of about 40 cents a pound—compared to the present market value of 79 cents a pound.

Sen. Bouchard, Powerful Liberal For Years, Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator Telesphore Damien Bouchard, a power in the Quebec Liberal party for 30 years, died Tuesday night in his Montreal home. He was 80.

Lord Atholstan, one of the first advocates of publicity - owned hydro - electric power during the days of the Quebec legislature—one of the main issues in the 1936 Quebec provincial election campaign—was also president of the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission.

He first ran for election at the age of 23 when he succeeded nationalist Henri Bourassa as member of the legislature for St. Hyacinthe. He also served as mayor of St. Hyacinthe for 25 years.

In his municipal role, he became president and secretary of the Union of Canadian Municipalities. At the same time, he was a publisher and vigorous journalist.

BECOMES SPEAKER

Mr. Bouchard was made deputy speaker of the legislature in 1928 and Speaker in 1930. He was defeated in 1935, because Quebec's first minister of municipal affairs and minister of lands and forests.

With the government defeat and the personal defeat of Premier Adelard Godbout in 1936, Senator Bouchard became House leader of the Opposition.

The Liberals returned to power in 1939, and he headed the provincial reconstruction bureau formed to deal with unemployment and was minister of lands and forests.

In 1943, he was named president of the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission, a position he held when the Liberal government expropriated the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company.

IS KEY MAN

When Adelard Godbout government was forced to save the city of Montreal from bankruptcy, Senator Bouchard was the key man in setting up the Montreal Metropolitan Commission. He also was chairman of a three-man, 99-council-for civic government which was forced to settle the civic election.

Senator Bouchard was a leader in the conscription controversy on the side of Quebec nationalists opposed to the rest of Canada in the Second World War.

He was ailing for the last 15 years but spent the time writing his memoirs. The first of two volumes, covering youth, was published in 1959. Writing was virtually his second career.

In his college days, he went to work for a St. Hyacinthe weekly, The Clarion, which he later bought, and he also founded another weekly, En Famille.

Senator Bouchard's daughter, Cecile Ena Bouchard, is the wife of Senator Hugh John Flemming. The late Blanche Cusson of Montreal died in 1934.

The funeral will be at St. Hyacinthe.

With his death, the standing in the senate house now is: Progressive Conservatives 32, Liberals 59, Independent Liberals 2, Independents 1. There are still 59, Independent Liberals eight vacancies.

Bowling Alley Operators Will Appeal Act

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Hamilton, Ont., bowling alley operators plan to ask the Supreme Court of Canada to rule that the Lord's Day Act violates a section of the Canadian Bill of Rights guaranteeing freedom of religion.

Walter Robertson, 34, and Fred Rostanzi, 37, operators of the Hamilton Caster Bowl, will ask the court Monday for leave to appeal against their conviction for operating the alley contrary to the act.

Mr. Robertson and Mr. Rostanzi, employees of American International Bowling of Canada Limited, were fined $25 and costs last February after being convicted by Magistrate W. R. Jarvis of Hamilton on a charge against their conviction in the Ontario Appeal Court.

The case, heard on the appeal case, to be argued for Mr. Robertson and Mr. Rostanzi by Toronto lawyer John J. Robinette, is the application of the Bill of Rights to the Lord's Day Act.

BYLAW SETS HOURS

A Hamilton bylaw permits bowling alleys to operate between 2 and 6 p.m. Mr. Robertson and Mr. Rostanzi were convicted of operating their alley at 4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 14.

Documents filed with the court by the respective state that the question of whether the Lord's Day Act is in conflict with the Bill of Rights "involves important questions of law and the interpretation of statutes."

The papers state that the act "prohibits certain observances "as a religious value upon the whole Canadian community, including those whose religious values and precepts permit them to engage in activities that thus prohibited. . . ." They state that for this reason the act is in conflict with the human rights and fundamental freedoms set out in the Bill of Rights such as freedom of religion.

The act, the papers state, "is properly characterized as legislation designed to observance of Sunday solely in its religious significance."

Socreds Maintain Winter Election Would Be Wrong

OTTAWA (CP)—The two-man leadership of the Social Credit party campaigned a plague on both Liberals and Progressive Conservatives Tuesday but maintained it believes a mid-winter election would be wrong.

Leader Robert Thompson and Deputy Leader Real Caouette sketched their party's platform during a luncheon speech but upheld by all 30 Social Credit MPs. They spoke at a press conference where a barrage of rapid-fire questions from reporters of the party's future brought little information.

Mr. Thompson said that there was no discussion on him and his deputy on party policy. He suggested that reporters have been misinterpreting the statements and actions of himself and Mr. Caouette. Mr. Caouette backed him solidly in that.

Then Mr. Thompson repeated his often-stated belief that a mid-winter election would be wrong because of the country's economic condition and because an election campaign would add another two or three months of instability and confusion to the national picture.

But he charged Prime Minister Diefenbaker with using prime leadership in Parliament on measures to correct economic problems and accused the Liberals of being obsessed with the idea of bringing on an election. He said they are out of effort toward sound government.

His assessment was that an election would be necessary if the government continues to fail in leadership and the Liberals continue to press for one. But if one comes, Social Credit will be the party which forces it.

Mr. Caouette said the electors "are going to decide who will be power and influence toward "positive" legislation in a Parliament where none of the four political parties commands a majority of seats.

Ugly Situation Reported To Be Brewing in Aden

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Reports reaching London indicate an ugly situation is brewing in the British crown colony of Aden.

The British government proposes to go ahead with its plan to link the colony, a vital military base, to the Federation of Southern Arabia by next March.

The federation is a series of British protected sultanate states in the colony's hinterland. An unmarked, unpatrolled border separates them from the revolution-torn Yemen.

Mr. Robertson and Mr. Rostanzi, employees of American International Bowling of Canada Limited, were fined $25 and costs last February after being convicted by Magistrate W. R. Jarvis of Hamilton on a charge against their conviction in the Ontario Appeal Court.

In the colony a strong left-wing Arab Nationalist group, with its nucleus in the Aden Trades Union Congress, is opposing federation because it sees the expanded territory as an extension of British power and influence in the area.

LINKED WITH CAIRO

The Aden TUC has links with President Nasser's Arab Nationalists in Cairo and strong sympathy for the revolutionary government in the Yemen.

The colony's government has been using tough new laws either to imprison or deport anti-federation agitators. A new anti-draft agreement on union was signed last August.

Riots broke out in September when the Aden legislative council finally approved federation and an illegal strike was called by employees of the armed forces was called last month.

World's Fair in Montreal To Be National in Charcter

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities say they are anxious to have the 1967 World's Fair in Montreal recognized internationally as the Canadian World's Fair—not just as Montreal's.

Efforts are being made to have broad coast-to-coast Canadian participation as well as attendance by the great majority of the nation's 100th birthday year.

Key personnel for organization of the big show will come as loans from the federal government as well as from city of Montreal and the province of Quebec.

As far as humanly possible, chief officers of the fair will be chosen equally from English and French Canadians and from unilingualism in individuals a goal.

Another feature of the planning, it believes, will relieve a man who have been working on the preliminary ideas, will be to seek a "national character" of Commonwealth representation from each of the countries of which Canada is normal at a world's fair.

This is the first international fair to be held in Canada since the Canadian Confederation opened in 1867.

APPROVED IN PARIS

The application for 1967, approved by the International Bureau of International Bureau of Exhibitions, was sponsored by the federal government.

This was in accordance with the international committee's rules which require the sponsoring government of the sponsoring country to make the application.

Sparkplug in pushing the world's fair idea was Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal, who had strong backing from Montreal MPs, including former postmaster - general William Hamilton, and solid support from the Quebec provincial government. Because of the federal-provincial municipal flavor, Montreal has responsibility in Canada, joint planning is expected.

Montreal was the only Canadian city to push for a world's fair when the federal government threw the question open two years ago. While some 1,000 cities in communities would have liked to have the nod, they were not able to offer the financial, municipal services and accommodation that Montreal could pledge.

Stevenson Sends Sharp Letter To Goldwater

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Adlai Stevenson sent a sharply worded letter Tuesday to Senator Barry Goldwater, accusing the Arizona Republican of distorting Stevenson's role at the U.N. and asking him to stop it.

Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and a former Democratic candidate for president, was reacting to remarks by Goldwater's demand that President Kennedy fire him for what Goldwater described as being "soft on communism and soft on Cuba."

Stevenson did not mention the demand in his brief letter. However, instead, he suggested that in the future Goldwater live up to the obligations of a U.S. senator "to be more careful and responsible in your public statements."

He added tartly:

"I trust you will keep that in mind if you have occasion to refer to me in such of mine again."

Goldwater called Monday night for the ouster of Stevenson and three other administration officials, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Assistant Secretary Edwin M. Martin and Assistant Secretary Jr., Chester Bowles and Richard Goodwin.

Goldwater earlier dealt primarily with a statement by Goldwater attributing to Stevenson a statement that "the only needy administration is prepared to take risks to lessen the causes of an intensified arms race.

Israel Opera Leader Charged

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — A conductor of the Israeli National Opera, Hirsch Birenblatt, was arraigned on Tuesday to stand trial on charges of delivering thousands of Jews to their Nazi murderers.

Birenblatt came from Poland to settle in Israel two years ago as accompanist at a performance in a kibbutz (communal farm). A man in the audience claimed to recognize Birenblatt as his former boss in the Lwowish ghetto in Nazi camps).

Ike Did Not Attempt to Keep His Staff Program

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadcasting executive James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary under former president Eisenhower, agrees with Eisenhower's denial that he attempted to keep Alger Hiss off the television program about Richard M. Nixon's political career.

Eisenhower said Tuesday in answer to questions that he telephoned Hagerty, now an American Broadcasting Company vice - president in charge of news, before the ABC program was aired last Sunday.

He said he wanted "to find out what it was all about," but did not ask Hagerty to eliminate Hiss from the taped program.

Eisenhower said he "expressed amazement" upon learning that Hiss, convicted perjurer first exposed by Nixon —was among those interviewed on the program.

"But never in my life have I asked anybody not to report a story after they got it fully," Eisenhower said.

Hagerty had the ultimate responsibility for televising the controversial program.

REPORTS REMARKS

Hagerty's name got into the controversy when a Buffalo (N.Y.) Evening News account reported that Richard International Chairman William E. Miller who told of Eisenhower's alleged remarks to Hagerty.

A short time after Eisenhower explained his position Tuesday, Miller made a statement in which he referred to the newspaper's account of Miller's remarks, and said:

"Mr. Miller is reporting second hand and inaccurately a personal conversation with Gen. Eisenhower and myself.

"The general, to my knowledge, has never attempted to intervene with any news media to prevent the airing or the printing of my story. . . ."

Nixon, vice - president under Eisenhower, was a congressman from California in 1948 when he first acted against Hiss.

DENIES MEMBERSHIP

Hiss, then a high - ranking state department official, appeared before the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities and denied he was a member of or was a Communist espionage ring. A later denial by Hiss before a federal grand jury that he passed information to the Russians caused him to prison for perjury, and he served 44 months.

Hiss, 58 and now a stationery salesman here, has repeatedly denied the charges.

Hiss' appearance on the television program with three other witnesses has set off numerous protests across the country.

Pope Requests Catholics to Spread Cheer

ROME (AP) — Pope John, smiling and in good spirits, called himself an optimist Tuesday and urged Roman Catholic prelates to cheer up and spread confidence around the world.

The Pope, who will be 81 in two weeks, delivered his message in an unscheduled visit to a memorial service honoring a Polish patron saint.

He recalled he had visited Poland almost 50 years ago.

"Since then, many things have happened," he said. "Men have come and gone, we all have accustomed to a new trend of life. Yet, I remained always an optimist, because this is my nature, more so when I hear near me the voice concern for the fate of mankind."

The pontiff urged everybody to "have some confidence in men I have."

"Cheer up," he said, "and spread this word around the world."

PLAN PLEBISCITES

HAMILTON (CP)—City council approved a bylaw Tuesday night providing for a plebiscite on fluoridation at the Dec. 5 municipal elections. Bylaws were also approved for plebiscites on Sunday movies and the extension of the franchise to all 18-year-olds.

Ike Will Crack Down on Attempt to Delay Probe

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice T. G. Norris warned the Seaway Labor Relations Board in Canada Tuesday that he will crack-down on any new attempt to delay or frustrate his one-man investigation of terror and violence in the turbulent maritime labor field.

The 69 - year - old Vancouver jurist served a blunt notice that he plans to submit his report to the federal government in time to be used for the 1963 shipping season.

Speaking crisply, the judge threatened to set a cut-off deadline on further SIU evidence on the strife-torn feuds of unions seeking representation among Canada's 7,000 Lake sailors.

"I have come to the very definite conclusion that enough has been done is part of a deliberate attempt to delay and frustrate the course of this inquiry—an attempt to turn its proceedings into a farce."

REVIEWS HARRASSING

The judge made his statement after reviewing the last 10 hearings at which SIU head has sought to refute allegations against itself by detailed documentary evidence and by producing evidence that the judge found often irrelevant, unnecessary repetitious and time-consuming.

"I will not tolerate further harassing of the board by such tactics which are reprehensible and unfair to Canadian procedures," he said.

His sharply-worded statement came as the inquiry resumed public sessions in Ottawa, after a surprise shift from Montreal where the SIU launched its case two weeks ago.

It came as the SIU filed, without comment, a document that seems bound to explode into a new dispute at some future session of the federal inquiry.

The document was the minutes of an Oct. 3 SIU meeting at which SIU President Hal C. Banks is reported to have accused Mr. Justice Norris of bias, and to have stammed the judge for "abusing" SIU counsel.

SUMMARIZE REPORT

The minutes, summarizing Mr. Banks' report on why he was not maintaining a day-to-day watch on the proceedings, said:

. . . Brother Banks thought it expedient that he absent himself from the daily sessions before his indignation lead him and his resentment of the unfair attitude displayed by SIU counsel . . . resulted in a public blow-up before we had a chance to present our side of this dispute."

Mr. Justice Norris announced that he will continue his inquiry in Ottawa because "it is more convenient for the purpose of performance of duties and in the public interest."

In the aftermath of recent speculation that the SIU was considering court action, Banks told reporters in Quebec, today, if not block, further investigations into labor unrest on the Lakes.

The jurist was appointed almost four months ago to make the searching investigation of shipping disruptions and violence on the Lakes.

Lawyer Claims Uncorroborated Evidence Used to Convict Man

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto lawyer Walter Williston said Tuesday that uncorroborated Crown evidence was used to convict Detroit Mobster Angelo Lucas of capital murder following a double slaying in Toronto a year ago.

He also told the Supreme Court of Canada that Ontario Chief Justice J. C. Gillanders' charge to the jury which convicted Lucas was prejudicial to the accused.

Mr. Williston said Crown Counsel Henry Bull drew "terrible inferences" from the uncorroborated evidence in addressing the jury.

He asked the court to quash the conviction on the two main grounds of a miscarriage of justice and to acquit Lucas of capital murder, or to order a new trial.

Lucas was convicted of the murder of Theodore Carter, 44, Carter and Carolyn Newman, 23, in their Toronto apartment. Miss Newman was killed Nov. 17 in a Toronto apartment in early January. Carter also was shot four times.

During the trial before Chief Justice Gillanders, the defence argued that Lucas was the victim of a frame-up. His counsel contended that although Lucas had left Carter and Miss Newman, a professional killer entered the apartment and committed the murders.

Mr. Williston said an important issue in the appeal case was that blood of the types A and AB was found on a number of articles in a Detroit apartment frequented by Lucas and his car in which he had ridden.

The blood types of the two persons murdered, he said, was B. But the defence was unable to submit evidence as to the blood types of the victims to show that the blood on the articles must "have come from a person other than the accused."

Mr. Williston said that the Crown referred to underwear found in the Detroit apartment as belonging to Lucas. The defence, he said, told the jury that "his underwear which was found in the basement had been washed, but was still blood stained."

Statements of this type by the Crown, Mr. Williston said, were "most damaging" to Lucas. The Crown submitted no evidence to prove that the underwear belonged to the accused.

Mr. Williston which was in addressing the court of appeal also argued against the Crown being permitted to introduce evidence as to other criminal acts alleged to have been committed by Lucas.

Will Insert St. Joseph's Name in Mass

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XXIII ordered that during the first change in the heart of the Roman Catholic mass in 1,300 years.

He granted a request that many bishops at the Roman Catholic ecumenical council urged—inserting the name of St. Joseph in a remembrance during the mass.

It was the first concrete action to come out of the council that has been under periodically a council decision. The 90-year-old pope acted on his own. No votes have yet been cast by the 2,200 council prelates on proposed changes in liturgy (public worship).

A theologian serving a council commission explained that the papal decision on St. Joseph represented "another way to express the church's interest in the workingman."

St. Joseph is venerated under several titles and honored in his own name on March 19. He was named Patron of the Universal Church" in 1870 by Pope Pius IX.

But the pius action was seen as a way to counter communism's appeal to the workingman in the lavish May Day parades in Red capitals.

The changes in the canon of the mass—the prayers, hymns and actions just before and after the consecration of bread and wine—were made by the pope St. Gregory the Great, who died in 604.

"In those days the church was dealing with heresies that denied the divinity of Christ," the theologian explained.

Today's decision was announced at a closed council session inside St. Peter's Basilica.

Pope himself was not there.

St. Joseph's name will be inserted in all masses starting Dec. 8.

The council fathers — cardinals, archbishops, bishops, abbots and religious superiors—agreed Tuesday to end discussion of the liturgy.

Unmanned Diesels Guided By Electronic Track Devices Used to Move Valuable Ore

By WALLY WARD
Canadian Press Correspondent

LABRADOR CITY, Nfld. (CP)—Those who feel the romance disappeared from railroading when the utilitarian diesel replaced the majestic steam engine are in for another shock.

Now they can do away with the engineer.

The vast, rugged wilderness of northern Labrador may seem an unusual place for experiments in assembly-line transportation, but every day near this iron - ore community 500 miles northeast of Quebec City unmanned diesels, responding to electronic signals picked up through the tracks, haul thousands of tons of valuable ore.

The robot trains move mechanically over 3 1-5 miles of track between the mine site and a concentrator, where some of the rock is separated from the ore before it is shipped south for further processing.

Picking up coded signals, the engine automatically speed up to climb grades, slow down for curves, stop for loading or dumping and inch their cars into proper positions at both ends of the track.

SYSTEM UNDER STUDY

The system known as Automatic Train Operation, is being studied to see whether the technique can be applied elsewhere.

Capable of operating round the clock throughout the year, the robot trains have been in action since July to carry out the riches of the Smallwood mine of the Iron Ore Company of Canada.

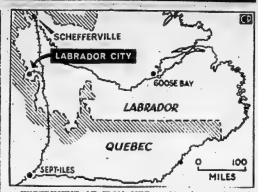
The trains, now pulling 15 hundred-ton cars every trip, are capable of moving 20,000,000 tons of ore a year.

Key to the automated transportation is a cabinet packed with wires and relays in a building near the concentrator.

From this cabinet electric pulses are sent through special loops between the tracks. The pulses are picked up by special coils built into the diesel, actuating the locomotive's controls.

For example, 371½ pulses a minute will put the diesel's brakes on. Speed the pulses up to 75 a minute and the diesel accelerates to 7½ miles an hour. Other codes will speed the train along at 20 miles an hour, reverse it or inch it along at one-eighth of a mile an hour for loading or dumping.

The diesels are conventional 1,750-horsepower machines, except that instead of a driver's cab they have the receiving coils.



To be loaded, the train backs into a 400-foot tunnel to which ore has been built. The ore, hauled from the nearby mine in huge trucks, is dumped down the chute into the train cars.

The train inches forward, placing each of its cars under the chute until all are filled. Then it chugs off for the concentrator, dumps the entire load and backs up for another supply.

Engineers associated with the development of the robot trains say there is nothing spooky about the operation. They say the trains work on much the same principle as automatic elevators in a large office building or an apartment house, where passengers push a button to indicate their floor.

Pushing the button closes the elevator's doors, starts it moving at a predetermined speed and then stops it at the right place.

In the same way, they say, pushing buttons can control the movements of the giant ore train.

EXPERIMENT AT IRON SITE — Map locates Labrador City, an iron-ore community, where experiments are being conducted with robot trains. The crewless diesels are operated electronically near a mine site. Labrador City is on a branch line of the Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway linking the mining centres of Schefferville, Que., and the St. Lawrence River port of Sept-Iles.—(CP Newsmap.)

Chief Election Officer Has Machinery Down to Science

By JACK PICKETTS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Ballot boxes ready for delivery lined narrow corridors in the big basement of the Colonial Building here.

Solemn-faced clerks scurried from one room to another clutching important-looking papers.

Through what at first appeared to be a flurry of confusion strode Nehemiah Short, the military exactness of his big frame and his cool exterior dispelling thoughts of crisis.

Mr. Short, his calm unruffled by an amount of jangling telephone bells and other din, falls the task of running the voting machinery in Newfoundland's provincial election Monday, Nov. 19.

It's a job that has its headaches for the chief electoral officer. Not the least of them is the brief period between dissolution and voting day—a month this year, often less.

In that time ballot boxes must be delivered to the tiny communities lining the isolated coast of northwest Newfoundland and of Labrador. The south coast is a little easier but has more outport villages.

BALLOTS FOLLOW

After they go he has 10 days to print ballots and send them after the boxes.

But Mr. Short has it down to a science. Now 65, he has been chief electoral officer since Confederation in 1949. He was relieved of his duties as deputy minister of economic development in 1955 to take on the election job full-time.

He has played a part in every Newfoundland election since 1920. He directed the mechanics of electing representatives to a national convention in 1946 and two referendums over the next three years that led to Newfoundland becoming a province.

In the 1956 election Mr. Short put into operation a new system for collecting returns from remote areas—a system which that year and in 1959 made it possible to announce the outcome the same night. It used to take days or weeks.

The problem then—and now to a lesser extent—was the isolation of communities scattered along 6,000 miles of coastline, and the lack of communication with those villages.

In such districts as St. Barbe on the Great Northern peninsula, the district returning officer—usually the local magistrate—hired a motor boat and started up the coast delivering ballot boxes and ballots.

COUNTING DELAYED

He would come to the last community and usually lay over until after the election, then start back, picking up boxes of uncounted ballots. Back at home base, he would open the boxes and start counting, pausing occasionally to inform Mr. Short of his progress.

Legislation in 1955 changed this. Although the boxes may still be delivered the same way in some areas, the deputy returning officer in each poll has authority to open the box election night, make the count, then phone or telegraph the result to the district returning officer. He in turn passes them on to Mr. Short at intervals close enough to indicate a trend in the district.

Soon after the 12-hour polling day ends at 8 p.m. NST Nov. 19 a teletype machine in Mr. Short's office will begin chattering with results from the isolated areas. Some may be delayed because the deputy returning officer has to walk or row a boat several miles to reach a telephone or telegraph office. But most results, usually enough to indicate a trend, will be received well before midnight.

Weather remains a problem. Rough seas could slow returns from several districts. And this year there are 41 ridings instead of 35 as in 1959. They will return 42 members.

MONTREAL (CP) — The old quarter, where Montreal's history began, is a depressed 60-block waterfront area of shabby rooming houses and rotting buildings.

"It's at its rock-bottom lowest," says Eric McLean, "but if I were a millionaire one of the first things I would do is buy up property in the area."

Bachelor McLean, 42, music critic for the Montreal Star, is no angry-dealing financier. His interest in the old quarter is purely altruistic. He wants the whole quarter restored, the venerable buildings propped up and preserved.

In May, 1961, he took out a lease—and later purchased outright for $25,000 — Papineau House, one of the quarter's oldest derelicts. He did it because he hopes to show, by example, that the quarter "is a pleasant area in which to live," and persuade others to do likewise.

NO GAMBLE

"I'll wager that I'm the only person who lives in his own residence in the whole area," he says. Many who work there live elsewhere. The others congregate in rooming houses.

"One thing should be made clear. There is no gamble in investing in a home there. The old buildings can be made into wonderful homes. I'm not an eccentric."

He insists the city's historic houses are better buy than suburban split - levels, and other modern homes, which are "not as large or as comfortable."

Mr. McLean's bold plan to save his beloved quarter may be paying off. Montreal's Dredging National Theatre School hopes to raise funds to buy the 117-year - old Bonsecours Market building.

A Montreal city council commission, named for Jacques Viger, the city's first mayor whose statue stood across from Papineau House, was set up to advise on historic buildings. The city now is considering tax concessions for people who restore houses in the quarter.

BUYS HISTORIC BUILDING — The four-storey Bon Secours Hotel (left), once the town house of rebel leader Louis Papineau, has been purchased by Eric McLean, music critic for the Montreal Star. 19th century rebel who was forced to flee Canada in 1837. His town house on historic Bonsecours Street overlooking the St. Lawrence River has been deteriorating ever since he left it. Over the years successive landlords put up flimsy partitions to handle more tenants. Instead of replacing old rotted floors, new boards were merely hammered over the old. One room was nine layers thick.

Nobody seemed to care when the ceilings began to sag and the wiring and plumbing disintegrated. A sleezy restaurant occupied what had been Papineau's law office on the ground floor. The derelicts of society, drunks and down - and - outers, found the four-storey house in their liking—beds 15 cents to 25 cents a night.

Then Mr. McLean six months to clear a corner of the second floor where he could live. Exterminators worked an entire week ridding the house of rodents and vermin.

HAS LARGE APARTMENT

He threw himself vigorously into the task of restoration. Contractors were hired to do the major jobs. But he and some friends did most of the backbreaking work, sanding, cleaning, painting, wrecking.

Now he has a seven - room apartment on the restored second floor. But it's only a start. His plans are to convert the two top floors into apartments for rent. "I haven't even thought about that ground floor yet," he says.

Mr. McLean has been so busy that he hasn't had time yet to investigate a legend about the house's tunnel. Nobody has been able to find it, and nobody seems to know what it was used for. He thinks it may have been an escape tunnel to the river, or it may have linked Papineau's house with that of his father's nearby.

How long will it take to restore the house to his liking? "It's a career," he answers.

But, when he looks at the big, sprawling relic from the past and wonders what he's wrought, he's glad he stayed single.

"I never would have been able to talk a wife into this."

Doctor Says Today's Children Are 'Fundamentally Sound'

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Benjamin Spock considered as indispensable as a diaper pin by most young parents, gives them further aid and comfort with his diagnosis of today's children: "Fundamentally sound."

One way you can tell they're sound, he said the other day, is by how they study—"longer, harder, with more judgment and showing maturity in their extracurricular interests."

As reassuring in person as he is in print, Spock has a craggy, good - humored face and a rangy, six-foot-four frame. He's the author of a book on baby and child care that has sold 13,000,000 copies—and a just-published volume Problems of Parents.

"Many parents still are going through more strain, worry and suffering than they need to in bringing up children," he said.

If you're tempted to worry about the younger generation, he advises comparing it with the youngsters of the 20s when he was going to school.

MINOR DELINQUENCY

"The serious student then was frowned on by everybody, and the only approved things were clothes and sports. I not only approved of these things," the former Yale man added with a grin, "but I applied myself with great earnestness."

He said there is more delinquency today but "most of it is insignificant pranks, moderately destructive." Studies asking leading citizens what they did as adolescents show that "90 per cent did these things."

Spock, who teaches child development at Western Reserve Medical School in Cleveland, Ohio...is no longer in private practice. So perplexed parents call his wife, Jane, for advice.

"I don't give it," she said shaking her head firmly. "I suggest they ask their pediatrist. I'm even very careful not to give advice about my grandsons, although that's hard."

SONS AT HARVARD

They are Danny, 3½ and Peter, 1½, sons of 29-year-old Michael, who, after teaching at Antioch College, is back at Harvard to get a master's degree. The Spocks' younger son, John, 18, is in his first year there.

"You could say I had two only children," said Mrs. Spock.

"Mike was 11 when John was born. Mike was brought up in the old-fashioned way—Ben was then just an intern—fed every four hours, cry an hour before feeding, that sort of thing. John was brought up entirely differently—on a self demand schedule and so forth. I don't know how relevant it is, but it was easier for John to adjust to college."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Last year over 51,000 youngsters played organized hockey under the aegis of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. Over 9,000 of this number represented Eastern Ontario from Peterborough to Bancroft to Gananoque. Breaking this down again the Belleville Minor Hockey Association catered to the hockey needs of some 1,500 puck-chasing moppets.

Already in the urban centres and some of the outlying communities fortunate enough to have artificial ice, minor hockey is well under way. All classifications are in operation here while Trenton, Napanee, Picton, Kingston and Gananoque have their leagues under a full head of steam.

Rural areas in the congested Western Ontario districts are more fortunate than the tenderfoot part of the O.M.H.A.'s sprawling puck Ponderosa. Due to closer proximity and a greater preponderance of artificial ice arenas, the "cowboy" section gets a head start in training, practice and leagues operation.

A lot of them are under way already while down thisaway the hockey shoots are just beginning to sprout in the back fifties, if you will forgive the alleged pun. Some of them who have fairly good accesses to artificial ice are in action I understand but it is purely pre-seasonal and the work of foresighted coaches and managers.

Down-to-earth organization of Eastern Ontario minor hockey will be foundationed at a meeting called for the Legion hall in Stirling next Monday night, November 19th, starting at eight o'clock sharp.

OMHA second vice-president Doug Patterson has called this important pre-season session and officials of all clubs planning to enter group play should be on hand.

If top officials cannot be in attendance they are urged to send delegates so that a full representation will be on-hand. This will greatly facilitate the work of organization.

And as a reminder: this covers all clubs from pee-wee to juvenile.

Last season was a record one as far as entries are concerned and the record applies to Eastern Ontario as well as other districts under OMHA jurisdiction. With a new mark indicated by an expected increase in teams, no late entries will be accepted.

Representatives are requested to come prepared to draw up schedules and to bring as much information as possible, including home dates. This is very important.

And vice-prexy Patterson has this to say to pee-wee managements: "If you wish to enter a group or league, or if you are interested in a district tournament to be held in late January or early February please attend this meeting. Plans will be outlined."

And to midget and lower categories: "The OMHA at its recent annual meeting passed a ruling that all players in midget and lower series, with the exception of the goalkeeper, shall wear helmets. Use of helmets by goalkeepers shall be optional. The referee is not to start play if any player is on the ice without a helmet. Play is not to be stopped due to a helmet coming off during play. Violation of this rule shall not be grounds for a protest."

The above rule does not come into effect until January 1st, so there is plenty of time for players to secure the helmets. It might not be a bad idea to ask Santa Claus to bring one to the youngsters. They will be on general sale before Christmas.

So remember, gentlemen, the Legion Hall, Stirling, Monday, November 19th, at eight o'clock sharp. "It will pay you to be there."

Taylor Scores Three

Royals Dump Wings 5-3

GUELPH (CP) — Two unanswered goals in the third period gave Guelph Royals a 5-3 victory over Hamilton Red Wings Tuesday night in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A encounter here.

The win was the Royals' third in nine starts and pushed Hamilton one point ahead of the Wings, who dropped into the league cellar.

Bill Taylor, with three goals, led the Royal attack, but rookie Gary Sabourin's tally from behind the Hamilton cage at 10:53 of the third actually doomed the Wings.

Royals' defenceman Bob Plager fired home a 35-foot screen shot less than four minutes later to close out the scoring.

Pit Martin, Paul Henderson and Keith Burling divided the Hamilton scoring.

In Metro Toronto Junior A contests, Toronto Marlboros defeated Weston 4-1, Neil McNeil tied 3-3 with Knob Hill and Oshawa blanked Brampton 2-0.

Wings at Chicago ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Plante'd Habs Meet Flying Leafs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A year ago, things were different.

Montreal Canadiens, with masked bandit Jacques Plante in the nets, led the National Hockey League. Detroit Red Wings doddered in fourth place on their way to a fifth-place finish.

Plante has missed 12 of Montreal's 14 games this year with various ailments and the absence of his inspiring saves are one big reason why Canadiens, last year's league champions, are only tied for third place with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Meanwhile, the Wings put never-was man Parker MacDonald on a line with established stars Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio and have moved into clear possession of first place.

Detroit has 21 points, five more than Chicago Black Hawks and six more than Canadiens and Leafs. Delvecchio, an iron man who hasn't missed a game in the last five seasons, leads the league scoring race with 16 points.

LEADS IN GOALS

MacDonald, a 29 - year - old journeyman from Sydney, N.S., is in second spot with 15 points and leads the league in goals with eight. He has blossomed this year 10 years of shuttling back and forth between the NHL teams—Detroit, Rangers and Toronto—and the minors.

Howe, in his 17th year with the wings, sets a league scoring record with each point he gathers. He's tied for third place with six other scorers. The line has netted 10 of wings' 39 goals.

The highest-scoring line in the league last year at this point was the Andy Bathgate-Dean Prentice-Earl Ingarfield combination for New York.

The Rangers, sparked by this trio, were surprising everybody in second place, only two points behind Canadiens. This year they are in fifth place with a measly eight points, one more than last-place Boston.

Chicago's jump from fifth spot in the standings at the one-fifth point last year has been propelled by the scooter line of Stan Mikita, Ab McDonald and Ken Wharram.

Mikita and McDonald have part of third place with 14 points this year, and Wharram has nine. Last year, only Mikita was among the top 25 scorers this point.

VIE FOR THIRD

Plante will be out to continue a sensational comeback record when he returns to the Montreal goal tonight in Toronto in a battle between the two third-place clubs. In other action, Detroit travels to Chicago and Boston is in New York.

The thin, highstrung Plante was ailing with influenza in Canadiens season opener, a 5-3 pounding at the hands of Bruins in Boston.

After missing the next 10 games, he came back last Thursday to spark Canadiens to a 4-1 win over Detroit. He kicked out 42 of 43 shots fired against him, and snapped the Montrealers back into championship form with seemingly-impossible saves against Howe.

But he aggravated a groin injury in that game, and after one period of Saturday's game against Chicago, he sat out the weekend.

Toronto will be trying for their fourth straight win. They have yet to lose after substituting Don Simmons in goal for the aging Johnny Bower.

SCORING IS LOWER

Bathgate led league scoring with 24 points at this time last year, and one point behind was Montreal's Claude Provost.

The lower scoring this year has meant a more bunched-up scoring race, as the nearest rivals to Bathgate and Provost at this point a year ago were five points behind Provost, who had 18 points.

Provost was hitting at an amazing 65-goal-a-season rate then, while Bobby Hull, Chicago's starry left winger, had only four goals in 13 games.

As everybody knows, the blonde jet roared back with 46 goals in the next 35 games to tie the league record of 50 goals.

The most improved award at this point would go hands down to Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk, who has almost halved his goals-against average to a water-tight 1.69 from 3.23 at this time last year.

Sawchuk, with a bested-up defence in front of him, has three shutouts to date and leads the league in that department. Oddly enough, he led in shutouts at this date last year with two.

Cassius, 'Lean and Hungry'

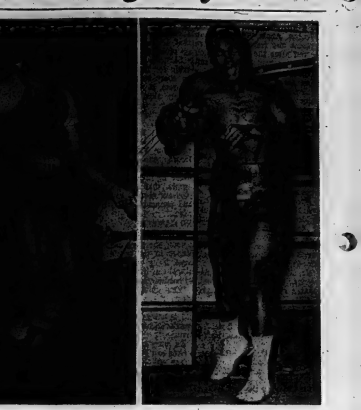
'Age Means Nothing' Says Arch

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Archie Moore, whose age ranges upward from 48, assured his followers Tuesday he will be in top shape and capable of disposing of young Cassius Clay in their 12 - round heavyweight fight Thursday night.

"I am not concerned with weight, as such. It is how I feel, the strength I know I'll need," Archie explained, adding, "age means nothing."

Jack (Doc) Kearns, Moore's advisor and one of the few men in boxing who will admit he's older than Archie, was a little more precise.

"Archie is in the best shape he can get into at his age," said Mr. Kearns, who predicted Moore would enter the ring at the Sports Arena at around 196 pounds.



IN TOP SHAPE

Clay at 20 is a superb physical specimen and still growing. His and his trainer, Angelo Dundee, figure he'll tip the scales at 200, possibly a pound or so over.

"Makes no difference," said Clay. "I'll still have my speed and my footwork. That old man will never catch me."

Kearns said Moore is dead serious about knocking out Clay and aiming for a heavyweight title match with Sonny Liston.

Twice before Archie reached for the big plum but went down to defeat, knocked out by Rocky Marciano in three rounds in 1955 and by Floyd Patterson in five in 1956.

THEY'RE BOTH SET — Venerable Archie Moore (left) goes through a rope-skipping routine, tapering off training for Thursday night's battle with Cassius Clay (right) who does a little shadow boxing in his final preparations. Archie says he'll put the brash young Clay away but Cassius says "that old man will never catch me." Fight is billed as a heavyweight elimination bout to see who gets a shot at champion Sonny Liston. Bowmanville Nips Macs

PICTON (Special) — Bowmanville Shamrocks roared back with four third-period goals to spoil the Picton Meafarlands home debut here last night and skate off with a 6-4 victory.

The loss was the second in a row for the Macs, the 7-1 setback at Uxbridge Monday night apparently taking its toll.

The McFarlands grabbed a 2-1 first-period lead and held the margin in the second frame as the teams split a pair of markers.

The Shamrocks had the score tied and a goal lead after twelve minutes of play in the third period. Picton tied the score but the Shamrocks snatched the victory with two goals in 29 seconds late in the session.

The game was a clean-cut affair before a sparse opening crowd of 250 fans. Only four minor penalties were handed out, three to the homesters.

Ron Hull paced the McFarlands with two goals and an assist with Keith MacDonald and Davy Jones getting ons and one each. Doug Murray had two assists with coach Lionel Bolly and Bob Fawcett being credited with singles.

Dean West scored two of the Shamrock goals with brother Keith assisting for a goal and two assists. Crossey, Marjerrison and Masters scored the others.

The McFarlands make their third start in the Lakeshore Intermediate League next Tuesday night when they play hosts to the Uxbridge Black Hawks.

Bears Join 'Tax Reliefers'

CHICAGO (AP)—A move to get special tax relief for professional athletes in the United States picked up momentum Tuesday when Chicago Bears joined the Players Association of the National Football League.

The Bears, the last team to join the association, took the action after meeting with Pete Retzlaff of Philadelphia Eagles, president of the Players Association.

Retzlaff said: "We now can present a united front in working on a tax relief bill for professional athletes before Congress.

"We have been in contact with other professional sports—like baseball, hockey, basketball and golfers—and we hope to come up with a bill recommending a formula for tax relief of the professional athlete whose earning career is comparatively short."

Als New Offense Cat Mystery

Don Clark Big Difference

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger - Cats, preparing for the first battle of their two-game, total points series with Montreal Alouettes for the Eastern Football Conference championship, are acting on the theory that they will be facing an "almost new" Alouette offence.

"We're actually going into this game cold," Joe Restic, Hamilton assistant coach, said Tuesday night. "We haven't worked against this new offence of theirs this season."

First game of the final will be in Montreal Saturday, with the return game here Saturday, Nov. 24. The winner goes against the West in the Grey Cup at Toronto Saturday, Dec. 1.

WAS IN RELIEF

The basic difference between this Montreal team and the one the Tiger-Cats defeated twice and tied once during the regular season is that halfback Don Clark has returned to the backfield.

Actually, his first return to action after being absent most of the season with a kidney injury was against the Ticats 2½ weeks ago.

"If was his first game, he didn't appear until the second half, and he was used as relief for Larry) Hickman. Now, they're in the same backfield along with (George) Dixon and it has created something of a problem for us."

The Ticats are spending much of their time working up defences to stop the revitalized Montreal attack. They figure they can afford the time from their offensive work as they have had considerable experience against the Alouette defence.

"But we're in the dark as far as their offence goes," Restic said. "We know, for instance, that they are putting more emphasis in motion quite a bit now, but the first time they used this new style was against Ottawa last week. And that game was played under such terrible conditions that we can't get much from watching those films."

City League Hockey Tonight!

Welbanks Motors will be gunning for their second consecutive victory when they clash with Trudeau Motors in the opening game of tonight's City Hockey League double-header at Memorial Arena.

The Trudeau - Welbanks game will start at 7.45 sharp this evening. The second game, which also promises to be a battle royal, features the Pepsi's and Joyce-Rollins Combines in a 9.15 affair.

Welbanks is the only club in the loop with a win to date Joyce-Rollins having lost their lone game while Pepsi's and Trudeaus tied.

Stu Muirhead, off to a flying start with five goals in the loop opener a week ago, will likely be in for extra coverage from the Trudeau boys tonight. Muirhead will be going against Don "Turk" Barclay, in the Trudeau nets, and Barclay, with the likes of Vern Goyer, Ed Plata, Ed Marineau and Bruce Gelsthorpe in front of him, should be plenty tough to beat.

The Pepsi's hope to have several of their big scoring guns, such as Dave Jones, George Jackiw and Bobby Brooks, who missed last week's game, in action against the Combines in the night cap, as well as "Shaker" Baker, Doug Murray and many others.

Joyce-Rollins, of course, will counter with the likes of Bob Taylor, Ron Hull, Jackie Elliott, Duke Doran and Hyde Bryant, to mention a few.

Neither club has a win to its credit and from the dressing room talk, both teams seem determine to get that first big victory against the other.

Over 200 fans took in the season openers last week and after two even, hard-fought games, league officials are hoping to see an even better crowd this evening.

Don't forget those game times are 7.45 and 9.15 and one half buck ticket gets you in for both tilts. It's only half that price for the kids too.

Shades of .48!

Calgary Has The Fever!

CALGARY (CP) — Football fever has hit Calgary.

Fans lined up for blocks Tuesday to buy tickets for the first game of the best-of-three Western Conference finals between Calgary and Winnipeg Blue Bombers here Saturday.

Ticket manager Red Snell said between 3,000 and 4,000 tickets were sold for the game. The second battle will be staged in Winnipeg Wednesday, Nov. 21, and the third, if necessary in Winnipeg, Saturday, Nov. 24, Snell anticipates a sellout crowd of 20,000 for Saturday's skirmish at McMahon Stadium.

Stampe' coach Bobby Dobbs said he doesn't plan any tough practices this week.

"We've played enough football in the last two to guard against overwork now. This final could go to three games and that would mean a lot of football in two weeks for us!"

Timmins Won't See M. Cleroux

TIMMINS (CP) — Merv McKenzie, Ontario athletic commissioner, has notified boxing promoters that no licence will be granted for a fight here between Canadian heavyweight champion Bob Cleroux of Montreal and Calvin Butler of the United States.

Promoter Sonny Boucher said McKenzie told him by telephone Cleroux is under suspension and cannot fight anywhere in Ontario.

The promoter said the commissioner said he would license a Dec. 10 match, with the proceeds going to a civic Santa Claus fund, if any fighter but Cleroux were used.

Cleroux has been suspended in Ontario for failing to meet Toronto's George Chuvalo in a rematch for the Canadian heavyweight title.

RUSSIANS ARRIVE

MONTREAL (CP) — Twenty Russian hockey players arrived in Montreal from Brussels Tuesday night to begin a nine-game exhibition tour of Canadian cities. The Russian national team was welcomed at Dorval airport by Bob Lebel, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation. The team plays against the Montagnards Thursday night in Ottawa. Only five of the players, whose average age is 24, have been to Canada before.

ONE PUNCH ENDS IT

LONDON (Reuters) — British heavyweight Bill Walker knocked out Newfoundland lumberjack Phonse Lesaga in one minute and 57 seconds of the first round in a scheduled eight-round right Tuesday night. The stewards of the British Boxing Board of Control announced they would withhold the Canadian's purse pending an inquiry. Lesaga was felled with the first good punch of the fight.

Spent Penny And Won $419,483

LONDON (AP) — Gordon Foster, 38-year-old locomotive driver, learned Tuesday night he had won $419,483 for two cents on a soccer pool.

It was the biggest pools win of the British soccer season.

Foster picked eight of last Saturday's British League games to end in draws. All were right.

Foster, who lives with his wife and four-year-old daughter in a railway employee's cottage beside Rainford Junction in Northern Ireland, said: "I have only one rule in filling in my coupon-always include teams from railway centres. They didn't let me down."

Bulldogs Drub Rams

Tigers Clip Terriers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Lou Angotti decided to turn down a professional contract this season to play for Kitchener - Waterloo Tigers, it was one of the Tigers' biggest breaks.

Angotti, a helter - skelter skater who played college hockey in the United States last season, was thought to be a sure-fire pro.

Rochester Americans thought so, but Angotti didn't want to play in the American League.

Tuesday night he scored three goals and assisted on another as Tigers clipped Galt Terriers, early season sensations who now are sinking fast, 7-2, at Galt.

In other Ontario Hockey Association senior series games, the hapless Sarnia Rams were drubbed 7-1 at Sarnia by Windsor Bulldogs and Woodstock Athletics lost 5-2 at home to Chatham Maroons.

LOSE THIRD IN ROW

Galt, said to be in trouble by pre-season experts, started the season with five consecutive wins but now have lost three in a row.

Tigers moved in the other direction. They were classed as a power but didn't start playing that way until recently.

Jim Dahmer, Ted Maki, Bob Forshaw and Bob Ribson scored the other Tiger goals.

Bob Seager and Larry Pfaff were the Galt marksmen.

Tigers led 2-0 at the end of the first period and 5-2 going into the third.

Tommy Walker and Bob Brown paced Bulldogs with two goals apiece and others were scored by Jerry Servias, Lou Bendo and Derek Holmes.

SPOILS SHUTOUT BID

Windsor, leading 4-0 after the first period and 6-0 after the second, built up a 7-0 lead before Barry Jakeman spoiled goaltender Monty Reynolds' bid for a shutout in the third period.

Woodstock, playing its fifth game in eight days, fell from a three-way first - place tie to a second - place tie with Galt. Maroons were paced by Ted Power and Dave Lucink with two goals apiece and the other marksman was George Aitken.

Playing coach Rio Caron and Byrie Klinck scored for Woodstock.

Reds, Aces Play Tie, Barons Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quebec Aces probably would like to play all of their American Hockey League games on home ice.

They have played eight games at home this season and nobody has been able to beat them.

Providence Reds came close Monday night, but they had to settle with a 1-1 tie in overtime. Meanwhile, Baltimore Clippers downed Cleveland Barons 4-3.

Providence led Quebec 1-0 with less than a minute remaining in regulation time, Harry Pidhirny having scored midway in the third period. With 55 seconds left, veteran Danny Lewicki of the Aces tied the game just after Quebec coach Floyd (Busher) Curry put on six attackers.

Goals by Don Johns and player - coach Red Sullivan put the Clippers ahead, but John Ferguson's two goals pulled the Barons even. Successive goals by Pat Hannigan and Bryan Hextall wrapped it up for Baltimore. Fred Hills got the other Cleveland goal.

Western Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil (Suitcase) Maloney, one of hockey's noted travelling hands, has joined the select society of puck - chasers with 500 professional points to their credit.

And hardly anybody noticed.

Maloney, leading scorer in the Western Hockey League, picked up his 500th point Tuesday night on an assist as Vancouver Canucks edged Edmonton Flyers 4-3 in overtime.

Calgary Stampeders bowed 4-2 to the Seals in San Francisco in other action.

Vancouver's goals came from defenceman Al Lebrun, Larry Popein, Jim Baird and Les Hunt. The Flyers replied via John Mizuk, Ray Kinasewich and Neil Firth.

Duke Edmundston, Len Haley, Orland Kurtenbach and Ed Panagabko scored for the Seals. Norm Johnson and Jack Turner hit for Calgary.

Maloney, 35-year-old centre from Ottawa, has toiled for eight pro clubs since he broke from amateur ranks in 1946.

Boy, Born Without Arms, Does Not Feel Handicapped

By BOB TREMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — Lenny Seaby hurtles his 90 - pound frame into sports activities with uncommon gusto for a 13-year-old.

His keen desire for success, coupled with what he has learned through experience watching professionals, listening to coaches or reading books on fundamentals, have brought him plenty of success.

Yet it's only part of the accomplishments of the boy, born without arms, whose day-to-day life is a saga of human courage, determination and example.

"If there's something I want to do I just go out and do it," says Lenny. "I just do it naturally."

And he does.

A Grade 8 student at Killarney Junior high school, he obtains better than average marks, excels at art and has a keen interest in shopwork and in sports.

On the playing field his speed, agility and shrewd reflexes have made him a star. By example he has helped other handicapped youngsters, and adults too, at weekly Red Cross swimming lessons.

Twice he has been named Edmonton's Timmy in annual Easter Seal campaigns for funds to help the handicapped. The glare of publicity, official functions and many comments about how he has overcome his own handicap have not scarred his personality.

CAN BE ROUGH

"I just never think about it because I can do anything I want to. Sometimes people stare at me, but I just stare back and they stop. When I'm playing sports some guys try to get a little rough, but I know it's because they can't stop me any other way. I can be just as rough, but most times I just slip around them when they play me instead of the ball."

His mother says Lenny never ceases to amaze her.

"I often worried about his handicap when he was an infant, wondering just how he would manage. But every time something came up that I thought he wouldn't be able to do, I'd turn around and find him doing it.

"I thought surely that can't be Lenny. In a minute or two around the corner he came, riding the bicycle."

Len has been fitted with a special pair of artificial arms, which he operates by moving his shoulders. He can write with either the arms or his feet. As a Boy Scout he has learned to tie all the knots with his arms.

KICKS BASEBALL

Playing scrub softball, Lenny uses a special glove, designed to work with his artificial arms. When he catches the ball he drops it and kicks it to the base he wants, much in the manner a soccer player directs a pass.

In 1961 he was named all-star right wing in the Edmonton and District Junior-Juvenile Soccer Association. Later he set up the only goal in the city juvenile final and was voted the city's outstanding juvenile soccer player.

Each week he attends swimming classes of the Dolphin Swimming Society, a club comprised of about 50 handicapped persons. He was the first member to win all five of the club's proficiency awards.

At a recent splash party, a car key was thrown into the pool and Lenny had to retrieve it. In he went, fouled the, key, picked it up with his foot, placed it between his teeth and then swam to the surface.

In school art classes, Len amazes fellow students and teachers with his sketches of cars. He does his school work with the use of his special arms, but it's a tiring task and at home he works with his feet.

He has skated since he was five, and played hockey on outdoor rinks.

He enjoys dancing—especially the twist.

"A lot of my friends are a little shy to get up at dances, but not me," he said. "I think it's great."

This Day In Sports

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Pat Remillard aboard Ben Steen's Ballnode came up on the outside behind leading Colonel Bingo, inched ahead, and then hung on to win in a head-to-head duel in a photo-finish in the featured Silver Grain Purse at Old Woodbine Tuesday.

Ron Tarcotte won his 34th race with Nearali in the second, completing a $7 daily double, lowest of the year. The first race was won by Royal Barge.

'Briber' Made Up To $10,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Aaron Wagman has admitted he made about $10,000 fixing college basketball games in the United States during the season of 1959-60 and 1960-61.

Wagman made the statement Tuesday during the trial of Jack Molinas while being cross-examined by Molinas' counsel.

However, Wagman added: "I didn't come out ahead in any year. I gambled away what I made."

Molinas is charged with bribing Billy Reed of Bowling Green, Ohio, to fix three games in 1959 and 1960, with conspiracy attempting to fix 25 college games and with subornation of perjury.

Molinas, now a lawyer, was formally a Columbia University and professional basketball player.

At the Belle

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy star in Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta".

Drama, romance, thrills and the vibrant music of Victor Herbert's greatest operetta, are blended in "Naughty Marietta," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular romance of Creole days in New Orleans, co-starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

The picture tells a story of the settlement of New Orleans by the French in the days of Louis XV and of the love of a disguised French Princess, seeking escape from a marriage of state, and an English officer. Such song hits as "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" "I'm Falling In Love With Someone," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "The Italian Street Song," and all the original music of the operetta is retained in the screen version. Spectacular reproductions of New Orleans and Paris of the period, beautiful costumes and elaborate staging mark the picture. Among the dramatic highlights are the flight from Paris, the battle of the Casquette Girls, the march of the guards through the everglades, the routing of the pirates, the New Orleans marriage market where the girls are sold in marriage and a spectacular ball sequence.

"Naughty Marietta," to be presented at the Belle Theatre, Thursday night, at 8.15, for one showing only, is the last of the Belle popular Golden Operetta series, and was produced by Hunt Stromberg, and directed by W. S. Van Dyke. Prominent in support of the stars are Frank Morgan, Elsa Lanchester, Douglas Dumbrille, Joseph Cawthorne, Cecelia Parker, Walter Kingsford, Greta Meyer, Akim Tamiroff, Harold Huber and Edward Brophy.

Glynis Johns Successful Since Coming to Coast

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When folks actors groan about the Hollywood climate, Glynis Johns keeps her mouth zipped.

"I almost feel guilty about telling them that in my 14 months here I have had three feature films, 10 television films and a major operation," said the English actress.

So successful has she been that she is establishing residence in Hollywood.

There are reasons for her prosperity. First of all, she is one of England's most versatile and accomplished actresses, at home in roles on either side of the ocean. But she hinted at an added quality.

"When I hear other actors complain about the lack of jobs, I feel like asking them a question," she said.

"Are they really eager to find work or do they seek it merely because they need the money?

LIKES TO WORK

"I work because I earnestly want to. I think when you are keen about your work, it really shows. It shows with producers who hire you and it shows on the screen."

Miss Johns admitted that she had lost that feeling three years ago. She chucked the works and holed up in a Swiss chalet, not caring whether she acted again. It was a low period for her personal life, her third marriage having hit the rocks.

She came here with no great enthusiasm to do a television show. She stayed for another show, then underwent surgery.

"I was knocked off my feet for two months and for a while it looked as though it might be permanent," she said. "I think that was when I recovered my zest for acting."

Since her recovery, she has been going like a whirlwind. Her movies have been The Chapman Report, The Cabinet of Caligari and Father's Dell cate Condition. She has appeared in most of the dramatic television hours.

Miss Johns' schedule may be even more strenuous in the future. Desiu is cooking up a television series for her called Glynis. Nurse! it would be a comedy series about life in a hospital, and it seems a natural in the wake of grim-minded Drs. Casey and Kildare.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Good for self-improvement. Use abilities. Act on decisions. Trust first impulses. Put money to use. Invest. Plan for future. Help family member solve personal problem.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't ask "how long" something will take to be accomplished. Ask instead, "Is it worth accomplishing?" Remain true to ideals. Refuse to be discouraged. Perceive, analyze.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Stress independence of thought, action. Be original. Be your own leader. Avoid excesses in eating, drinking, working and "playing." Be moderate. Remain on even keel.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Good lunar aspect; today indicates that you gain from romance, the society of younger persons. Pay attention to future possibilities. Let intuitive intellect shine.

If Today is Your Birthday . . a good time to map objectives. Coming months will see tremendous opportunity for constructive changes.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Gemini, Cancer, Leo. Special word to Capricorn. Your day can be made constructive if you realize time is your ally, not your enemy.

Remove Organs From Dogs, Replace Them

WASHINGTON (AP) — The successful removal of whole organs from dogs and the later replacement of the organs in the same animals may point to a new way for surgically treating human cancer, a surgeon said Tuesday.

Dr. Richard C. Lillehei, associate professor of surgery at the University of Minnesota said his technique might also lead to new treatment for stomach ulcers and other human illnesses.

Lillehei, in a report prepared for the annual meeting of the Association of American Surgeons, told about the removal of dogs' intestines for periods of up to six hours.

He said scientists had taken out dogs' stomachs, spleens and other organs and replaced them back in the animals. The dogs, he said, have lived as long as three years without apparent ill effects.

Lillehei said the experiments were part of a research program dealing with an allied subject—the transplanting of human organs from one person to another.

Lillehei said the successful temporary removal of dogs' organs indicates that eventually it may be possible to remove a diseased human organ, treat it by drugs or other means, then return it to the patient.

5-Year House Arrest Orders Served on 3

CAPE TOWN (Reuters)—The South African government served five-year house arrest orders on three people yesterday, including a reporter at work and his wife on a shopping trip.

The arrests brought to 11 the number of persons confined to their home because of the Denis Brian Percy Bunting, a 42 year-old journalist and former Liberals, short of "conservatives and reactionaries," might be possible with New Democratic initiative.

The weekend forays of the two Liberals and Mr. Fisher through the recent examples of infighting between the two parties of the political left. But trip and return from the north this sort of thing will become increasingly frequent.

STEAL FIGURE

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—A bronze sculpture worth several thousand dollars was stolen from the University of Kansas art museum during the weekend. The piece was cast in 1920 by the late German sculptor, Geofre Kolbe. Entitled "Resurrection," it is a figure of a woman, 30 inches high.

Liberals, NDP After Votes in Next Election

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Every time the Liberals glance to their electoral left and the New Democrats look a bit to their right their complexions turn an envious green. Each party is content to regard those votes as vital.

The extent to which these appeals will become calculated campaigns is uncertain. But both have begun firing the gun faster in this preparatory warm-up to the battle of the next general election.

Each considers it is making its prime appeal to the same general voting element—small L Liberals. This has provided some interesting sweats of the other fellows' supporters in recent weeks.

TURNEYED WORDS?

Two Liberals from industrial areas of Ontario, where the New Democrats can point to voting gains, brought out honeyed words.

John Munro (L — Hamilton East) suggested the amalgamation of the two parties on the basis that they are close enough in philosophy to go along together.

Paul Yanu (L — Toronto St. Paul's) told a Liberal meeting that the party line should be to attack the New Democratic leadership while inviting New Democratic supporters "to return to their proper home in the Liberal party."

Perhaps it was significant that Yanu's speech came two weeks of a Toronto address by Douglas Fisher (NDP — Fort William) the leadership newspaper columnist who has occupied, indeed, a not increasing extent with the party's philosophic basis.

Mr. Fisher set out two main lines of New Democratic action in the war with the Liberals. One was to drive his party's prior knowledge and approval and, to that extent, his particular philosophy.

MUST BE RECEPTIVE

First, he said, New Democrats must be more receptive to new people. This, he explained, he meant new people must be made to feel they have a place in the party. For a party which to a great extent is based on CCF-style socialists and union money.

Second, he said, New Democrats must "identify, isolate and destroy" conservatives and reactionary elements in the Liberal party rather than attempt simply to placate these elements as the whole of the federal party.

This assumption that the Liberals harbor persons and ideas to the left of the New Democrats would have two results—the ideas and program of the New Democrats would be put forward and an alignment of Liberals, short of "conservatives and reactionaries," might be possible with New Democratic initiative.

The weekend forays of the two Liberals and Mr. Fisher through the recent examples of infighting between the two parties of the political left. But trip and return from the north this sort of thing will become increasingly frequent.

Mr. K. Attaches 'Ifs' To Offer To Withdraw Jets

Proposal Made in One Of Letters to Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev has sent President Kennedy an offer to pull Russian jet bombers out of Cuba but attached so many "ifs" that a Cuban settlement is not within sight, authoritative sources said today.

Khrushchev's proposal, it was learned, was received several days ago and is being discussed at negotiations—presumably in New York—between U.S. and Soviet representatives have been trying to hammer out an agreement.

Exactly what conditions the Soviet premier attached to his offer were not disclosed.

Authoritative sources said Khrushchev proposed that for withdrawing the planes came in one of several letters he and Kennedy exchanged—none of which

UNEMPLOYMENT STARTS USUAL WINTER RISE

Number of Jobless Is Below Year Ago

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada, rising with the approach of winter, increased by 23,000 from mid-September to total 283,000 in mid-October, a joint report by the bureau of statistics and the labor department said today.

The rise in jobless numbers, due to a sharp drop in farm jobs, left the October unemployment figure 35,000 less than a year earlier.

The unemployment rate increased to 4.3 per cent of the labor-force, compared with 3.9 per cent a month earlier and 4.9 per cent in October, 1961.

The number of Canadians with jobs dwindled by 59,000 in the month to 6,326,000 in mid-October—up 106,000 from a year earlier. The effect on jobless totals of the month's drop in employment was diminished by a reduction of 36,000 in the total labor force.

DESCRIBED AS NORMAL

The increase in unemployment and the decline in numbers with jobs were described by the report as normal seasonal changes for this time of year.

The picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Oct. Sept. Oct. 1962 1962 1961
Labor force	6,609 6,645 6,538
Employed	6,326 6,385 6,220
Unemployed	283 260 318

The report is based on a survey of 35,000 households across Canada during the week ended Oct. 20.

One of the main factors in the job situation was the month's drop of 89,000 in farm employment, a decline mainly concentrated in the Prairies where grain harvesting ended. Non-farm employment rose by 92,000 between mid - September and mid-October, an increase which the report said was "slightly more than usual for this period."

Body of Elderly Hunter Found In Dense Bush

BANCROFT (Special) — The most intensive search for a missing person in northern Hastings county ended on a tragic note today.

Searchers at 11.30 a.m. today found the body of 81-year-old David Casselman, Smithfield deer-hunter missing in dense bush for eight days.

The body was found two miles south of the James Young farm in the Faraday lake district eight miles west of here.

Death was the area where Mr. Casselman had left his camp to hunt deer and disappeared, November 7.

Ontario Provincial police, who continued to press the search despite repeated failure through the week, believe the aged hunter may have suffered a heart attack and fell in thick brush, which concealed him from searchers.

It was not immediately known how long the man had been dead. However, police say there will be no inquest.

Between 30 and 50 volunteers joined the search the eighth day search, aided by a Department of Transport helicopter. At one point the day and was brought in from Marmora as the search turned up no traces of the missing hunter.

The search began when companions in a hunting party had found he had wandered off from a deer runway in the area.

PEARSON FIRES OPENING SALVO AT MINISTER

Grain Proposals Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson fired the opening salvo in the Commons Wednesday of what promises to be a major opposition attack on Agriculture Minister Hamilton and his controversial grain marketing proposals.

Describing the minister's suggestions as "ridiculous," Mr. Pearson said that in making them in a Friday speech to the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool Mr. Hamilton was guilty either of violating the rule of cabinet solidarity or of perpetrating a hoax on the Regina listeners.

Mr. Hamilton defended his action in broaching the proposals, which were that:

1. Farmers consider setting aside a portion of their final wheat payment to build up a fund which would be used to help the federal government meet any losses caused by payment default on export credit sales of grain.

2. The Prairie wheat pools and the United Grain Growers consider forming a grain sales organization to co-operate, exclusively, first the domestic market and later the export market as a non-profit sales agent of the Canadian wheat board.

WILL CONTINUE

Wednesday's abbreviated Commons sitting allowed time only for Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Pearson to speak, and the Opposition leader will continue his speech at a later sitting.

Still in command Credit Leader Thompson, who opposes current multi - million - dollar credit sales of wheat to Red China, and New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas also rose briefly to question the minister's proposals as a device for undermining the Canadian Wheat Board.

Social Liberal protests, the government refused Wednesday to change the schedule of business to allow for an agricultural debate to continue today. Instead, the Commons will resume routine government bills implementing proposals in last April's budget.

Mr. Pearson, introducing his department's 1962-63 spending estimates, said he made his Regina suggestions "for consideration and discussion by western agricultural interests during the next few months."

Crew Abandons Dynamite-Laden Ship Afire Near Bermuda; Schooner in Trouble

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Fire swept a Greek freighter loaded with explosives today and the 25-man crew abandoned the ship in raging seas 300 miles northeast of Bermuda, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

Gale winds whipped the Atlantic as the crew gave up the fight to save the 7,187 - ton freighter, the Captain George, bound from New Orleans to Port Said, Egypt.

The tanker Virginia, flying the Liberian flag, stood by as the ship's crew went over the side. The coast guard reported waves of 33 feet in the area.

Another vessel — identified only as the schooner Curlew — also was caught in the storm 90 miles northwest of Bermuda and the coast guard said the crew of six abandoned the two-masted sailing ship.

The freighter, Captain George caught fire after a terrific explosion Wednesday night.

A U.S. Coast Guard plane circling overhead radioed at 9 a.m. the fire was out of control.

The 450 - foot - long freighter, after leaving New Orleans; stopped at St. Marys, Ga., to pick up 400 tons of commercial explosives.

SPECIAL IMPORT SURCHARGES ON FOOD REMOVED

Will Keep Down Cost of Living

OTTAWA (CP) — Two big steps towards dismantling the government's June austerity measures have whetted opposition demands for more of the same.

Finance Minister Nowlan moved Wednesday to exempt almost all food imports from the special import surcharges imposed June 24.

A day earlier the Bank of Canada reduced its interest rate to four per cent from five—a sharp cut seen as signalling a move to easier credit conditions. It was the third reduction since the rate was pegged at six per cent last June.

The successive moves towards removal of economic dykes thrown up last June during the foreign exchange crisis were taken in the light of the massive build-up of foreign exchange reserves in the last four

Sabine Oral Polio Vaccine Gets Govt. Confidence Vote

OTTAWA (CP) —The Sabin live-virus polio vaccine, suspended for use in Canada two months ago, now has received a vote of confidence from the federal government.

Health Minister Monteith tabled in the Commons Wednesday a report of the Dominion Council of Health recommending that "the use of Sabin vaccine be not deferred no longer."

"I have accepted this advice and it has been made available to all of the provincial health departments for their guidance," he said.

The oral vaccine was withdrawn from general use Sept. 13, little more than six months after it was licensed for use in Canada.

The action was taken after discovery that four persons, and possibly more, of the 4,000,000 Canadians administered the vaccine had developed severe paralysis.

A national committee of experts thereupon began an intensive investigation of all polio cases and other neurological diseases of the nervous system occurring in Canada this year. It was on the basis of this study that the Council of Health recommended reinstatement of the Sabin vaccine.

Given Mandate To Nationalize Power Projects

Obtain 63 Seats, Take 57 Per Cent of Vote

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage's Liberal government now has a mandate from the people to expropriate 11 private power companies in Quebec.

The Liberals Wednesday won the mandate they sought in calling the snap general election after 27 months in office by a two-to-one margin in the Legislative Assembly over the Union Nationale opposition.

The standings, compared with the results in the 1960 election, when the Liberals ended 16 years of Union Nationale rule:

	1962	1960
Liberals	63	52
Union Nationale	31	42
Independent	1	1
Total	95	95

At dissolution Sept. 19, the Liberals held 54 seats as a result of gains in byelections, the Union Nationale 40, and there was one Independent.

Mr. Lesage said after re-election of his government became evident that it would lose no time in preparing the power takeover.

"There is a cabinet meeting tomorrow," he said. "We will review legislation already started by our legal experts in connection with the nationalization (expropriation) of electricity in Quebec."

He looked on the result of a sign that "the people have given themselves the key to the economic destinies of Quebec."

TO BE MERGED

The private electricity power companies are to be merged with Quebec - Hydro, which now serves the Montreal area, to form a single, unified provincial power system.

The government's estimate of the cost is $600,000,000 for the companies, which include the so-called Shawinigan group—Shawinigan Water and Power, Quebec Power and Southern Canada Power—and eight smaller ones.

Daniel Johnson, leader of the Union Nationale party since September, 1961, said he accepted the defeat of his party without bitterness.

He called the snap election caught the party in the midst of a reorganization by saying: "If Premier Lesage had given us six more months the result would have been different."

During the campaign, which started in late September, Mr. Johnson would not commit himself or his party on the expropriation plan, and suggested a referendum on the question.

Wednesday night, he said: "We shall closely watch the government's handling of the expropriations of private power companies."

Incomplete tabulation of the popular vote indicates a record turnout. With 600 polls still unreported, 2,061,921 ballots have been cast by the province's 2,710,364 eligible voters. That compares with a total of 1,966,000 remaining 600 polls contained the election's average of 150

LIBERALS ENJOY VICTORY NIGHT IN OLD QUEBEC

Cabinet to Meet Later Today

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage presides over a cabinet meeting today—within hours of his party's election victory—and he says one of the subjects to be discussed is the legislation required to expropriate 11 private power companies in the province.

He told a roaring crowd—celebrating the Liberal victory in the Quebec Coliseum—that the cabinet will review the legislation already started by our legal advisers in connection with the nationalization of electricity in Quebec."

Just when his new cabinet—which lost one member in the election—would be sworn in was not immediately indicated. It might be done some time next week, it was indicated.

During the campaign Mr. Lesage has hinted that there would be some changes in the cabinet, noting that besides the premiership, he holds two other portfolios—finance and federal-provincial affairs.

Mr. Lesage said the electorate had given "a non-equivocal verdict" to his government's appeal for a mandate to take over the 11 companies.

The election had been called to obtain "the key to our economic development."

WATCH IN CLUB

"You have given it to us," he said. "Through the nationalization of electricity we will realize a greater degree of industrialization in Quebec."

Mr. Lesage and his family watched returns come in over a teletype at a curling club in his riding of Quebec West. Several hundred party organizers and friends were on hand under the hot glare of television lights.

In a locker room at the club he shook hands with a long line of supporters well-wishers.

One woman came up to the premier and said, "I just have to hug you" and kissed him on both cheeks. A number of other women followed suit.

One wanted the maroon scarf as a souvenir. She didn't get it. Mr. Lesage and his family then drove to the cottage in a borrowing motorcade, escorted by a squad of municipal policemen on motorbikes.

He said a great part of the Liberal victory was owed to the province's youth.

"The young have understood-

Union Leader's Frank Appraisal

Will Have to Learn to Live With Trouble

HAMILTON (CP) — George Fortman, "recently elected business agent for Hamilton civic workers, says trouble is something "we're going to have to learn to live with" on the Hamilton docks.

Mr. Fortman, who only 18 months ago was vilified, threatened and shorn of his job as organizer for the Local of the International Longshoreman's Association (CLC), was returned to office last week, replacing John (Jocko) Kane.

When he was replaced by Mr. Kane in June, 1961, Mr. Fortman had predicted:

"You can never be sure about a gang (local)—they're unpredictable as hell."

The 51-year-old union official apparently still feels the local is unpredictable but he is certain of trouble, he said in an interview, when about 30 per cent of the membership of 120 men return.

During the period he was out of office the local was involved in four strikes, three of them wildcat, and a vice-president of the ILA and three dockworkers wound up in hospital. Newspaper men attempting to cover the recent local election were beaten.

There also has been defiance by the local of high-ranking union officials and threats to shipping companies that contracts would be torn up.

It was with these facts and others in mind that a shipping company official remarked when he heard Mr. Fortman had re-entered the scene:

"I guess it would be an understatement of some sort to say the future looks rough."

Mr. Fortman says the "membership in the union is not the best."

"Most of these guys never worked before they came to the docks. Why, if I had to pay some of them I wouldn't give them 50 cents an hour because they're not worth it.

"They can't last two minutes, most of them, down on the east coast. That's the trouble with the port of Hamilton. These guys haven't had the experience of working in a big port like this.

"They don't know how to work in an organized port.

"There are about 15 or 20 per cent who are the trouble makers but I can't see that it's going to change. We're going to have to live with it."

In 1961, before he was deposed and Mr. Kane elected in his stead, the local was unhappy about the way Mr. Fortman ran the grain elevator system. The local conducted a week - long wildcat strike demanding his resignation.

But his immediate problems are now of a different nature.

The first is that Mr. Kane has complained about the manner in which he lost last week's election to Mr. Fortman and is talking of a possible appeal, suggesting another rift in the already torn local.

Second, and most important, contract talks with the Great Lakes shipping companies convene in January. The current contract expires Dec. 31.

R.C. Council Split on Discussing Sources of Divine Revelation

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The question of whether to go ahead with a discussion of the place of the Bible and tradition as sources of the Word of God hung over the divided Roman Catholic ecumenical council today.

The first day of debate on the controversial project to clarify the church's view disclosed a split among the council fathers.

The immediate question was whether to continue discussion of the proposed constitution on divine revelation, whether to throw it out and substitute a new version, or whether to leave the whole matter over for future popes and bishops.

The council fathers did not meet today in St. Peter's Basilica. Instead many of them met informally in their national quarters or hotel rooms to discuss the disputed constitution, or thesis.

The quickest way to decide their future course would be a vote Friday in the next session in St. Peter's. But council moderators agreed that more speeches may be heard before there is any balloting on the course to take.

The question of the sources of divine revelation is one of the most controversial before the council because it is one of the chief issues dividing the Roman and Protestant churches.

The Roman Catholic Church always has taught that tradition —the "unfolding" of truths as the church studied the apostles' non-gospel teachings—and the Bible are the two sources of God's revealed word to man.

New Device Brings Smooth Stop As Car Braked on Soapy Water

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — An anti-skid system which is connected directly into the braking system and transmission of a car will be tested soon on a trial basis in New England after a successful demonstration here.

In the demonstration on a parking lot at the Delaware Park race track, an automobile sped at 50 miles an hour down a paved strip that had been coated with soapy water. The driver slammed on the brakes, but the car came to a smooth, straight stop.

The same car swerved and spun when it was braked on the soapy surface without the anti-skid device engaged. The driver had little or no control.

Frank Perrino, president of Perma Research and Development Corporation of North Caldwell, Mass., is the inventor of the system. He says it senses when the wheels of a car are about to lock in a skid and reacts instantly to stop the braking action enough to allow the driver to control the auto. The anti-skid system contains a governor and draws its power from the transmission. Perrino's best estimate of eventual cost is about the same as that of a radio or heater installed in a car.

Wine-Tasting Popular Course But Cheese-Eating More So

NEW YORK (AP)—A lot of college students are smacking their lips over an extracirricular course.

One of the visiting professors calls it "oenology I."

But to the less classically inclined students, it's known as wine-tasting.

Drum - beaters for wine growers are visiting numerous campuses and holding one - day, student - sponsored seminars to teach about their vintages.

The laboratory work is done in the classroom, where the popping of corks whets the thirst to bear more of the lecturer's wine lore.

The latest scholars to attend a lecture and tasting session were Columbia University men and some Barnard co-eds.

Steve Handel, 18, described the wine tasting and tippling class today as "another aspect of college education that the deans don't supply."

Handel, who arranged the affair as a member of the student board of managers, said that various vintners have sponsored the wine lectures at Columbia in the last two years.

Handel said the cheese and bread provided to refresh the students' palates between sips went much faster than the wine.

"Which proves," he said, "that students are much more concerned with their thirst." There was wine left over, but not a morsel of food.

Tweed Corps Planning New Army Citadel

TWEED (Special) — A new Salvation Army Citadel is planned for this village and initial plans were laid for it earlier this week by Brigadier Alfred Simester, divisional commander, and Major Bernard Acton, divisional young people's secretary, both of Belleville, together with Captain Irving Hann of the local Salvation Army Corps.

The new building, which is expected to cost in the region of $40,000 will be erected on the same site as the present building which was built in 1888, two years after the foundation of the Tweed Salvation Army Corps. The present building underwent extensive renovations 10 years ago.

A main auditorium, young people's hall, band room, welfare program space, primary room, offices and officers' living quarters are expected to be provided for the new building.

The new building is to be financed both by a building fund set up at Salvation Army headquarters over a five-year period and by a local fund-raising campaign.

Architects' drawings for the new building will be made once the engineering of the local committee have been thoroughly discussed and presented to the national headquarters.

Hunter Success Close to That Of Last Year

The first week of the big game season for the Tweed district is over and preliminary reports are now in. Those hunters who did not bag the deer south of No. 7 Highway during the one week season there will have a chance to try their luck north of No. 7 during the second week of the hunt which ends Saturday, November 17th. All hunters should note the big game season is now closed south of No. 7 Highway.

The preliminary results for the first week of the deer hunt as shown by the deer check stations operated at Kaladar and Eldorado are as follows: L-006 hunters were interviewed and 358 deer were checked. The hunter success was 32.7 per cent. Weight was close to 33.3 per cent for the same period last year. In addition to the deer, 12 bear, 2 moose and 1 wolf passed through the check stations.

The weather was cloudy during most of the first week. During Monday and Tuesday of the hunt temperatures were below freezing and snow lay on the ground over most of the district south of No. 7 Highway. In the more northern parts of the district the ground was covered with about 2 inches of crusted snow; this was covered again with about a half inch of light snow which fell early Sunday. The bush was very noisy and hard on the dogs' feet. Many hunters would not let their dogs run.

The wind was very calm on Monday and Tuesday, and hunters standing on watch could hear deer a long way off. Most of the deer were shot during the first two days of the hunt. The weather turned milder on Wednesday. The snow started to melt, turning the ground wet. A light rain fell Wednesday afternoon. Many of the ponds which had previously frozen over started to open up again.

The weather turned milder on Thursday and Friday, with temperatures reaching as high as 40 degrees. All traces of snow disappeared by Friday. Good hunting weather prevailed all day Friday, however, a storm front became apparent Friday evening. Heavy rains fell on Saturday which ruined hunting. Most hunters stayed in camp the last day of the first week and the few who did venture out did not stay in the field very long.

So far there are 23 floats ready for the parade and it is expected there will be more entering the parade, and it is quite definite there will be eight bands and possibly more.

This Friday and Saturday will be "Tag Days" for the parade fund and everyone is asked to give his support. Mrs. Miller reported that everything has been made ready for tag days.

In addition to the floats and bands, horse lovers will be delighted to see nearly 50 horses and 15,000 miniature chocolate bars have been ordered for distribution.

Kingston CKWS-TV photographer will be on hand to photograph the parade for telecasting over Channel 11 at a later date.

It was learned that the parade route will be the same as last year, and Inspector C. Hayes said full support of the department would be given.

The next meeting of the parade committee will be held next Wednesday evening.

Store Hour Briefs Will Be Presented

City council's committee on store hours tonight will hear submissions on just what those hours should be—from both merchants and private citizens.

The committee—formed ten days ago by council—announced it would welcome opinion on the latest thorny issue in the side of city affairs.

Its request was granted with alacrity. In the past week the office of city clerk Adam Stalker has seen a small inundation of mailed opinion on extending late-night closings to two nights a week. These are being prepared for presentation to tonight's committee meeting.

Most of the letters received were in favor of the present by-law-regulated hours that allow only one late-night opening per week. However, the majority of the mail also was reported to be from downtown merchants or their assistants, who oppose any extension of the current by-law.

Main partisans in the issue are the Downtown Businessmen's Association and the merchants of the Belleville Plaza. It was the Plaza merchants who precipitated the issue with a request in council for two late-night openings a week.

The job of council's committee will be sift all aspects of the issue presented before it tonight and consider a decision for presentation to the city fathers.

Liberal Scores Convincing Win In Byelection

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—D. G. 'Steuart, 46-year-old president of the Saskatchewan Liberal party scored a convincing victory in a provincial byelection in Prince Albert riding Wednesday.

Mr. Steuart, a veteran politician, led from the start of counting. He received 7,074 votes compared with 4,596 for CCF candidate J. E. L. Lamontagne, 33, a lawyer and political newcomer.

months.

WELCOME STEPS

All three opposition parties welcomed the steps. But there were immediate demands that the government go farther, coupled with a Social Credit claim that its past urgings had forced the government's actions.

Mr. Nowlan, in his Commons announcement of the easing in import surcharges, didn't comment on the Social Credit assertion.

He gave another reason for lifting the surcharges—that the action was designed to keep down the cost of living now that Canada is entering the winter months when food imports are heavy.

Government informants indicated another factor had a bearing as well. Canada's import u s e r g e s are under strong criticism from trading partners at the current Geneva meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. One informant said Mr. Nowlan's announcement was timely—but not accidentally so—in view of the Geneva talks.

Whether or not domestic politics played a role in the government decision, it appeared the latest moves will go at least part way to strengthening Social Credit support of the minority government in the Commons.

The 30-member Social Credit group has provided the margin of victory for the government on a number of key wasted confidence votes, and the main Social Credit criticism of the government has centred on what they term its "austerity program"—a descriptive phrase again disputed Wednesday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Wednesday's easing of import surcharges, coupled with a similar step affecting imported machinery a month ago, still leaves surcharges on about five-sixths of the $3,000,000,000 in annual imports affected by the special levies.

The new easing affects about $260,000,000 in annual imports—nearly all food.

Virtually all of the exempt food imports, including fresh and canned meats, fresh and frozen and canned fruits and vegetables, k i p p e r e d herring and sardines, carried a five-per-cent surcharge.

Sharing Beer With Friend Costs Man $50

Sharing beer with a girl friend cost a 22-year-old Stirling man $50 today.

Hallad Leslie magistrate's court for supplying liquor to a minor was Percy Behan.

Ontario Provincial Police constable Jack Fullerton told of stopping a car being driven by Behnke on the outskirts of Stirling, November 10. Two teen-age girls in the automobile with Behnke had open beer bottles concealed under sweaters. The officer said only one of the girls had been drinking; the second bottle belonged to the accused.

"Anyone of them intoxicated?" asked crown attorney John Pringle.

"No, sir. They just got started," replied the constable.

Behnke pleaded guilty to the charge before magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Police Checking Second Break-in At Same House

For the second time in two weeks a house in the west side of Belleville has been ransacked by daytime burglars.

City detectives today are checking the second break-in at the home of Arnold Hutchinson, 76 Benjamin Street.

The house was entered some time yesterday afternoon after thieves smashed the glass panel in a door. Police say they are still checking the articles missing.

Two weeks ago, in a similar break-in, a wallet containing about $200 was stolen.

Parks Board Hopes to Have Greenbelt Along Riverfront

TRENTON — Along with other municipal governing bodies, the Trenton Board of Parks Management has been asked by town council to compile a five-year capital spending budget and submit it to clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry in the future. The board's estimate of its needs for development and improvement in existing parks or the acquisition of additional parkland, will form part of an overall five-year estimate of the town's capital spending needs, which will be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board around the first of the year.

Tuesday night, parks' board members considered just what would or could be needed in the realm of parks improvement or new parkland within the next five-year period.

Mr. Larry thought perhaps the board would like to acquire land along the river-front on the west side and create a greenbelt program in the area.

Parks' Board chairman E. M. Parker Jr. and members Marion Ball, Bill Ireland and John Saylor agreed with this and, in a brief discussion of the scheme, painted a picture of a view of the riverbank with well-kept grass, trees and flowers and an occasional beach placed invitingly under a tree.

APPROACHES TO TOWN

Mr. Parker thought that something could be done to turn the area at the edge of the town in the vicinity of the Sidney Street outlet to the town from Highway 401, into a "welcome" area.

Board members indicated that they couldn't agree with him more, but Mr. Saylor said that this approach to Trenton was certainly better than the south outlet into the city of Kingston, which he described as a "dog's breakfast."

Another project the board might like to carry through would be the development of a park in the Stanley Heights (west of 4th Ave.) subdivision. This area, five per cent of the sub-division, has been proposed by the owner and accepted by the town as park allowance. It has yet to be turned over to the Parks Board.

Mr. Parker thought the pit a "natural" for a football stadium. He said that with very little fixing up, the bottom of the pit could be made into a playing field. Certainly it is big enough. Bleachers could be placed along the sides of the sloped pit. Seating capacity could be 100,000, but all members were agreed that there was very little likelihood that any game played in the "stadium" would ever attract that many spectators.

Miss Baker thought that the pit could be turned into an open air theatre and asked that some thought to acoustics be given when trees were being planted on the slopes of the pit. She thought possibly some trees might hinder hearing and suggested that the town planners be consulted before planting is done.

WILL MEET LARRY

Mr. Parker will meet with Mr. Larry and discuss ideas for the five year parks' budget.

"We might not get what we ask for," he said, "but at least a start will have been made. Certainly this town will improve and any improvement will be contagious."

In other business, the board agreed to accept a five per cent land area, directly north of the existing Elmwood Acres subdivision where an extension to the sub-division is being built up, as parkland. It was felt that any further extensions to the area will have to go north and the park would thus be central to the entire area.

Mr. Ireland said that arrangements were being made to run a prvolenace electric wire into Hanna Park, underground, and that 10 or 12 outlets would be placed around the park for the convenience of trailer owners.

The present arrangement, whereby fuse boxes for the outlets are placed on poles, presents a danger to inquisitive children.

Mr. Ireland also said that the new "Swiss Chalet" washroom would be wired.

OTTAWA — Among more than a hundred Canadians honored at Government House here last Friday for their contributions to first aid and nursing, Flight Lieutenant Jack Scholes, a native of Burnley, Lancashire, England, became a Serving Brother of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

The medal of the Order, a silver eight-pointed cross on black ribbon, was presented by the Governor General of Canada, His Excellency Major-General Georges P. Vanier, DSO, MC, CD, LLD, Prior of the Order in Canada.

F/L Scholes' citation pays tribute to his "outstanding and continued interest in St. John Ambulance training, both in fostering its principles and by devoted personal participation."

A former member of the St. John Ambulance Brigade in Burnley, Lancashire, and Hammersmith, London, F/L Scholes was the first man to be appointed a training officer of the Brigade in England. He served as a Royal Navy Chief Petty Officer during the Second World War, and moved to Canada in 1949. After holding civil male nursing positions here, he joined the RCAF as an NCO, and was commissioned in the Medical Secretarial Branch in 1954.

He is at present on the staff of RCAF Air Transport Command Headquarters, Trenton, Ontario.

USE GRENADE AS BALL

SALERNO, Italy (AP) — A policeman watching a dozen youngsters playing soccer in a vacant field Monday began to wonder why they were bootleg about such a small ball. He investigated and s t o p p e d the game. The children were kicking around a live hand grenade, a Second World War explosive left from the Allied landing at Salerno.

E. Todd Plans To Seek Seat

TRENTON — Councillor Ed Todd, chairman of welfare with town council this year, announced Monday he would seek re-election this year. Councillor Todd was elected to serve a one-year term last December.

In addition to heading the welfare committee, Councillor Todd has also served on the public works and finance committees of council.

A Trenton resident since 1943 Councillor Todd has always evinced a keen interest in community affairs. He is a Past Grand of the—Odd Fellows Lodge and has served on the Boy Scout Association.

Councillor Todd is employed by the CPR. He is married and the father of two school aged children.

445 Admitted

TRENTON — During the month of October, 445 adult and children were admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital, according to a report released yesterday by hospital administrator H. F. Neufeld.

In October 79 babies were born in the institution.

Out-patients treated numbered 735 and 388 persons were treated in the hospital's emergency.

Major operations numbered 61, while 105 minor operations were performed.

Average daily population, (adults and children), was 109.2, and in the nursery wing, 14.3 infants.

Man Granted An Extension Of Hearing

A Deseronto man, charged with driving while disqualified was granted an extension of his hearing in magistrate's court today so he could finish out a term of work.

Charged was Roy Green, who told Magistrate T. Y. Wills he would be through working on a Highway 401 construction job in about three weeks.

"I don't think there is any harm in it," said the magistrate, remanding the case to December 6.

Belleville to Foxboro Road To Be Rebuilt by McFarland

One of the oldest sections of paved highway in the Belleville area — No. 14 highway from Belleville to Foxboro — is going to be rebuilt.

Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East, today announced that the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton, was the low bidder for rebuilding of the road north from 401 highway to the north end of Foxboro village.

The new roadway will bypass Foxboro to the west leaving the present roadway on Rose' Flats and re-joining No. 14 just west of the village. The McFarland tender, which includes the construction of one structure over Pallister's Creek at Foxboro, was for $424,264.35.

Mr. Rollins was not certain whether work would be started on the project this autumn, although he said this was possible. The contract does not call for a specific completion date.

The Belleville-Foxboro highway is one of the oldest stretches of pavement in the entire area, the road having been built in 1922 and except for periodical topping has remained virtually untouched.

Soothing Syrup

Anastas Mikoyan, who is Khrushchev's choice for the difficult task of combing out the singed beard of one Fidel Castro, has suffered a severe shock recently. While he was on his Cuban mission, his wife died.

In a spirit of humanity, one may hope that Mr. Mikoyan's farewell speech was not tape-recorded. It would be cruel to expose him to a second shock by forcing him to listen to his own words.

"A faithful Marxist-Leninist," "legendary personality who is now leading his country from victory to victory"—if he bears his recorded words poor Mikoyan may lose his bearings and think that he is back in the days when Stalin ruled in the Kremlin. Yet these were the phrases which he used to describe Castro. What price the "cult of the leader" now?

This is all a bit thick—and even thicker was Mikoyan's assertion that he, after devoting 45 years to revolutionary studies, was "glad that my last ten days of studies have been in Cuba."

If Castro will swallow this, he will swallow anything. Meanwhile, the rest of us may be pardoned the conviction, paradoxically comforting, that if Mikoyan cannot sweet-talk Castro into being reasonable, Khrushchev will have other, more effective, measures in reserve. One must hope, though, that Mikoyan's support for Castro's five-point program for a settlement of the Cuban crisis is part of the soothing syrup, and does not represent a serious Russian appraisal of what concessions the U.S. is prepared to make. Rightly or wrongly, the Americans are certain to hang onto their base at Guantanamo until hell boils over.

Not His Vocation

Saturday the Toronto Telegram carried a story about a 13-year-old girl being abducted and raped twice, while her male cousin was twice knocked unconscious when he tried to help her.

Monday, The Canadian Press reported a slight revision in the account. The girl had been raped, all right, but her cousin had not been beaten, nor even threatened. He had sat in the same car in which the rape occurred, too frightened to do anything.

It is easy to understand why police were given the first version of the attack. The man must have been ashamed of the manner in which he had failed his young cousin. It is not so easy to understand why she acquiesced with his story—perhaps she was too bewildered to realize what the police were being told.

Cowards are more to be pitied than blamed. This man's failure would not concern the general public were it not for one thing—he is a soldier.

A man who will permit a 13-year-old cousin to be raped by two other men, without lifting a finger to prevent it, is hardly the type upon whom much faith can be placed in the hour of battle. The army would be well rid of him.

Judge The Judge

The Supreme Court of the United States, in the opinion of W. M. O'Barr, is made up of "political (sic) greedy old men who are not qualified to serve as a judge (sic) of any court."

Everybody is entitled to his own opinion, even if the opinion is as ridiculous as this one, but it just so happens that W. M. O'Barr is a Mississippi circuit judge and that he has the responsibility of presiding over the deliberations of the grand jury considering the circumstances surrounding the deaths of two men in rioting at "Ole Miss." It also happens that this opinion was part of Judge O'Barr's charge to this grand jury.

Any person who may, on occasion, have thought that there must be certain advantages to the U.S. system of electing judges to all but the highest courts is hereby invited to consider whether even the most patient instances of political patronage in the appointments of Canadian judges do not approach Solomon's judgments in wisdom when compared with the results obtained by trusting Mississippi voters with the task of judge-making.

We have words that mislead, such as "free enterprise" or "capitalism" or "socialism." The system . . . which we call capitalism is very close to what others call socialism. Both words should be thrown out.—Dr. Charles Frankel, Columbia University professor of philosophy.

We must not be cynical and believe nothing but ill of some men just because we dislike their doctrines. Life becomes intolerable in a world of suspicion and fear. We must not be cynical, but we must not be naive.—Harold Macmillan, Britain's Prime Minister.

Ottawa Offbeat

Is Minority Administration Becoming Irksome to P.M.?

By RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — From the long political perspective of 27 years on Parliament Hill, Paul Martin, the old pro, is calling for a General Election for early March.

On the basis of years in the Commons and in the Cabinet, "Oom Paul" has a time and performance record approached by no other Parliamentarian.

Here since 1935, a veteran of the Cabinets of both Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent, and always an "insider," he has a solid gold, proven-in-performance reputation as a canny reader of political crystal balls.

So when "Oom Paul" says there will be an election . . . the first couple of weeks of March, you scarcely can brush it off as just another run-of-the-mill guess.

The way he sees it, the election just has to happen.

The Government taking the initiative and asking for Dissolution is proof that it is impractical, if not impossible for a minority administration to carry out its program in a Parliament of such political uncertainty.

Social Credit and the New Democrats just might unite with the Liberals — and for a variety of reasons — to upset the Government.

FRUSTRATION

Internally, the order in which he lists the two possibilities.

It could be that as a long-time close friend of John Diefenbaker—they claw and spit at each other in the Commons like a couple of angry Tomcats, but do not let that fool you—Paul Martin senses a growing impatience in the Prime Minister he has known so well for so many years.

Well aware that John Diefenbaker is a man of warm and sometimes, alarming moods, Paul Martin perhaps sees a growing frustration building up in the Prime Minister, that suddenly might result in a to-heck-with-it attitude and a quick call for a new election.

It would be frustration, too, that could throw in with the Liberals. Each of the two Socreds and New Dems come to the realization that Government — and each, in turn, will blame Ie- in the recurring test-of-strength votes with the Liberals, they hear from their home constituencies.

As Opposition splinter groups they have been reminded, they were not sent to Ottawa to support but to assail the Government.

The Social Credit voters back home in the rural Quebec constituencies have been grumbling, even in their obvious appeasement, party leaders Robert Thompson and Real Caouette have been urging that they cannot go on, indefinitely, pulling the Government's political chestnuts out of the Commons fire.

FLAMING ICE

Now that Social Credit has broken ranks, anything could happen.

So far, when either the Socreds or New Dems have kicked up their heels, H has been with cool calculation and a cautious counting of heads in advance to make sure that the vote will not be in the form of worse, leave the Government on the short end of the count and upset the Parliamentary applecart.

That eight vote margin last week was safe enough actually, but still too close for real comfort.

Watch the Prime Minister in the House during Question Period, one of these votes and you can't help but conclude that things are getting just a bit edgy.

He is cool enough — on the outside.

He sits there, chatting with External Affairs Minister Green or Finance Minister Fleming, or even reading a back copy of Hansard.

But he is restless. Even fidgets.

And when the vote is being polled, he kids across the aisle with Paul Martin.

It may be an icy calm he displays to the House in such moments of stress, but these little restless mannerisms betray an inner excitement.

Liberal Leader Pearson makes no bones about being all afire with high emotion and tight with tension.

He turns to watch as every man rises to be counted by the Commons clerks.

There are no political freshmen to be excited about small things. They are both hard-headed veterans of the political wars. So when you see them tighten up in moments of stress, perhaps it is that the political pot is coming to boil and "Oom Paul" will get his election come early March.

Purely Personal Prejudices: In fairy-tales of all lands, the beautiful maiden kisses a frog and finds, to her delighted surprise, that he has turned into a prince; but in real life it more often happens that the beautiful maiden kisses what she thinks is a prince, and finds that he has turned into a frog."

People who pride themselves on speaking the truth should ponder the distinction made by Coleridge, when he said "Veracity does not consist in saying all the truth, but in the intention of communicating truth."

The chief crime of modern society is neither economic nor political, but educational — in that it increases man's leisure without at the same time expanding his capacity for enjoying it in a creative way and thus only provokes more boredom, restlessness, and discontent.

Not all the makeup, clothes, furs, jewels, or shape of body can make appealing a woman whose mouth distorts down in permanent creases of pettiness and disappointment — a point that nine out of ten "smart" women wholly ignore in their relentless quest for what they think is "charm".

The most tactfully ambiguous reply to a bad author was given by Disraeli when the "smart" mesagre talents who had sent him an advance copy of his book. "Many thanks," responded Disraeli, "I shall lose no time in reading your book."

Just as political positions form a circle rather than a straight line in that the extreme right eventually meets and touches the extreme left), so do social positions form a circle, in that the very rich share more attitudes with the very poor than with, or worse, do with the "respectable" middle classes.

Every great man is both a repository of immortal wisdom and a child of his own times; and it is the task of future generations to separate the one from the other in its great men — for even so mighty a mind as Thomas Aquinas held the 13th century belief that heretics should be burned for their own sake, and so profound a revolutionist as Freud clung to the 19th century belief in a mechanistic universe.

The League of Nations held its first meeting at Geneva 42 years ago today — in 1920. The league formally came into being Jan. 1, 1920, under the Treaty of Versailles. Under the league covenant, member states undertook never to go to war with a fellow state until all possibilities of a peaceful settlement were exhausted. It was replaced by the United Nations Organization and held its dissolution meeting in April 1946.

1889 — Brazil's republic day was proclaimed.

For the second year in succession the National Safety Council President's medal, the greatest civilian award for deeds of valor performed by a person in civilian occupation, has been presented to a Point Anne resident. The medal was presented to Mr. William Insley of Point Anne on Monday evening for administering resuscitation to a near-drowned youth last April 8th. In connection with the above presentation, the Royal Canadian Humane Association Parchment was presented to Mr. Donald McDonald for the part he took in the actual rescue.

A fiatic "encounter and general brawl was in full force in front of the Bank of Commerce shortly after midnight Saturday, when city police have into sight. Engaged in the general brawl were three young men and three girls, all of them attending their own respective target for verbal and physical attacks. It was only considerable united effort on the part of Constables Wright and Rathwell, that the fracas was dispersed, and five of the participants loaded into the police cruiser. Wheel-the battle was at its height a crowd of upwards of 200 gathered to witness the melee. In the excitement it is believed that the chief instigator evaded detection and escaped by beating a hasty retreat easterly on Campbell Street.

Cops to Play Tune on Horn?

Ontario's Department of Transport has shown amazing ingenuity in imagining reasons to satisfy itself that the anti-noise bylaws proposed by Metro and City Councils are unpractical. It has drawn on science the law and human foibles to support its contentions that at the present time there is no satisfactory way of measuring the severity of annoying noises.

Well, one doesn't have to be an engineer, a lawyer or a psychologist to agree that of all noises there is a particularly conspicuous one that needs no measuring device to determine its power to annoy and to shatter the nerves.

There is nothing to compare with the frightening, the hideous screaming of the sirens blasting a path for ambulances and fire reels. Whether it is a police car in the morning, regardless of the hour, these noisemakers rent the air, violate the peace, shred the nerves and tear sleep apart by their wild clamor.

And quite unnecessarily. For a patient particularly, with his disturbed faculties, the morbid shrieking of an ambulance siren must sound like the wail of doom.

And what is the purpose of this siren? Merely to draw public attention to the approach of an ambulance or a fire reel so that the public may clear a path or come on to interrupt the show, this priest said.

"Did you ever figure out how few of these things they advertise you personally buy?"

This started a most interesting evening. Instead of being tongue-tied by the show, we ignored the show, and watched for the commercials, which kept popping up every few minutes in bunches of two, or four, even six.

It was astonishing how few of the articles sponsoring the evening's show had ever been bought by anybody present. One woman admitted to having a set of the thirty-seven commercials. She was high gun. Three confessed to two. The rest of us had not ever bought any.

"Well, somebody," cried one of us, "must buy something, otherwise they wouldn't keep on yelling at us. It costs money to sell on TV."

"I wond er who they could be," we all asked.

New Drugs Help Fight State of Depression

By JOSEPH G MOLNER M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a young mother with two small children. My problem is repeated spells of depression. It is hard for me to sleep at night and during the day I feel like a bundle of nerves. This is being unhappiness for my whole family. I realize I need help; what can I do? — Mrs. S.F.

Depression can be anything from just feeling "down in the dumps" to a full-blown case.

Depression is one of the frequent problems with which psychiatrists must deal, and in severe cases it can be serious indeed.

On the other hand, depression has this hopeful aspect — generally the patient does get over it, although sometimes it can be a long process, perhaps a matter of several years.

In really severe cases, hospitalization is sometimes urgent the patient is so depressed that it isn't safe to leave him or her alone.

As with some other ailments, there are certain numbers of these critical cases — and very large numbers of milder ones, of varying degree, with the patients getting better with or without but often being pretty miserable.

Thus depression is a problem which has had a great deal of attention from experts. It is only fairly recently that any kind of treatment has been available, the so-called "psychic energizers," of which a half dozen or so are being used.

In all frankness, there is considerable difference of opinion over these drugs — and perhaps it's a good thing that we have differences of opinion, for most new drugs that come along. Between the pros and cons we finally arrive at an accurate understanding.

There have been steady efforts to improve the drugs and find new ones. Perhaps more important, in the long run, is the effort to learn more about how to use them effectively.

A couple of the early ones proved to be dangerous in some cases and have been withdrawn; the half dozen that I mentioned retain the approval of the Food and Drug Administration, but it is apparent, to me at least, that we are only at the beginning of the process of learning how best to use them.

But where a few years ago we had nothing for the "ordinary" cases, we now have something, and in a good many cases the results of drugs have been rather startlingly successful.

If no longer is a matter of waiting until a case is so severe as to require psychiatric hospital treatment. However the drugs are no miracle workers that a good many doctors still prescribe to refer such cases to others who have had more experience with them.

In any event — it's the sort of trouble which is well worth reporting to one's doctor. And along the way, one of the older standbys, like a blood count may uncover anemia or some other subtle condition which is sapping needed energy and intensifying the trouble.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently read an article which stated that new dermatologists can eliminate freckles. Is this true? — T.H.

No. It's not true. And there's serious questioning about some preparations that are supposed to fade freckles, because of the reactions which some people suffer from them.

* * *

Mrs. E.W.T.: No, diabetes cannot be caused by drinking too many cola drinks, or other soft drinks.

Opportunity For Negroes

Des Moines Tribune

The United States state department is actively searching for more qualified Negroes for jobs in the foreign service, both professional and secretarial. Qualifications are high, but here is one spot where Negroes now have a slightly better-than-equal chance.

In a world three-quarters nonwhite, actions speak louder than words. A well-groomed diplomat representing the United States means a lot more than any amount of speeches on the Voice of America about the dignity of man.

Scientific American magazine is full of flossy advertisements aimed to lure young engineering school graduates into working for particular defence contract firms. Many of them specifically mention in the advertisements that are "equal opportunity firms," meaning that they have no bars against anyone for reasons of race, religion or ancestry.

Only a few unemployed Negroes are qualified to be electronic or space engineers. But there are Negroes getting into the requisite education and experience and there will be more. These firms mean it.

has been made public — since their weekend letters of Oct. 27-28 drafting an agreement to end the crisis.

Kennedy has insisted that the 1500-mile range bombers are in the same offensive weapons category as the Soviet missiles and also must be removed.

REMOVE MISSILES

U.S. officials have reported that 42 of the missiles were counted on Soviet vessels leaving Cuba. That's the number of missiles the Russians say they had on the island.

In addition to the bomber issue, Khrushchev has not carried out his promise to allow UN inspection of the dismantling of weapons and their bases — which Cuban Premier Fidel Castro insists he will not permit.

Khrushchev's new proposal for withdrawing the planes kills the impression the Cubans have been giving that the bombers already have been turned over to them.

However, in the long days of haggling over the bombers, Russian negotiators never claimed the planes were Castro's property or that the Soviet government would not remove them.

U.S. officials appear confident that in a showdown Khrushchev will make good on his commitment to withdraw offensive weapons and will order the more than 40 jet bombers carted back to Russia.

Adult Scout Leaders Badly Needed in Area

Know anything about scouting?

Be prepared, if you will, to lend a hand to the Belleville-district boy scouts association. The scout's district council is currently seeking for adult leaders to surrender some spare time in helping supervise the area's estimated 1,300 scouts and cubs.

"We are somewhat desperate for good leaders", said one association official today.

"Not that our organization is threatened, it's just that our reserve leadership ranks have been depleted".

The situation has been a prime topic for discussion at recent scout group meetings. This week it was also scrutinized at a full assembly of the Belleville district council.

"Our force of leaders right now is spread thin", said the council official — a situation that contrasts to recent years when the problem was not so acute.

"Population movement — the base of small-city community groups — is a notable factor in the problem.

"Belleville is something of a transient city. But it stands to reason there are as many people moving in as out", the official pointed out.

HARD TO COLLECT

"Consequently, scout organizers tell us there are many individuals who can help them out. The trouble lies in collecting this into a corps.

"When any of our leaders move out of town we always forward their new addresses to the scout district in which they reside," said the Belleville scouter.

However, no other district does that for us."

One point from which to draw reserves of leaders, local organizers feel, is the RCAF force at Trenton, where personnel is continually being transferred both ways. Many servicemen also live in Belleville, scouters point out.

"We know these people are around. The trouble is we have no way of contacting them."

However, a qualified background isn't a necessity to join the scouting service as a leader.

Courses in leadership are easily organized and any candidate for a post can be readily trained.

Persons willing to rally round and help out the local scouts problem should contact district commissioner Murray Maw.

Will Give Address On Christian Unions

Harry Antonides, business agent of the Christian Labor Association of Canada, will speak on "Why Christian Unions" on the evening of November 20th, in the Y.M.C.A.

The speaker will explain why he thinks Canada's Christian workers may not be satisfied with the modern unions, but should form and join labor unions committed to the aim of applying Christian social principles in order to promote harmonious employer-employee relations and to reduce strife and conflict. There will be ample opportunity to ask questions.

This public meeting is sponsored by the Christian Labor Association of Canada and its Belleville affiliate, Christian Workers Local No. 9. The C.L.A.C. is a rapidly growing, independent union basing its activities on the principles of Justice and love taught in the Bible. The organization favors voluntary unionism. Everyone is invited to attend this public meeting.

votes a poll, this would lift the total well past the previous record of 2,056,507 votes cast in 1960.

The Liberals received a clear majority of the votes cast—1,155,617 or 57 per cent—and the Union Nationale had 869,117 votes, or 42 per cent.

25 SEATS CHANGE

There was a turnover of 25 seats in the election, with the Liberals taking 17 from the Union Nationale—eight in rural areas—while losing eight rural seats to the opposition.

One of its losses was L'Islet where Andre Rousseau, trade and commerce minister, first elected in 1960, was the only cabinet minister to be defeated.

Gerard Lebelle, the Liberal who knocked off five former Union Nationale cabinet ministers and defeated Andre who was trying to regain the seat he lost in 1960.

The five were Arthur Leclerc in Clarlevoix, Dr. Camille Pouliot in Gaspe South, Maurice Custeau in Montreal Jeanne Mance, Gerard Thibeault in Montreal Mercier, and Armand Maltais in Quebec East. Former trade minister Paul Beaulieu lost in St. Johns.

Other major Liberal gains included the Magdalen Islands, where Hormisdas Langlais had held the seat for the Union Nationale since 1936, and Champlain, held by former speaker Maurice Tellier since the same year.

INCREASES MAJORITY

Premier Lesage, 50, was re-elected in Quebec West with an increased majority over the Union Nationale opponent he defeated in 1960.

Mr. Johnson, 47, easily retained Bagot which he has held since 1946.

Montreal ridings with a heavy English - language vote, and in which candidates opposed to the power take-over appeared, went to Liberals by landslide margins that cost all other candidates their deposits.

Mrs. Claire Kirkland - Casgrain, first woman elected to the legislature, piled up the most impressive margin—about 50,000 votes—over a lone Union Nationale opponent, in Jacques Cartier. She first won the seat last year in a bylection.

Out of 67 straight two - way fights, the Liberals won 46 and the Union Nationale 21.

Among the top Union Nationale candidates re - elected were former cabinet ministers Jean-Jacques Bertrand in Missisquoi, who has been described as Mr. Johnson's "first lieutenant," Paul Dozois in Montreal St. James, William Cottingham in Argenteuil, Maurice Bellemare in Champlain, Antonio Talbot in Chicoutimi, Romeo Lorrain in Papineau, and Antonio Elie in Yamaska.

ALL LOSE DEPOSITS

The 11 candidates entered by l'Action Provinciale - Quebec's newest party which campaigned against power expropriation—all lost their deposits, polling a total of slightly more than 3,200 votes.

The party's acting leader, Hervel La Roque, 52, lost in Montreal Laurier to Resources Minister Rene Levesque, who spearheaded the campaign for expropriation.

Marcel Chaput, leader of the most publicized separatist movement in Quebec, ran as an Independent in Bourget, in Montreal Laurier, and lost his deposit of $200 in going down to defeat to a Liberal.

The only successful Independent was Frank Hanley, the 33-year-old fighting Irishman of Montreal St. Anne. All other Independents lost their deposits.

Election day, contrary to Quebec's past history, was surprisingly quiet.

Mr. Lesage's campaign stressed, apart from the electricity issue, his government's record in education and social welfare benefits, economic planning and what the premier called "good and honest government".

He was constantly on the attack against the Union Nationale and what he termed as its past record of kickbacks on government contracts, political patronage and other alleged facets of maladministration.

STIRLING

Farm Safety Council Will Sponsor Contests

STIRING — The Farm Safety Council is sponsoring two competitions, one in handicrafts and the other on farm safety. Any Institute member who is interested in handicraft has a chance to fashion a table place mat. The contest closes January 31st, 1963, and the Hastings County Farm Safety Council has donated a prize of $25 to be awarded the winner. This competition is open to all Institute members in Hastings County. The branch secretary has received a circular from Mr. Sidney MacDonald, agricultural representative. After the winning place mat has been chosen they will be made available to the county group, free of charge.

Farm safety is most important in Hastings County due to an excessive rate of accidents during the past few years, and the Hastings County Farm Safety Council is also sponsoring a slide competition for various groups in the county including 4-H Club leaders and Institute branches. There will be $200 donated in prizes by the province and the competition closes January 1st, 1963, for the province of Ontario.

The Hastings County prizes are approximately $34 and the slides are to be a set of six colored slides 2x2 and they must be at the Department of Agriculture by Friday, December 14th. These will be judged at the office and the best of those chosen will be sent on for the provincial competition.

There are four subjects to choose from — accident hazards, actual accidents, results of accidents, and prevention of accidents. Anyone interested will just have a month to get their material in order.

VANISHED NATION

Unemployment

employment was largely among men between the ages of 25 and 54. About 70 per cent of the unemployed in October—301,000—had been without jobs for periods of up to three months. Another 32,000 had been seeking work for four to six months and 48,000 had been jobless for more than six months—figures which showed little change from the situation in September.

Some 228,000 of the unemployed were men, 34,000 fewer than a year earlier, while 35,000 women were jobless, 1,000 fewer than in October, 1961.

However, women accounted for the lion's share of the year-to-year increase in the number of jobs, with female employment rising by 55,000 and the number of men with jobs increasing by 51,000.

The report said this was due to continued expansion in service industries which employ a large proportion of women.

Jobless rates by regions in October, with the September percentage in brackets: Atlantic 6.9 per cent (6.3); Quebec 5.9 (5.3); Ontario 2.6 (3.1); Prairies 2.3 (1.7); Pacific 5.9 (5.2).

Estimated unemployment by regions, with October figures bracketed: Atlantic 42,000 (38,000); Quebec 109,000 (97,000); Ontario 68,000 (74,00); Prairies 29,000 (20,000); Pacific 35,000 (31,00).

Successful Living

Bad Manners Bother Girl Friend

DEAR DORIS—I am engaged to a fine fellow and am very much in love with him. But there is one thing that bothers me continually. He and his brothers have been brought up to be very honest and good living.

I give him mother credit for this, but she has neglected their table manners and grammar completely. She eats with her elbows on the table, and talks with a mouth full of food, with a fork full of food dangling in the air. And so all the family eat the same way. I am afraid if I married my boy friend I would come to resent them, especially when I heard them saying such things as "have went," "have fell" and "have eat."

DORIS CLARK

Do you think when Jack is away from them he will change gradually? Please give me your opinion. I am losing sleep I worry about it so much.—BRENDA B.

DEAR BRENDA—If your Jack mixes with others, he would do well to learn how to handle his food—and other things. Waving a fork or slobbering may not mean uncouth character, but people label the unmannerly as undesirable.

Stop losing sleep over it and broach the subject. This is important to his future, and yours. (Write again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, for the names of some helpful books on the subject of manners. Any one of us would do well to read them.)

DEAR DORIS—I am very interested in the nursing profession and would like to take a nursing aide course. Before I start my course I would like to work in a hospital. I would like to know if there are any hospitals in Belleville when I could work as a ward aide.

DEAR DENISE—Most hospitals employ ward aides. Before going to the expense of travelling to Belleville to find out, it might be helpful for you to write to the local General Hospital or Public Health Department and ask your question.

our message of liberation," he said.

"It must be noted that the province held an election without major issues.

Yousee what happens when you have honest government."

He said the election was "the victory of the people of Quebec that is the significance of the vote."

Holding aloft a gold key, he said it was "the key to our economic development."

The voters, he said, "have given us work to do and we will start right away."

At the coliseum a huge banner, hung at the edge of the speakers' platform, read:

"Now we are our own masters."

Pearson

"I was doing what I have always done and what I promised the farmers I would do, namely, to discuss with them first all matters affecting them personally before bringing such matters forward for government consideration."

HAS PAID OFF

This technique of stimulating discussion among farmers had paid dividends in the past. It was a democratic process.

The thesis of his Regina remarks was simply that there was a great opportunity to sell more Canadian wheat now if everybody pulls together.

The minister described as "false in every respect" Mr. Douglas' contention that he was attempting to undermine the Canadian wheat board.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Hamilton's Regina text did not bear out the contention of Prime Minister Diefenbaker and the agriculture minister that he had spoken in a personal capacity and not on behalf of the government.

It was "a complete denial of cabinet responsibility, cabinet solidarity, cabinet collectivity and indeed responsible parliamentary government, to say that (Mr. Hamilton) can make an official visit to the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool and put forward proposals in his personal, individual capacity about which presumably the cabinet knew nothing at all."

If it were true, "then he was certainly perpetrating a hoax on his listeners."

'NO RIGHT TO SPEAK'

"Either he spoke as minister of agriculture . . . or he had no right to speak at all in the way in which he spoke."

In the last election campaign and up to last Friday, Mr. Hamilton had emphasized farmers had nothing to worry about on the current credit sales, both of which are to Red China. He had said the government was assuming the risk for them. If payments were defaulted, it would cost the farmers nothing.

"If that is the situation," Mr. Pearson asked, "then why did the minister make the kind of speech he did last Friday?"

"If everything was so rosy until last June in the Canadian agricultural world, as we were told it was, why is it not so rosy now? What is worrying the minister about default on these credit sales . . .?"

There was only one conclusion to draw: "The minister must be slipping, as indeed the government is slipping."

MEASLES KILL 68

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Measles killed 68 people in Hong Kong between Oct. 1 and Nov. 3, it was announced today, but the colony government says there is no epidemic.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. I.R.: Ever since she heard Miss America's advice, she skips two meals.

Wilma R.: I realized I didn't really need three meals a day and I feel fine.

Mrs. I. R.: I thought Wilma had more sense, but she figures if she starves enough she too can be crowned Miss America! She's 16, very pretty if I must say so myself, and wears a size-14 dress. But now she's aiming for a size-5 and she has me worried.

It's all because Miss America said she skipped lunches and breakfasts until she got her glamour-weight now, usually weight down, and even at her eats only one meal a day. I've told her that just because a girl doesn't drop dead from that system, doesn't mean she's getting away unharmed. Things happen to her teeth and blood. I'm sure. I wish she'd forget about bathing-suit contests and live a normal life.

Wilma R.: Really, I have no desire to be Miss America, nor have I a ghost of a chance, although I was voted the prettiest person date at last year's Senior Dance. Those girls in the big-time are really gifted, not just good-looking.

But, even though my food mama feeds me just perfect, I'm plenty podgy, and it's all from overeating. I think my whole family overeats and I'll prove it by showing them I can be well, and stay well, by just eating a good dinner — Miss America's idea. At the same time, I'll lose my ugly bulges and be able to wear the really sleek, chic styles I love. Besides I might qualify as a model and bring home some money.

The Council: What good will your model-money be, Wilma, if it goes right out on doctor bills? The sad thing about "crash diets" is that they make headlines and fascinating reading, but the "sequelae" — what happens after — are rarely mentioned or, if so, come out in whispers.

The common result of extreme tampering with food consumption in order to melt down is either a gradual gain-back once the goal is achieved or a health problem due to prolonged attrition. So what's the percentage, Wilma? You may "gain" a loss, but you may also lose your normal hemoglobin count. Cases are reported of loss of hair, brittle fingernails, psychic disturbances — all symptoms of nutritive deficiency.

What fools people who "believe" the testimony of crash dieters is the power of the past. In the past these people ate right. Physically they have a good reserve and fine resistance, thanks to someone (a mother, nurse or even their own sensible selves) who saw to it that the seven basic foods (milk, bread, egg, fat, animal protein, fruit, vegetables) were consumed at proper intervals seven days a week. They can coast along on their childhood and ancestral pile-up of good health deceived themselves, but not their bodies, that wacky eating is good for you!

Further, we can't agree that Wilma needs reducing. Her campaign seems motivated by an unrealistic desire to ape someone else or even go her one better. Are the scrawny models her idols? If so, she'd better hie herself to a doctor fast, because most of these emaciated-looking dolls obey very strict health regimens and keep strong as well as photogenic.

But Wilma may be one of the teenagers — described by Dr. Philip L. White, of the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Association — whose weight is just right but who thinks she'll look more interesting and arresting if she loses 10 pounds. They often wind up looking interesting to doctors, dentists and psychiatrists.

Fortunately, Wilma has a healthy motivation to look her best. Most fat people don't have that. With that as her spur, she'll eat sparingly but sensibly and emerge as Wilma the Best, instead of an imitation of Miss Silver of 1963.

Sabine

"The Dominion Council of Health believes that live polio-virus Sabin vaccine offers a great potential for the control of paralytic poliomyelitis in Canada," the council statement said.

The committee recommended that Salk dead-virus vaccine remain "for the present" the basic vaccine for protection of all age groups.

"Particular emphasis should be placed on the Salk vaccination of children under one year of age."

Trivalent oral vaccine—incorporating the three Sabin types — should be included in routine immunization programs to follow an initial course of Salk vaccine and may be given "further to diminish the circulation of wild polio viruses."

These are essentially the same conditions under which Sabin was recommended for general use in the first place.

REVIEW ILLNESSES

Detailed information concerning all known polio-like illnesses in Canada this year that might in any way be associated with Sabin vaccine was reviewed.

"There were no deaths in these cases," said the health council's statement. "In the approximately 4,000,000 persons fed Sabin vaccine in May, June and July, there were four cases of paralytic disease with a high probability of association with Sabin vaccine."

Another such case had occurred earlier.

"The predominant virus in these cases was Sabin vaccine Type 3," said the council. "Of the remaining 26 cases considered by the committee as justifying close appraisal, 10 were considered to have no association with Sabin vaccine and the others were believed to have a moderate or slight probability of association."

RESULTS 'SPECTACULAR'

Experience with Sabin in other countries had had a "spectacular effect" in reducing paralytic polio, said the committee.

The committee recommended that Sabin types 1 and 2 be used freely for all age groups.

It called for active surveillance and prompt reporting of all cases of nervous system disease occurring within 60 days of vaccine feedings.

Use of Sabin would not be indicated in cases of acute febrile illness, debilitating disease or where the patient has received another live-virus vaccine—smallpox or yellow fever inoculations, for instance — 21 days or less before Sabin is to be given.

Sparkling 'Fashion Fiesta' Presented by WHA at BCI

Soft music, provided by Mrs. Victor Barkley at the Hammond organ, formed a most pleasing prelude to the sparkling "Fashion Fiesta" held last evening at the Collegiate auditor, sponsored by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Long before the designated opening hour every available seat was filled, while some were later noted standing along the aisle wall.

Soon the blue velvet curtains partially opened revealing the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. M. F. L. Jones, who graciously welcomed the assembly, and extended appreciative thanks to various exhibitors for their most generous displays, and to Mrs. Eva Doolittle, fashion coordinator; to Messrs. Beeby for the lighting and sound effects; to Mrs. Barkley for the delightful music; to Mrs. W. C. Fretham, convener; to Mrs. J. Lennox Smith, co-convener of the "Fiesta", who also expressed their appreciation to Mrs. B. E. Burley for her wonderful planning of the fashion show — which really began away back in nursery days. Mrs. Smith also added her thanks and presented Mrs. J. H. Forrester, fashion commentator for the evening.

As the curtains slowly opened revealing an exquisitely appointed French salon with ornate ivory ramp, highlighted by potted greenery, display took footed by lovely golden potted chrysanthemums; and at the extreme left, a love-seat on which a pink negligee rested, and two accents satin cushions on the steps of the ramp, Mrs. Forrester slowly descended wearing a red gown, grey check long walking coat, with mink scarf, and carrying a red umbrella, bringing out that the charming outfit she wore and the glamorous accessories were essentially Canadian, that Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver and Winnipeg were the seats of fashion, adding that the mink scarf could, by a little dexterity, become a chic little hat.

Among the delightful exhibits demonstrated were those for sports, for afternoon wear; parties; evening clothes; entrancing silks and satins in almost rainbow colors and golden tints; gorgeous furs and alluring costume accessories.

In the sports department, a catching little number, suitable for skiing, or curling, showed a fitted blue and white geometrical patterned over blouse having a concealed zarks with inside zipper, and hand-tailored ski pants in green made from a stretch fabric. Another eyecatching number was a winter white quilted jacket with blue slims. All the sports togs are of feather weight, but warm and easy to wear. A lovely winter white suit showed a shaded fur collar and cuffs in hip length.

For afternoon street wear a two-piece dark brown with button accent down the front was appealing, as well as one in black and copper with touch of orange at the neckline.

The bag accessories, for the most part, were complementary and of generous sizes.

DOUBLE-KNIT ENSEMBLES

A double-knit, gold shade ensemble was outstanding. The lovely linings caught the eye with the glamorous appeal and in most cases where belts were worn, they hung low on the hips.

The evening dresses were works of art in lovely shades showing draped effects, with much "glitter" on the bodices of sequins, seed pearls and sparkling prisms. One in green had a bounce encrusted with sequins, sleeveless, low in back, and of pliable satin, a good dress for travelling, resistant to wrinkles; another was of grey beige encrusted with crystal beads with swirling skirt, and sleeveless. All skirts are just below the knee, unless for formal evening wear, when they are usually in floor length.

One of the outstanding sports wear which can be included was in Lodco green, the most important green of the season. This was shown with a crip-dry blouse in matching shade, worn with a dressy jerkin (not shown) was complemented by a Norfolk jacket.

Lounging togs also shown were a delight to the eyes and shown in reds, beige and greens.

The hostess dresses included a gold leaf brocade in double-breasted style and form-fitting. The companion outfit to this was that of lounging pyjamas in the same shade with loose envelope jacket, which had ample fold at the back for ease. Five young, studded side slims and jacket were shown, embroidered in rose motif in pink, hand washable.

The Mandarin styles had their place also in the show, and were in gleaming silks and satins, often bearing embroidery similar to Chinese porcelain, having in the side seams veiled pockets. One outstanding Mandarin coat was of orange, olive green and gold, and veiled with threaded mesh with gold three belt.

BLACK ALWAYS GOOD

Black was also one of the outstanding colors noted both in gowns, and coats, as was filmy chiffon, always a lovely material for graceful wearing. One black dress was a chiffon velvet, with chiffon jabot in candlelight shade, a most beautiful model.

A silk lined sheath with embroidered coat of silk chenille, the embroidered on pure silk needle-point, voluminous in cut, was a delight to the eyes.

The evening gowns were fashioned from materials combed from the markets of Switzerland, Italy, France and from the marts of Canada. These included of spiralling chiffon, beaded in iridescent crystals, in sunburst effect, ending in crystal tassels, one in apricot peau de soie, lovely as a dream, while another was in shades of purple, turquoise and black, very lovely, made on princess lines.

LUXURIOUS FURS

The furs shown were luxuriant and beautiful including a Canadian beaver in natural shade with loose back and shawl collar; another in full-length with shawl collar, which gives for slenderness, was of seal beautifully lined in grey with brilliant flower design, which had adjustable cocktail-length sleeves. Another coat was of sheared natural otter, soft as velvet, with slim shawl collar, made from 6½ pelts and lined in brilliant colored silk.

Black dyed Persian lamb in three-quarter length, with full-length sleeves with Canadian mink collar, closed by invisible hook and eye, with wedding ring collar. Others included natural grey Persian lamb with Canadian mink collar in pastel shade; black Persian lamb of brilliant curled pelts; with cropped Canadian beaver collar dyed black.

CANADIAN MUSKRAT

Another coat was of Canadian muskrat with collar of Lotetia mink, with cuffed bracelet length sleeves, which can be worn at any length, while yet another was of China mink in jacket design. In ermine shading, a lovely coat, suitable either for day or night.

In the closing scene, the models gathered attired in their lovely shaded evening gowns with beautiful mink stoles in various forms accompanied by the commentator, who was now attired in a white rippled gown with black evening coat. Others adding to the number were the conveners and the president.

Interesting interludes included the drawing of the door prizes, drawn by the Director of Nurses, Miss Smith, and the drawing of the special prize for the $150. wardrobe, with Mr. W. F. O. Darchael, superintendent of Belleville General Hospital, officiating, and who spoke briefly, on behalf of the patients, commending the W.H.A. for its fine work; the making of the puppets; the holiday treats and in care of the patients welfare; for the way in which the graduation exercises had been conducted adding glamour to the occasion; as well as for the work of the Coffee Shop, and the Opportunity Shop and this fashion fiesta, noting that 30 beds had been added through this work. He also thanked them for the improving patient care.

Those who modelled the beautiful togs, dresses, gowns and furs included: Mrs. W. R. Doyle Mrs. G. W. Gist; Mrs. Clark E. James; Miss Judy McKnight; Mrs. J. A. Pringle, and Mrs. G. S. Womacott.

The committee included: Mrs. W. C. Tatham, convener; Mrs. J. Lennox Smith, co-convener; Mrs. M. F. L. Jones; Mrs. W. J. Musgrove; Mrs. W. H. Pinkie; Mrs. J. W. Cavers; Mrs. N. C. Maefie; Mrs. R. T. Hubby Resents Time Wife Gives to Job

CAIRO (Reuters) — Dr. Helmat Abzeid, who recently became the first woman in the Arab world to be named a government minister, now finds that a little domestic discord is part of the price of the history-making appointment.

The plump, middle - aged housewife, a former psychology lecturer, was appointed Egypt's minister of social affairs.

Inevitably, the new post has created some domestic problems.

Her husband, a Cairo bank official, tends to resent the amount of time his wife has to devote to affairs of state. He is reticent about his feelings, but his wife told a reporter:

"He is not too happy about things at the moment, but I hope he will become more reconciled when I have settled down in my new job. Since I started work as a minister I had hardly a moment's free time. The household has been topsy-turvy and my husband is apt to resent it."

The couple were married last year. They live in an unpretentious apartment building in a quiet suburban neighborhood.

Before Dr. Abzeid's appointment, the couple had no telephone, no television, no car and no servants.

On the day she assumed her portfolio, a brand-new television set was installed in the apartment, a telephone appeared, a chauffeur-driven car was placed at her disposal and the police began keeping outside their apartment building.

Dr. Abzeid hired a 12-year-old boy to help around the house, but she still does the cooking herself.

Next week's program is to feature a demonstration and talk on the use of cosmetics.

Korean Church Topic at WMS Meet

A welcome greeting was extended by Mrs. W. M. Barlow, president, to members and friends attending the November meeting of the Women's Missionary Society at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday afternoon. She opened the meeting with the poem "A Church Woman's Prayer."

The business portion followed during which Mrs. W. Mantle favored with a solo, "Lord For Tomorrow and Its Needs."

The president reminded the various secretaries of the utmost importance of completing and sending in their annual reports at the proper time.

Another reminded had to do with the visitation to the County Home during the week of December 3rd, with a request for members with cars to take care of the transportation of visiting members to which Mrs. P. Bondy and Mrs. J. Darvell responded.

Mrs. J. H. Diamond, referring to the 100th anniversary of the W.M.S. in 1954, brought to the attention of members the fact that the anniversary book, at the local level, must be completed by December 15, explaining that this book is to contain the names of those people who wish to have their names recorded and preserved in the archives of the church.

Mrs. Diamond requested the help of all members in seeing that anyone who might be interested is made aware of the existence and purpose of this anniversary book, and since she is the "Key Woman" for this area, suggested that anyone wishing any information regarding the matter might get in touch with her at 344 George Street, or telephone WO 2-4845.

Continuing with the year's study subject, "The Christian Mission on the Rim of East Asia," Mrs. W. H. V. Walker, as leader, and Mrs. H. Scott, Mrs. J. Darvell, Mrs. P. Bondy and Mrs. O. J. Reid presented an interesting panel discussion on the church in Korea and the Koreans in Japan, dealing with the history of Christianity with the Korean from the 19th century, with particular references to the participation of the Presbyterian Church of Canada. This well presented discussion was further highlighted by a colored film and record, also supplying in a most interesting fashion additional enlightenment on the scope of the work of the church being carried on by Koreans for Koreans.

At the close of the meeting the usual social half hour was enjoyed over a cup of tea.

THE ALL PURPOSE HAT

An interested reader writes us with a list of complaints, regarding hats available in the stores this fall. She says that it is almost impossible to find a becoming hat, under $10. Because the average woman needs more than one hat per season, this lady tells us that she would rather be hatless than bankrupt! She also has teenage daughters, so the problem is multiplied. Her letter was in reply to our column entitled, "Do I Have to Wear a Hat?" The writer would love to wear hats, lots of them, if she could afford them.

It is true that the price of Canadian-made millinery, of all qualities, has crept up gradually over the past two or three years. Labor costs have increased and this fall, extra duties were placed on imported hoods, fabrics and trims. The result, in spite of valiant efforts on the part of both the manufacturers and the retailers, is 'higher priced hats.

Our reader asked if there be an all-purpose hat. She obviously was thinking of the varied fashion life of the simple classic pump shoe, basic handbag and utility tailored seasonless dress and tying, somehow, to find a hat to fit into the same category. In any other fall season except this one, we would have to say that there is no all-purpose hat. It is apparent that a tailored felt or velours would be all wrong with a side-draped afternoon dress. Just as out of place as a fluffy marlbon hat would be with a sweater and skirt.

This season, we know we have the answer. The all-purpose hat, the instant fashion for fall 1952 is the fur hat. It can have a pedigree a mile long, or it can be a fascinating fake. It can cost from about $2.98 right up the ladder to over $200 for the custom-made job. A fur hat, real or fake, looks right with sports wear, daytime dresses, classic or dressy coats and just as chic with afternoon dresses and simple cocktail dresses. Its fashion life depends only on the wearer's imaginative choice of accessories and the angle and way she wears it. A fur pillbox takes on an air of mystery, when worn tipped slightly to one side. A towering pixie can be squashed down to a turban, to give a change of pace.

We suggested to our reader, that although she might invest in a fur hat, she should keep an eye open for the millinery sales. If the advertisement is attractive, the whole town usually turns out early. Here is where the smart fashion shopper coats her reputation for looking kindness aside and shoves and grabs in a most unlady-like manner. Such strategy usually results in a becoming hat at half price. What are a few bruises compared to such a bargain.

The Hat Barn in department stores and the budget sections are good sources of bargain millinery. Another place for good fashion at low prices is in the catalogues. Here the competition is so fierce, that you can be sure that the value is excellent and the workmanship first-class.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of the Ontario Intelligencer.

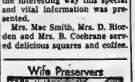
Question: Concerning your article "Wedding Plans Include Parents of the Bridegroom," a few additional details puzzle me. Does the groom's mother have anything to do with the selection of the gowns for the bride and bridesmaids? Does she have to be consulted about the color scheme? I thought both mothers chose gowns in colors designated by the bride. Should the groom's mother also be asked for suggestions about where the reception should be held, and about the music and flowers? Further advice would be appreciated. — Mrs. H.P., Livingston, N.J.

Answer: Choosing the bridal and attendants' gowns usually is done by the bride and her mother. The groom's mother ordinarily has little or nothing to do with the selection. However, she should be consulted about the color of her own dress. Both mothers often select their dresses together, to be sure the colors are flattering and tie in with the general color scheme of the wedding party. As far as other details are concerned, it's courteous to keep the groom's mother informed of plans and listen to suggestions. She might have some good ones to offer. But the bride and her mother have final "say" in all matters concerning the wedding and reception.

EMO Talk Given at IODE Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. took place at the Officers' Mess last Wednesday evening with the Regent, Mrs. A. Cunningham graciously welcoming everyone. After the secretary's and treasurer's reports, Mrs. Cunningham read special correspondence and also an interesting letter from Mrs. Morrison, provincial president.

Mrs. C. Bristol and Mrs. F. Burtt represented the Argyll Chapter at the Remembrance Day service.



Mrs. E. Smith gave an interesting account of the semi-annual meeting held in Peterborough the last week in October.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Bram Humphreys who was introduced by Mrs. O. Allan. Mr. Humphreys spoke on emergency measures and stated that in the event of a nuclear attack, all utilities and liquor supplies would likely be cut off or be limited for several days. Mr. Humphreys set up a table with all the special food and utensils one would need in an emergency and this pack included enough food for a minimum of seven days. Col. A. Duffy also spoke on preparedness in the event of a nuclear attack and outlined ways and means to be prepared.

Mrs. C. Bristol thanked Mr. Humphreys and Col. Duffy for the interesting way this special and vital information was presented.

Mrs. Mac Smith, Mrs. D. Riordan and Mrs. B. Cochrane served delicious squares and coffee.

Wife of U.S. Diplomat Has Been in 15 Postings

WINNIPEG (CP) — What does it take to be the successful wife of a diplomat, as well as being a housewife and mother?

Whatever it is, Mrs. J. H. Morris seems to have it down pat. She's the wife of the United States consul-general in Winnipeg.

Before her marriage 17 years ago she was a methods engineer, teaching programming for automatic accounting systems for two large companies in the U.S.

"I taught how to put accounting systems on tabulators—it was a fascinating field," she said.

Ready acceptance of new fields to conquer gave her the zest for 15 different diplomatic postings during her married life. Coming here last August was a major event for the family after 13 years in the Middle East, affording opportunity for their three sons to catch up on their Western education, and perhaps even attend the same school for at least a year or two.

LONELY LIFE

"We love the foreign service," she said, "but it can be rather a lonely life for children who constantly have to be leaving their friends."

Brian Morris, 14, was born in the United States. Lesley, 12, was born in Cairo and John, 5, in Turkey.

Moving, with all the children's prized possessions is a major undertaking.

"I usually trail along with the children after my husband is settled," she said.

As a housewife and mother she learned to cook exotic East-ern dishes, and also how to wash butter. Now she believes Canadian butter is the finest in the world.

"We have enjoyed re-doing the house and choosing the decorating scheme" since they arrived at the official residence here, she said.

Among treasures decorating the household are an Eastern filigree copper basket at least 250 years old, an urn from Syria and a hammered copper soap box with handle used by Egyptian women when bathing in the Nile. A delicate wall cabinet made by small boys in Turkey from a pattern drawn by Mrs. Morris was hand-carved.

HAS TRAVELLED WIDELY — Mrs. J. H. Morris, wife of the United States consul-general in Winnipeg, has accompanied her husband on 15 different diplomatic postings since their marriage 17 years ago. Mother of three boys, Mrs. Morris is shown with souvenirs from the Near East. (CP Photo)

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Someone has said: If we are not idealistic, perhaps even radical, at the age of twenty, there is something wrong with our hearts; if we are realistically practical at the age of sixty there is something wrong with our heads.

As human beings we are possessed of hearts and heads; we need them both. For growing and aspiring creatures youth must be a time of life when hearts learn their sympathetic function; to make our hide-bound personalities soar above sordid reality of crass practicality.

Too many of our young people are not dreaming enough, or at all. Too early in life they are pre-occupied with scoffing cynicism rather than creative criticism. Smug conformists, they are spiritually old and decrepit long before their time. They display an arch self-acceptance, characteristic of a more sedate, older group.

Too bad; they miss the important experience of being young.

YOUTH IS WONDERFUL

In the words of a penetrating observer: Youth is such a wonderful time of life; it is a pity that it has to be wasted on young people.

In order to come to the fulness of life armed with the power to meet life's challenges, we need to bring to our years some of the qualities of courage we have developed as young people.

If once we did know how to dream we can at least face older age with philosophical perspective, and the balanced wisdom of years brightly spent.

Joseph the dreamer was able to interpret Pharaoh's visions. For only a dreamer can understand, appreciate and value the beauty and the power of someone else's dreams.

Instead of wallowing in self-pity, crying over the dreams we have not fulfilled, when we reach advanced years, we can find meaning in the visions of others, gaining strength and joy from the immortal vigor of ideas.

What is more: As we grow older we will want to be what we are for we will have known what it has meant to be young when we were young. Instead of seeking happiness in trying to recapture something we have lost we may still learn how to be ourselves and yet enjoy it.

When youthful zest gives way to the gray hairs of age, for those who have truly been young, there is still much that can be done and will be done. For dreams do not die, even though dreamers must.

And the knowledge garnered by years, can teach us how to transform vapid vision into living reality. Something of heaven, when young hearts are supported by wise heads, can be brought down to earth.

Chicken Kiev Recognized

by Mary Moore

Nobody could have more fun than I do. I'm surrounded with guardians who actually are strangers but act like friends.

For instance, I casually described an unfamiliar chicken dish I ate on a recent plane trip and several readers recognized it as Chicken Kiev and sent me the carefully typed or written or printed recipe.

I made Chicken Kiev for dinner one night when my niece Beverley was here and she announced that she had eaten it in a Russian restaurant in London when she was out with an old boy friend. So I concluded that Chicken Kiev had been around quite a while and I had missed it in a big way.

THURSDAY

Dinner Menu

Swissed Pork Cutlets; Mashed Potatoes; Brussels Sprouts; Shredded Carrot and Raisin Salad with Homemade Dressing; Apple Crisp; Top Milk; Tea.

Now what we have is a choice and famous chicken dish to add to your guest meat file. It should be prepared in advance and requires careful preparation but at meal time it is simple to cook and take to the table.

Thanks to all who sent me the recipe for Chicken Kiev. CHICKEN KIEV (courtesy several readers):

For each person to be served select one large chicken breast. By one chicken breast I mean the breast from one side of a chicken. Have the butcher remove the bones and skin. Make soup from them. Place each breast between sheets of heavy wax paper or saran, boned side up and pound with rolling pin or cleaver to flatten each breast to less than ½" thickness. Remove wax paper or saran. Sprinkle each breast with salt and ¾ teaspoon each parsley flakes and green onion flakes (or chopped fresh parsley and chopped fresh chives). On each flattened breast place a hard piece of butter measuring ½ x ¼ x 2". Now roll this up folding sides in first, then roll to enclose and seal butter in. It should not escape even when baked. Press to make it keep its shape, then roll it in flour then dip in beaten egg then in fine crumbs. Place on plate, open side down, and chill for 2 hours. (Or if you make these in the morning chill until time to bake for evening meal.) In shallow baking dish, which can be carried to table, melt 4 tablespoons of butter in the oven. Remove and place chicken in dish, turning each roll over so it is coated with butter. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr for 10 minutes then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for another 15 minutes. In two of the recipes I received the Chicken Kiev was fried in deep fat at 375 deg. Fahr. for 5 or 7 minutes, but this does not appeal to me for last-minute guest meal preparation.

This was a terrific success. I should say though that a man who is a hearty eater might want two of these rolls, so judge accordingly.

Ontario Liberal Leader Is Considering Legal Action In Charge by Labor Council

KITCHENER (CP) — Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer of Ontario said Wednesday he will consider legal action if necessary "to get to the bottom" of statements made by the Kitchener-Waterloo Labor Council Wednesday night.

In a press conference at Mr. Wintermeyer's home here, the Liberal leader's law partner, Jack H. Smith, said he considers some of the statements in a report approved by the council to be libellous.

The report named Mr. Wintermeyer as a director of Major Holdings (Kitchener) Limited, a firm which the council said made huge profits out of land sales to the University of Waterloo.

The report, prepared by the council's political action committee, contended that Major Holdings was in a position to get inside information on the university's expansion plans because C. N. Weber, a director of the firm, was a member of the university board of governors.

Mr. Weber also said Wednesday he is considering taking legal action against individuals within the labor council.

University records show that Mr. Weber was not a university governor at the time negotiations for land purchases for the new campus were instituted in 1957.

Mr. Wintermeyer said earlier Wednesday he "did not make a dime" out of the operations of Major Holdings.

Dr. J. G. Hagey, president of Waterloo University, said the university made an offer to purchase a parcel of almost 184 acres from Major Holdings Jan. 25, 1958.

After adjustments, he said, the university eventually paid $1,000 an acre for the land.

Abe Weiler, Major Holdings president, told the press conference the first farmland on which the campus now is situated was bought by his real estate firm for $1,200 an acre in October, 1956—"long before the university had any plans to locate its campus there."

The council report approved Tuesday night said 176 acres of land had been sold to the university for $355,240. The report said the parcel was part of 200 acres purchased by Major Holdings in 1957 for $283,029.

The report called for "full disclosures" of the names of the shareholders who "have profited from this land profiteering."

Mr. Wintermeyer said Stephen McNeil, chairman of the labor council's political action committee, had been invited to attend the press conference but did not accept.

The Liberal leader said he owned one share in Major Holdings as a nominal qualifying share.

"I was never in a position to make a profit and I had no knowledge that this land would eventually be sold to the university," he said.

He said that immediately following his election to the leadership of the Liberal party he divested himself of any interest in the company.

Death Accident Verdict of Coroner's Jury

SUDBURY (CP)—Max Koelbel, 39, was killed with a .410 shotgun in the presence of his wife, son and stepdaughter, but no one could say how the gun went off, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday.

Koelbel had planned to kill his wife and 18-year-old stepdaughter, and possibly his 12-year-old son, Thomas, on the night he was shot in the family cottage on a lonely bush road near Burwash, his wife Helen testified.

The jury, inquiring into the Sept. 23 fatality, returned a verdict of accidental death.

Mrs. Koelbel said the day before the shooting Koelbel started drinking about 4 p.m.

Mrs. Koelbel said her husband woke her during the night and ordered her to waken her daughter.

There had been constant quarrels between her daughter and husband, Mrs. Koelbel said.

BEGS ON KNEES

"He pulled her by the hair and knocked her head against a post. Then he said 'This is the night, tonight is the night. You and your daughter are going to get it.' Thomas got out of bed and fell on his knees and begged him to leave her alone."

Koelbel threatened to kill the boy if he interfered, and sent him for the gun, Mrs. Koelbel said.

The stepdaughter, Renada Herpich, said her stepfather told her: "I promised to shoot you and tonight is the night."

She said Thomas brought the gun and he handed it to his father it went off, the load striking the man in the head and killing him. The boy collapsed.

He said Wednesday he was unable to explain how the gun, with a 6½-pound pressure trigger, had discharged.

Govt. Discounts Chances Of Solving Problem of Butter Surplus by Export Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Hamilton has virtually ruled out cut-rate export sales of butter as a means of solving Canada's big butter surplus.

He told the Commons Wednesday the government receives offers from around the world to buy Canadian butter at considerably prices well below the Canadian price but even below the commercial export level.

Canada has refused these offers, he said, because of its responsibility to trading partners who are exporting butter at commercial prices.

Mr. Hamilton was replying to Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) who asked about a report attributed to a Winnipeg businessman that East Germany seeks to buy 10,000 tons of butter at 25 cents a pound.

Canada's pegged price of 64 cents a pound to the farmer for top grade butter is now being at a loss—to be borne by taxpayers—which would mean disposal abroad at prices much below what the domestic consumer pays.

In the past, this has drawn sharp public protests, officials said.

The last major sale to another country was in 1959 during a period of international shortage when Britain obtained more than 10,000,000 pounds.

CONSUMERS PROTESTED

Even then, the sales price at 56 cents a pound resulted in a loss of at least eight cents a pound to the government. The sale was protested by the Canadian Association of Consumers.

Canada's butter surplus now is an estimated 250,000,000 pounds.

Since May 1, the retail price has ranged from 56 to 59 cents a pound although the government continues to pay the 64 cents a pound for top grades it acquires as surplus.

World prices are about half that of the pegged Canadian price of 64 cents a pound at the government level. Government storage costs on the butter surplus totalled nearly $4,000,000 for the year ending March 31 and probably will exceed that this year.

Canada Asks U.S. Court to Reject Request

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada has called on the U.S. Supreme Court to reject the contention of the U.S. National Labor Relations Board that it has jurisdiction over seamen of foreign-flag vessels doing most of their business in U.S. ports.

Joining with Britain, Liberia and Panama in opposing the board's argument, the Canadian government maintained that if the board's position is upheld this "could lead to a collision between the U.S. and Canada in the regulation of labor relations on Canadian - registered vessels and to wide uncertainty as to the applicable law."

The board, supported by the National Maritime Union of America (AFL-CIO), faces opposition not only from abroad but also from within the U.S. government. Both the state and defence departments have requested the justice department to file opposition to the board's position which has been rejected by a lower appeal court. The Supreme Court will fix a hearing day later.

ARGUES U.S. INTEREST

The controversial case centres on the U.S. union argument that some ship operators deliberately switched cargoes and routes to ships under foreign flags for the purpose of paying lower wages and reducing operating costs. In the present case, the U.S. United Fruit Company operates a big fleet under a Honduras subsidiary.

The board contends that since these ships do most of their business in U.S. ports and that in fact the subsidiary is owned by American stockholders, the board has power to order union representation elections aboard the vessels involved.

Robert MacCrate of New York, Canada's lawyer, said this argument by the board on the existence of American stock ownership in the foreign operation is of particular concern to Canada because of heavy American investment in Canadian enterprises.

BEGIN UN VISIT

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A 35-member group from the National Defence College of Canada, led by Maj.-Gen. C. B. Ware, began a three-day visit to United Nations headquarters in New York Wednesday.

Said by the builder to be the "best designed" school that he had constructed, the Harry J. Clarke School in East Belleville was officially opened last night by Dr. Herbert F. Bornhold, assistant superintendent of elementary education.

In use for more than a year, the school was built in two stages by T. A. Andre and Son Ltd. of Kingston, and The Tatham Company of Belleville. Architects were Watson and Wiegand of Belleville.

School Named After Former Inspector, Harry J. Clarke, Given Official Opening

Tribute to the memory of a Belleville man who served education for almost half a century, was paid Wednesday evening as the Harry J. Clarke public school in East Belleville was officially opened.

All speakers, including guest speaker, Robert F. Bornhold, assistant superintendent of elementary education, paid tribute to the work of the man whose name has been perpetuated in the East Belleville school.

The brief opening ceremonies saw keys handed over to the school board and also presentation of pictures and a piano to the school.

Pictures of the Queen and Prince Philip were presented by Mrs. Ed Smith on behalf of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E., while Mrs. Clarke, widow of the man in whose honor the school was named, officially presented a piano for use at the school.

The new school is of the latest type construction and is about as fireproof as a building can be. Floors are of pre-cast concrete slab covered with vinyl tile.

Ceilings are also of concrete slab, while windows and doors are of aluminum. The school has 11 standard classrooms, industrial arts and domestic science rooms and also a auditorium.

Mr. Bornhold likened the opening of the school with the launching of a ship. The one to which school had been put in the last year served as the "shakedown" cruise giving the "skipper" and his crew time to get accustomed to the ship prior to commissioning.

He commended the Belleville Public School Board in its decision to name the school after the late Harry J. Clarke who had given almost a half century of his life to education. He said the choice of name had been a "thoughtful" gesture.

REVIEWED SCHOOL SYSTEM

He went on to say the school had been carefully designed with an optimum use of space being gained. In planning both the taxpayer and the pupils had been kept in mind.

The speaker reviewed the government school grant system, noting that 80 per cent grant had been provided for parts of the school, with total grants covering about one third of the over-all cost.

Special annexation grants, voted by the government to assist municipalities in expansion programs, resulted in an additional $30,000 in grants for Belleville each year.

He noted there had been a tremendous program of school expansion in Ontario during the 1950's when accommodation for an additional 530,000 pupils had been built.

This demand for new space was now tapering-off and the 1960's would see a transitional period with emphasis shifted from quantity to quality education.

"Not that I think quality has been neglected in the past," he said.

Mr. Bornhold stressed the importance of a quest for knowledge, and quality of education in the classroom. Development of human resources was said to be the biggest challenge of the stages of an investigation of stockpile surpluses.

Symington praised officials of the International Nickel Company, for having taken what he called a "very fair, just and commendable position" in negotiating stockpile contracts with the government.

"You did not come into this field just to make a fast buck," Symington told Cabell.

Two other witnesses described negotiation of the premium-price contract.

John G. Ford, former contract negotiator for the Defence Materials Procurement Agency, and Louis Brooks, an official of the General Services Administration, testified that International Nickel claimed the premium price was needed. They cited additional costs they said were necessary to meet the needed up-delivery program the government insisted upon.

HEADS MINING FIRM

Ford now is a vice-president of a mining firm, Chibougamau Mines Limited of Toronto. He said he found International Nickel's negotiations "reticent about production costs." Ford said the government accepted the firm's cost estimates on advice of staff technicians that Ottawa's scrutiny was thorough.

The contract called for delivery of 120,000,000 pounds of nickel, but Brooks said the government purchased only 55,173,000 pounds. He said 40,800,000 pounds were received and a final amount was sold to private industry in 1955-57. The government cancelled the remaining 24,000,000 pounds, Ford said, paying International Nickel $7,-300,000 as the premium the company would have received if the contract had been fulfilled.

Cabell said the stockpile program as laid down, by the government did "substantial damage" from which the industry has not yet entirely recovered.

"Our company has repeatedly, with only partial success, pressed on the government to moderate its demand for nickel for the stockpile in order to maintain a more reasonable supply for civilian production," he said.

Two of World's Major Diamonds Sold at Auction

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of the world's major diamonds, the 70-carat Star of India's Eye and the 33-carat Venezuelan Tear, Wednesday brought a total of $560,000 at a public auction Wednesday. A third item, an emerald and diamond necklace formerly owned by the Maharajah of Indore, was sold for $265,000.

The items were among 25 pieces of jewelry, part of a collection gathered by the late Mrs. May Bonfils Stanton of Denver, Colo., sold at public auction.

The entire collection, including some of the largest rubies ever discovered, brought $1,245,940.

day.

He said there were four groups represented in equity help get rid of surplus stocks. The subcommittee, headed by Senator Stuart Symington, Missouri Democrat, is in the last INCO Official Defends Price Company Received For Nickel Sold to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—An International Nickel Company vice-president has defended the premium price his company received for nickel sold to U.S. government stockpiles.

The official, Richard A. Cabell of New York City, said Wednesday the 93 cents a pound still fell about $6,000,000 short of covering the Canadian firm's costs in fulfilling a 1959 contract negotiated in the Korean War emergency.

The price was about 26 per cents above the market price prevailing at the time.

Cabell—testified before the Senate armed services subcommittee. He is a vice-president of the company's Canadian affiliate, International Nickel Company Incorporated, and heads its New York City office.

BUYS MORE FROM U.S.

Reading from a prepared statement, Cabell told the subcommittee:

1. The company has bought 25 to 30 per cent of its nickel stockpiles than it sold to them and paid more than it had received on the transaction.

2. International Nickel has cooperated fully with the government, even while continuing its stockpiling program, and intends to continue co-operating.

Cabell vigorously defended reduction of the stockpiles' estimated 110,000,000-pound nickel surplus.

He said needs, measured by estimated mobilization requirements, "have not been recomputed for several years."

"We think it highly questionable for the government to undertake a substantial disposal of nickel and other strategic materials until our mobilization requirements have been thoroughly reviewed," he said.

"The Cuban crisis shows how quickly military and strategic plans can shift."

WILLING TO HELP

But whatever is decided, he said, the company is willing to

He said there were four groups represented in equity education. These were the school board, teachers, the parents and finally the pupils themselves.

Referring to the trend toward automation, Mr. Bornhold said he didn't know what kind of a world young people would be going out into but assured it would be a challenging one in which there would be rewards for best efforts.

The speaker was introduced by L. A. Kells, superintendent of Belleville public schools, with school principal Everett Eastman expressing appreciation.

Platform guests included Mrs. Clarke, Mayor W. J. Haig, Clarke T. Rollins, M. L. A. Hastings East, and W. Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A. Hastings West. T. A. Andre, Kingston and architect Wilfrid Watson.

Chairman of the school board William Townson welcomed guests and paid tribute to members of the board for their work in planning for the Harry J. Clarke School. He also commended the architects Watson and Wiegand and contractors T. A. Andre and Sons of Kingston and The Tatham Company of Belleville for a "fine job".

He said the aim of the board was to provide the best for the pupils while at the same time guarding the taxpayer's dollar.

Despite the expansion of schools in Belleville, the city still had the lowest cost per pupil for average daily attendance of any centre in Ontario, he said.

During the past eight years public schools in Belleville caused only a 1.8 mill rise in the tax rate.

Following the chairman's address, board member Mac Smith read a resolution for the balance of the program.

He referred to modern trends in school construction and materials and said school architects had kept pace with modern planning but had not gone to extremes. In the past 10 years there had been nine school construction projects in the city.

Vice-chairman Morley Lovelace introduced the platform guests.

During the program musical numbers were sung by the school student lady choir under the direction of Mrs. Jean Senerchia.

Following the opening visitors were invited to inspect the school and also were served refreshments in the school home economics room.

Federal Liberals Looking To Quebec in Next Election

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal Liberals read encouragement for their hopes at the next federal election into the results of Premier Lesage's Liberal government in the Quebec election.

Progressive Conservatives, campaigning under Quebec organization since the June 18 federal election, remained unperturbed on grounds their party wasn't directly involved but also have showed no trend which could be translated to the federal scene. Observers of the campaign detected two effects in federal politics—the Liberal opposition will be in an unsettled political mood in Parliament and they will be counting heavily on help from Mr. Lesage and his cabinet when another federal election is called.

Opposition Leader Pearson gave an indication of this in his comments on the election. He described the Liberal victory as merited by their conduct in office and stressed that federal Liberals worked hard for their provincial conferences.

He was asked whether he thinks Premier Lesage will work harder for the Liberal cause at the next federal election. Mr. Pearson said federal Liberals worked in the Lesage cause because they thought it the right thing to do "and I'm sure he will do what he thinks is right."

"FOLLOWS USUAL CUSTOM

However, Senator Jacques Flynn said he thought no definite conclusion could be reached about the effect on the next federal election. Senator Flynn, former federal cabinet minister, was defeated June 18 and has been a key figure in the Progressive Conservative reorganization in Quebec since then.

"The same trends did not appear in this election as in the federal election," he said.

Both Liberals and Conservatives suffered at the hands of Social Credit in the last federal election. The 26 federal seats won by Social Credit covered areas of the province in which Premier Lesage's Liberals a 19-to-12 edge over Union Nationale members. Six UN gains from Liberals were in "Social Credit" territory.

SEE NO EFFECT

Both Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson and Deputy Leader Real Caouette said they see a hands-off attitude to the Quebec election and saw no great effect on the federal scene of the Lesage victory.

However, Liberals have argued that Social Credit kept its vote out of the provincial election in order to help Nationale help at the next federal election in return for not splitting the provincial vote. They maintained this support will now be forthcoming.

The New Democratic Party also entered no candidates in the provincial election. Leader T. C. Douglas saw the result as an indication that Quebec is moving toward the sort of policy advocated by his party—greater development of the public sector of the economy.

He called the election result "a real tribute" to Quebec Resources Minister René Lesevque, often tagged as a Socialist by opponents, who introduced the issue of nationalization of power companies and pressed it through with tenacity."

Conservative sources consider the party's federal organization must be greatly improved in Quebec because less help can be expected from UN followers in those areas where they backed the Conservatives in the last federal election.

RABIES KILLS 24

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Public health authorities Wednesday declared Buenos Aires and other nearby cities an emergency zone because of a rabies epidemic that has killed 24 people and infected thousands of others in three months. Under new regulations, any animal found on the street, even if vaccinated, must be leashed, or will be put to death.

Don Lomas, age 12, proudly shows R. F. Bornhold, assistant superintendent of education, a bootjack which he made in the shop at the Harry J. Clarke School. Others in the picture are industrial arts instructor D. Julian and William Townson, public school board chairman (in background), and school principal E. S. Fairman, at right.

Ken Kendall Family Enjoys Eccentric Life on Coast

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — To the uninitiated, the Ken Kendall family may seem to fall far on the other side of eccentric.

To the initiated, a visit is an experience that can't be forgotten.

Ken Kendall, 58, and his wife Mary live near an innocent-looking harbor about 10 miles south of here. Beware the innocent-looking harbor.

At the approach of a visitor's boat, in all probability a cannon shot will whistle past the bow. And depending on Mr. Kendall's mood, it may mean a friendly welcome or a warning to the enemy — the Stuffed Shirt.

Mr. Kendall, with earrings flashing from lobes he pierced himself, is, among many other things, a maker of cannon for yachtsmen, an amateur pirate, a collector of weapons and the owner of 50 precious acres liberally sprinkled with threatening notices proclaiming that trespassers will be shot, or worse.

Mr. Kendall, a product of the University of Toronto, has made more than 100 cannon for U.S. yachtsmen and his friends in his backyard foundry.

To anyone who wants a cannon made, he urges them to bring their own brass ("about 16 pounds will do") and to steal the brass if at all possible ("the cannon fires better").

The iron cannon he trains on Stuffed Shirts ("there's no excuse for being pompous") is capable of firing a one-pound lead shot two miles with some accuracy.

The noise is deafening and mainly confined to signalling national holidays, but Mr. Kendall is always on the alert for Stuffed Shirts.

More than 5,000 persons have visited his log cabin home in the 15 years he and Mary have lived here.

"I pity all the rich men I know," he says. "I have everything a man could wish for. . . On $200 a month we are rich."

Medicines come from the Kendall estate through herbs. Fuel comes from the beach. The car is used mainly to meet the school bus.

His wife, a native of England, says she discovered here that British Columbians have some of the rarest foods right in their own front yard. Some of the ingredients may not inspire everyone — rattlesnake, octopus, wolf-eel, beaver, raccoon, great horned owl, crow, squid, an occasional ferret and just plain grass.

For New Year's Eve supper last year, Mrs. Kendall began cooking early in October. She presented to her 42 guests on Dec. 31 a total of 92 dishes, few of them ever seen on a menu before.

Recently, the Kendalls borrowed enough money from the bank to purchase half a cow. From this came, among other cuts, almost 200 pounds of hamburger.

Mary promptly began writing a book to be entitled "Two Hundred and Fifty Ways to Cook Hamburger."

Despite the masquerade of pirate and the mock belligerence, Ken Kendall is a perfectionist at anything he attempts. Only a few years ago, three of his guests proved to be Mounties who took possession of a boat little still and all it contained.

During the subsequent court proceedings, the prosecutor described the whisky as the strongest and best he had ever tasted.

BEWARE THE CANNON — Visitors coming by boat to the log cabin home of Ken Kendall near Nanaimo, B.C., may be startled to see a shot from this cannon whistle across their bow. If the visitors are regarded by the Kendalls as "stuffed shirts," the shot could be a warning; otherwise it's a welcome. They've had more than 5,000 visitors in the last 15 years and have entertained them by serving such delicacies as rattlesnake, octopus, wolf-eel, beaver, raccoon and crow. (CP Photo).
